CONTRACTS GO WHERE ABILITY IS CONCENTRATED

California Leads in Defense Work, to Continue

By BILL BROOM
I.P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — California's share of defense contracts is the biggest in the nation and will grow even larger, a Pentagon report indicated Saturday.

Last year, $5,277,000,000 in military prime contracts were placed in the state, 23.9 per cent of the national total.

Of even more significance, California received 41.34 per cent of all contract awards for experimental, developmental, test and research work. The total was $2,491,669,000.

"This is of major importance," the report said, "because any company which has conducted or managed the research and development work on a new weapons system and has assembled the engineering talent and experience for this purpose, is obviously in an exceptionally strong position to compete for the follow-on production contracts, and for new developmental contracts, as well."

Deputy Defense Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatric said the report, which shows the geographic distribution of defense contracts, was prepared in response to many inquiries. Most of these have come from congressmen and senators in Northeastern and Middle Western states. They complain often that the geographic shift is causing economic dislocation and unemployment in their states.

The Defense Department offered little hope to these states for immediate relief. It emphasized that military production has shifted away from mass-produced tanks, trucks and heavy ordnance into research, development and small-quantity production.

"It should be recognized," said Gilpatric, "that defense must seek its needs where capability exists, in order to be responsive to the technological requirements of modern warfare."

The geographic distribution of research and development contracts has "undoubted potential significance in the future placement of production orders," Gilpatric said.

Just how the changes in weapons systems have affected geographic production was shown in the statistics assembled. In 1953, missiles accounted for only 0.5 per cent of all military contracting. By 1961, they took up 33.6 per cent. Meanwhile, electronics contracts rose from 11.2 per cent in 1953 to 18 per cent in 1961. By the end of that year, missiles and electronics between them took up over half of all prime hard-goods contracts.

This almost reversed the standing of mass produced ordnance for conventional warfare. In 1953, it constituted 50 per cent of military spending. By 1961, it had shrunk ot 12.4 per cent of the total.

States hardest hit by the shift were Michigan (down from 9.5 per cent of the total to 2.7 per cent), Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

States showing the biggest percentage gains were California, Massachusetts, Texas, Colorado and Florida.

As a result of the shift, defense production showed "a strong tendency toward concentration of contracts in California, and in the coastal strip from Boston to Washington," the report said.

"A region that gains a long head-start in a new and expanding field of procurement is bound to enjoy an enduring advantage, especially when research and development is a primary element," it continued. "Successful R&D leads to follow-on production contracts, and in turn, engineering work creates a new R&D capability. The process is circular, and it regenerates itself."

Of prime importance in the assignment of research contracts are the presence of nearby scientific and uni-

VETERINARIAN DRAWS BLOOD FROM PETE'S HEART WITH SYRINGE

PETE'S NO BLUEBLOOD BUT—

He's Saved Lives of Champions

Pete probably never will take a prize in a cat show, but in his veins runs the blood that has been given, on occasion, to top breeds.

Pete's a cat blood donor.

He's a 5-year-old mixed shorthair, the pet of Dr. Philip N. Ramsdale, veterinarian.

"He's sort of the boss around here," Dr. Ramsdale said. "I put up with all sorts of his nonsense. For instance, whenever I'm doing paper work, Pete's got to hop up on the desk and make himself at home."

As a donor of blood for ailing cats, accident or anemia cases, 14-pound Pete has three prime attributes: he's good natured, healthy and available.

Pete's an old hand at the blood-donor bit. He's been giving blood for five years now. The blood is drawn from Pete with a hypodermic syringe. Pete doesn't even flinch. "It doesn't bother him," said Dr. Ramsdale.

Pete's blood is injected into a vein of the cat in need. Pete can donate about once a month—50 to 75 cc., two to three ounces.

Having done his bit, Pete gets a shot of B-12, a saucer of milk and takes a nap.

Kennedy Calls Airline Strike 'Irresponsible'

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Kennedy said Saturday night it would be the "height of irresponsibility" for the Flight Engineers Union to persist in its "unnecessary" strike against Pan American World Airways and Eastern Air Lines.

"The way is still open for a sensible solution without the injury, both to the parties and to the public, inherent in the present course of action," Kennedy said in a sternly worded statement issued by the White House.

Kennedy said, "It goes without saying that all court orders issued in connection with this dispute must be obeyed." A federal judge ordered engineers back to work at Pan Am a few hours after the 2 p.m. EDT walkout.

* * * *

KENNEDY said that the engineers' settlement with Trans World Airlines earlier this week "demonstrates that the strikes on Eastern and Pan American airlines are unnecessary."

The Engineers Union promptly responded with a statement by its president, Ronald A. Brown, saying that it should not be blamed solely for the strike, and also that it "will not abdicate its right to strike."

Brown said the strikes against Pan American and Eastern were "perfectly legal and justified" and that the management of the two lines must share equal blame for lack of a contract agreement.

He also said that the proposed guidelines for a settlement suggested by the Labor Department, which were used in resolving a similar dispute with TWA, would not serve the public interest.

Kennedy said the Trans World agreement should have been followed promptly by similar agreements with Pan Am and Eastern.

"The course was plainly open to all flight engineer chapters for a sensible and equitable resolution of the issues in dispute," the Chief Executive said.

"The good offices of the government were and are fully available, as they were

Assistant to Nixon Beaten Up

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police say an aide to Richard M. Nixon was beaten brutally Saturday by two robbers as he walked to work.

Charles Lichestein, 37, a research assistant, was in critical condition after surgery for a depressed skull fracture.

He told police he was walking from his apartment, three miles away, to his office at Ninth Street and Grand Avenue in downtown Los Angeles. He said two men jumped out of a car and asked him for his wallet when he was almost at his office.

Lichenstein said he refused, and the men slugged him with pistols on his head and face. They then fled empty-handed.

* * * *

THE INJURED man lost a great deal of blood, said attendants at County General Hospital. He suffered severe facial lacerations and shock, in addition to the skull fracture.

A spokesman for Nixon said Lichenstein had been doing research in Nixon's campaign for the governorship of California.

Lichenstein worked for Nixon in the 1960 presidential campaign. He recently rejoined the staff.

Lichenstein, a Yale graduate, was once an assistant professor of political science at Notre Dame University. He was with thhe Central Intelligence Agency before he joined Nixon.

He is a bachelor. Friends said he always walked to work for the exercise.

Douglas Strike Election Today

The troubled Southland labor picture continued to boil this weekend with a strike vote scheduled at one plant today and talks scheduled Monday in an effort to break a construction industry deadlock.

Members of the United Auto Workers Union in Douglas Aircraft Co.'s Long Beach plant are to take a strike vote at 2 p.m. today.

Meantime, cement masons began walkouts in the construction industry and carpenters and building contractors were scheduled to resume talks Monday in their dispute.

* * * *

THE LATHING Contractors Association of Southern California and the five Los Angeles County locals of the Nail-On Lathers have announced signing of a three-year agreement, ending threat of a walkout in that phase of the construction industry.

Cement Masons Local 627 of Los Angeles went on strike Friday and began piecemeal walkouts against selected contractors. In retaliation, the contractor's joint negotiating committee said all contractors were directed to lay off non-striking masons Monday afternoon. Local 627 has 5,000 members.

The masons were called off their jobs after failure to reach contract agreements Thursday. Negotiations were expected to resume Monday but the masons were reported to have boycotted Friday's talks.

* * * *

A LOCKOUT against carpenters has been in effect since Wednesday. The union has 55,000 members. A spokesman for the contractors said chief obstacles to agreement were disputes over fringe benefits and "technical issues." Neither side would elaborate on details of the dispute."

A spokesman for the contractors said construction in 11 Southern California counties will be shut down by Tuesday unless settlements are reached with the carpenters' and mason' unions.

Island Test Zone Closed

HONOLULU, June 23 (AP)—The Christmas Island nuclear test zone was ordered closed at 1:30 a.m. (6:30 a.m. EST) Sunday, signifying the possible detonation several hours later of the 23rd nuclear device in the current Pacific series.

50 Homes Ripped by Twister

CHICAGO (UPI) — A tornado swept through a new suburban subdivision Saturday damaging about 50 homes and injuring 18 persons, two seriously.

The twister, described as a "baby tornado" by the Weather Bureau, struck without warning in the late afternoon when most residents were outdoors in the yard or on shopping trips.

"If it had come a couple of hours later when everybody was in the house, it could have been a lot worse," a fireman said.

The twister, accompanied by a driving rain, cut a path about two blocks wide and only a half-mile long. Savage winds tore roofs off homes and garages and blew out hundreds of window panes.

Firemen, police and civil defense workers converged on the area, which is known as El Vista, located near Oak Forest south of Chicago.

L.B. Opera Viewed 'From Then to Now'

Mary Ellis takes a "then and now" look at Long Beach Civic Light Opera as she traces the group's growth from early Singers Workshop days to its current near-professional status in a cover page story today in the Women's Section.

The group currently is in rehearsal for "Showboat," which begins a seven-performance run Thursday evening at Municipal Auditorium.

And, of course, the Women's Section is crammed full of its regular features including Iola Masterson's "The Wild Waves Say," Mildred Flanary's Chef of the Week column, Molly Mayfield, music and arts, fashions and Oswald Jacoby's highly popular bridge column.

Alcatraz Doomed as Prison

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said Saturday the government probably will close Alcatraz penitentiary in the not-too-distant future.

He said that shutting down "The Rock" in San Francisco bay would be a saving to the taxpayers. The inmates would be transferred to another federal maximum security institution.

* * * *

CONSIDERATION of Alcatraz's future had been going on long before the June 12 escape of three bank robbers who dug holes in the wall with sharpened spoons.

The three, Frank Lee Morris, 35, John William Anglin, 32, and his brother, Clarence, 31, are presumed to have drowned in the swift current of San Francisco Bay.

Justice Department officials said that deterioration of the prison, established in 1934 on the site of an Army disciplinary barracks, was far advanced.

Girls Rescued on Island Cliff

A rescue party retrieved two injured girls from a precipitous canyon wall on Santa Catalina Island late Saturday ending a day of terror that began as an outing for six girls and three boys.

Constable John Windle said Marsha Shields, 14, of Sun Valley fell and was stranded on a ledge in the rugged Pacific Divide area at about 10:30 a.m.

Also injured was Merloyn Powell, 19, of Burbank who was hit by a rock. Both were reported suffering from shock and were in Avalon Hospital.

* * * *

TWO GIRLS in the party of teen-agers from Burbank hiked back to Avalon and notified authorities about 1:40 p.m. A 12-man rescue party headed by Hollis Jones, chief security officer for the Santa Catalina Island Co., Windle and Dr. Robert Staff, was organized and hurried to the canyon equipped with a basket stretcher.

It took more than two hours to reach the stranded girls and it was 7:15 p.m. before they were returned to Avalon Hospital. The 14-year-old girl was brought out of the canyon in the stretcher.

Windle said the teenagers are in a chaperoned group visiting the island.

He staggered and fell into the arms of the city's mayor and police chief.

LBJ Aide Confirms Estes Call

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Clifton C. Carter, a staff assistant to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, said Saturday he received two or three telephone calls from Billie Sol Estes earlier this year, including one the day before Estes was arrested by the FBI.

Carter also said Estes paid "one social call" on him early this year in Johnson's office but that "no business was discussed." Carter said Estes stayed only about five minutes. He said the "purely social" visit was in January, February or possibly March.

The Johnson aide said the indicted Texas financier telephoned him long distance at his home in nearby Arlington, Va., on March 28, the

L.A.C. Says:
Should Not Make the Same Mistake

Gov. Brown has called a special session of the legislature to place the June 5-defeated $270 million bond issue on the November ballot. It is hoped the voters will approve the issue then. They defeated it by an overwhelming vote in the June 5 election. Unless it is presented in a more realistic program it may well be defeated again. Unless the voters are permitted to vote separately on the college and university programs—without the hidden other projects—it will lose much of its support.

Of this $270 million the governor and legislature asked the people to support there were some $70 million of projects which normally are provided in annual budgets. Brown did include them in his "balanced budget." But he expected to get the money from this bond issue. It was the old political trick of placing many unrelated projects in a measure with a project of popular appeal. In Congress it is called an "omnibus bill," where all the pet projects of legislators are thrown into a bill that must be passed to keep the government in operation.

The primary object of Prop. 3 was to provide the many essentials for our expanding college programs. It was to be used for the University of California, state and junior colleges. These new facilities are essential if we are to care for the ever-increasing number of students seeking higher education. It is probable that if Prop. 3 carried only these provisions it would have had a large majority. Instead, it suffered a drastic defeat.

In Prop. 3 were included such building projects as health department, military department, ranger unit headquarters, forest fire stations, prison for men, hospitals and numerous like projects. On the ballot not one word indicated how or where the money would be used. It said: "State construction program." But the Governor's campaign emphasis was placed on the need for colleges—not the miscellaneous projects. It may be these are also essential to our needs. But they should be placed in a separate package so the voters would know what they are voting for. To do otherwise would seem to be an effort to achieve something by devious methods rather than by straightforward methods.

The Governor is in an embarrassing position. He has made quite a point of balancing his almost $3 billion budget. But in doing so, he did not make it a point to tell the people this was dependent upon borrowed money to come from passage of Prop. 3. The voters turned down the bond issue because the wording of the measure did not clearly define what the money was for, or where it would be used.

It is now up to the Governor and the legislature not to make the same mistake on a new bond issue to be voted on in the November election. The needs of our colleges should not have to also carry the responsibility for many unrelated projects. Let these projects be honestly placed on a separate bond issue if that is the way they are to be financed. To do otherwise will cause even less confidence in the proposals —and probably again defeat the vital educational projects which we believe a large majority of the voters would approve. The legislature should not repeat its former mistake if it is sincere in wanting the college bonds passed.—L.A.C.

Kennedy Brands Flight Engineers' Strike as Irresponsible Maneuver

in the TWA dispute, to assist in such a resolution.

"Such a proffer was made last night by the National Mediation Board. It is most regrettable that this offer was spurned by the flight engineers."

A flight engineers spokesman in New York said earlier, "Our people are fed up with government interference."

Kennedy said, "To persist in the strike course would be the height of irresponsibility" on the part of the Flight Engineers Union and its Eastern and Pan American chapters.

"It is a course clearly destructive to the best interests of the membership of the Flight Engineers International Association," Kennedy declared.

"Good judgment and even a minimum concern for the public interest require prompt termination of the strikes so that sensible collective bargaining and effective mediation can result in an equitable solution, as was provided in the TWA agreement," Kennedy said.

The Pan Am strike was quickly stopped by a restraining order issued by a federal judge, but Eastern closed up shop and sent home its nearly 18,000 employes, disrupting travel plans for hundreds of Americans.

The Flight Engineers Union called the strike despite pleas for a delay by George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, and the National Mediation Board.

Picket lines were thrown up across the nation at 2 p.m., EDT. Eastern immediately closed shop and denounced the strike action.

Pan American attorneys went before Federal Judge George Rosling in New York and obtained a temporary restraining order — effective until 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday. He ordered both sides to appear for a hearing at 2 p.m. Tuesday. The order did not apply to Eastern.

The heart of the labor dispute is the Engineers Union demand that a union engineer be included with two pilots in the makeup of jet cockpit crews when they are reduced from four men to three.

Malcolm A. MacIntyre, president of Eastern Air Lines, said the strike was called in defiance of President Kennedy and with no regard for the American public. He said the fight was between two unions with the airlines caught in the middle.

"The union's president, Ronald Brown, said they were striking for self-representation rights — in other words, over which union will control the third seat in jet aircraft," MacIntyre said.

"This is purely a jurisdictional dispute between two unions (Flight Engineers and Air Lines Pilot Association) which no airline management can resolve."

The strike came at the height of the tourist season.

The airlines said it could cost them $1 million per day.

Pan American had to cancel some flights early in the afternoon. Others went out with supervisory personnel. After the restraining order was handed down, union engineers were called at home and ordered to report. Many flights were delayed but there were no more cancellations.

A Pan American spokesman said the company was "delighted" the federal court had taken its action, and added that Pan Am was confident it would lead to a "permanent solution of the problem without further disruption of service to the traveling public or further damage to the government's critical balance of payment position."

Jack Robertson of Miami, Fla., president of the Eastern chapter of the union, said he was "surprised" that Eastern did not go along with Pan American in the restraining order.

There appeared to be no possibility for negotiation before Monday at the soonest.

The shutdown of Eastern operations caused hundreds of passengers to look for seats on other airlines. To help handle the travel load, Northeast Airlines announced it would operate a number of extra flights in addition to its regular schedule.

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — The 2½-hour flight engineers walkout against Pan American World Airways Saturday forced the cancellation of a Los Angeles to London polar flight, but had no other effect locally.

Pan American said all operations were back to normal Saturday afternoon after a temporary restraining order was issued in the East blocking the strike.

The flight engineers went on strike at 11 a.m., Los Angeles time, and were back at work by 1:30 p.m.

The polar flight's 112 passengers were diverted to European flights of Trans World Airlines and British Overseas Airlines Corp.

Pan American operates seven incoming and seven outgoing flights daily at International Airport.

day before Estes was arrested, and told Carter he understood he was being investigated.

"I told him I knew nothing about it," Carter told United Press International. He said Estes asked him to call back if he found out anything "but I did not call back."

Records which Texas Asst. Atty. Gen. William Poole introduced at the court in Estes' hometown, Pecos, also showed a total of 38 calls to Sen. Ralph Yarborough, Texas Democrat. Two were made March 29, the day the FBI arrested Estes.

THE RECORDS of the Statler-Hilton Hotel in Dallas showed one call from Estes at 9:02 p.m., EDT, to Carter, whom Atty. Gen. Will Wilson described as Johnson's administrative assistant. Estes made the call to Carter in Arlington, Va., and talked six minutes.

Three calls from Estes' telephones in Pecos were made to Carter, according to the records. There was no way of telling how many of the calls Estes personally made. The telephones were either at his home or his various businesses.

Poole, pointing to the records, said two person-to-person calls were made from Estes' telephones to the late Henry H. Marshall, 51, believed to have been the first farm official to have suspected that Estes was illegally getting cotton-acreage allotments.

A Joe Bennett made one call. There was no indication who made the other. Marshall was found dead June 3, 1961, in Franklin, Tex., with five bullet wounds in his body. It was officially listed as a suicide.

There still is some question, however, as to what it was. A grand jury reopened the case, investigated five weeks and gave up last Monday, saying it could not decide whether Marshall was murdered or committed suicide.

EL SEGUNDO (AP)—Selection of Richard Nixon as the GOP gubernatorial nominee means state Republicans approve in principle his stand against the right-wing John Birch Society, a California Republican leader said Saturday.

Fred Hall, former Kansas governor who now heads the volunteer California Republican Assembly, added, however, that members of his group still are divided over Nixon's position that Republicans should choose between the Birch Society and the official GOP. Hall addressed the Assembly at a meeting here.

HE SAID HE intends to do everything he can to bring the 14,000-member organization into line with Nixon's political opinions.

Hall recalled that members of the group differed last March over the former vice president's proposed resolution condemning the Birch Society. The Assembly's convention subsequently approved a watered-down resolution condemning Birch leader Robert Welch.

Other speakers at the meeting included Nixon and San Francisco Mayor George Christopher, Republican nominee for lieutenant governor.

Nixon, who defeated Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell, a conservative, in the primary, insisted that Gov. Edmund G. Brown accept or reject support of what Nixon has termed the "left wing extremist" California Democratic Council.

"It's time for the governor to get off the fence," Nixon said. He added that he firmly opposes the council's key resolutions, which he said "would gravely weaken our state and nation."

* * * *

MAYOR CHRISTOPHER proposed a legal ceiling on California's bonded indebtedness to "preserve the fiscal integrity of the state."

He suggested limiting the amount of bonds outstanding to a percentage of the total property valuation in the state, as assessed by the counties. Said Christopher:

"A ceiling on the debt would prevent further flagrant abuse of the bonding process by irresponsible state leaders whose first interest is the handing out of political largesse from a public pork barrel."

Yukie, With Her Dad, Mom Heads for Home

Marine Master Sgt. and Mrs. Stanley G. Baker and their newly adopted daughter, Yukie Fujii Baker, 10, pursued a leisurely course towards Yukie's new home in Buena Park Saturday.

By a late hour they had not arrived at the Baker home at 6514 Constance Circle on their trip from Travis Air Force Base where Yukie landed after Baker untangled the red tape that had kept her from joining him.

Baker first saw Yukie in a Japanese orphanage and decided to adopt her. When he told newsmen of the red tape which barred Yukie from the United States, the resultant stories cleared the way for their reunion.

California's Defense Jobs Lead Nation

versity research laboratories, the report said.

"The evidence is overwhelming—Route 128 encircling Boston, the industrial complex around San Francisco Bay, that related to California Institute of Technology and UCLA in the Los Angeles area, are cogent examples of the clustering of industry around centers of learnings."

Only in this respect, does California lose its leadership. In contracts for research by schools and nonprofit institutions, Massachusetts leads with $120.4 million. California comes next with $87.5 million, and Maryland is third with $47.9 million. The three states gobbled up more than half the total of $431 million in contract awards.

"Defense policy stresses awards on merit," the report concluded. "Local initiative seeking defense business must direct itself to the creation of capability responsive to the exacting needs of modern warfare. Communities which fail to recognize this fact, and which fail to energize and mobilize their institutions to adjust to it, cannot reasonably anticipate a major role in future defense procurement."

Rusk, Italian Chiefs Agree

ROME (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and leaders of Italy's leftist-leaning government announced Saturday night they were in full agreement on a wide range of cold-war problems in Europe.

This unity of views was announced after Rusk ran through a day of talks with President Antonio Segni, Premier Amintore Fanfani and Foreign Minister Attilio Piccioni.

A communique said they discussed "Soviet-American conversations on German problems; the process of European political unity, and the problems of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, an essential factor in maintaining peace and freedom in the world."

Brown Victory Seen on Bonds

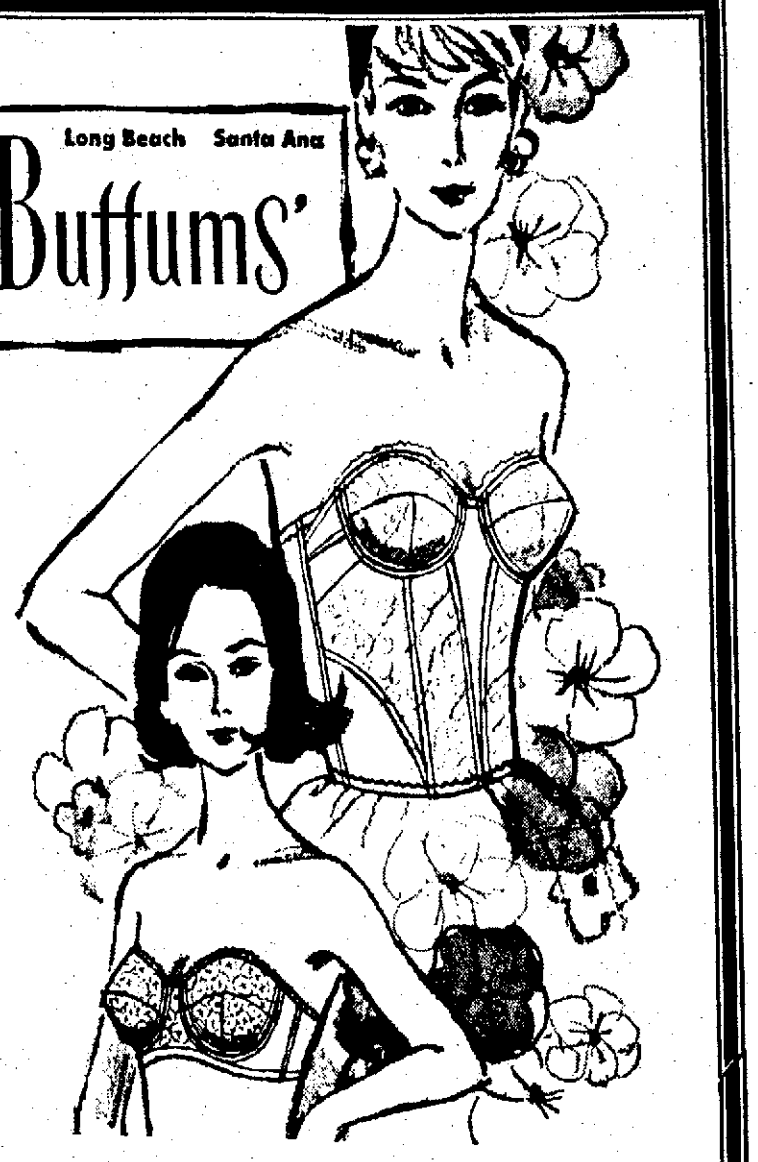

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The legislature convenes in a special session Tuesday to consider asking California voters to reverse their June 5 defeat of a bond issue for construction of university and college buildings, mental hospitals and prisons.

Democratic Gov. Brown is expected to hand the legislators a package similar to the $270-million Prop. 3 rejected in the primary. With Democrats in control of the Senate and Assembly, majority party leaders predict speedy approval. The measure would be on the November ballot.

Minority Republicans in the Assembly, admitting they don't have the votes to stop Brown's program, promise a bond plan of their own.

They also may try to force a revision of the governor's $2.9-billion budget.

INFORMATION RETRIEVAL

State Department Testing Foreign Affairs Computer

By DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) —One of these days a new revolution will break out in a far country. At the State Department there will be no panic. An official will calmly press buttons on an electronic computer.

There will be a soft whirring, and out will come a complete resume of the country, its economics, military strength, politics, international hopes and quarrels.

The diplomat will have all the information before him to decide whether to send the Marines.

Fantastic? Take another look.

THE STATE department already is experimenting with electronic computers in making foreign policy decisions.

In a rented office over a drug store a few blocks from the White House a small group of foreign service officers has spent the last three months analyzing and coding thousands of State Department documents. They will soon begin feeding them into the magnetic tape "memories" of computers.

The project so far is merely an experiment in "information retrieval"—limited to a few selected countries and international problems and designed to prove the concept and devise ways of coding and storing facts so they can be extracted in a meaningful way.

* * * *

HENRY H. FORD, deputy assistant secretary of state for operations, who oversees the project, is the first to admit it would be impossible to put the policies of Kennedy, Khrushchev, De Gaulle and Adenauer on tape and come up with a Berlin Crisis solution.

But he sees a number of roles for computer machines.

"Everybody talks of the 'population explosion'" Ford said, "but there has also been an 'information explosion' in foreign affairs. The state department receives thousands of bits of information about a country every day, from our embassies, from intelligence reports, from newspapers, from international radio, and from other agencies such as the commerce department and the military.

* * * *

THE OLD SYSTEM of filing these away in cabinets in hopes that you can find them again in a hurry is becoming obsolete."

It would be possible, officials believe, to put all of Khrushchev's speeches or tens of thousands of facts about a given country on computer tape so that any aspect could be quickly extracted.

There may be other uses which go beyond mere memorizing of facts. For example, the price of copper may be a key political factor in a given area and, by collecting enough data, computers could predict price changes and thereby help predict political events.

* * * *

"THERE HAS been considerable experience in using computers in this way in the business world," Ford said. "What we are doing is applying these proven techniques to new problems in the field of foreign policy."

Officials would not say what countries have been selected for the pilot project, apparently on the theory that some might resent being fed into computers.

Senior diplomats in the department are backing the project and seem unworried by the thought they might be replaced by machines.

But the experiment has caused some spoofing. One anonymous diplomat has written an article in the Foreign Service Journal describing the State Department in 1990 as run by a secretary, 150 ambassadors and 1,500 machines which will decide everything on a formula: "A is either greater or less than B."

Red Wall Now Built Into River

BERLIN (UPI) — The East German Communists extended their anti-refugee wall underwater Saturday. They sank barriers like upended bedsprings into the Spree River to balk refugees seeking to swim their way to West Berlin.

Communist frogmen plunged into the Spree to sink the new barriers while the East Germans also strengthened their barbed wire noose around the city on land.

At the same time the U.S. Army rolled four troop convoys along the superhighway through Communist East Germany without opposition from the Communists.

The American convoys shuttled beween West Berlin and West Germany without Communist hindrance in a new demonstration of Western rights of access to the isolated city.

Hunt Man in Assault on Spouse

Long Beach police Saturday night were seeking an AWOL sailor for what they described as the attempted murder of his wife.

Officers said the suspect, Jesus Martinez Jr., 28, attempted to choke his wife to death early Saturday.

The wife, Constance, 32, told police her husband is AWOL from the USS Isle Royale. She said she had fallen asleep on a couch in their Navy housing project apartment at 2151 San Gabriel Ave. Friday night after she and her husband attended a movie.

MRS. MARTINEZ said she awoke in the morning as her husband was choking her. He throttled her into unconsciousness, she said. She awoke later, bleeding from the mouth. Officers said her throat bore large bruises.

She was treated at the Naval Dispensary.

Mrs. Martinez said she crawled to a neighbor's apartment after she regained consciousness and the neighbor called police. She said her husband took $200 from her wallet before he fled.

Religions Plan to Mark Signing of Emancipation

CHICAGO (UPI)—A joint attack against racial segregation will be initiated next January by Protestant, Catholic and Jewish groups to mark the centennial of Lincoln's signing the Emancipation Proclamation.

About 600 clerical, religious and lay workers have been invited to the National Conference on Religion and Race, Jan. 14-17, the first such meeting crossing major religious lines.

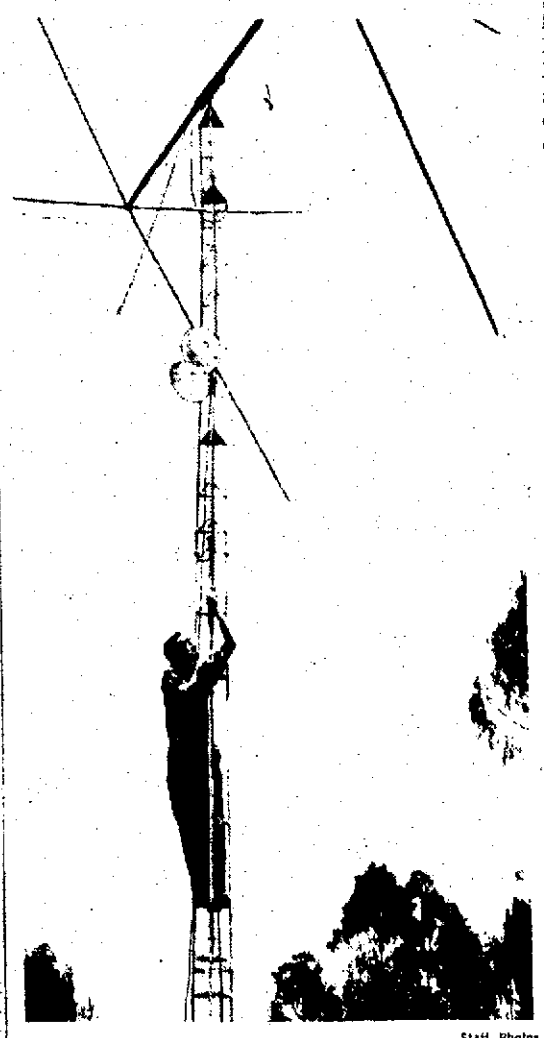

More than 40 Protestant, Jewish, Catholic and Orthodox groups were expected to participate in the meeting.

Radio Hams Play Important Part in Public Safety Tests

Approximately 50 ham radio operators are taking part here in a 24-hour world-wide exercise which began at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Local ham are working at the home of Dr. Edgar E. Daniels, 3003 Palos Verdes Drive East, Palos Verdes, where 12 amateur radio stations have been set up.

STEVE BERMAN CONNECTS ANTENNA

Twelve antennae have been put up on the grounds of Daniels' house. Al Lee of Lakewood, director of the local operation, said the 12 stations are powered by an emergency generator and are operating simultaneously.

The annual exercise, held under rough emergency conditions, is designed to test procedures and equipment which could be used by public safety groups when normal communications are disrupted.

* * * *

INCLUDED in the plan for emergency radio use are such agencies as Red Cross, Civil Defense, police and public utilities.

Sponsoring the event is the American Radio Relay League. Local direction is by Associated Radio Amateurs of Long Beach.

The call code W6PMO is used by the local group.

Director Lee invited all licensed operators to participate directly in the field day or make contact on the air.

More than 15,000 American and Canadian radio amateurs, stationed in tents, log cabins, barns, floating rafts and fire towers, are taking part in the field day in the Western Hemisphere.

The field day is run in the form of a contest. Club groups score points for number of contacts made and simulated emergency messages exchanged. The point system makes allowance for output and the fact that hams work on portable power.

Leniency Refused to Cohen

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Federal Judge George H. Boldt Saturday refused to reduce Mickey Cohen's 15-year prison sentence for income-tax evasion, describing the ex-mobster as "among the greatest of the confidence men and swindlers."

Cohen had sought the reduction on the grounds he was no longer the cocky underworld figure of the past and that his attitude toward law and order had changed since his conviction a year ago.

* * * *

THE ONETIME gangster, who is in Alcatraz, pleaded in a four-page letter written from "The Rock" last Monday for a chance "to make amends" for his previous actions. But Judge Boldt, who came here from Tacoma, wasn't impressed and, after a two-hour hearing, described Cohen as a man who "preys on everything" to whom nothing is sacred.

"Friendship, religion, politics, sickness are all things he uses to his best advantage," said the jurist.

* * * *

IN OPPOSING the sentence reduction, Asst. U.S. Atty. Thomas R. Sheridan put television personality Tom Duggan on the witness stand and introduced a tape of Duggan's KTTV show last Feb. 20 during which Cohen commented:

"I don't know what I was convicted of. All the evidence they had was my reputation."

Attorney A. L. Wirin, who has represented Cohen during his long legal fight, which was carried all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, introduced a letter to the lawyer in which Cohen wrote:

"No one knows better than myself that I haven't been an angel throughout my life, but I have always been a true American all the way."

Brown Adds New Chapter to N.Y. Growth Debate

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Brown has written a new chapter in the story entitled: "New York vs. California," or, "My State Is More Prosperous Than Yours."

Seven days ago, Brown noted press reports of a speech in which Gov. Rockefeller of New York said his state was leading California in industrial growth. Not so, replied Brown in a weekend statement.

The governor said new businesses have announced more than $500 million in major new California plants and expansions in the first five months of the year. The tabulations included only projects costing more than $1 million.

"In the light of this analysis by the Economic Develoepement Agency, it is highly unlikely that New York is ahead of California in new plants and plant expansions," the governor said. He said California is the first choice of American industrialists for new plant locations and expansion of existing facilities.

Chief Gripe of Teen-Agers--Mother Nags

LONDON (AP) — Parental reins are slack for British teen-agers, according to a survey of 16,000 of them. Most can smoke and drink and many can stay out all night.

Seniors at 500 schools were polled by a student magazine, sixth form opinion. Three quarters of the boys and girls said their parents let them smoke and drink. Almost half of the boys and a good third of the girls said they had no deadline on coming in at night after dates.

About half of them had one chief complaint—their mothers nagged.

SMUGGLER HIDES NARCOTICS IN GIRL FRIEND'S HAIR

Bureau Finds Dope in Odd Places

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smugglers are an imaginative type. It's just their tough luck that customs are pretty sharp too.

Take the case of Edward Earl Beck, arrested at Laredo, Tex., on charges of trying to smuggle from Mexico five marijuana cigarettes, 15 seconal capsules and 41 benzedrine tablets—all in his girl friend's hair.

Beck was a skilled hairdresser, the official reports say, so skillful that he managed to plant the contraband in her hair without her knowing it. The customs men apparently had better information than she, however, for they nailed Beck cold. He got six years.

* * * *

THIS SMALL case is just one of hundreds closed each year by the Bureau of Customs, a high-morale, glamor-packed government agent that goes back to 1798.

These days the service is busy especially with problems of narcotics and marijuana smuggling along with smuggling of diamonds, Swiss watch movements and even vitamins.

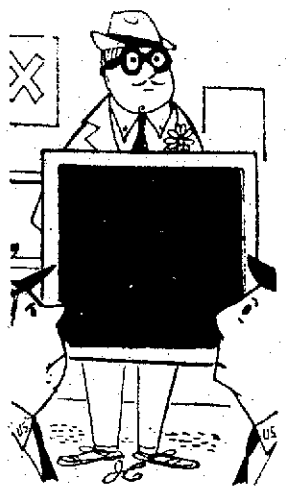

And with the summer peak of the tourist season at hand, there's an upsurge of activity to see to it that ordinary travelers pay the required duty on goods they bring in from abroad.

* * * *

CHESTER EMERICK, deputy commissioner in charge of investigations and enforcement, is a big easy-going man with a small mustache, who looks more like a rotary club president or ivy league college professor than a tracker-down of criminals.

But he's had 42 years of fighting smugglers, 32, of them in the field. And nothing they dream up can surprise him now.

Seated in his office he flipped through a handful of monthly narcotics intelligence bulletins that tell of arrests and court actions by the score, with incidental information on hiding places, such as:

You never can tell where, how or what is being smuggled.

* * * *

SUSPECT WAS taken to a hospital "where he regurgitated a bindle of heroin." (a bindle is a small amount, a gram or so.)

"A search dislosed about 3.4 grams of heroin concealed in the baby's diaper."

At an Arizona station, customs officers performed a physical search on a strapping young man without success. The bulletin went on, mattter-of-factly:

* * * *

"A MEDICAL search was then attempted, but was frustrated by the resistance of the subject, who was 6-foot-3 and weighed 270 pounds. At one point he arose from the examination table, picked it up and threw it at the two doctors and four officers, then swung his arms and hit a customs agent in the head. Subject was then placed in jail and kept under observation for about four hours, whereupon he passed a package containing 13 grams of heroin."

"On their person smugglers will use shoe soles, heels, natural body cavities, plastic bags taped to their skin. They'll use brush handles, just anything," Emerick said.

* * * *

"JUST ANYTHING" has included women's handbags (they're not sacrosanct although many women tourists think they ought to be), linings of luggage and clothing, stuffed animals, stretcher handles, hatbands, false teeth, wooden legs, covered overcoat buttons, shaving cream, toothpaste tubes, flower bulbs and even diamonds fed to pet dogs.

Much valuable information comes from informers, who do all right by themselves, too. An informer who tips off the customs men will get up to 25 per cent of the value of the seized contraband, with a maximum of $50,000 in any one case.

There is one story of three informers having passed the same tip—that a returning woman tourist was smuggling in a diamond necklace. The three were the merchant who sold her the necklace overseas, the builder of the secret jewel compartment she used. And her own personal maid. The maid got her tip in first and she was the one who collected.

Nothing to declare.

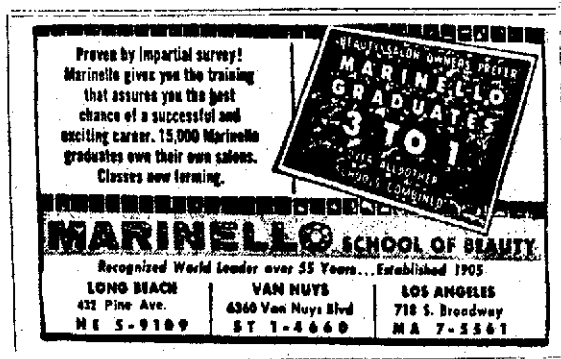

"THERE ARE professional informers," Emerick says. "There are business people whose business is being injured by smuggled merchandise. There are envious members of society who report on so-called friends who have acquired jewelry and other valuables abroad, and there are respected citizens of the United States who believe their fellow citizens should pay the duties provided by law."

Some informers use strange aliases in their roles, cashing reward checks made out to such names as Sinbad, Father Goose, Joe Blow and Moisha Pipick (Moses' gizzard).

Recent cases have especially added to the laurels of the customs men.

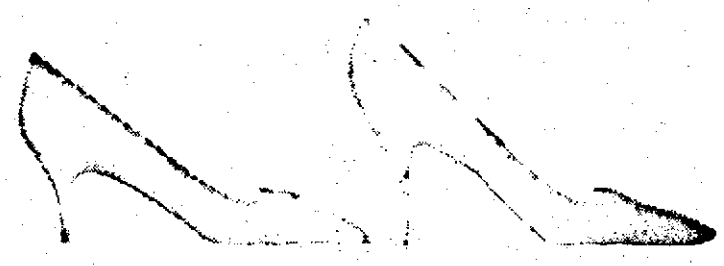

In one of them, agents tracked a 216-pound shipment of marijuana from El Paso, Tex., to Chicago and one of them hid in the trunk of the car as it made deliveries in the latter city.

The agent, William Magee of Eagle Pass, Tex. used a two-way radio to maintain contact with his colleagues, and on arrival at destination emerged to arrest the violators.

Laos Will Shun Any SEATO Help

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma and his coalition cabinet were sworn in Saturday by nine orange-robed monks in an ancient candle-lit Buddhist temple. The new premier vowed to bar "any foreign interference" in Communist-infiltrated Laos.

The 19-man government took office in the religious ceremonies at Vientiane's crumbling yellow Sisaket sacred temple after pro-Western Premier Prince Boun Oum resigned in equally formal ceremonies at King Savang Vatthana's palace.

SOUVANNA PHOUMA

Souvanna, in a formal address at the palace, said his government would "not recognize the protection of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO)."

He said this was one of the conditions stipulated in the political program approved by all three rival factions—pro-Western, Communist and Neutralist — which led to the coalition. Souvanna outlined a seven-point program. It bars all foreign military bases from Laotian territory.

Suspect Charged in Girls' Slaying

MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. (UPI) — An 18-year-old ex-Marine was charged with the bludgeon-murder of two pretty high school cheerleaders Saturday as a group of parents, including mothers with babies in their arms, milled outside the courthouse.

JAMES VANCE

The suspect, James Vance, smoked and appeared nervous as he entered the courthouse through the crowd of about 70 persons. As he was charged with "willful, felonious and premeditated murder," his mother stared blankly out a window.

"I'd like to get my hands on him," murmured a man whose daughter had dated Vance as the slender, 5-foot-9 suspect entered the courthouse.

Vance was ordered held without bail for the tire-iron slaying of Noreen Buckley, 17, and Margaret Ann Kennedy, 15, in a lonely lover's lane Wednesday night.

Nearly Starved to Death, Sayre Says

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — Prof. Woodrow Wilson Sayre, exhausted but cheerful on arrival Saturday by helicopter from a Mt. Everest base, said Saturday his mountain-climbing party came very close to starving to death.

Sayre, 42, grandson of the late President Woodrow Wilson, was so weak that two men had to help him cover the 200 yards from a helicopter to a hospital building. The Tufts University professor said a misunderstanding about a rendezvous with their Sherpa bearers and a Nepalese government liaison official left them without food.

"We were compelled to walk without food for one long week," Sayre said. "Towards the end of this most difficult trekking we had to crawl on all fours to cover several miles."

L.A. Blonde, 21, Miss California

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Miss Los Angeles, a willowy blue-eyed blonde, reigns today as Miss California.

Marilyn Tindall, 21, a secretary in the City Department of Water and Power, was selected to represent California in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant at Miami Beach, Fla.

MISS CALIFORNIA

Miss Tindall, whose vital statistics are 128 pounds, 5 feet 8, and 37-22-37, was chosen from 39 contestants. She also won a $3,000 swimming pool, a complete wardrobe and cash prizes.

Runners - up were Miss Huntington Park, Diane Simpson, 19, an aspiring actress; Miss Downey, Sharon Larson, 18, a high school student; Miss Reseda, Alicia Nelson, 19, a Valley State College student, and Miss Millbrae, Betty Luporini, 18, San Mateo State College student.

SAO Blows Up Oran Gas Holder

ALGIERS (UPI)—European terrorists blew up a giant gas-storage plant at Oran Saturday.

The Secret Army Organization action followed its rejection of the SAO-Algerian national peace accord in Algiers and its pledge to continue its battle in Western Algeria.

Report Fire on Airliner Before Crash

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (UPI)—An Air France 707 jetliner which crashed Friday on a stone cliff 1,500 feet up a rain-obscured mountainside was off the regular approach course to the airport, residents of this Caribbean island said Saturday.

The crash killed all 113 aboard.

Residents of Basse-Terre Island where the Boeing jet crashed in a rain forest said planes never before had passed over that area in approaching Le Raizet Airport on Grande-Terre. Two fishermen who saw the plane flying through the squall said it appeared to be on fire in the air. A woman who rushed from her home said a "long flame" was escaping from one of the jet engines.

China Threat

TOKYO (UPI)—The official New China news agency said Saturday Nationalist China is "preparing for an invasion" of the Communist Chinese mainland "with the support of the United States." The news agency said the Nationalist invasion troops were courting "destruction."

American military observers recently have received intelligence reports that Red China is massing the biggest force since the Korean War on the Fukien coastline opposite Formosa.

Demo, GOP Tempers Flare Hot Over Farm Bill Issues

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A spate of bitter, partisan debate in the Senate pointed up Saturday that both sides intended to make House rejection of the administration's farm bill an issue in the congressional campaign.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., started it off with the assertion that, instead of saving the taxpayers $1 billion as the Democrats claim, the bill would have cost $1 billion a year more.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., jumped up to dispute this. He said he was surprised that an "economiser" like Williams would oppose the bill.

Morse teed off on former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who told a Republican rally here Saturday night that the administration's bill was "based on the ruthless concept of ruling or ruining American agriculture."

"I'm ready to take on the great farmer from Gettysburgh," Morse said. "We'll make it a partisan issue if that is what the Republicans want."

* * * *

MORSE SAID Eisenhower's Gettysburg farm "was principally subsidized by gifts." Editing his remarks for the congressional record, Morse added that the former president "should be almost the last person in the country to comment upon the farm subsidy issue" since the value of these gifts had totaled "thousands of dollars."

He said Eisenhower has "suggested that the old people in our country should not support a medical bill under Social Security.

"The great farmer from Gettysburg does not have to worry about ever paying a hospital bill," Morse said. "He has been taken care of all his adult life at the expense of the taxpayers in government hospitals."

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Thomas C. Kuchel, R-Calif., the assistant majority and minority leaders in the Senate, also traded words over the farm bill and Eisenhower's stand on it.

"When the general ventures off into agriculture," said Humphrey, "it becomes a dissertation in fiction rather than fact."

* * * *

KUCHEL retorted that Eisenhower "lives on a farm in Gettysburg and classifies himself as a farmer, and therefore he is not entirely unfamiliar with this jungle of farm legislation."

"Would that our farmers in Minnesota could operate their farms from Palm Springs, Calif.," came back Humphrey.

Humphrey also lit into the farm program of the Eisenhower administration, saying it had resulted in increased costs to the government and reduced income for the farmers.

When Ellender said Williams was ignorant of the provisions of the measure, the Delaware Republican replied tartly:

"If the senator says I'm ignorant, I'll have to accept that because I know of no man on the Senate floor more qualified to judge ignorance than the senator from Louisiana."

* * * *

DEMOCRATS are putting their chips on the belief that disgusted taxpayers in the cities and suburbs will accept their contention that the bill would have saved them $1 billion a year in the costs of storing crop surpluses.

Republicans believe their opposition to the measure will be popular in the corn and wheat states of the Midwest where the farm vote still is to be reckoned with.

Hosmer Farm Vote Rapped by Johovich

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Joseph J. Johovich, Democratic congressional nominee in the Long Beach area 32nd District, Saturday assailed the incumbent Craig Hosmer's vote against the farm bill, saying he "chose to ignore his urban constituents, who must foot the bill, to follow the call of GOP."

Johovich said he would support the administration farm legislation as being in the best interest to all, adding:

"Those who put partisan politics above national interest will applaud urban Republican representatives voting with rural Republican representatives and a minority of Democrats to defeat the Kennedy farm bill, thus insuring an increase in taxes next year for all taxpayers.

"Those who believe the welfare of the nation supersedes the crack of the party whip will take a closer look at their representative's voting record in Congress.

"Those who voted to send the farm bill back to the House Agriculture Committee spelled its virtual death.

"Staggering agricultural surpluses are fated to make greater chaos next year, as taxpayers see their money used to store additional unneeded produce. Only one GOP representative voted for this bill — Phil Weaver, representing Nebraska, an agricultural state."

Health-Care Action in Senate Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Balked by delays in the House, the Kennedy administration will turn to the Senate in an effort to get a vote on its proposals for health care for the elderly.

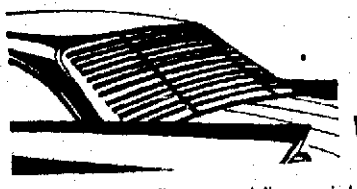

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana announced in the Senate Saturday that an amendment embodying some compromises of the original Kennedy program will be offered next week in the Senate. He predicted it will have bipartisan support.

Mansfield said "it would be preferable, as a matter of legislative procedure, if the House moved first." But, he added, "we have waited for the House to act and it has not acted."

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., coauthor of the administration's bill, plans to offer the amendment. He said he expects to confer with Sen. Jacob K. Javits, of New York, and other Republicans in an effort to work out some compromise which might insure majority support for the amendment in the Senate. Anderson said the revised proposal probably will provide for health care of needy elderly persons who are not on Social Security rolls through some such agency as the Blue Cross.

CHAPLIN, RUSK CO-STAR

'Little Tramp,' Soon to Be Father Again, Will Get Degree at Oxford

By MARIS ROSS

OXFORD, England (UPI)—Charlie Chaplin, 73, has a rare personal appearance scheduled next week and his co-star, of all people, is the Secretary of State of the United States.

It is more or less a coincidence. Chaplin, who once said, "I no longer have any use for America at all," will be getting an honorary degree from Oxford University on the same day as the touring Dean Rusk.

For both, it is a walk-on role. No speeches by recipients.

* * * *

THE ceremony Wednesday will confer a controversial degree of doctor of letters on "The Little Tramp." Rusk will receive an honorary degree as a doctor of civil law.

After the convocation here Chaplin is scheduled to dash back to his home near Vevey, Switzerland, to be on hand for the imminent birth of their eighth child to his 37-year-old wife, Oona O'Neill Chaplin, daughter of the late playwright Eugene O'Neill.

Secretary Rusk, just winding up a five-nation swing, leaves after the Oxford rites for Lisbon, last stop on a tour that will have taken him to Paris, Berlin, Bonn and London for conferences.

* * * *

IN HIS DAY, Chaplin has had considerable contact with the U. S. State Department. Chaplin left the United States in 1952 following charges of moral turpitude and alleged communist ties, and was refused a re-entry permit.

Later he engaged in a sensational tax battle with the U. S. Department of Internal Revenue, subsequently settled in 1958 by a lump sum of $425,000 in back taxes. In 1955 it was that he said, "I no no longer have any use for America at all."

Does he ever plan to return to America?

* * * *

U.P.I. PUT the question and others to him recently through his secretary, Mrs. Eileen Burnier, at Vevey on Lake Geneva. Chaplin's answer:

"No trip whatsoever to the United States is planned within the foreseeable future."

Mrs. Burnier provided these other answers:

On his present major occupation:

* * * *

"I AM completely taken up with my memoirs. I am working very hard on them to have everything ready for publication before the end of the year."

Any movie plans or projects?

"Nothing tangible at the moment. I might take up one idea or the other after the memoirs are finished."

* * * *

ANY OTHER specific plans for the future?

"Mainly living here peacefully at the Manoir De Ban, surrounded by my family."

When is the new baby expected? "At the end of June or beginning of July. That is why Mrs. Chaplin cannot accompany me to England for the honorary doctorate ceremony, unfortunately."

File Search Fought By Food Industry

WASHINGTON (AP)—Food pressed vigorous opposition to proposed legislation that would give government inspectors power to search company files.

The power would be given Food and Drug Administration inspectors seeking information on contaminated or misbranded foods, or products otherwise in violation of law.

H. T. Austern, counsel for the National Canners Association, said such an inspection would be "an unlimited fishing expedition" which would amount to unconstitutional search and seizure.

Congress Asked to OK Radio for Embassies

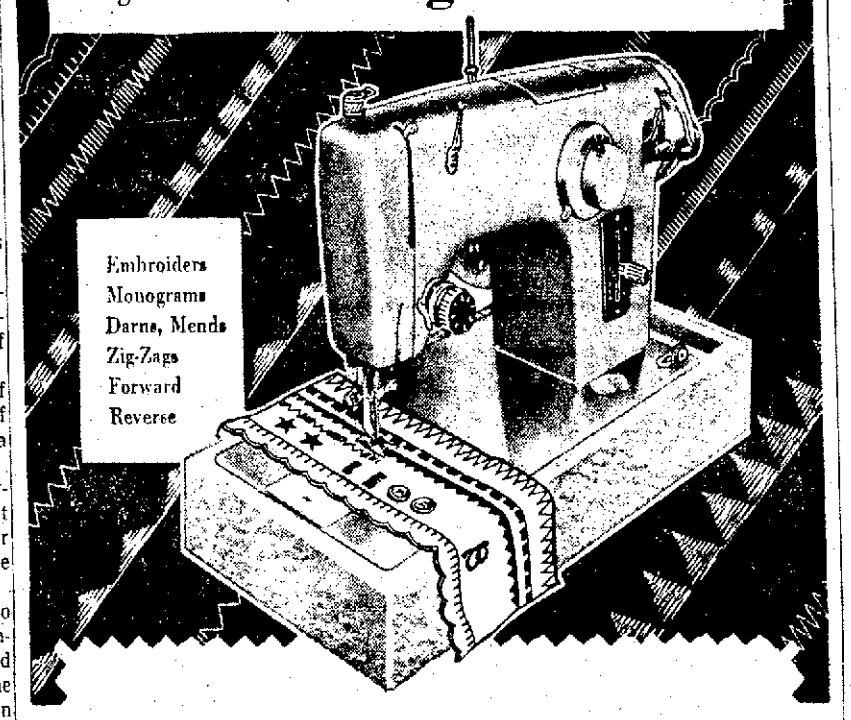

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department has asked Congress to approve a bill that would speed communications between Washington and its diplomats abroad.

Acting Secretary of State George W. Ball appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in behalf of the measure. It would allow the President to authorize a foreign government to build a radio transmitter near its embassy if it grants the United States the same privilege in its country.

Police said the man was in a car which plunged off the cliff in the 1600 block of Paseo Del Mar. He was identified as James Emmitt Thomas, of 20927 Halldale Ave., stepson of Harbor Division Police Officer Sam Schiloff.

Police said a resident told them he saw the car at the bottom of the cliff Friday. The body was not discovered until Saturday morning. Police said tire marks indicated Thomas turned off Paseo Del Mar and drove more than 40 yards before plunging over the side of the cliff.

High Court, After Hard Job, to Rest

By CHARLOTTE G. MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court expects to adjourn for the summer on Monday after a term of unusual stresses and the heaviest docket in history.

The justices have 19 decisions still undelivered, including a controversial challenge to recital of a state approved prayer in New York public schools.

Some of these cases could be set for reargument next term. Fourteen cases have already been rescheduled.

The normal flow of work was interrupted in late winter by the illness and subsequent retirement of Justice Charles E. Whittaker. Before he was succeeded by Justice Byron R. White, Justice Felix Frankfurter was stricken. He has been hospitalized ever since. His office has said he expects to return to the bench next fall.

* * * * *

THUS, ONLY a seven-member court remained to handle the undecided cases argued before these events took place. Reconsideration of some of the sticky issues next term will permit a decision by nine justices and possibly a more decisive majority.

Last term the court closed with about 2,300 cases docketed. This term will see the total approach 2,600.

The increase is accounted for by the growing number of appeals by indignant prisoners who claim they have not had a fair trial. Time is required to examine all of them. Further, the court has been collecting a backlog of lunch counter sit-in trespass appeals.

* * * * *

LAST DECEMBER the bench reversed for lack of evidence convictions of a group of 16 Negro students in Baton Rouge, La. But that case did not present a trespass issue.

Most of the demonstrations are represented by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. They contend that a state may not use its police power to enforce segregation in lunch counter areas of stores which in all other respects serve the general public, regardless of race.

Recently appeals have been filed by Robert Soblen of New York, convicted of conspiring to give U. S. defense secrets to Russia, and by Memphis, Tenn., public school authorities who have been ordered to produce a comprehensive desegragation plan.

The fight against reciting the so-called "regents' prayer" in New Hyde Park, N. Y., was started by a group of parents which included Jews, Unitarians, members of the Ethical Culture Society, and non-believers.

THE PRAYER, designed to be non-sectarian, says:

"Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country."

The objections were based on the first amendment to the Constitution which says: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

The business community is awaiting a decision in the "brown shoe" case, which is expected to establish guide lines for future antitrust activity by the government. The court has been asked to interpret amendments in 1950 to the Clayton anti-monopoly law. Under the law the Justice Department obtained an order in federal district court in St. Louis invalidataing the merger of two big shoe firms —the Brown Shoe Co., and G. R. Kinney Co.

* * * *

THE COURT also has a new problem with regard to obscure literature. A 1957 decision held that obscenity is not protected by the free speech guarantee in the Constitution.

CO-OPERATION AND RESISTANCE

Papers Reveal Story of Axis Spies in South America During War II

By LOUIS DE LA HABA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Axis spies operating in South America during World War II, and their roundup are described in State Department documents made public today.

The 838-page volume, part of a series on U. S. foreign relations, covers relations with Argentina, Chile and Brazil during 1942.

It tells of close U. S. cooperation with the Brazilian government in an effort to round up an intricate network of Axis secret agents.

It tells also of not-so-close cooperation from Argentina and Chile, where Axis agents worked almost openly to undermine the allied war effort.

A memorandum prepared at the time by the State Department on spy operations in Argentina said that information transmitted by clandestine radios included movement of warships of United States and England, moves of U. S. airplanes and information on the Panama Canal.

* * * *

THE MEMORANDUM reports that "The work done by these agents has been extremely accurate and especially harmful," and adds:

"Millions of dollars worth of ships, merchandise, petroleum, munitions and foodstuffs have been sent to the bottom of the sea due to the efforts of these agents. Much of this property belonged to countries still on friendly relations with the Axis powers. These agents are also directly responsible for the loss of the lives of hundreds of men, women and children who died when their ships were destroyed by German torpedoes."

In Brazil, acting with the help of U. S. intelligence organizations, authorities were able to arrest 26 Axis agents in one day—March 20, 1942.

* * * *

BRAZILIAN police raids uncovered several radio transmitters and such evidence as chemicals used in the preparation and developing of letters in secret ink, documents and photographs of Hitler.

In Argentina, meanwhile, the United States was having its difficulties with the regime of then acting president Ramon S. Castillo. The U. S. Embassy reported July 17, 1942 that "to date there has been very little indication of any disposition on the part of this organization (a special anti-subversive unit) or any other agency of the national government to take any effective steps to suppress activities of the kind described on the part of Axis elements in Argentina."

In Chile, Ambassador Claude G. Bowers wrote on Oct. 6, 1942, that the "Chilean government apprehended six members of one of the Axis radio rings and seized transmitter used by the clandestine station for past year and a half. . . . Service of investigations is prosecuting the investigations vigorously but we must reckon with the possibility that the Chilean government, through fear of offending Axis embassies, may try to retard an extension of the investigations."

* * * *

UNDERSECRETARY of State Sumner Welles said in a speech in Boston on Oct. 8, 1942, that Argentina and Chile "are still permitting their territory to be utilized by the officials and the subversive agents of the Axis as a base for hostile activities against their neighbors."

"But I cannot believe these two republice will continue long to permit their brothers and neighbors of the Americas . . . to be stabbed in the back by Axis emissaries," he added.

Axis spy operations in the two countries were gradually curtailed from then on, but Chile did not make a final break with the Axis powers until Jan. 20, 1943, and Argentina waited until Jan. 26, 1944 —the last two of the American republics to take such a step.

Pilots Group Challenges Crash Report

By ROBERT J. SERLING

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA) took sharp issue Saturday with the official government report that blamed the crew of a United Air Lines jet for history's worst air disaster—the collision of two airliners over New York Dec. 16, 1960.

ALPA's news president, Charles H. Ruby, said the pilots' union will ask the Civil Aeronautics Board to reconsider its findings.

The CAB attached virtually the entire blame for the accident, in which 134 died, on the United pilots for a navigation error which took them 11 miles beyond the point at which they were supposed to hold for a landing clearance.

"The board's report ignores what we believe to be a substantial number of highly important contributing factors," Ruby said in a statement. "We are determined to pursue this case until these factors are made a part of the official accident report."

* * * *

RUBY MADE the announcement after conferring with Capt. Edward Bechtold, regional safety chairman for Eastern Air Lines, who headed the ALPHA accident team in the investigation of the United-TWA collision.

Bechtold said the CAB verdict "completely whitewashes" the role played by the Federal Aviation Agency's Air Traffic Control (ATC) system.

"The CAB's treatment of the Air Traffic Control system as infallible is reprehensible," Bechtold asserted. He added that the CAB report itself noted that FAA had made six major rules and system changes as the direct result of the New York disaster.

"We find it particularly difficult to understand how the board could have ignored this admission or failed to note the full significance of these changes in its report," Bechtold said.

PREVUE OF FUTURE WAR

Buzz Bomb, V-2—Weapons of Terror

(This is another in a series of articles recalling people and places, campaigns and catastrophies of World War II. Subsequent articles will appear at intervals of approximately two weeks.)

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

The war of tomorrow was previewed in June of 1944, when the Germans unleashed a furious robot attack on southern England.

For 80 days winged bombs rained on the British. Each day the British lost an average of 70 dead and 200 injured, despite a heroic defense that pressed the American Air Force into one of its most important missions.

In all, the Germans sent 8,000 robot bombs against England, and 2,300 of them penetrated the British defense.

The V-bomb raids from June 13 to Aug. 31 used all the techniques of intercontinental missillery. They lacked only the distance, and the atomic warhead.

* * * *

THE WAR of the machine against mankind had its inception in 1942, when German tacticians conceived and developed a mechanism that could fly between 300 and 400 miles an hour, at low altitudes, on a controlled course.

Early in 1943 pilot models were tested, and successfully carried one-ton bombloads to targets. British espionage learned of the tests, and aerial reconnasissance in November of 1943 revealed the Germans to be building launching ramps along the French channel coast, all facing London.

Immediately the Allied high command attached an urgent priority to these ramps. British and American planes were diverted from other targets to plaster the ramp sites continously.

* * * *

THE ENGLISH made other preparations for their war against the machine. Airfields were established between London and the coast, and stocked with fast interceptors. Behind those fields, the British massed antiaircraft fire; behind that, balloon blockades.

Completely forewarned and enjoying control of the air, the British and Americans were still unable to stop the terror of the machine.

* * * *

THE FIRST flying bomb was launched the night of June 12, 1944.

About 25 feet long with a 16 foot wing span, it carried an explosive charge equivalent to a one-ton bomb. At 1,500 feet, it flew straight on course into London. At 400 miles an hour, it could outrun most of the interceptor planes of that day.

The first major attack by robot came June 17. Hundreds of V-1 missiles streaked through the air. They were attacked on all sides by the fighter planes, crashed into the heaviest antiaircraft barrage in history, and plowed through the world's biggest balloon blockage.

A third of them got through to target. Thousands of people were killed and injured, millions of dollars worth of buildings, material and stores were destroyed.

* * * *

THEIR tails spitting out a strem of red fire, the bombs swopped down on England—and occasionally other southern coastal towns — with deadly accuracy and horrible frequency.

Not since the winter of 1940-1, when the Germans and British staged their furious air war over England, had the British been under such punishment. Once more they returned to their subway shelters, once more their homes and landmarks were blitzed. Once more their hospitals were filled.

* * * *

THE ALLIED. retailiation was swift. Thousands of American and British bombers were assigned the mission of destroying ramps, razing factories where bombs were made, and breaking up the German transportation system that fed the launching ramps.

The British kept a tight censorship on the truth. They could not deny the bomb existed, but they minimized its result.

After the war they revealed that nearly 25,000 people were killed, injured or reported missing in the first two months of the machine's war against man. In mid-July the situation was so serious that the entire anti-aircraft defense of England was transferred to the southern coast to protect London.

* * * *

ALL THESE measures produced results. Some of the fastest fighters shot down robots; antiaircraft, adjusted to the new form of attack, began taking a heavy toll. The constant pounding of the launching sites on the French coast reduced the Germany ability to get V-1 into the air.

But not until the Allies drove the Germans off the coast entirely did the attacks cease.

* * * *

IN OCTOBER of 1944, perhaps to compensate for their inability to get numbers of missiles into the air, the Germans introduced a new flying missile, a long range rocket named V-2. The British soon called it the "flying telephone pole."

Without wings, it was an elongated rocket designed to fly through the stratosphere, attainig heights of 60 to 70 miles before descending to earth.

It was the first weapon to fly faster than the speed of sound, and its power plant enabled it to successfully reach targets 200 miles away.

The age of missile warfare was truly under way when V-2. Its explosive warhead was rated at 14 tons. At the time of its launching, the Allies had no defense that could intercept or destroy the V-2. It left pursuit planes far behind, flew out of the range of anti-craft batteries.

BUT THE Germans had pulled an Allied stunt—"too little and too late."

They didn't have the V-2 in quantity, and they didn't have the ability to defend the launching pads. The British, perhaps understanding the terror of a people toward a weapon that ignored defenses, never revealed the damage done by the V-2.

More than likely, it was comparatively small, for few were launched.

The Allies who invaded Germany had definite instructions—get the V-2, and get the launching pads. So did the Russians. From the V-2 the research scientists gained considerable insight into rocketry.

The rockets of today fly further and faster and carry more loads the defense is faster. But the principal is the same—the war of the machine against man.

Tycoon Fails to Get Cut in Tax Term

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Reno millionaire La Vere Redfield has failed in his attempt to win a reduction of his five-year prison sentence for income tax evasion.

Federal Dist. Judge James A. Walsh said after full consideration of the evidence presented in Redfield's behalf that he concluded "favorable action should not be taken" on the request to vacate, set aside or modify the sentence.

Redfield is serving out his sentence at the Terminal Island Prison. He also drew a $60,000 fine for evading payment of $350,000 in taxes.

Reaction Varies to Ike's Urging of Defense Cut

WASHINGTON (UP) — A suggestion by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower that U.S. defense spending should be reduced stirred surprise, plus some dissent and some support, on Capitol Hill Saturday.

Speaking at a Republican fund-raising rally Friday night, Eisenhower caught his fellow party members off guard when he said defense spending reflects "unjustified fears, plus a reluctance in some quarters to relinquish outmoded concepts."

The surprise was deepened when he went on to say he believes "the defense budget should be substantially reduced." He did not elaborate on his reference to unjustified fears and outmoded concepts under President Kennedy. In fact, Republicans and Democrats consistently have joined in voting more funds than asked by the administration under Kennedy as they frequently did under Eisenhower.

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House armed services appropriations subcommittee and a chief architect of military spending bills, said "a cutback in defense would be misinterpreted both at home and abroad ... as a move toward a no-win policy, which, of course, President Eisenhower in no way had in mind."

But on the other side of the Capitol, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said he supports Eisenhower's suggestion for a cut in defense spending. "I think we should Friday night. Nor would he do so for newsmen Saturday at a breakfast given by Rep. Perkins Bass, R-N.H., for him and Republican congressional wives.

Military spending, now running at $50-billion-plus a year, has been about the only money subject that has not stirred partisan controversy under President Kennedy.

discuss every item in the ... defense budget," he said ... Proxmire's position was no ... surprise, however, since he ... has sought in the past to eliminate certain defense budget items.

In the 1960 presidential campaign, both Kennedy and Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon supported increased military spending and the Kennedy defense budget now running about $2 billion over Eisenhower's.

Mahon said that he believes if Eisenhower had remained President in 1961 and 1962 he would have embraced and supported many of the programs and policies and improvements which have been initiated during the last 18 months." The changed policies, Mahon said, imply no criticism of Eisenhower but "they are in response to changing conditions which have been in the making for a long time."

Mahon said the massive-retaliation policy enunciated under Eisenhower "was a good policy as long as we had a monopoly or near-monopoly on nuclear weapons."

ONCE BOMBED HER LAND

Now They Team Up and Push Red Cross Drive

Lee N. Mulligan was dropping bombs from his B-24 on the Ploesti Oil Field in Rumania the latter part of 1943.

Sixty miles from Ploesti, in the city of Tisoara, Lia, a school girl, heard the windows rattling.

Last week Mulligan, and Lia, now Mrs. Geza J. Krempels, recalled their war years as they made plans for a common endeavor — the Red Cross campaign drive in Long Beach next March.

ROTES KRUEZ, Voros Kereszt, Cruca Rosa, Cruz Roja—they all mean Red Cross in various countries where Lia Krempels has lived. Lee N. Mulligan, Red Cross campaign chairman, and Mrs. Krempels, Women's Residential chairman, find spot on map where Mrs. Krempels lived while Mulligan was dropping bombs as B-24 pilot.

MULLIGAN, 44, has just been appointed chairman. Chairman of the women's residential division will be Mrs. Krempels.

Mulligan and Mrs. Krempels are getting a long running start for the campaign. Their first job: to round up 1,000 men and 3,000 women volunteer workers.

Both Mulligan and Mrs. Krempels come into volunteer Red Cross work from personal experiences of its value.

• • • •

MRS. KREMPELS, as a teen-ager in Europe, had first hand knowledge of Red Crosss activity. "Our work primarily was trying to bring together separated families." She speaks six languages: German, Rumanian, Hungarian, Spanish, English and Siberian and can understand Italian and French.

Active in numerous organizations in the city since she arrived in 1956, she has been a captain, colonel and area chairman of the Long Beach Chapter, ARC. Called on to help, she helps. "You cannot help being helped if you help," she says.

"I have lived in many places," she said, "but I never get tired of repeating that Long Beach holds the nicest people and I have made it my home town."

MULLIGAN, who manages the North Long Beach District office of the Automobile Club of Southern California, has been active in Red Cross work since 1955 and has been a captain, division chairman and general business chairman in previous campaigns here. Prior to coming to Long Beach he was volunteer disaster chairman for the ARC Oxnard Chapter.

"I first became interested in Red Cross as a result of some very fine experiences during my service career," he said.

He made 50 missions over Europe as a pilot of a Liberator Bomber—hitting targets in Italy, Greece, Austria and Germany.

During a rest period, Mulligan and some of his crewmen were shipped off to Tel Aviv, Palestine for a week.

"Tel Aviv is a fine place," said Mulligan, "but we found we only had money for a couple of days. We went to the local Red Cross and explained our problem."

LOVELY WELCOME TO LONG BEACH

Diane Is a Very Big Hit as Miss

By MARY ELLIS

Miss Welcome to Long Beach is a hit everytime she's a miss.

DIANE AT BAT
She's a Real Hit

And striking 18-year-old Diane Olson's been that—a miss—quite a few times. Twenty-three to be exact. Enough to set a record in most anybody's league.

Fact is, with THOSE curves (38-24-36), she could strike out most any competition.

And has.

* * * *

IN HER short but active title-holding career, she's reigned over baseball games ("I love baseball") . . .

A ski tournament ("I even learned to ski — at least I can stand up") . . .

A deep-sea fishing expedition ("I almost fell off the boat — they really had to move fast to catch me") . . .

Opening of the horse racing season ("love horses—I've lived around them most of my life") . . .

And a track meet ("I even ran around the track for photographers").

* * * *

IN THE past three years, shapely Diane Olson has been miss-this and miss-that so many times she can hardly recall the line-up.

But a look at the records shows she has scored as Miss Maritime Industries (her first title, age 15), Miss Pre-Olympics, Miss Long Beach Food Sales (she's had that title three years running), Miss Port of Long Beach . . .

Also Queen of the World Water Ski Tournament (last summer), Miss Speedcraft for the Sports Show, Miss Softball for the LA Sportsman Show, Miss Colt League (at Blair Field), Miss Western Softball Congress . . .

AND Miss General Telephone, Miss Tasman Sea (for restaurant's opening), Queen of the Long Beach Air Rescue Squad, Miss Robinhood (for Red Cross archery benefit), Miss Los Altos Race Track, Miss Harmony Hostess (for Barbershop Quartet Society), Miss Pierpoint Landing and Miss Pieces of Eight (a restaurant opening in Playa del Ray).

All that in three short years! But the local flurry of fame and fortune hasn't turned Diane's pretty blonde head a bit.

* * * *

THIS 5-feet-7, 123-pound beauty queen and freelance model had an aura of modesty, self-confidence and charm . . . also a definite 1-know-where-I'm-going! air that sets her apart from the prototype of today's teenager.

You know right off there'll be no rhubarbs in HER life.

Not a title-seeker, she points out that up-to-now honors have been offered, not sought—"They're complimentary titles," she explains.

About several offers from Hollywood: "Not interested."

About future plans: "I'll enter Long Beach City College next year to become a dental assistant. From there, probably on to UCLA. Along the way, I'd like to do some TV commercials."

About state and national beauty contests: "Not for me. I'm happy right here."

About the Miss Welcome title: "It's the first contest I've ever entered . . . but I've had my cap set on this title for years.

"When I was 14, I decided I'd try for it as soon as I turned 18."

She did just that this year. Her batting average: 1000.

* * * *

AND IT'S THAT same life-with-a-purpose attitude that has made Diane, at only 18, one of the city's most-sought-after professional models.

Recently she was named "Model of the Year" by the Wilma Hastings Agency, where she received her initial training.

Besides a heavy schedule of modeling assignments, title-holder responsibilities (most of which bring a nice fee), she's also demonstrator for a nationally known camera manufacturer, appearing in stores throughout Southern California.

All this — the modeling, public appearances, luncheons, dances, dinners, et al —naturally calls for a rigorous schedule of clothes-keeping, good grooming habits and schedule juggling.

"That's where mom (Mrs. Eldred Olson) takes over," says Diane, whose sparkling green eyes are enough to turn anyone that color with envy.

"She does the homework."

* * * *

AND speaking of homework. Diane's an unusual beauty queen in that respect, too.

She likes it.

She loves to sew (makes many of her own clothes), knits like a whiz (is on her sixth sweater), also used to make jewelry and hats — "but we had to give that up for lack of time."

Besides that, she likes to cook.

Which proves she's not only a hit in the field . . . she's a pretty good home runner, too.

RECORD of titles beautiful Diane Olson has won is told in sashes she kept as mementoes. Only title she really sought was Miss Welcome to Long Beach presented by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

L.B., UP Swap Oil Work Jibes

By GEORGE WEEKS

The City of Long Beach and Union Pacific Railroad Co. are investigating each other—and finding some causes for criticism on both sides—in connection with unitized oil production in the harbor district.

As the majority interest holder in the uplands, UP is the unit operator for that segment and controls the unitized production. The city, through its contractor, Long Beach Oil Production Co., is discharging a similar role in the tidelands.

City Auditor Murray T. Courson last week issued critical comments based on a 14-day examination of UP's books at the company's main office in Omaha, Neb. His report listed numerous alleged errors in distribution of credits and debits.

* * * *

THE COMPANY already has agreed to make total credit adjustments of $12,196 and debit adjustments of $517, Courson said. Others are still in dispute. His report did not charge deliberate misapplications in accounting.

Typical of Courson's findings was a conclusion that costs incurred in raising wells and facilities as a result of subsidence were charged to unit expense erroneously, possibly as a result of clerical mistakes.

Two of Courson's aides, Chief Deputy Auditor Robert Shepherd and Deputy Auditor J. W. Hansen, made the examination of the company's books last month.

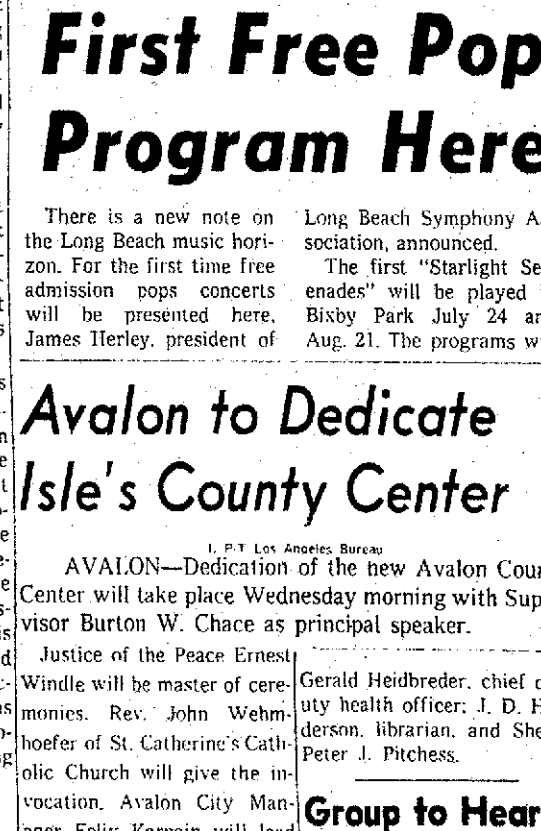

Meanwhile Union Pacific auditors have been checking the records of Long Beach Oil Development Co. in connection with the tideland unitization, in which the city holds the largest interest.

* * * *

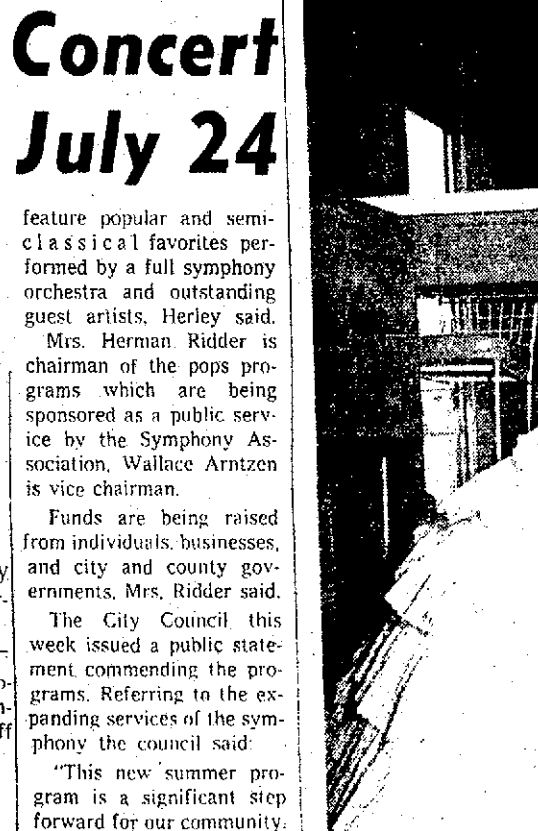

THEIR FINDINGS have not been publicly reported. But Charles L. Vickers, port general manager, told city councilmen that costs of the unit operation have in some cases turned out to be high.

"We expect to improve as we go along," Vickers said.

The unit operations in Fault Blocks II and III were inaugurated in 1960 as a part of the effort to control subsidence. Official reports since that time have confirmed predictions that large-scale water injections, made possible on a systematic basis through unitization, would check land sinkage. A secondary effect also noted has been an increase in oil production from the declining field.

BUSY DAY FOR Miss Welcome to Long Beach begins when the alarm clock rings—and Teeny, the Olson pet dog, no youngster at 15, makes the most of the last few quiet moments.

LOOKING CHIC in afternoon dress, Diane displays the poise that swept her into the Miss Welcome to Long Beach title. She hasn't let success turn her head.

POSING PRETTILY for photographers is all part of a day's work for a busy model. Diane's already crowded agenda has been made even busier.

AT BIXBY PARK

First Free Pop Concert Program Here July 24

There is a new note on the Long Beach music horizon. For the first time free admission pops concerts will be presented here, James Herley, president of Long Beach Symphony Association, announced.

The first "Starlight Serenades" will be played in Bixby Park July 24 and Aug. 21. The programs will feature popular and semi-classical favorites performed by a full symphony orchestra and outstanding guest artists, Herley said.

Mrs. Herman Ridder is chairman of the pops programs which are being sponsored as a public service by the Symphony Association, Wallace Arntzen is vice chairman.

Funds are being raised from individuals, businesses, and city and county governments, Mrs. Ridder said.

The City Council this week issued a public statement commending the programs. Referring to the expanding services of the symphony the council said:

"This new summer program is a significant step forward for our community. Long Beach has reached the enviable position where we no longer have to look in the surrounding area to find stimulating cultural and musical experiences.

"This is important because communities are judged by the culture offered to their citizens," the council stated.

EDITORIAL

'Duty, Honor, Country . . .'

TOO MANY APOLOGIES are being offered in behalf of decent impulses these days by those who have right instincts but lack the spirit to stand against cynics and skeptics.

This is the attitude that has destroyed nations. A country needs patriots to stand without apology and speak eloquently in behalf of right things, in the face of radical attack and at the risk of being lumped with the reactionaries and the "cornballs."

Gen. MacArthur has a reputation for being "corny," and on occasion, we admit, he has seemed so to us. But there's nothing corny about the following from a recent speech he made to the cadets at West Point. There's something here for all of us:

"Duty, honor, country: Those three hallowed words reverently dictate what you ought to be, what you can be, what you will be. They are your rallying point to build courage when courage seems to fail, to regain faith when there seems to be little cause for faith, to create hope when hope becomes forlorn.

"Unhappily, I possess neither that eloquence of diction, that poetry of imagination, nor that brilliance of metaphor to tell you all that they mean.

"The unbelievers will say they are but words, but a slogan, but a flamboyant phrase. Every pedant, every demagogue, every cynic, every hypocrite, every troublemaker, and, I am sorry to say, some others of an entirely different character, will try to downgrade them even to the extent of mockery and ridicule.

"But these are some of the things they build. They build your basic character. They mold you for your future roles as the custodians of the nation's defense. They make you strong enough to know when you are weak, and brave enough to face yourself when you are afraid.

"They teach you to be proud and unbending in honest failure, but humble and gentle in succes; not to substitute words for actions, nor to seek the path of comfort, but to face the stress and spur of difficulty and challenge; to learn to stand up in the storm, but to have compassion on those who fall; to master yourself before you seek to master others; to have a heart that is clean, a goal that is high; to learn to laugh, yet never forget how to weep; to reach into the future, yet never to neglect the past; to be serious, yet never take yourself too seriously; to be modest so that you will remember the simplicity of true greatness, the open mind of true wisdom, the meekness of true strength.

"They give you a temperate will, a quality of imagination, a vigor of the emotions, a freshness of the deep springs of life, a temperamental predominance of courage over timidity, an appetite for adventure over love of ease.

"They create in your heart the sense of wonder, the unfailing hope of what next, and the joy and inspiration of life. They teach you in this way to be an officer and a gentleman. . . ."

'You Hear a Little Rumble?'

D. J. STEWART

What Is Nixon's Political Future After November 6?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This article appeared in the June 5 issue of the National Review, 150 E. 35th St., New York, N. Y., and is reprinted here as a matter of interest to followers of California politics. The author, D. J. Stewart is an instructor at St. Michael's in Toronto and has a doctorate from Cornell.)

THE SUFFERINGS of Richard M. Nixon become more evident and more pathetic with each new dawn. His campaign to become governor of California is not going to be the easy slide he thought it would be. He is not finding the considerable bulk of Pat Brown as movable as was first predicted. He has a first-class headache in his own party in the person of Joseph Shell, young, rich, pugnacious and appealing. His various ploys and stratagems have mostly failed in the test. His old habit of using the slightly-too-bitter word is plaguing him. He has no idea how strong the Warren - Knight faction is, or how deeply - felt is their desire to cut his throat. And — he hardly seems to want the job!

NIXON

This is the basic problem. Nixon wants to stay politically "alive"; the governorship would provide longevity, but not necessarily of the right sort. For it is entirely out of his hands to elicit any real advantage from such a reprieve. Being governor may prove no earthly good to him. Kennedy may be unbeatable in '64. Or Nixon may be shouldered aside by another candidate. This is the dilemma: he can have the nomination provided it's not worth having; conceivably he could lose it if it has any value, and this is a strong possibility, for he has no real friends in national Republican councils, and has no pre-emptive hold on delegates for next time. If he should win the governorship, and then lose the nomination for the Presidency in '64, he would be horribly thrashed in trying for another term in '66.

His promise to stick to Sacramento and to stay out of the fray in '64 should not be taken seriously. He will be sweating like a coal-miner to catch delegates if it appears that the '64 nomination is worth anything. The man whose conscience inspired the stretchsock will have no trouble in rationalizing his candidacy in '64.

* * * *

THE MORE IMMEDIATE problem, however, is to get to Sacramento. Nixon is finding that his old methods of campaigning seem less than successful now. He appears angry and belligerent; he wants to stir things up. Having found that just being Richard Nixon was not enough to assure an automatic win, he has been trying to rake up an issue. This may prove disastrous. California voters tend to punish candidates who lug in issues, probably on the reasonable grounds that there are no issues in California. Or—there is only one, sectionalism, and very few recent candidates have known which end of the issue will pay off. Certainly, Nixon had no notion of how to jump on this. There are good reasons for doubting that the issue of economy is any good, because Californians have never objected to the spending of money, and seem to be satisfied with value received, with the best universities, highways and comforts one could buy. "Statism" or "Welfarism" or what-have-you is only a joke; the state is extremely paternalistic, and most people seem to like it that way. There are problems, like water, education and roads, but these are mostly technical and offer no partisan handles. Nixon might try to junk the Feather River Project, and thus gain the San Francisco vote (Bay Area residents often have a pathological resentment against Southern California); but then he would be slaughtered in Los Angeles, which is a lot bigger. In sum, he needs an issue to get attention, but almost any conceivable issue is either dangerous or useless.

* * * *

After decades of riotous corruption and near anarchy, California seemed to turn a corner with the first Warren administration (1942). Since then our governors have been mild, easy-going men who have managed to make their several opponents seem like addlepated mountebanks. Their whole air seemed to say, "We have a paradise here, let's enjoy it. And let's not become enfevered by the ravings of that fellow with straws in his hair (the opposition candidate)."

Jimmy Roosevelt tried to make an issue out of more welfare (1950) at a time when things were still booming, and the state had all the welfare it could manage; Warren rolled over him, and there wasn't enough left to pick up in a dust-pan. An innocent named Richard Graves tried to fetch Goodwin Knight (1954) with dark warnings about the disaster impending should Knight get another term, his vexation stemming from a view which many unworried citizens freely endorsed — that Goodie's intelligence measured over in the minus-numbers. Said Graves disappeared like a puff of smoke. Then (1958) Bill Knowland galloped home and began charging about like Paul Revere, shouting about an issue that was almost unintelligible in California — right-to-work! The citizens didn't like having their day-dreams interrupted and handed Knowland a thumping defeat. Even though history doesn't repeat itself in a very dependable fashion, I should say that most Californians still cringe when one of these frenzied types begins his incantations, and Nixon may find that rooting in corners for an issue will undo him.

Nevertheless, pretending faith in the polls, I shall assume a Nixon victory. What will he do with it? Very little. He will face a lopsided Democratic majority in the Legislature. The (for once) Democratic gerrymander cooked up last year is, my agents inform me, a masterpiece. It is doubtful that the Republicans will ever get back, unless the state loses half its population. The legislators will foil Nixon, not merely by opposing his bills, but by concocting all kinds of embarrassing legislation on their own, and worse, by putting up a gorgeous array of explosive propositions for referendum to the voters. (One should explain that the California voter must decide, besides his choice of officeholders, on anywhere from thirty to fifty legislative propositions at each election, of which at least six are usually extremely controversial—the ballot is usually as big as a good-sized road-map.) Nor will he get any balm from his own party. Some of the right-wingers who are now sniping at him will shamelessly line up to ask for favors, and cry "traitor" if they fail to get them.

Thus Nixon will be holding an office that he can't enjoy, with nothing certain except trouble. He will be bored by mere administration, and if he tries to meddle in things, he will get burned. Yet he needs to generate attention in order to keep his Presidential stock at a competitive level. But Californians are notoriously callous about Presidential hopes, they want a governor to stick to business. If he goes outside to pose as a national figure, he will be invited by the papers to do so on his own time. California voters are not used to having an incumbent governor shouting at them—he has the office, and the power, so why should he clamor? He can try to keep in the news through his handling of state problems. But here new dangers arise. If he meddles with the water problem he will have secession on his hands. If he tries to fiddle with education there will be rumors of impeachment. If he gets heavy-handed with the powerful Attorney General's office (likely to stay in Democratic hands regardless of other changes) every pro and amateur demagogue will be on his back, and he may get chastised by the courts. If he tries to "de-liberalize" the welfare set-up the Legislature will laugh in his face and dream up more things to put on the ballot. It will be as big as a table-cloth.

* * * *

IN SHORT, IF NIXON contents himself with the usual activities of a California governor (Hollywood premieres, Rose Parades, inspecting freeways, and worrying about water) he will be unhappy. If he tries to act like a Presidential candidate, many others will be unhappy, and will make their condition felt. All in all, his position is fraught with dangers, the principal one being his only chancy prospects of remaining a national figure. Coolly considered, there is almost nothing for him to do in this without getting into trouble at home. I venture to predict that, if elected, he will be foolish enough to try to stir up a row about something connected with welfare, and at that point several politicians I can think of will put the morticians on alert and began thinking of 1966.

BOB HOUSER

Fusses and Crises Presage a Season of Political Fun

FUSSES NOW in escrow would keep political news lively through California's 1962 even if no new ones were added. And we're sure to have more. The following program notes are admittedly fragmentary but then it would take a ballot-sized column to annotate properly this opus politicus.

First of about two dozen Nov. 6 ballot propositions will deal with pay hikes for state legislators. They get $6,000 a year now. One measure asks for $11,250 or half the pay of a U.S. congressman. Another asks that state lawmakers be allowed to set their own pay up to $10,000 a year. Crisis: How will Assembly candidates, asking for your vote on the same ballot, stand on the increased pay issue?

HOUSER

Proposition 24, or thereabouts, will be retiring Assemblyman Louis Francis' initiative constitutional amendment to outlaw the Communist party and to set up a labyrinth of safeguards against communist activities. Crisis: What saith the voter in view of opposition to the measure by both gubernatorial nominees Nixon and Brown?

* * * *

AT HAND next Tuesday will be consideration of resubmission of state construction bonds defeated June 5. Nixon and Brown have both supported these, accenting the needs for educational facilities. If the deal is resubmitted it probably will be under a letter "A" rather than as No. 25 on the ballot. Crisis: Did the voters understand what they were throwing out June 5? Will they vote for their favorite governor candidate and buck him on this matter?

The issue of CDC (California Democratic Council) looms big, big, big. Nixon has seized it and asks Brown to "stop stalling and tell the voters" how he stands on six "on-the-record resolutions of CDC" dealing with loyalty oaths, UnAmerican Activities Committee, Red China admission to the UN, repeal of Landrum-Griffin, and others.

* * * *

NOW COMES Jesse Unruh, Assembly speaker, Brown and Kennedy campaign manager in immediate past wars. Unruh has been appointed chairman of the Congressional and Assembly campaign committee of the Democratic State Central Committee of Southern California. Crisis: Unruh is no lover of CDC but more than 70 per cent of CDC's primary endorses were nominated. So he will be waging wars for their election.

Another part of this friction is CDC embarrassment in suffering big defeats June 5 for County Central Committee positions. They say that Unruh and labor's Committee on Political Education (COPE) sent out slate recommendations of non-CDC and anti-CDC candidates for these committees and the slates won in many cases.

Come next January, these hostile committees will be considering charter applications for CDC clubs and may turn very cool. CDC has even been bitterly wondering whether the COPE slate recommendations violated the election code by not bearing source information. Conviction of such violation could possibly prevent seating of committeemen who were a party to the slate mailer.

ANOTHER CRISIS—vote tallying—will get some consideration next Wednesday when Coleman Systems, Inc., of Santa Ana stages a press preview of its "revolutionary" vote tally system. If as good as billed, this could indeed be a welcome revolution.

First Lady Treats Protocol Lightly

By Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The First Lady has Diplomatic Row in a dither, because she seldom allows protocol to interfere with preference.

If she finds a White House visitor intriguing, charming or stimulating, Jacqueline Kennedy stages a brilliant social gathering for him. If she doesn't, the visitor receives somewhat perfunctory treatment.

Feathers were ruffled on the diplomatic front by the most recent and flagrant example of Mrs. Kennedy's preference for fun over protocol.

When France's distinguished Minister of Culture, writer and critic Andre Malraux, came to Washington, he was given the big treatment. The White House put on a glittering state dinner with music by Violinist Isaac Stern and a trio. This was followed by a chic weekend lunch at the Kennedy retreat in the nearby Virginia fox-hunting country.

While Malraux was being feted on his non-official visit, Norway's Premier Einar Gerhardsen also was here on an official visit. He got rather casual treatment—one small White House lunch. The First Lady, moreover, was absent from Gerhardsen's return reception at Blair House, just a stone's throw away from the White House. She said she had a cold.

The Norwegians had been persuaded to entertain at Blair House instead of their own spacious embassy just so the Kennedy's wouldn't be inconvenienced. Norway is an important NATO ally, and the Norwegians were not pleased.

THERE WERE surprises for everyone the other evening at a Republican rally in Princeton. Sen. Clifford P. Case (R., N.J.), a Senate liberal, was to introduce Sen. John Tower (R., Tex), who makes his home to the right of Goldwater. Case did so, and with enthusiasm. He laid it on. And Tower responded in kind with a warm tribute to Case.

A New Jersey Democrat tried to stir up a debate between the two, but Tower replied that he and Case would be happy on one condition: that liberal Democrat Harrison A. Williams (N.J.) debate with conservative Democrat Strom Thurmond (S.C.)

The theme for both debates would be foreign aid, and the like.

Schlesinger Protests Talk by General Barry Goldwater

(EDITOR'S NOTE—While Drew Pearson is in the Far West, his column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — Mississippi Sen. John Stennis has closed his inquiry into military muzzling, but he has left many a stone unturned. Here are some of the facts remaining under the rocks:

—White House aide Arthur Schlesinger protested to Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert against a war college speech by Maj. Gen. Barry Goldwater, who also happens to be the outspoken Senator from Arizona. Schlesinger also asked for "a list of the Air War college lectures for the last few months."

—A confidential army regulation, known as AR 381-135, authorizes local commanders to censor any publication they deem unwholesome for their troops. Some have used this blanket authority to ban such respected magazines as Reporter, Nation, New Republic, and even Mad, the spoof magazine.

—Stennis had a personal experience with censorship when the Navy tried to show his subcommittee a sub rosa movie of the first undersea launching of a nuclear missile. The Navy not only had neglected to ask higher authority for permission to film a nuclear test, but had tried to block the Air Force from making a rival movie. Result: The White House stopped the Navy from showing its bootleg movie to senators.

—Thought control not only is permitted but is prevalent behind the brass curtain.

* * * *

THE AIR WAR COLLEGE used to enjoy the same academic freedom as civilian colleges. But lately, pressures from both the right and left are closing in on the Air Force's school for future generals.

The Georgia American Legion, for instance, protested against the appearance of liberals Vera Dean and Margaret Mead as war college lecturers. At the same time, Montana Sen. Lee Metcalf objected to an address by right-wing publisher Lennard Reed.

Schlesinger described Goldwater's speech to the war college as "blatantly political," but acknowledged in his private memo to the Air Force secretary:

"Of course, if Goldwater were invited to attack our foreign policy and if someone else were given the opportunity to answer, this might be a different matter."

The White House aide was less charitable, however, toward Air Force Capt. Bill Francis who delivered an anti-Communist scare speech last year at the University of Kentucky.

In the audience was Dr. James Halsted, who wrote to Schlesinger that the speech sounded like "straight down the line McCarthyism" to him. Schlesinger forwarded the letter to Zuckert with the sharp note:

"You will be interested in the attached letter from Dr. Halsted of the University of Kentucky medical school. It would hardly seem that Capt. Francis is the best possible exponent of the New Frontier!"

PUBLIC FORUM

Paper Played Vital Role, Says Bonelli

EDITOR:

Upon attainmnet of our goal to qualify a Constitutional amendment, via the initiative petition, reapportioning the State Senate and allowing people to vote statewide thereupon at the General Election on Nov. 6 of this year, I hasten to thank, congratulate and commend your newspaper for the manner in which your newspaper pursued objectively from day to day the crash program to qualify in substantially one-half the time normally allotted and needed for such an undertaking.

Certainly, without your newspaper's conscientious, wholehearted support, the goal could not have been achieved and this tremendous mission of vital importance to our state accomplished.

* * * *

MOST assuredly, your newspaper can and will share an important part in the enlightenment of the voting public in the months prior to the November election, as to the dire need for this long overdue basic reform in the upper house structure of our State government.

In addition to thanking and congratulating you, I must in all sincerity thank the wonderful, dedicated volunteer workers who gave of their time and effort freely and faithfully in the circulation of petitions, and, of course, thank all of those who by their signatures thereupon made our effort successful.

Serra Series on Cuba Paised

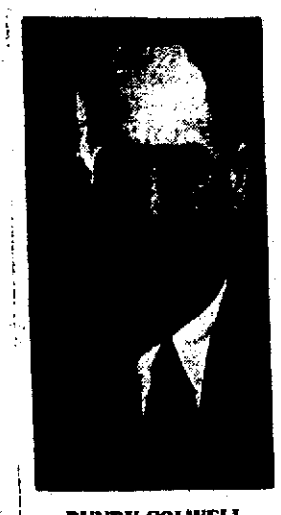

EDITOR:

Please let me compliment you on your series by Mr. Jose Serra, as told to Harry Karns. We need many more such articles — with clean, cut information about what communism really means. The only thing that will ever stop it now is if the peoples are aroused to action.

AT ADVENTIST CAMP MEET

Minister Tells of Heathen Days

Joseph Mave, native of Emirau Island, near New Guinea, walked onto the stage of the 59th annual Seventh-day Adventist meeting in Lynwood Saturday carrying a spear and drum.

But for Mave, an ordained Seventh-day minister, these are relics of the past.

He could recall as a youth more than 30 years ago when the drums sounded from 6 in the evening until the next morning.

"Twenty to thirty of these single-headed 'sing-sing' drums were played to accompany the all-night ceremonial dancing," he said. These dances are no longer held on Emirau.

Today the population of Emirau — about 500 — is completely converted to Seventh-day Adventist belief, said Mave.

* * * *

HIS PEOPLE were "heathen devil worshippers" once, he said. "My mother was a confirmed devil worshipper. When my brother became ill, she prayed to the devil but it did no good. When a Seventh-day Adventist prayed for my brother, he became well the next morning. My mother sent me to the Seventh-day Adventist school."

Sometimes called a "fuzzy wuzzy" because of his tight, kinky hair, neatly trimmed, Mave says the term is merely a "nickname" given the islanders by westerners. He good-naturedly ran a long-toothed wooden comb, called a "kom" or "ai sila," (thing to comb with). "Some of the natives in the bush country have long fuzzy hair," he said.

Except for his "lap-lap" skirt, also known as a "sulu"—a garment adopted from the Fiji Islanders — Mave's dress is western. Most of the islanders speak a pidgin English called "tok ples" (talk of a place).

* * * *

MAVE'S WORK in the Pacific comes under the supervision of Eric A. Boehm, 51, president of the Adventists' Bismark-Solomons Union Mission, with headquarters at Rabaul, New Guinea.

Boehm said since Adventists began missionary work in the islands there are 17,000 converts.

Boehm and Mave were the principal speakers at the Adventist camp meeting at 4100 Imperial Hwy., Lynwood. The meeting will continue through Saturday.

The convocation, attended by thousands of Southland Adventists this year features the foreign missions program which the organization maintains in 196 countries of the world.

Cadillac
When he got the facts . . . he got the car!
And what are the facts about Cadillac that proved so persuasive?
Well, listen for yourself—and judge for yourself.
Fact Number One. A Cadillac can be unexpectedly modest in original cost. The lowest priced model, for instance, actually costs less than eleven models of other less renowned makes.
Fact Number Two. The price of a new Cadillac includes many important features that are extra on most other cars—including power steering, power braking and Hydra-Matic drive.
Fact Number Three. Cadillac cars are extraordinarily dependable—and remarkably frugal in their use of gasoline and maintenance requirements.
Fact Number Four. Cadillac dealers are especially anxious to welcome new owners to the Cadillac family at this time of the year—and they are in a position to make the step up unusually attractive.
Of course, that's only the frosting on the cake. For the basic temptation remains, as always, the greatness of the Cadillac car itself—a greatness that has this year reflected itself in every phase of performance, craftsmanship . . . and in every detail of beauty and elegance.
It's a combination that has this year proved irresistible to more motorists than ever before.
Why not visit your nearest Cadillac dealer soon and let yourself be tempted?

SEN. MURDY

Charges Too Many Agencies

By BOB GEIVET

Mergers of "various departments" of the state government, consolidation of some agencies and elimination of others was demanded Saturday in Huntington Beach by State Sen. John A. Murdy Jr.

He said "the time has come to give serious consideration to reorganization of our state government."

There are, he declared, "too many bureaus, agencies and departments eating up taxes."

Elimination of some of them and consolidation of others is necessary "if we are to remain a free society," he claimed.

"Looking at the problem realistically, our state government has grown larger out of necessity to cope with the great surge in population. But the growing pains of a spiraling population have brought waste, inefficiency and bureaucy" into the state government, he said.

"Too many people are complaining that they have less voice in the government today, and that too many decisions are made by various agencies serving at the pleasure of the governor—not the elected representatives."

* * * *

"THE DANGER here," Sen. Murdy said, "is that big government will tell you what do do and what not to do, instead of the people electing representatives to run the government as the people direct."

Sen. Murdy noted that "obviously, a prime objective should be to reduce the span of control by the state's chief executive."

This is necessary, he said, because "during the past four years of the present administration, some 40 new bureaus and agencies have been created. There are now 363 separate units responsible only to the governor.

"A solution to these problems is not necessarily the creation of new superagencies as has already been proposed," Sen. Murdy said. "This only tends to compound the problem. Mergers of various departments will be necessary; so will transfer of some agencies to proper lines of responsibility. Many bureaus must of necessity be eliminated if we are to remain a free society."

CAMPING

Glenn Family to Get Away From It All

WASHINGTON (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. is going to get away from it all for a while.

For the first time since he joined Project Mercury three years ago, he's going on a camping trip with his wife and two children.

But where and when is a secret.

"We would just love to be alone for a while," said Mrs. Glenn. "John needs to get off by himself."

The Glenns used to take frequent camping expeditions but, said Mrs. Glenn, "John's been a bit busy since then."

The Glenn family will also pull up stakes and leave their Arlington, Va., home in late July or early August, for a new home in Houston, Tex., the permanent site for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's manned space center.

Hefty Volunteers on Special Diet to Help Science

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)—Sixty "healthy obese" volunteers lived on liquid and wafer food substitutes today to help scientists determine whether the fat or the lean disappears in a dieting program.

They are in the first stage of an eight-week, 900-calorie-a-day subsistence program to determine the effects of nutrionally complete food substitutes on the fat-lean ratios of the human body.

Purdue University doctors will use gamma rays from a giant scintillation counter to measure the body's natural potassium which is found only in lean muscle tissue.

'GOING TO THE DOGS' was the vogue Saturday and will be again today on the grounds adjacent to Municipal Auditorium where the Harbor Cities Kennel Club is having its dog show and obedience trial. Above left, Mrs. Nel Fietinghoff of Downey grooms her Yorkshire Terrier, "Curry" for judging. Center, enthusiasts watch judging of Wirehaired Terriers. Above right, suited up and ready to go, three contestants are all set for a doggy game of basketball between the "Lickers" and the "Barkers."

CROOKED SPY

Pick Wrong Man to Be Agent

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—The tale of a trusted comrade who went wrong was related sorrowfully by Havana radio.

Seems a storekeeper in the Havana suburb of Marianao joined the defense committee in his block and watched his neighbors for signs of counterrevolutionary activity—but all the time he was operating a black market in clothing at his shop.

Said the radio: "He infiltrated the defense committee to conceal his dark intrigues."

The fate of the luckless comrade was not announced.

$22-Billion Bank Haul in N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The well-trained team moved with split-second precision into the bank vaults. Not a guard opposed them. All alarms had been silenced.

It was no holdup, but the withdrawal Saturday was the biggest of its kind in history.

Some $22 billion worth of securities were stacked in ordinary cardboard boxes—3166 of them. The boxes were shuttled by seven armored trucks, making a total of 400 trips, from the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. to new vaults on Wall Street.

The securities were moved because the bank plans to transfer its headquarters to the new location in the fall.

Honky Tonk Vice Squelch Demanded

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate investigators called today for a massive crackdown on tax-cheating white slavers allegedly operating behind the gay facade of brightly lighted honky tonk nightclubs.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said in an interview the evidence his Senate investigations subcommittee has produced already in public hearings shows "the condition is an outrage" calling for concerted action by federal and local law enforcement agencies.

A parade of witnesses has charged that powerful, tax-evading crime syndicates and assorted hoodlums have taken over the tawdry night clubs. Defrauding the government and forcing girl dancers into prostitution. McClellan has charged the situation involves collusion with some high officials in the AFL-CIO union, the American Guild of Variety Artists.

* * * *

THIS IS A union which hargains collectively with night clubs and other employers in behalf of entertainers. There has been a lot of testimony that AGVA has done little or nothing to enforce contracts which specifically forbid exploitation of its members.

The union is to present its defense Monday or Tuesday in the windup of this phase of the inquiry.

McClellan said he woud reopen the inquiry later in the summer to test what has been done to crack down on the racketeers.

"The condition is an outrage," he said, "and it addresses itself to the Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Service and Labor Department, perhaps others. It cries out for action."

Much, he said, can be done also through proper local law enforcement. He already has challenged the AFL-CIO either to clean up AGVA or boot it out of the "house of decent unionism."

CHICAGO (UPI)—A United Air Lines DC8 on a flight from New York City to Denver made an unscheduled landing at Chicago's O'Hare field Saturday when one of its four engines became overheated.

12% Yield on Volks Shares Seen

WOLFSBURG, Germany (UPI)—They're holding a big picnic next week at this city near the Iron Curtain, and the menu is a big financial pie.

About 5,000 persons are expected for the Volkswagen Co's. second annual stockholders' meeting June 30 which shapes up as something of a love feast. The main item on the agenda is a happy one —approval of a 12 per cent dividend on Volkswagen shares.

The meeting comes after a year that has seen some drastic fluctuations of the stock on the market and brought a knockdown, drag-out battle between the Volkswagen Co. and the West German federal government. But the shares have settled into what appears to be a slow and steady climb and "VW" management came out of its fight with the government in fine shape.

IT WAS A year and a half ago, on Jan. 16, 1961, that the 3.6 million Volkswagen shares were sold to the West German "little man" in one of the biggest de-nationalization experiments in history. By this sale Europe's largest automobile manufacturer inherited more owners than any other company in the world except the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The shares carried a nominal value of 100 marks ($25) but sold for 350 marks ($87.50) each. Since everyone expected their value to rise quickly on the stock exchanges, the sale of VW shares was limited to two, sometimes three per customer. Persons with incomes of more than 16,000 marks ($4,000) a year were excluded from the sale.

Employes of the Volkswagen Co. were allowed to buy up to 10 shares, including one free of charge.

INITIALLY, the rosiest hopes of VW investors were surpassed when the shares climbed to a peak of 1,108 marks ($277) in May, 1961.

Then came a decline. Volkswagen chares slipped steadily and May 29, "Black Tuesday," hit a low of 429. But since then VW has been climbing again, surpassing the 550 mark this month. Part of the reason for the decline probably was due to the compaiy's recent warning with the government over VW price increases in March this year, which resulted in retaliation by the government in the form of tariff cuts for imported cars.

Economics minister Ludwig Erhard tried to persuade Volkswagen management to rescind the price increases. It refused and a power struggle developed between the government and the country's biggest auto maker. The goverment lost for all intents and purposes.

Volkswagen prices stayed up, but so did the demand for the little car. Germans still have to order their Volkswagen three to four months in advance.

SINCE THE federal government retained only 20 per cent of the shares and the state of lower saxony another 20 per cent after de-nationalization, control of the Volkswagen Co. today is in the hands of its management, more specifically manager Heinz Nordhoff, as the government discovered the hard way during its recent tussle with VW.

Under Nordhoff's direction, the little car caught on in Germany, in Europe and then in the United States. The company grew and last year more than a million Volkswagens, 4,233 a day, rolled off the assembly lines in Wolfsburg and in a new plant in Hannover. With a turnover of five billion marks ($1.25 billion) Volkswagen was West Germany's biggest industrial giant and the third largest auto maker in the world.

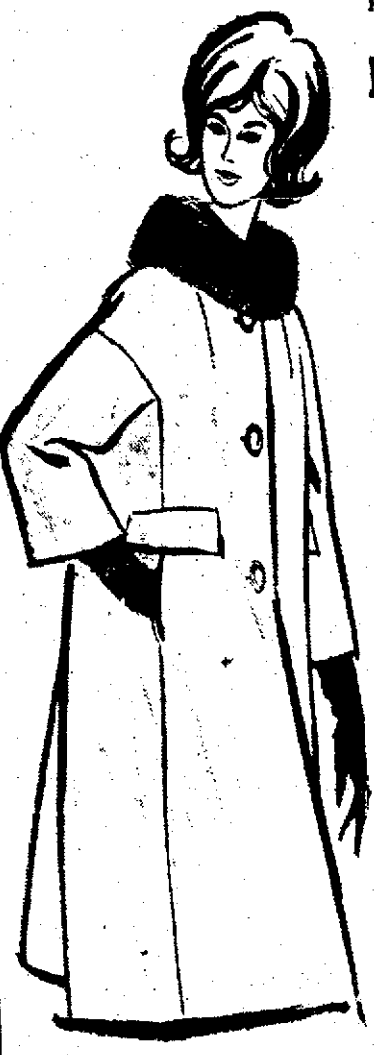

During the first quarter of 1962, VW production rose 10 per cent compared with 1961 figures, to 287,174 units. Exports dropped to 54.9 per cent in this period, compared with last year's 58.9 per cent.

Although Volkswagen sells its cars to 110 countries and is the world's biggest exporter of automobiles, Nordhoff recently conceded that export sales have become more difficult and he sees little room for expansion.

BRIGHTMAN TO COACH L.B. PRO '5'

Al Brightman was named coach of the Long Beach Professional Basketball Club Saturday.

The signing of the 39-year-old former coaching marvel at Seattle University is the first major step in building the Long Beach area's first major professional sports representative—the yet-to-be-nicknamed team in the American Basketball League.

Brightman's acceptance of a contract, whose terms were undisclosed, was announced by Lauren Proctor, newly-appointed club vice president in charge of promotion and sales.

In Brightman and Proctor, the fledgling cage club has obtained two men with roots deep in Long Beach area sports . . . Brightman as a player and coach, Proctor as a coach and promoter. Both are enthusiastic about the chances of the new club which will play its games in the new Long Beach Arena.

"It's a dream come true for me to return to Long Beach," said Brightman, who replaced Phil Woolpert as coach of the San Francisco Saints of the ABL midway through last season. "I've always wanted to coach a team in my own home town.

"I'm confident that the fans here will find the play in the American League the most exciting in basketball today. The home run has made baseball popular, and the three-point play gives the same effect to ABL basketball."

Under ABL rules, a shot from 25 feet is worth three points instead of the normal two.

Brightman plans "to exploit the long shot regardless of personnel" and will waste no time to search for "home run hitters." Tryouts for the new team will be held at the City College gym Wednesday at 7 p.m. All players are invited.

The handsome father of six—with a seventh on the way—has had a career in sports studded with success.

A native of Eureka, Calif., Brightman came to Long Beach in 1935 and played basketball and baseball at Franklin, Jefferson and Rogers junior high schools and Wilson High.

At Wilson, he led the old Bay League in scoring each year, set a CIF scoring record of 51 points in one game and was CIF player of the year in 1941. He played forward. As a baseball pitcher and catcher, he helped Wilson to win the 1940 CIF championship, and he earned all-CIF honors again.

After school, he joined the famous 20th Century Fox AAU basketball team and was named rookie of the year in the 1942 National AAU Tournament at Denver. He also signed a pro basketball contract with Cleveland, and played briefly at Baltimore, then of the International League, before entering the Navy as a Chief Petty Officer.

Brightman, whose father is a retired Navy man, became captain of the Navy All-Star basketball team.

After service, he entered Morris Harvey College in West Virginia and was second in the nation in scoring with an average of 24.6. In 1946, he joined the Boston Celtics and led the club in scoring. He tried baseball with Baltimore again but an arm injury ended his diamond career.

In 1947, Brightman went to Seattle as a player-coach of that city's entry in the now-defunct Pacific Coast pro league. The next year, he was asked to coach at Seattle U.

Possessor of a winning smile and dynamo's energy, the rookie coach quickly put Seattle on the map as a major basketball power. In his eight seasons there, he had a record of 180 wins against 62 losses, and was one of only five coaches ever to win 100 games in their first five seasons.

The other four read like a who's who of college coaching—Adolph Rupp of Kentucky, Tom Blackburn of Dayton, Everett Case of North Carolina State and Frank McGuire of St. Johns.

Brightman's stay at Seattle was marked by his recruiting of two sensational players, Johnny O'Brien and Elgin Baylor.

O'Brien, whose twin brother, Eddie, also was a Seattle star, probably was the best 5-9 center in the history of basketball. Later to gain more fame as major league

Dodgers on Spree, Rip Cincy, 14-3

By GEORGE LEDERER

Don Drysdale received as much cushioning from his teammates as 47,159 fans tossed on the field to celebrate the Dodgers' 14-3 trouncing of Cincinnati Saturday night.

Drysdale, who hadn't defeated the Reds since Aug. 26, 1960, finally had a laugher. He had 19-hit backing in recording his 12th victory and seventh in his last eight starts.

Everybody but Mrs. Kallabash got into the Dodger act. Tommy Davis and Willie Davis each had four hits. Tommy drove in five runs, a season record for the club.

Catcher Doug Camilli was the only starter who failed to hit safely and he had a legitimate excuse. He walked three times.

* * * *

JOEY JAY (10-7) was the loser inside of two innings. Manager Fred Hutchinson tossed in the towel early and let Jay stay for a 10-man, five-run second inning. Jay's successors were second-liners Moe Drabowsky and Johnny Klippstein, a move that manager Freddie Hutchinson may regret in view of the Reds' late comeback.

Drysdale, tiring mainly from his long innings on the bench, gave the Reds all their runs in the ninth.

The win enabled the Dodgers to protect their 2½-game lead over the Giants and represented their largest margin of the season. The 19 hits tied a season high, achieved also against the Mets, May 30.

Dodger speed gave Drysdale two runs in the opening inning and from then on, it was pure power. The barrage included five double plus a triple, by T. Davis.

* * * *

A BALK by Jay set up two RBIs for T. Davis in the first inning. Willie Davis, who reached base five times and has a string of six hits in two games, was aboard each time Tommy connected and scored four runs.

Jay left for a hitter in the third when the Dodgers led 7-0. The first of three hits by Daryl Spencer touched off the five-run Dodger second, which included singles by Drysdale, the two Davieses, Ron Fairly and Frank Howard.

Drabowsky yielded only one run, but Dodger artillery zeroed in on Klippstein for four runs in the fifth and two more in the seventh.

The fifth inning merry-go-round included doubles by Maury Wills and Howard and singles by Spencer, Jim Gilliam and W. Davis. With the

Beatty Scoots 3:57 in AAU

By JOHN DIXON

To the surprise of everyone, not a world record fell in the 74th National AAU track and field championships at Mt. San Antonio College.

But no one in the shirt-sleeved crowd of 10,000 murmured a complaint Saturday. The competition was jammed with spills and thrills and violent finishes.

The mile, 3-mile, discus and pole vault were highlights of the greatest national championship meet of them all.

For the first time four Americans broke four minutes for four laps. The winner, of course, was tiny Jim Beatty, but he had to kick from behind twice to overcome best-ever performances by L.A. Track Club teammate Jim Grelle and Marine Cary Weisiger.

Grelle led at the 440 in 58.6, Beatty was the halfway leader at 1:59.9 and Weisiger led at three-quarters in 3:00.7.

* * * *

WEISIGER fought off Beatty and Grelle until the tape was only 200 yards away. Grelle sprinted past his elbow and finally Beatty followed.

Beatty was home free but Weisiger came on again, made up three yards and appeared to catch the dying Grelle. Beatty's time of 3:57.9 was his fastest ever and tied Herb Elliott's meet record.

The photolimer showed Grelle inches in front of Weisiger and both credited with their pinnacles, 3:58.1. Bill Dotson of Kansas was the fourth American under four minutes, 3:59.0, also his best-ever.

"This was too close for comfort," Beatty gasped. "Let's face it, I didn't have it. I was shooting for 3:55 flat. The way I've felt the past couple of days I'm lucky to win in any time. I've lost my snap. I didn't have my usual zip on the last straightaway and I was laboring. I could hear them coming up to me and I was scared."

MURRAY Halberg, New Zealand Olympic champion who ran a dismal third behind Bruce Kidd and Max Truex at Compton, looked like a champion Saturday.

He won an intellectual, disciplined three-mile in 13:30.6, breaking Alex Henderson's meet record of 13:37.1. Truex was second in 13:32.8 and Kidd, attempting a hercules double after winning the six-mile Friday, an exhausted third in 13:33.8.

"The race was made to order for me," Halberg pointed out. I thought I could take Kidd if I led him on the last half-mile. I'm sure it would have been a different story if Kidd hadn't tried the six-mile. Give the praise to Kidd. He turned in the

Angels Drop 3rd in Row

By ROSS NEWHAN
I, P-T Staff Writer

ST. PAUL — The Angels have a distinct dislike for cats —especially when they're Siamese and named Jim.

Jim Kaat (rhymes with cat) of the Minnesota Twins shutout the Angels for the second time this season, 5-0, before 18,993 paying fans Saturday and an additional 4,772 kids who have made this Kaat one of their pets.

The loss was the third straight for the Angels here in the land of lakes, gophers, Vikings and Twins and dropped Bill Rigney's nine into fourth place. It was a bus the Angels rode back to their hotel following the game and not the coach which had carried the Cinderfellas into second place.

While a rain and hailstorm pelted the Twin Cities, 10 miles away the Twins pelted Eli Grba for three home runs and their eighth victory in 11 meetings with the Angels this season.

* * * *

THE TWINS, who lead the American League in batting and fielding, collected only four hits off Grba during his seven-inning tenure, but Zoilo Versalles and Vic Power got all the mileage permissable out of their's.

Versalles followed Bob Allison's double and a walk to Earl Battey with his ninth home run—and third off the Angels—in the second, and Power, who Cleveland general manager Gabe Paul begged the Angels to take, lashed his seventh and eighth four-baggers in the third and sixth innings.

The gopher balls brought to 11 the number Grba (3-4) has served in 83 innings this year, an average of one every seven and one-half innings.

The Angels, meanwhile, could not scratch Kaat for even a walk after the second inning. Billy Moran and Leon Wagner tagged first-frame singles and Joe Koppe ripped a safety with two out in the second, but after that, Kaat retired 22 Angels in order.

* * * *

THE SHUTOUT was only the second dealt to the Angels this year and both have been administered by Kaat, a 24-year-old lefthander from Zeeland, Michigan. He struck out 10 while white-washing the Seraphs, 5-0, at Chavez Ravine on April 22. This time, he fanned seven and did not walk a man.

Kaat needed only one hour and 56 minutes to record his eighth victory against four defeats and become the winningest lefthander in the American League. It was his seventh straight win and third against the Angels.

With the win, the Twins moved to within one-half game of league-leading Cleveland and kept THEIR Cinderella story alive. It was just one year ago Saturday that Sam Mele replaced Cookie Lavegetto as the Siameses' manager. At the time, Minnesota was mired at 25-41. By the end of the season the Twins' percentage was .489. It's been going up ever since.

A SILENT, thorough man, Mele had his leading slugger,

BLACK SHEEP, LONGDEN CONNECT

By ERNIE MASON

The Hollywood Derby "preview," the $56,300 Cinema Handicap, was done up in true filmland fashion at Hollywood Park Saturday, chock full of excitement, thrills and suspense while coming out as the script had dictated, a hard-fourth, wide-open battle to the wire.

The suspense ended when the photo finish camera revealed that the hero's mantle had gone to C. R. Mac Stable's Black Sheep, a "dark horse" in the casting office listings but a true candidate for the leading man's part under the direction of veteran Johnny Longden.

Black Sheep collected the biggest victory of his career by the narrowest of margins, getting a slim nose verdict over longshot Indian Blood in one of the most thrilling struggles witnessed at the Goose Girl oval in many seasons.

Longden, chalking up the 400th stakes victory of his brilliant career, slipped through between horses on the turn, drove up to overtake highweights Doc Jocoy and Royal Attack, and then hung on to stall off the fast-closing Indian Blood.

The camera revealed that the final four margins were a nose and three necks with Doc Jocoy, Royal Attack and

WIMBLEDON PLAY BEGINS MONDAY

CAN YANK NETTERS STOP AUSSIE SWEEP?

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Is there an American Tennis player who can stop an All-Australian sweep in the Wimbledon Championships?

That is the big question hanging over the 76th Wimbledon tournament, which starts Monday within the hallowed, ivy-covered walls of the All-England Club.

For the first time ever, Australians have been given the top seed positions in both the men's and women's singles.

Rod Laver, clear-cut winner of the title last year, was an obvious choice as top seed in the men's division.

Margaret Smith, the 19-year-old rebel who defied the Australian Lawn Tennis Association and toured Europe on her own, was given top place among the women. The committee rated her above Darlene Hard, the U.S. Wightman Cup star, and Brazil's Maria Bueno, winner of the Wimbledon crown in 1959 and 1960.

So if the tournament goes according to the committee's expectations, it could be the climax to Australia's growing domination of world tennis in recent years. Australia has won the Davis Cup three years running and has claimed the Wimbledon men's title six times in the last seven years.

So far, no Australian has ever won the women's crown.

Chuck McKinley, nonstop bundle of energy from St. Ann, Mo., appears America's biggest threat to Laver's title.

At Wimbledon last year, McKinley was beaten by Laver in the final. His acrobatics made him a top favorite with the crowd.

"This time I hope to go one better and win the title," the dynamic American said. "I will be putting every ounce of effort into it. I'm in good form and I'm very fit.

The official United States No. 1 player, Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., didn't get a place in the seedings. He has yet to make much of an impression in this country. The seedings:

Men's Singles: 1. Rod Laver, Australia. 2. Roy Emerson, Australia. 3. Neale Fraser, Australia. 4. Ramanathan Krishnan, India. 5. Chuck McKinley, St. Ann, Mo. 6. Manuel Santana, Spain. 7. Nicola Pietrangeli, Italy. 8. Bob Hewitt, Australia.

Women's Singles: 1. Margaret Smith, Australia. 2. Darlene Hard, Montebello, Calif. 3. Maria Bueno, Brazil. 4. Renee Schuurman, South Africa. 5. Ann Haydon, Britain. 6. Angela Mortimer, Britain. 7. Lesley Turner, Australia. 8. Mrs. Karen Hantze Susman, Chula Vista, Calif.

The New Look at Wimbledon

By ROBERT MUSEL

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (UPI)—No whistling in center court, sir, when the girls come out to play in this year's Wimbledon Tennis Championships with their backs bare down to the waistline.

Next week figures to see a parade of daring fashion—daring for tennis, that is—which the hallowed precincts of the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club have not known since the days of the underhand service.

GUSSIE MORAN
Shades of Lace

Let's face it—they have never seen anything like this before. And some tennis writers are fervently expressing the hope the girls will realize they have gone about as far as ladies can go.

The prettiest players in bigtime tennis have been giving previews this week of what they intend to wear when the Wimbledon umpires call "Play" Monday. If they do, Wimbledon, which is used to fashion shocks — remember Gorgeous Gussie Moran's lace panties?—is going to get the biggest surprise of them all.

Maria Bueno of Brazil, 1960 champion and third seed this year, leads the bare-back brigade. Designer Teddy Tingling said he had made her seven costumes and one of the same for Valerie Forbes of South Africa.

"I have gone overboard about the bare-back look," said another leading designer, Harold Peters, who works with former Wimbledon champion Fred Perry.

AMONG THE OTHER stars whose playing dresses follow the low-back fashion are Carole Caldwell of Santa Monica, Calif., Pat Stewart of New York, and Lea Pericoli and Sylvania Lazzarino of Italy.

Miss Stewart has a diamond-studded number. Miss Forbes breaks away from the traditional white with green chiffon plats in her tunic and a green petticoat.

Miss Pericoli, who once wore mink-trimmed costumes, now has a tunic with side vents showing long shorts frilled with lace.

Tinling said the dresses were cut so low they raised the question of how to make the usual support invisible. He claims that Miss Bueno wore one of these devices—a sort of backless bra—for a strenuous practice set and it worked perfectly.

Skeptical tennis writer Laurie Pignon of the Daily Sketch said he would wait and see with great interest whether a backless bra would hold up in real championship tennis. He complained that if the dresses got any lower, center court might turn into "an afternoon show for tired business men."

HE SAID IT WAS time for Wimbledon officials to call a halt to "the best free show of lingerie" outside the big shops of London's West End.

No wonder that for the first time since 1878 the annual Wimbledon poster carries the picture of a girl instead of a man.

McCormick in Form, 4-Hits Braves, 4-2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Giants backed Mike McCormick's four-hit pitching with a 10-hit attack and beat Milwaukee 4-2 Saturday before 17,345 fans.

Jim Davenport batted in two Giant runs in the San Francisco half.

Willie Mays started a two-run seventh inning rally with a double. He scored when Denis Menke threw past Joe Adcock at first on Matty Alou's infield hit. After Cepeda was intentionally walked, Felipe Alou scored brother Matty with a single to center.

* * * *

BOB SHAW, Milwaukee starter who had struck out six but allowed 10 hits, was relieved by Jack Curtis. The loss was Shaw's third against nine wins.

McCormick went the distance for the first time this season in winning his fourth against two losses. He struck out four and walked one.

The Giant triumph ended a three-game losing streak. It was the fifth San Francisco victory in 17 games.

Hank Aaron of the Braves was blanked in four trips to the plate after hitting safely in 11 straight games.

Tigers Hold Yanks Even

DETROIT (AP)—The New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers took turns bombing each other with big innings and home runs Saturday and divided a day-night doubleheader.

The Yankees, ignited by Yogi Berra's grand slam homer in the first inning, exploded for two four-run rallies and won the afternoon game, 8-4, despite four solo Detroit home runs.

The Tigers started a five-run rally with two bunt singles in the fourth and won the night game, 5-4, although Cletis Boyer and Mickey Mantle homered for the Yankees.

The Yankees led 8-0 in the opener and the Tigers were ahead 5-0 in the nightcap. But both were forced to hold off late-inning comebacks to split the double admission twin bill.

* * * *

MANTLE tested his injured left knee in both games and cracked his first homer since returning to fulltime duty in the ninth inning of the second game. He played only one and one-half innings of the first game and was lifted after a rainstorm delayed the game an hour and made the footing in right field dangerous.

Ralph Terry was breezing along with an eight-run advantage for the Yankees in the opener before Detroit retaliated with homers by Dick McAuliffe, Steve Boros, Rocky Colavito and Vic Wertz. The Yankees' four runs in the fourth were the difference. Tom Tresh's two-run single was the big blow of the rally.

Gibson Bags Ninth Victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Gibson posted his ninth victory of the season Saturday as he pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Ken Boyer clouted his ninth homer with a runner on base to help the Cardinals spoil the mound debut of Billy Smith, an undersized 28-year-old southpaw. Smith, whose only other National League start was for the Cardinals in 1958, worked five innings and gave up five runs.

Gibson, who has never lost to the Phillies, scattered six hits in his easy effort, striking out six and displaying perfect control.

Hoak Cracks Homer in 9th, Bucs Win, 4-3

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Don Hoak hit a two-run homer with one out in the ninth inning Saturday to lift the Pittsburgh Piratees to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Hoak's homer, his fourth of the year, came off relief pitcher Don Elston with pinch-runner Don Clendenon on base. The Cubs had taken a 3-2 lead in the ninth when Pirate starter Bob Friend walked pinch-hitter Don Landrum wih the bases loaded. Friend was relieved at that point by southpaw Diomedes Olivo who struck out Lou Brock and gained the victory, his second against no defeats.

FRANK Robinson, who had two of the Reds' eight hits, doubled to start the ninth and Jerry Lynch ruined Drysdale's shutout bid with a triple. A sacrifice fly and two singles added two runs, but did little to dent Drysdale's ERA.

Johnny Podres (3-6) faces Jim Maloney (2-1) in the final game of the series this afternoon. Podres will be making his ninth start in search of victory No. 4. He is winless since May 13 and has not completed a game since May 9.

Confidence Vote to Cub Coach Metro

CHICAGO (AP) — Plain-spoken Charles Metro Saturday received a solid vote of confidence as head Chicago Cub coach from owner Phil Wrigley, but—

Gum magnate Wrigley's College of Coaches apparently is not about to be abandoned even though Metro is making noises like a regular manager.

Plate umpire Mel Steiner of Seal Beach, Calif., is helped to his feet by Phillies trainer Frank Wiechec after being dropped by foul tip in eighth inning of Saturday's game with Cardinals. Steiner recovered after brief rest and continued his duties.

Hansen, on Pass, Paces Orioles Win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Shortstop Ron Hansen banged a two-run homer and southpaw Billy Hoeft pitched 7⅓ innings of scoreless relief as Baltimore beat Boston, 5-3, Saturday.

Hansen, on weekend leave from nearby Ft. Meade, Md., hit his second homer of the season in the eighth inning with Marv Breeding, pinch-running for Jim Gentile, who had singled, on base.

It was Hoeft's third straight victory and evened his record at 3-3.

WYNN

By JERRY WYNN

"Now pitching for the Dodgers, Ed Roebuck."

Twenty - eight times this season that trumpeted call has been sweet music to one of baseball's finest relief pitchers and Lakewood's most notable residents.

For at this time last year, Ed Roebuck wasn't sure if he would ever be able to pitch again. A chronic shoulder ailment had taken the spring from a once trip-hammer arm. He had two strikes against him in the ninth inning of the final game.

Today, a revitalized Roebuck is quietly and happily working on one of the most fantastic streaks in baseball annals. He has made 52 appearances for the Dodgers since Aug. 8, 1960, and he has not lost a game.

What was responsible, Ed, for your arm snapping back into shape this year?

"It's one of those things which is hard to pin down. It took a lot of hard work and a little luck. Last summer, I was ready to give it up completely. Now, the arm feels fine."

During one span last month, you pitched in seven successive games. Do you feel overworked?

"No. Once my arm is in shape, I like to throw every day. If I'm not pitching in a game, I'm throwing in the bullpen. It doesn't make much difference to me."

What is the secret of success for a relief pitcher?

"You must have one pitch you know you can throw, not over the plate but to a spot. The ideal pitches for a reliefer are a good curve and sinker. Perranoski is an example. He has them both. I get along mostly on a sinker."

Who do you consider the best reliefer you have seen?

"Clem Labine. He was outstanding."

Do you ever yearn for a starting assignment?

"Yes, all relievers feel that way. I have been in 270 games in the majors since 1954, and have only started once. That was in 1956 when we were wrapped up in a couple of doubleheaders. But I only went three innings and was lifted for a pinch hitter even though the score was 2-1."

Which hitters give you the most trouble?

"Mays. He gives our whole staff trouble. Mathews, too. It's funny I've had very good success with some of the better hitters like Aaron, Banks, Boyer and Musial. It goes in cycles. Some years, one guy may be tough on you; the next year, he may be easy."

How do you pitch to Mays?

"I try not to throw him strikes."

After Ebbets Field and the Coliseum, how does it feel to be pitching at Dodger Stadium?

"There's quite a difference. You don't have to be careful on every pitch. When some one gets a homer, he deserves it. And it's nice to have Willie Davis in center field who can go get the ball: Ebbets Field was worse than the Coliseum. There you had to worry about two short fences while at the Coliseum, you had to guard against left field only."

Do you like the enclosed bullpen at the new park?

"It is only half enclosed, and that's not good. There are always about 50 kids heckling us and asking for autographs. When we're warming up, we should not be distracted."

"What do you do to pass the time in the bullpen?

"There are no comic book readers on this club. We talk baseball and watch the game. You have to feel you are part of the game and be ready to go in at any time."

What is your signal to enter the game?

"I get a sign from Joe Becker of a man rowing. Each of us has his own sign. For Sherry, a man drinking. For Ortega, an Indian sign, and for Perranoski, a left hand. He's our only southpaw."

With the exception of Duke Snider, you have been with the Dodgers for more years than any other player. Compare this team with others?

"The big thing about this club is its morale. We have a bunch of guys who think they can win it, and no one is going to do anything about it. That plus good pitching and speed."

What was the best Dodger club on which you played?

"1955. It was all power with guys like Campanella, Snider, Hodges, Furillo and Robinson. We were never out of a game because we could always come back to score a lot of runs."

What has been your greatest thrill in baseball?

"Being able to throw again."

HALF-MILE WINNER

Jerry Siebert of Santa Clara Youth Village is stride from tape in outdistancing Jim Dupree to win 880 in National AAU meet. Siebert's time was 1:47.

greatest distance double in history."

Kidd apologized, "I'm sorry but I just couldn't keep up with them. I guess I'm not a doubler, at least, not yet."

* * * *

TRUEX SAID, "I didn't want to set the pace, but the mile was so slow (4:32.5) I had to. I just couldn't run any faster on that last lap. Halberg isn't in the best of shape but on a nice, comfortable pace like that he's still tough."

Giant Al Oerter missed his world record target in the discus, but he got an American record. The two-time Olympic Games champion from New York culminated the all-time best series with a mammoth 202-2 spin, missing the pending world mark of 202-2½ by Russian Vladimir Trusenyov but bettering his own pending American mark of 200-5½ at the Coliseum Relays.

Oerter's series was 200-3½, 195-5, 198-2, 195-7, 202-2 and 197-7½. Rink Babka was second at 193-4½.

Ron Morris of the Striders, Olympic silver medalist, became the third American 16-foot vaulter by surpassing 16 feet, ¼ inch. John Cramer of Washington, only championship-class vaulter who does not use the big-bend fiber glass pole, was a surprise second at 15-8¼, edging Dave Tork of the Marines and John Belitza of Maryland on fewer misses.

Morris, who was over 16-3 but tagged the bar coming down, credited his coach, Chuck Coker, with the big jump. "He's a genius at analyzing form," the former Trojan praised.

* * * *

"MAYBE I could have cleared 16 feet with my old metal pole but that would have been the absolute limit. With this new gadget I think 17 feet is possible. After all, I've only been working with it about five weeks. And when I started — at Fresno — I almost broke my neck."

In the final event, Paul Drayton of Villanova deadlocked the world record for 220 yards around a turn, 20.5. Roger Sayers of Omaha was second in 20.7.

"Everything went perfectly for me," Drayton said. "I liked my lane (3), I got off as good as I ever have. I felt I must have been in the lead all the way. It's a terrific feeling knowing I tied a world record, but that wasn't my goal. It was just to get to the finish line first any way I could."

The Striders won the team title again with 53 points to 52 for the New York AC and 51 for the Santa Clara Valley Youth Village, but both ventured protests. A ruling will be made today.

* * * *

THE MEET shocker occurred in the hammer throw.

Seven-times champion Hal Connolly, reverting to his Olympic Games form, threw only 215-3½ and finished behind Al Hall's 219-3. Connolly has repeatedly threatened his world record of 230-9.

* * * *

THERE WERE no upsets in the 440 or 880. Favorites Ulis Williams and Jerry Siebert won just as they pleased in meet-record time.

Williams, Arizona State freshman from Compton, broke out of a six-man blanket around the last curve and finished 2½ yards in front of Ray Saddler of the Striders. Second favorite Adolph Plummer was fifth.

Williams' time was 45.8, equalling Eddie Southern's record and missing Glenn Davis' world record by a single tick. It was Williams' life-time best.

* * * *

"I WAS worried about Plummer," Williams said. "I was lucky he was in the lane just in front of me. I kept my eye on him. I started faster than usual and ran even with Plummer. I knew he wanted to jump me as we hit the stretch. I didn't tie up." Plummer commented, "I did."

Siebert had the half-mile gold medal in his hip pocket all the way. His 1:47.1 clocking surpassed the seven-year-old 1:47.6 by Arnie Sowell. Jim Dupree was five yards behind the winner in 1:47.4.

Hill Duo Takes Lead at Le Mans

LE MANS, France (UPI)—Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., and co-pilot Oliver Gendebien of Belgium regained the lead early today in the 24-hour Le Mans auto racing classic after the withdrawal of the Rodriguez Brothers of Mexico.

Ricardo and Pedro Rodriguez, alternating at the wheel of a Ferrari, abandoned the race while leading after 174 laps.

At the event's halfway mark, the Mexicans totaled 170 laps at an average speed of 118 miles per hour. Shortly thereafter, the car went in for a 10-minute pit stop, during which mechanics worked on the engine.

The Mexicans' car went out on the track again, but the engine burned out and they officially withdrew, permitting Hill and Gendebien to take over the lead in their Ferrari.

* * * *

ITALIAN drivers Baghetti and Scarfiotti in a Ferrari took up second place with 167 laps, followed by Noblet and Guichet in a Ferrari, also with 167 laps.

Britain's Michael Salmon and Sir Ian Baillie, in an Aston-Martin, abandoned.

An Osca driven by George Arentz of Cocoanut Grove, Fla., and Sterling Hamil, of Chicago, Ill., ran into a pile of sand. There were no reported injuries and the car rejoined the race.

The Rodriguez Brothers, until their withdrawal, had alternated the lead with Hill and Gendebien, the defending champions.

Ford Cards 73 as Lead Cut in Half

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Doug Ford lost his magic touch in the third round of the Eastern Open golf tournament Saturday but still managed to protect his lead—which was cut in half.

The veteran from New York wobbled in with a one-over-par 73, giving him a 207 at the 54-hole mark of the $35,000 event.

This was good enough for a three-stroke lead over Charlie Bassler, a Baltimore product who saves his best efforts for this tournament.

Bassler, a club pro at nearby Silver Spring, Md., posted a 68 on the 7,000-yard Municipal Mount Pleasant course. He was alone in second place at 210.

Bob Goalby of Belleville, Ill., also carded a 68 to move into contention with a 211 total.

ELORDE RETAINS TITLE

'Hometown Decision,' Cries Beaten Copeland

MANILA (UPI)—World junior lightweight champion Gabriel (Flash) Elorde of the Philippines decisioned Auburn (Flash) Copeland of the United States Saturday night in a 15-round title fight that touched off an angry exchange between the two camps.

"It was definitely a hometown decision," said the 29-year-old challenger from Los Angeles and Flint, Mich.

To Copeland's demand for a rematch, Lope Sarreal, Elorde's father-in-law and manager, retorted "Tell him to go to hell."

The 27-year-old Filipino was outboxed in the early rounds, but piled up points against Copeland in the 8th, 9th and 10th rounds. In the 9th, he blasted Copeland with a left that knocked him down, but the challenger jumped to his feet before the count. It was the only knockdown.

Copeland, who used a crouching, weaving style, was unmarked at the end of the fight.

"You can look at both Elorde and myself and see who got the worst beating," the defeated challenger said.

"If they are brave enough, they would let me have a rematch with Elorde here in Manila or anywhere in the world."

Johnson Decisions German Challenger

BERLIN (AP)—Harold Johnson retained his world light heavyweight championship Saturday night by outpointing West Germany's Gustav Scholz in a 15-rounder in Berlin's Olympic Stadium.

Johnson dominated the German almost throughout the fight. There were no knockdowns. The official scorecard was not disclosed as is customary in European rings. An official AP count gave Johnson eight rounds, Scholz three and made four even.

The bout was staged in the open air arena before 35,000 people. Johnson weighed in at 172½ pounds, to 171 for Scholz.

Johnson exuded confidence throughout the fight, easily taking the sharp lefts from Scholz.

The crowd agreed with the decision of the referee and two judges, although the local fans had strongly cheered for the German.

Max Schmeling, who was the world heavyweight champion 32 years ago, said:

"Scholz should have shown more if he wanted to win."

Cards Have Trump on Kentucky Ace

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Irv Goode, all-America center from Kentucky who signed two football contracts, said Saturday he is "working for the Cardinals this summer."

Goode signed pro contracts with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League and the Dallas Texans of the American Football League. Neither club has announced what action will be taken to resolve the issue.

Osuna Gives Troy Clean Net Sweep

STANFORD (AP) — Steady-stroking Rafael Osuna, a product of Mexico City, led the University of Southern California to a clean sweep in the National Collegiate Tennis Championships Saturday.

He rallied to capture the singles title by beating Northwestern's Marty Riessen, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

After a few minutes rest, Osuna and teammate Ramsey Earnhart came back to successfully defend the doubles crown they won in 1961.

In taking the team title, USC scored the most points ever—22. That was four points more than UCLA scored as a previous high with its victory and sweep in 1960.

UCLA finished here with 12 with Arizona third at 10 followed by Miami, 9.

Golf Title to Zarley

DURHAM, N. C. (UPI) — Houston medalist Kermit Zarley won the individual NCAA golf championship Saturday with an upset 5-4, 36-hole victory over his team's captain and two-time all-American, Homero Blancas.

CROMWELL, HARTER IN NET FINALS

Jerry Cromwell and Kathy Harter won semi-final matches in the California Junior Tennis Championships Saturday to advance into today's title matches at the L.A. Tennis Club.

Cromwell defeated John Tidball, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2, and will face arch-rival Dave Ranney for the championship. Ranney of Garden Grove stopped John Pierce, 6-2, 6-0, 7-5, in the semi-finals.

Miss Harter plays Kathy Blake today after defeating Jean Inez, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4.

Pitching 'Tricks' Old as Baseball

The recent incident arising over charges by Baltimore manager Billy Hitchcock that Detroit pitcher Jim Bunning was cutting the ball with his belt buckle stirred up memories among old-time baseball men of the days when every pitcher had a trick or two to make the ball do strange things.

One of the favorite tricks, of course, was just what Bunning was accused of doing—cutting the ball with the belt buckle. Pitchers also sharpened their thumb nails to a razor edge with which to nick the ball.

Chief sources of dispute over pitches today concerns the spitball and the "brushback" pitch.

But in the earlier days of baseball, almost every game produced an argument over trick deliveries by the pitchers.

In those days, of course, the spitball was legal so there was no argument about that, but every hurler had some way of making the ball do things that could not possibly be done within the rules.

JIM BUNNING
Rekindled Memories

It was common to use emery and sandpaper as well as other abrasives. All that had to be done was to roughen a spot on the ball no larger than a dime and it would do some rather peculiar things.

Today, balls are changed so often that a pitcher can't get away with anything over a prolonged stretch. Whenever a ball breaks funny, the batter immediately asks the umpire to look at it. And if the surface is at all "bruised" or discolored, a new ball is put in play.

IN THE OLD DAYS, PITCHERS also used talcum powder to make the ball sail. And they used tobacco juice and mud to load the seams of the balls, which naturally would come at batters in a most abnormal way.

Pitchers also learned how to raise the stitches of the ball, which was not as compact and solid as it has become under improved methods of manufacturing and with better quality materials.

However even today some pitchers with extra strong hands can loosen the cover with a few twists and make it behave strangely.

The old-time pitchers tried everything. They even went so far as when they were at home, they would load half the balls to be used in a game with phonograph needles sunk in deep so they wouldn't be discovered. Then they made sure these balls were used only when the home club pitcher was on the mound. You can imagine what the ball did with the needles in it.

THE SPITTER, OF COURSE, has been the scapegoat of all illegal pitches. As "cheating" pitches became more common, the more the spitball was blamed. Swindle deliveries were almost impossible to detect, but the spitball was out the open and thus became the prime target when baseball moved to outlaw all pitches in which foreign substances were used.

In 1920, the major leagues ruled that no new pitcher could use the spitter. All pitchers then registered as spitball pitchers—some 19 as I recall—were permitted to continue using it as long as they remained in baseball.

Last man to legally throw it in the majors was Burleigh Grimes. He retired in 1934. However, last pitcher to throw the spitter under the rule was Frank Shellenback of the old Hollywood Stars and then the Padres when the club was moved to San Diego. He pitched until the late 1930's.

THERE IS STILL A BIG HASSLE over spitballs, Lew Burdette, Pedro Ramos and a half-dozen others are accused of throwing them. Some baseball men say that every club has at least two or three pitchers who can throw the spitter. There is a strong move to make the pitch legal again.

In many cases today when spitters are thrown, it is said that the infielders will "load" the ball rather than the pitchers themselves.

Russ Ford, who pitched for the Yankees from 1910 through 1913, was the one who discovered the secret of what was to be known as the emery ball.

He revealed when he retired from the game that when he was with Atlanta of the Southern Association, he was working out beneath the grandstand on a rainy day. He uncorked a wild pitch that hit a wooden support. On the next pitch, Ford threw a tremendous curve that aroused his curiosity as well as that of the catcher.

He inspected the ball and noticed a scuffed section where the ball had hit the wood. Later he used emery to rough up the surface of the ball.

While with the Yanks, he would attach some emery paper to a piece of elastic up his sleeve. He would pull down the emery, doctor the ball and when he released it, the elastic snapped back up his sleeve where it couldn't be seen.

Harmon Killebrew, out for extra hitting after the game. Killebrew stole his first base of the season in the sixth inning, but his batting average is only .229 points higher.

"Harmon is being paid to trot around the bases, not steal his way around," said Mele. "I'm surprised we're where we are the way he's hitting."

If someone doesn't watch out, the Twins, like Killebrew, may steal away with the American League pennant. Ken McBride (7-3) and Ted Bowsfield (2-3) will try and prevent it this afternoon.

ANGEL ANGLES: Following today's twin bill, the Angels are off to Boston where they open a three-game series Tuesday night . . . Bo Belinsky will hurl the opener with Don Lee and Grba set for the afternoon games on Wednesday and Thursday . . . The Twins are averaging 13,600 per game. Bobby Rodgers was given a rare rest Saturday . . . "Coming off a doubleheader and with another one tomorrow," said Rigney, "this seemed the perfect spot for a day off. He should be able to catch both games tomorrow."

"With a day off here and there," said Rigney, "Felix can be a big help to us the rest of the year. He's swinging a quick bat now." . . . Torres' age is listed at 27, but his teammates think 37 would be more correct. . . . Torres isn't saying. He doesn't speak English.

Billy Moran robbed Bernie Allen of a base hit in the fourth with a diving stab of his line drive . . . Angel publicity director Irv Kaze arrives today to relieve rookie statistics keeper Russ Meehan of his duties . . . The Twins have another Pascual on the way . . . Camilo's brother, Carlos, has a .354 batting average for Ft. The Angels' Albie Pearson and Twins' Lennie Green are running a hot race for the American League lead in runs scored. . . . Pearson has 54, Green 53.

Brightman Career Success Studded

baseball players, the O'Briens came to Seattle from South Amboy, N.J.

"It was Eddie I first met," recalls Brightman. "I was playing first base and he was the base runner during a National Semipro Tournament at Wichita. I asked him if he wanted to come to Seattle. But before I could get an answer, he stole second base.

"Johnny was so prolific at basketball that he once out-scored Goose Tatum of the Harlem Globetrotters, 43 to 16. When Tatum came to the sidelines in that game, Trotter owner Abe Saperstein asked him why couldn't he handle that little guy. The Goose replied, "Abe that's no little guy, that's a giant!' "

Baylor was playing in near oblivion at tiny College of Idaho at Caldwell when Brightman heard of his prowess from a friendly railroad porter who was a Seattle fan. One private plane ride to Caldwell by Brightman and Baylor was hijacked to Seattle.

Incidentally, Baylor's fellow forward at the College of Idaho was R. C. Owens.

Brightman returned to Long Beach in 1956, enrolled at Long Beach State and earned a BA degree in English. Even with a torturous schedule, he found time to coach the Lockyers AAU team of Long Beach to their greatest seasons.

AFTER GRADUATION, he taught at Bolsa Grande High in Garden Grove and coached there for two years. His first season, the record of the team was 3-21; the second, an amazing 19-4 with a Freeway League title and a CIF semifinal berth.

"I was more proud of that team than any other."

Did you do any long-range recruiting there?

"No," he laughs, "but we just lucked into having Jeff Congdon come out from Wisconsin, and he became all-CIF."

Last year, Brightman took over at San Francisco in mid-season, and moved the Saints from seventh to fourth place in over-all ABL standings. The team won 16 of their first 19 games under his direction.

Al's only athletic interest this year—before Saturday—is in coaching the new Long Beach Connie Mack junior baseball team.

And wouldn't you know it.

The team is undefeated.

Donkey Softball at Its Best (?) at Park Tonight

There was a time when one of Long Beach's favorite attractions was Donkey Softball. Tonight, nearly two decades later, the Long Beach Nitehawks bring back the sport to Park Ave. Field against Coast Grain beginning at 8:15 p.m.

Nitehawk manager Joe Rodgers says it's been 17 years since the last public Donkey Softball battle in the city and that it will be the only one this season.

For those not in the know, the game always proves a riot because for some reason or other the donkeys and the players don't always get along too well.

In this game the players don't run, they ride. Or at least they try to ride. And that's the rub.

Along with the comic struggle for survival, there also will be a special pregame show for kids.

Archer Handed Initial Defeat

NEW YORK (AP)—Jose Gonzalez, a whirling dervish puncher from Puerto Rico, handed Jimmy Archer his first loss in 31 bouts by winning a split, 10-round decision over the New York middleweight Saturday night in Madison Square Garden.

Both judges, Leo Birnbaum and Frank Forbes, had Gonzalez the winner, six rounds to four. Referee Jimmy Devlin had Archer winning, 6-4.

Tackle Busters Start 28th Year

The Tackle Busters, a fishing group in which more than 400 Long Beach boys and girls participate each summer, is starting its 28th year, and the interest seems higher than ever.

One of the first Tackle Busters, Mickey Gastwirth, now an employe of the Long Beach Recreation Department, will be the instructor for this summer's courses, which will take place at eight city parks.

Any boy or girl is eligible for the classes or for the six fishing field trips that are being planned. There is no charge for instruction and only a nominal fee for the trips, one of which will be to Marineland of the Pacific. Three are planned to the Belmont Pier fishing barge Paradise and two to Pierpoint Landing.

The summer program will culminate in the all-city fishing rodeo Aug. 23 on Belmont Pier, where annually at least 1,000 youngsters gather to try the new skills they have acquired.

At that event the Southehrn California Tuna Club joins the Recreation Department as host and The Independent, Press-Telegram provides two beautiful trophies for the outstanding boy and girl angler.

The Recreation Department's supervisor of special activities, Dan Dyer, says that two family nights—Northwest on Aug. 20 and Southeast on Aug. 21—are being planned this year.

HERE IS THE SCHEDULE for the classes starting this week:

Tuesdays, 10 a. m. to noon at Bixby Park; 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. at Wardlow Park.

Thursdays, 10 a. m. to noon at El Dorado Park; 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. at Whaley Park.

Fridays, 10 a. m. to noon at Pan American Park; 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. at Veterans' Park.

The Marineland trip is scheduled for Monday, July 9. The fishing trips are booked for July 16, 23 and 30 and Aug. 6 and 13. Nobody is required to take the special trips.

Members learn how to make tackle boxes, wrap rods, tie leaders, what the rules of fishing etiquette mean and the purpose of conservation programs.

While parents are not required for the classes, Dan Dyer stresses the importance of having parents volunteer their assistance for field trips.

A boy or girl in the 9-to-15 age bracket may apply for membership in the Tackle Busters at any of the parks. There is no fee.

A WEEK AGO I promised to discuss the question, "What is your opinion of the reliability of the Coast Guard in answering a call of distress?" Such a pertinent inquiry reaches into the top drawer of the USCG and certainly the commander of the 11th Coast Guard District has a right to make a policy statement.

That statement is being prepared and will be printed within a few days. Then, and then, will I speak out and reveal some of the screwball actions that have been committed—NOT by the Coast Guard, but by persons who own boats. Such persons have just about as much a right to operate boats as I do to fly an airplane. And I can assure that I'd never get one off the ground.

Meanwhile, let's prepare for National Safe Boating Week (July 1-7). Certainly no part of the nation needs a concentrated, massive boating safety movement any more than does Southern California.

We have had some accidents that were absolutely inexcusable off Newport Beach and Long Beach, but the mere fact that we say such mishaps were inexcusable doesn't bring back all those lives that were lost.

CHANCES ARE THAT THIS COLUMN will be read by some excellent boaters, who will nod their heads and say, "that's old hat." Perhaps so, but that's no reason for sitting on your hands and refusing to take part in the forthcoming Safe Boating Week.

These are the organizations that comprise National Safe Boating Week:

American Boat and Yacht Council, American National Red Cross, American Power Boat Association, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, National Safe Boating Association, National Safety Council, Outboard Boating Club of America, U. S. Coast Guard, U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, U. S. Power Squadrons and Yacht Safety Bureau.

That's a rather imposing list of organizations, but none of those can help the situation unless it acts, rather than talks. There is need to distribute posters, safety kits, banners for boats and stickers for automobile bumpers.

We can go farther than that. If every boat operator who has gone through the Coast Guard Auxiliary or Power Squadron safety classes would encourage several who have not, the program would be making great progress.

Please don't call this "old hat." Those who know should help those who don't know. If the fatality and accident records were reduced even one-third, the effort would be worth it, don't you think?

Black Sheep Wins Cinema Handicap

Sir Ribot lapped on each other as they followed the top pair across the finish line.

Winner of the San Vicente Handicap at Santa Anita and an overnight sprint here earlier in the meeting, Black Sheep had posted two third-place finishes in previous stakes competition, taking the show award in both the Debonair and Argonaut stakes. But it was top money of $33,800 which he knocked down Saturday, "earning himself out" for his owner who bought him for $50,000 last December from Rex Ellsworth.

Black Sheep, fourth choice in the 11-horse field, which was reduced when Double Dollar and Pirate Cove were declared during the afternoon, paid $19.40, $8.80 and $5.20 across the board. Indian Blood paid $20.80 and $11.20 and Doc Jocoy returned $4.20 to show.

Bramalea Hands Loss to Cicada

Compiled by Wire Services

Derby Dan Farm's Bramalea pulled a major upset Saturday when she beat the heavily-favored Cicada by half a length in the $120,125 Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park.

The surprising win thwarted the triple crown bid of Cicada, queen of the 3-year-old fillies, who had reigned supreme for more than a year.

Bramalea returned a whopping $49.30 win mutuel and $7.20 and $3.90 to place and show. Bobby Ussery rode her. Cicada, with Willie Shoemaker up, paid $2.40 and $2.20 and Firm Policy $2.60 to show.

CRIMSON SATAN defeated Noble Jay in the $42,500 Leonard Richards Stakes at Delaware Park. Greek Money, after leading much of the way, faded out of the money.

Crimson Satan ran the 1¼-mile race in 1:50⅘ and paid $3.60 and $2.60. There was no show betting. Noble Jay paid $3.

Shari Lewis Is Big With Kids

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—A friend of mine who knows Richard Burton, Judy Garland, Marilyn Monroe, Elizabeth Taylor and Peter Lawford personally has three children who couldn't be more bored when he mentions those Big Names.

SHARI

"But when they found out I REALLY knew Shari Lewis, they couldn't believe it," he says.

"Their respect for their father increased immeasurably."

* * * *

I WENT calling on the considerably pregnant Miss Lewis, the wife of Jeremy Tarcher, who's now in the publishing business.

"If you'd like a drink, you'll have to mix it because I've never mixed one," said Shari.

"You've never mixed a drink!" I said—having finally met THAT person.

"I have a husband for that," she explained.

Lately Shari has been occupied with carrying on the fiction, on TV Saturday mornings, that she's a little girl who doesn't do things like having babies.

* * * *

"THEY PUT me in a barrel of pellon and hung it from my shoulders and we did a clown dance one week," Shari said, bustling around the new apartment.

"They also put me in a long voluminous Little Red Riding Hood cape that covered me up pretty well another week.

"The fifth month I started sitting down behind a small table.

"The sixth month I sat down behind a larger table, the seventh month behind a fence . . . pretty soon you'll just see peepholes and my eyes."

Films to Be Shown of First Lady's Trip

WASHINGTON (AP)—Newsmen will have an opportunity next week to see a 43-minute color movie of Mrs. John F. Kennedy's trip to India and Pakistan. It will be shown Thursday at the National Press Club.

The film is in two parts, one of 25 minutes dealing with the visit to India, and another of 18 minutes filmed in Pakistan. Both parts will be shown.

FROM NEAPOLITAN SLUMS TO HOLLYWOOD

Sophia Loren Biography Shines in Collection of Jewels That Marked Her Climb to Success

Editor's Note:—The life story of Sophia Loren has been told many times before. But her real biography is not written in words. It shines softly, and safely, in a collection of jewels the famous actress enlarges at each step in the long climb up from poverty.

ROME (AP)—From Neapolitan slums to Hollywood Oscar, Sophia Loren's life has been the kind that dreams are made of.

And thousands of Italian girls undoubtedly dream that they can copy her success story.

Once she was a skinny youngster whose world was the squalid Naples suburb of Pozzuoli. She lived there with her mother's family in a four-room tenement flat where nine people slept in one bedroom.

* * * *

TODAY HER world knows no limits, and the brown-haired actress is on top of it, winner of the Academy Award for best actress of 1961.

Her victory — making her the first star to win the top Hollywood prize for a role in a non-English language movie — was page one news in every Italian newspaper.

From Sicily to the Alps, young girls snapped up magazines telling once again the success story of Sophia Loren and romantically hinting that others could do it, too.

* * * *

SOPHIA WAS interviewed on the Italian state television network, and inevitably the question came up: what is your advice to those beautiful girls who want a movie career?

"If you are not physically, intellectually and spiritually prepared," she replied, "don't try it. There are too many difficulties, too much bitterness.

"But if you feel you can do it, then do it—because it is also very beautiful."

Sophia should know. Life is beautiful now.

* * * *

SHE LIVES in a luxurious apartment near the ancient Roman Forum. She and her husband, producer Carlo Ponti, have a chalet in Switzerland.

There's a mink wrap in her wardrobe, and a leopard coat for her mother.

It wasn't always that way.

Back in 1934, when Sophia was born, her mother—Romilda Villani—returned to her family in Pozzuoli after failing in an attempt at her own movie career in Rome.

* * * *

SOPHIA grew up among the crowded pink and white buildings of Pozzuoli, watching the seagulls and ships in the bay of Naples.

World War II made a hard life harder.

There were days when Sophia and her younger sister, Maria, had little or nothing to eat sometimes only a slice of bread and a few drops of water.

Sophia became so thin her friends called her "Stecchetto" — "Little Stick."

But things changed for the 27-year-old actress half a lifetime ago.

* * * *

IN 1948, when the was 14, her skinny, bony figure started to disapper. The ripe, rounded body of a lusty young Neapolitan woman took its place. (Current measurements 38-24-38).

Her mother took her off to Rome, confident that Sophia would succeed where she had failed.

In 1950, Sophia landed her first movie job, as an extra in "Quo Vadis." Her mother—still a striking auburn haired beauty who rivals her daughter for looks—also was signed as an extra.

Bit parts in a dozen more films followed for Sophia.

In between she posed for "Fumetti" magazines—Italian periodicals that used photographs to tell stories in comic strip fashion.

AFTER winning her Oscar Sophia remembered those early days.

"If an actress is good," she said, "she will be good in the theater, in films, on television—or even in the comic strips."

Vittorio De Sica, the Italian film director who won world recognition with "The Bicycle Thief," thought she was good. He gave her a role in his "L' Oro Di Napoli" (Gold of Naples).

From then on, she was a star.

BEAUTIFUL AND BITTER

Sophia Loren expresses two moods: sultry glamour and (at right) unbeautified bitterness, in a scene in "Two Women," which topped her career with a Hollywood Academy Award this year. She rose from poverty to stardom.

Doris Day Faithful to Contracts

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Doris Day is a girl who has yet to cost a moviemaker an extra dollar or an extra day of delay.

She has never deviated from a contract, never allowed her personal feelings to enter into contractural obligations. A very principled girl, she would rather do an unpopular story than violate a promise or break a contract.

All of which adds up to the fact that she is the movies' number one feminine boxoffice draw, outdistancing Marilyn Monroe and Elizabeth Taylor.

She doesn't drink, smoke or get involved in front-page romantic headlines.

'NEW WAVE' NOT ART

Follies Singer Raps French Film Nudity

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—France's arty new wave of movie-making is more striptease than art, says one French actress who now manages to keep her clothes on amidst nude showgirls in a Las Vegas show.

Jenny Astruc, star of the Folies Bergere at the Nevada resort's Hotel Tropicana, came to town the other day to crown the winner of the Cinderella Stakes at Hollywood Park Race Track.

It was her first visit to the movie capital. She would like to make it permanent, and she has the beauty to realize that dream.

"I LOVE American movies because they stick to the story," she says. "In France they send you a script and there are always a half-dozen pages without dialogue, just instructions on how to undress. Sometimes it has a point in the story, most of the time it doesn't. It's just a striptease."

Jenny, a blonde in France and now a stunning redhead, also discloses another innovation in French film-making — nude doubles.

"I have been in many movies where the script required that I undress. No one who is a true actress will do that unless there is a logical reason for it.

"THIS DOES not stop the producers. They just call in a double, usually a stripteaser, and she does the undressing. Some of the biggest stars in France have been surprised to see undressed scenes in their movies, scenes that were doubled for them."

Jenny—a perfect 36-22-36—is no prude but, after training in the Opera Comique and Comedie Francaise, she can't see undressing except for good reason.

"It's very distracting," she says.

The young beauty, who has also done pictures in Italy, said she rebelled by coming to the United States with the Folies Bergere. A singer, she never appeared in the Parisian version of the show.

New Model Corvair Spyder Complements Picturesque Mexico Scene

CORVAIR SPYDER ROMANCES ENSENADA VILLA

Sporty new Spyder became a scene-stopper whenever it parked for any length of time. The 150-horsepower convertible is in limited production. This one commanded attention from Paramount to Ensenada.

By BILL EMERY
Auto Editor

One of the more elated sensations that can happen to a man one or more times in a lifetime is that feeling he experiences driving his first new car. Although this Corvair Spyder used in our motorlog to Ensenada B. C. Mexico was loaned to us by Oscar Gregory Chevrolet at 14925 Paramount Blvd., Paramount, the elation of possessing a "first" of its kind was comparable to the own-your-own sensation.

The flashing red Spyder convertible pictured above is indeed a rarity on the road and will be the remainder of the year as they are in limited production. It is similar to the Corvair Monza in appearance with half again as much horsepower.

Turbo Charged is Chevrolet's Engineers' latest version of Supercharged.

Since the Turbo Charger is only in use when the engine load is heavy, the Spyder gives maximum power with minimum fuel consumption. We found this instant power climbing the sharp inclines on the scenic drive overlooking Ensenada, and at high speeds when we wanted to pass cars and return to our lane much faster.

After having made arrangements with our host G. Boisson, assistant manager of the Villa Marina in Ensenada to expect us late Friday evening, we wondered if we could make it there in time for dinner.

However, the roads were excellent all the way, and even with a brief stop. The trip was shortly more than four hours. Marco Mancillas, owner and manager of the adjoining restaurant and piano bar was still serving an impressive crowd when we entered the restaurant.

Our first evening meal was a delightful indulgence in Mexican dishes while being serenaded by four wandering musicians who seemed to enjoy themselves no end. A picture on this page shows a Santa Monica couple being interupted from their serenade by our flash camera.

In the adjoining bar is another three-piece group playing behind a piano bar with a small dance floor for the patrons. By now, we were enjoying another Mexican product, tequila, mixed as a margurita. Most American bars limit the use of tequila to a couple of mixed drinks. At the Villa Marina they make daiquires, sours and many others with tequila.

If there is one thing most outstanding in Mexico it is their music. They captivate the tourist with song, dance and instrument. The blind pianist in the piano bar combo could play any tune requested and his style was free and easy . . . a ringer for Carmen Cavallero or George Shearing.

The Twist dance was in demonstration around the night club circuit by both Senors and Senoritas as proficient as you'll see the dance anywhere.

We found the Villa Marina most reasonable in rates in both the motel and the restaurant and bar. The managers, Miguel Ezroj of the motel and Marco Mancillas of the bar and restaurant, go out of their way to make their facilities comfortable and enjoyable for American guests.

The picture of our motorlog Spyder entering the Villa Marina nowhere near shows the size of this 90-unit vacation spot. Also available for the guests to enjoy is a beautiful swimming pool secluded in attractive surroundings with the Marine Room, a card and recreation room, off the pool.

Horseback riding is a few feet away on the sandy beach, and the famous fishing excursions are just a few feet more. There is plenty to see and do South of the border, but if you're just out sightseeing, you'll enjoy the twenty-three mile drive to Punta Banda, the most southernly point of Ensenada bay. The road is paved and there is another beach there for your enjoyment.

Leaving Ensenada about noon Sunday, we took a leisurely drive home stopping at Rosarita Beach and San Diego. The week end had been overcast making our outdoor pictures difficult to take.

The Spyder created a sensation wherever we stopped. Even on the road carloads of passengers would look us over from front to back.

Back to Oscar Gregory's Monday morning, a gas check revealed this 150 horse power Spyder had averaged 20.1 mpg. For a high speed high performance car, we thought this was remarkable economy. My wife and I agreed; it's both a man's car and a gal's car in handling and comfort.

Although the name Oscar Gregory Chevrolet is a new sign in the city of Paramount, some people are not aware that this dealership is a long standing firm. Formerly Glenn Jones Chevrolet, Oscar Gregory became partner with Glenn Jones Oct. 1, 1961. With the death of Jones Dec. 12, 1961, Oscar operated the dealership for the estate until May 31 of this year at which time he purchased the stock and became sole owner. The personnel and policies have remained the same, only the name has changed.

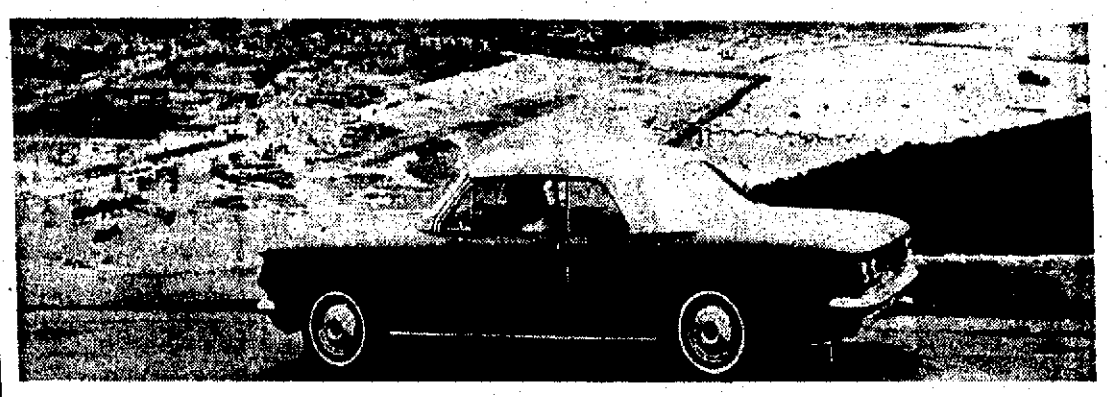

The grand opening celebration continues the rest of this month at Oscar Gregory Chevrolet. That's a good time to get acquainted!

It's All Greek Now Even to Sky Roamers

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every other day or so the Air Force launches another letter of the Greek alphabet into space.

It used to be that the Air Force orbited such things as Midas, Samos, and Discoverer.

But for months, now, these once proud names have been taboo, unfit for official utterance. You can call an Air Force satellite anything from Alpha to Omega, but don't say Midas, Samos, or Discoverer.

The fact that M, S, and D may hang on to their Greek letter designations, though they have lost their names, may make it possible for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration some day to resume publication of its long-suspended "International satellite and space probe summary."

Midas, Samos, and Discoverer have these things in common: They are military satellites, in contrast to NASA's strictly civilian spacecraft; they are put in orbit from the Pacific Missile Range on the California coast, and their launchings, once freely reported, are now secret.

* * * *

MIDAS is a missile warning satellite, Samos is a spy-in-the-sky, and Discoverer — well, Discoverer, according to gossip, has been caught carrying flight test components for both Midas and Samos. It has been tainted, so to speak, by the components it keeps.

Midas IV, Samos III (which failed to orbit), and Discoverer 38 were the last spacecraft of their species to be mentioned by name at launch. Midas IV went up Oct. 16, 1961. The Samos III attempt was made Sept. 9, 1961. Discoverer was launched Feb. 27, 1962.

Since these dates Air Force satellites have taken refuge in the relative anonymity of such designations as Eta, Lambda, or maybe Pho.

The first no-name launch was last Nov. 22. Whatever it was failed to go into orbit.

* * * *

JUST WHY the military decided to stop talking about Midas, Samos, and Discoverer has not been explicitly stated. All NASA launchings, according to frequent declarations by NASA officials, are dedicated solely to the peaceful conquest of space for the benefit of all mankind.

But Midas, Samos, and Discoverer satellites were launched by the military, a fact which evoked howls from behind the Iron Curtain about America's "warlike" space intentions. The Russians publicly reported they tracked Samos, Midas, and Discoverer spacecraft, along with a host of NASA satellites, during much of 1961.

It has always been general practice since the start of the space age to record orbited objects by Greek letter and number as well as by name. The first three launches of 1957, for example, were listed as Alpha 1, Alpha 2, and Beta 1. They were the rocket of Sputnik I, Sputnik I itself, and Sputnik II.

* * * *

TAU 1 AND Tau 2, put in orbit on May 24, 1962, were otherwise known as Aurora 7, Scott Carpenter's Mercury spacecraft, and Atlas rocket.

The Air Force still permits Midas, Samos, and Discoverer launchings to go into the record by letter. But in addition to banning use of their names, it has stopped publicizing such things as recoveries of Discoverer capsules from orbit and which Air Force satellites still in orbit are continuing to send radio transmissions.

There had been 12 Discoverer capsul retrievals before the secrecy order went into effect.

As a result of the Air Force secrecy policy, NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center skipped a few issues of its biweekly "Satellite Situation Report." This report lists all objects in orbit and those which have "decayed," i.e. come down.

* * * *

BUT THE space agency has yet to resume formal publication, suspended with the March 13 issue, of its international box score which summarizes U.S. and U.S.S.R. launchings by category.

Rusk Given Belief France Would Fight

By HARRY SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk last week stood before the Communist anti-refugee wall that separates East and West Berlin and declared:

"It is an affront to human dignity. It will be broken eventually. That is the story of freedom. It must be set aright."

President Kennedy's ace foreign policy planner had flown to West Berlin from Paris in a dramatic new demonstration of American support for the Red-encircled city.

* * * *

IN PARIS he had won new assurances that France would fight alongside the United States if Russia attacks the Western alliance. But he made no headway in trying to dissuade President Charles de Gaulle from building an independent nuclear striking force or in winning his cooperation in future nuclear defense strategy.

This is one of several sore issues dividing Kennedy and de Gaulle. Kennedy fears de Gaulle's stubborn go-it-alone nuclear policy could lead to war by miscalculation. De Gaulle took his course after France was denied U.S. atomic secrets open to Britain.

American sources said that only a meeting of the two presidents could bridge their differences, which also include french opposition to talks with Russia on Berlin. But French officials reacted coldly.

To West Berliners clamoring for renewed pledge of U.S. moral and military

DEAN RUSK
"It Will Be Broken"

support, Rusk quoted Kennedy as saying the defense of Berlin "is essential to the morale and security of West Germany, to the unity of Western Europe, and the faith of the entire free world."

The United States, Rusk said, is determined to fulfill that responsibility.

The secretary toured key spots along the Red wall, where only hours before Communist police had fired on escaping East Germans, then went to Bonn where he and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer agreed that American-Soviet probing talks on Berlin should continue.

In Bucharest, meantime, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev proclaimed that Russia sees no reason to war over Berlin. But he said he would go ahead with a separate peace treaty with East Germany if the Berlin occupation impasse continues.

He set no deadlines but charged the U.S. with sabotoging the Berlin negotiations. He also charged this nation was responsible for Russia's arms buildup. "They force us to produce bombs," he said. "The United States wants to change the balance of power."

In the next breath he blamed Kennedy for higher Russian meat prices, saying that money earmarked for meat production had to be diverted to armaments "to prevent U.S. bombs from falling on our heads."

* * * *

ON THE OTHER side of the globe, U.S. officials were watching "with concern" a large-scale Chinese Communist military buildup on the mainland opposite the nationalist-held Quemoy and Matsu islands. Did this foreshadow an offensive? Or a defense against recurring Chiang Kai-shek threats to invade the mainland from Formosa?

President Kennedy kept in close touch with intelligence channels. During his election campaign he described the islands as of no strategic value in the defense of Formosa, Chiang's nationalist bastion 100 miles seaward. Chiang alerted his forces for eventualities.

Misfortune continued to dog U.S. attempts to explode a rocket-borne high altitude nuclear device over Johnston Island in the Pacific. For the second time —much to Moscow's propaganda joy — American weaponeers had to destroy a rocket and its "big blast" warhead. A malfunction was blamed.

From Cape Canaveral the United States orbited a new "weather eye" satellite — Tiros 5—to warn of storms almost anywhere on earth, including Russia. It was the fifth member of a family of space moons already credited with saving many lives and millions of dollars in losses from tropical storms.

A laggard Congress was prodded by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., to get on with its business. "The voters," he said, "have a right to expect decisions now, one way or the other." He ordered overtime and Saturday Senate sessions.

* * * *

THE HOUSE, with rebellious Republicans in the saddle, dealt Kennedy his biggest legislative setback to date by killing his get-tough farm production control bill.

In the 215 to 205 vote, 167 GOP members were joined by 48 Democrats to scuttle what the Republicans branded as a bill to make Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman a farm production "czar." Only one Republican voted for it. The Senate already had passed a Kennedy-approve dversion.

The President was quoted as saying the vote showed the Republicans were "obstructionists" and "they shoulder that responsibility." He foresaw continuing crop surplus "chaos" and a

CHIANG KAI-SHEK
Recurring Threats

$1 billion rap for the tax-

Freeman revived charges that the GOP had agreed to payers,

oppose the measure without offering their own solution to the $7 billion surplus problem.

"In their secret meeting last year, as reported to financial backers of Billie Sol Estes," he said, "the Republicans vowed to oppose every constructive proposal on agriculture, regardless of the damage done to the nation. Now they have made good that pledge."

Republican leaders said they would attempt to work out a substitute but it was believed the administration would back a one-year extension of the present voluntary program for curbing surpluses. This would be acceptable to the GOP which proposed such action in moving to kill the Kennedy legislation.

Freeman said farm income was at stake. He said he didn't see how Congress and the taxpayers could go on indefinitely voting and paying for farm price supports without supply management, the key to Kennedy's program.

A total of 112 persons lost their lives when an Air France 707 jetliner crashed on Guadeloupe Island in the West Indies.

At Edwards AFB, Calif., 37-year-old Air Force Maj. Bob White rocketed his experimental X15 space plane to a new world's altitude record of nearly 50 miles at five times the speed of sound.

* * * *

RICHARD M. NIXON, GOP candidate for governor of California, was quoted as implying President Kennedy is "a puppet who echoes his speechmaker." Nixon, whom Kennedy defeated for the White House, said in a magazine interview that some of the people around the President have the attitude: "We don't care where the good lines come from as long as the guy at the top puts them out."

The nation's railroads began employment cutbacks to offset costs of wage increases recently awarded to non-operating personnel. They also broke off negotiations with five operating brotherhoods over the issue of "featherbedding" — jobs which they say could be abolished without hurting efficiency.

Sen. Francis Case, 65, R-S.D., veteran of 25 years in the House and Senate, died of a heart attack Friday.

ROCKY REFUTED

California Business Growth Is Fastest

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Gov. Brown Saturday wrote a new chapter in a story entitled: "New York vs. California, or My State is More Prosperous Than Yours."

Seven days ago, Brown noted press reports of a speech in which Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York said his state was leading California in industrial growth.

Not so, replied Brown in a weekend statement.

This weekend, the governor has a new statement which said that new businesses have announced more than $500 million in major new California plants and expansions in the first five months of the year.

* * * *

THE TABULATIONS included only projects costing more than $1 million.

"In the light of this analysis by the Economic Development Agency, it is highly unlikely that New York is ahead of California in new plants and plant expansions," the governor said.

Rulings Puzzling to Oil Industry

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two landmark decisions by the Supreme Court last week gave labor and management in the oil industry food for legal thought.

On the surface, management was dealt a hard blow while the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (AFL-CIO) seemed to have scored a smashing triumph for all organized labor. The AFL-CIO so hailed it.

A court divided 5 to 3 decided in one case:

That a union can strike in violation of a no-strike pledge even though its contract calls for compulsory arbitration of grievances. Management has no comparable redress under present law.

That the 1932 Norris-La-Guardia Act banning federal injunctions in labor disputes, except those hurting the national welfare, supersedes injunctive powers of the 1947 Taft-Hartley Labor-management Act. This means Taft-Hartley cannot be used as a legal wedge to by-pass Norris LaGuardia.

* * * *

IN THE SECOND case a unanimous court ruled:

That a union can be sued for damages in a strike violating a no-strike pledge but that all officers and members are immune from such suits. Left open, however, was whether damages could be sought when a union did not condone a rebel wildcat strike.

The loss or gain on both sides remains to be measured. There was no immediate reaction from OCAW President O. A. Knight, but the AFL-CIO saw both edicts as a tremendous victory for labor.

Management lawyers were taking new legal stock but some industry spokesmen speculated the union victory might possibly backfire.

* * * *

FOR EXAMPLE, they suggested that oil companies will now be wary of signing contracts which don't give them ironclad no-strike guarantees. Also, they speculated, management might be more ready to file damage suits when their contracts are broken.

Justice Hugo L. Black, writing the majority opinion in the injunction dispute, suggested there is a legal no-man's land in federal labor policy which only Congress can correct. But desirable as it may be, he added, the Norris-LaGuardia Act cannot be stretched to "accommodate" the Taft-Hartley Law.

"The question of what change, if any, should be made in existing law," the justice said, "is one of legislative policy properly within the exclusive domain of Congress—it is a question for the law-makers, not law-interpreters."

* * * *

JUSTICES William J. Brennan, William O. Douglas and John M. Harlan dissented sharply. Like industry spokesmen, they warned that "employers will pause long before committing themselves to obligations enforceable against them but not against their unions."

Furthermore, they declared, their colleagues had dealt a "crippling blow" to a national labor policy which favors arbitration as the road to industrial peace.

Black wrote equally sternly that Congress, in enacting Taft-Hartley, had made it crystal-clear that it was not tampering with Norris-LaGuardia or trying to "accommodate" it out of existence. He said Congress' primary concern in Norris-LaGuardia was to insure workers the right "to exercise actual liberty of contract" and to protect "concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid protection."

The court's decisions grew out of damage and injunction suits filed in 1959 by Sinclair Refining Co., charging the OCAW international and Local 7-210 and its officers and agents with violating no-strike and compulsory arbitration clauses in a 1957 contract covering its East Chicago, Ind., Refinery.

Lutherans to Merge This Week

DETROIT (AP) — American Church history will be made here this week.

Four bodies of the church, including the 2½-million-member United Lutheran Church of America, will merge to form the new Lutheran Church in America.

The merger, to be carried out at a constituting convention, will create a single church of an estimated 3.2 million members, or about one third of the nation's Lutherans.

* * * *

THE MERGING groups say this will make them the sixth largest Protestant church body in the United States.

Joining in the climax to six years of merger discussions will be the United Lutheran Church, American Evangelical Lutheran Church, Augustana Lutheran Church, and Finnish Evagelical Lutheran Church (Suomi Synod).

Merger will be effectuated over a period from Thursday through next Sunday in ceremonies at Cobo Hall following the closing conventions of the four groups. The conventions start Monday.

A thousand official delegates and several thousand visitors are expected.

* * * *

COBO HALL'S big arena is to be turned into a sanctuary for communion service. There will be a large altar at one end of the arena.

The Rev. Dr. Malvin H. Lundeen of Minneapolis, president of the Augustana Evangelical Lutheran Church and chairman of the Joint Commission on Lutheran Unity, will preside over the constituting convention.

Lutheranism in the United States has about 8½ million adherents, including the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod with 2½ million members and the Wisconsin Synod and several socalled splinter groups. These are not involved in the merger.

New Vote Sought on Beaten Park Bill

SANTA MONICA (AP)—The State Park Commission is asking the legislature to put the $150 million park bond issue, defeated in the June 5 primary, on the ballot in November.

Commission members said that they feel voters would approve the measure to preserve California's "scenic, historic and recreational areas."

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Threats of Recession, Strikes Cloud Outlook

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The question of the nation's economic outlook — will there be a recession in 1963? — flared this week.

Strikes and threats of strikes were jarring notes.

And the stock market continued to pursue its downward course.

Ewan Clague, U.S. Commissioner of Labor Statistics, set off a flurry of discussion when he told a conference on labor statistics that chartings of the nation's postwar economy indicate a recession next year.

"The only question," he said, "has been exactly when it is coming."

Clague added that it was too early to tell the effect of the stock market slump but said that if it continued "I'd be worried about a recession early in 1963 instead of later."

His boss, Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg, quickly disagreed, saying, "The economic facts do not bear out such an assumption" (a recession in 1963).

* * * *

SEEKING TO clarify his remarks, Clague said he was not predicting a recession next year.

"Rather," he said, "I was explaining that historic trends, which show a downturn in the economy every three to 3½ years, when projected, indicate an economic peak might be reached sometime in 1963 which might be followed by a business downturn.

"It does not follow, of course, that there will be a recession, and the basic economic situation at the present time shows no sign of such a downturn."

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges told a conference of business leaders in Atlanta that "Business will finish out 1962 still on the road to expansion and may do better than most economists now suspect." He conceded that "the business advance so far this year has admittedly been slower than expected."

THE GOVERNMENT stepped into two threatened strikes against major airlines.

President Kennedy appointed a fact-finding board for the dispute between the Transport Workers Union and American Airlines over wages and job security. The action put off a walkout for at least 60 days.

After marathon negotiations, Secretary of Labor Goldberg announced settlement of the flight engineers' strike threat against Trans World Airlines. It also was expected to lift a threat of a walkout against Pan American World Airways and Eastern Airlines. The settlement provided for an orderly reduction of jet plane crews from four to three.

The settlement was considered a victory for President Kennedy, who had called the threatened strike a menace to the national economy.

* * * *

THE FEDERAL Mediation Service entered the strike of the United Auto Workers Union against Ford Motor Co.'s stamping plant near Cleveland over production standards.

The walkout forced the company to close assembly plants, idling 70,000 workers. This resulted in this week's estimated auto industry production of passenger cars faling to 107,000 cars from 148,047 last week.

Without any pushes from adverse business developments, the stock market kept going down hill. Market experts were at a loss to predict when the decline would stop but some spoke of a summer rally. Averages by which the market is measured fell to new lows for the year.

Many brokers in Wall Street continued to place principal blame for the stock market reverses squarely at President Kennedy's door, accusing him of upsetting investor confidence in business prospects through his successful battle against a steel price increase.

* * * *

MUCH OF the Street reflected bitterness towards the chief executive through a proliferation of jokes — "The favorite drink down here is stocks on the rocks" — reminiscent of "that man in the White House" stories of the early New Deal and Franklin D. Roosevelt days.

The steel price battle reverberated elsewhere. A trade publication, Iron Age, said effects of the clash rule out serious thoughts of a selective price increase before September.

Steel production inched up last week after 10 straight weekly declines, totaling 1.58 milion tons, 0.4 per cent above the prior week. Some companies were reported considering longer-than-usual vacation closings for plants next month.

Case's Widow Voted $22,500

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Saturday to pay $22,500 to the widow of Sen. Francis Case, R-S.D., who died Friday after a heart attack.

The payment is provided for in a supplementary appropriation measure and equals a senator's salary for one year.

Also included in the bill are payments for like amounts to the widows of Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H., and Andrew Schoeppel, R-Kan., who died earlier this year.

The Senate traditionally makes such payments to senator's widows.

First Huntington Harbour Homes Rising

HERE'S ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF HUNTINGTON HARBOUR
America's newest smart residential marina, a $200,000,000 waterfront community south of Long Beach, will provide island paradise homesites for an estimated 10,000 residents. This artist's conception illustrates the variety of houses being offered and the miles of waterways which surround them.

PROGRESS REPORT
This aerial photograph of the new private island community of Huntington Harbour shows custom model homes which are near completion. The bridge (center) will provide access for the 76 families who soon will inhabit the first of nine islands in the master plan.

Construction of 15 custom model homes at Huntington Harbour, the new $200,000,000 residential marina in Sunset Beach, is nearing completion according to Lewis W. Douglas, Jr., president of the Huntington Harbour Corp.

The 860-acre project is located between Long Beach and Huntington Beach adjacent to U. S. Highway 101 in the Sunset Beach area, and on the site of the former Rancho Lomita Gun Club. It first took shape under a group of investors headed by Samuel W. Banowit, Beverly Hills financier, and was subsequently acquired by the Huntington Harbour Corp. with Banowit continuing as a member of the Board of Directors.

* * * *

THE MASTER LAND use plan was drawn by William L. Pereira and Associates. It includes 18 miles of waterfront property for residential construction, and some 246 acres of bulkheaded waterways especially laid out for ideal sailing and boating. There will be two schools on the site.

The first of nine islands in this waterfront community to be offered to the public will contain 76 homesites, virtually all on the water, varying in size from 5,000 to 8,500 square feet.

Douglas stated that four different architectural firms were retained to design homes especially for this water-oriented, private island atmosphere.

The custom model homes are being decorated by W & J Sloane's of Beverly Hills under the direction of Virginia Douglas and Philip Burke Glynn and they will be landscaped by Joseph Copp, Jr.

A new permanent sales office has been constructed adjacent to the bridge offering access to the island and visitors to the site will have the unique opportunity to look over the homesites and custom homes by boat. Don L. Byrnes, president of the Huntington Harbour sales organization, states that people are coming through "by the hundreds."

Huntington Harbour is the first bayfront community to be offered in the West since Lido Island was opened in Newport Beach over 30 years ago.

Look Before You Buy, Urges Realty Leader

Independent-Press-Telegram
Long Beach 12, Calif., Sunday, June 24, 1962
R-I
REAL ESTATE-BUSINESS

Purchasers of real estate should view the property offered before signing agreements to buy, especially if it is undeveloped land in areas unfamiliar to them, declares James A. Edmonds Jr., president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors.

"We are concerned about the number of offers to sell relatively undeveloped lands by mail, newspapers, radio, or television to attract persons who rely upon the representations made without actually viewing the property and determining whether it is suitable to their personal use or that it has investment value," he said.

"Property represented as having investment value may prove to be primarily speculative in nature and of little value to the purchaser for immediate or near future use.

"Therefore," he continued, "it is advisable to personally inspect, before purchase, any property offered for sale, or employ independent real estate counsel to analyze investment or use values before entering into purchase or lease agreements."

* * * *

EDMONDS pointed out that many people continue to seek real estate investments as a hedge against inflation, but in all cases Realtors urge that funds be committed only after careful analysis by trusted experts. The threat of inflation or the anticipation of a quick profit should not cause people to buy real estate sight unseen, he advised, because the price placed upon property by the owner or developer may have no relationship whatever to its real value.

He said that officials in all states in which newly developed lands are being offered for sale or lease nationally should take steps immediately to adopt laws, if not already on the statute books, requiring owners of subdivided lands, or their agents, to disclose all of the pertinent facts about such property to each and every prospective purchaser and to obtain a receipt for such notice.

Such protective measures will not interfere with the sale of homes, or of lots, by mail-order promoters who attempt to make sales without reputable development organizations, but will afford some giving an opportunity for personal inspection in advance, needed protection to the public against fantastic claims by Edmonds added.

Southland Economy Upswing Continues

Economic activity in Southern California continued its record-breaking pace by advancing to an all-time high in May, L. H. Showalter, vice president and manager of Security First National Bank's Long Beach office, reported.

This marked the 12th time in 14 months that the bank's business index has set a new record, the bank official said.

The bank's index reading for May was 246.7 (preliminary), up 10.9 per cent over the year-ago period, and 1.8 per cent above April.

Showalter pointed out that the upswing was strongly supported by another record level in manufacturing employment and a firm increase in each of the three bank debit series which measure check clearings.

Manufacturing employment in May reached 809,300 (preliminary), toppling April's record of 807,400.

* * * *

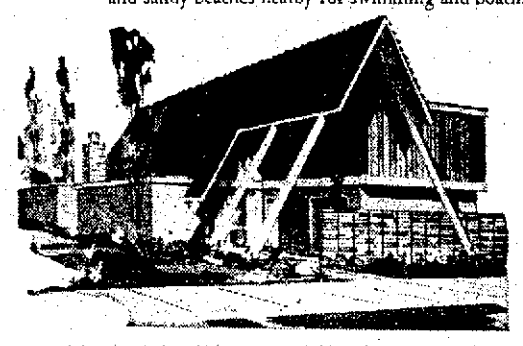

Also adding impetus to the climb was the fact that 11 of the index's 14 seasonally adjusted components were above May, 1961. Four were at record levels.

Employment in the Southland increased by 38,000 during the month. Compared with a year ago, there were approximately 67,000 fewer people out of work in the Southland.

Pear Tree Bears at Age of 132

JERSEYVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Pelt by covered wagon. The oldest fruit-tree in Jersey County, a 132-year-old pear tree, is bearing fruit again this year.

The famous tree was brought here in 1830 from New Jersey by Dr. Ralph Van Meter. The tree has attracted wide attention. Several years ago the Department of Agriculture and several state departments of agriculture cut scions from it for propagation.

Must Find Better Housing for Urban Renewal Area Families

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has told cities seeking federal slum-clearance subsidies they must do a better job of finding new housing for displaced slum families.

With the prospect that one million families will be displaced through Urban Renewal activities during the next decade, said Urban Renewal Commissioner William L. Slayton, relocation has become even more important.

Failure to find decent or appropriate housing for slum families is one of the major criticisms leveled at the urban renewal program. Another is that it uproots people from familiar surroundings against their will, and shunts them to strange neghborhoods where they are unhappy.

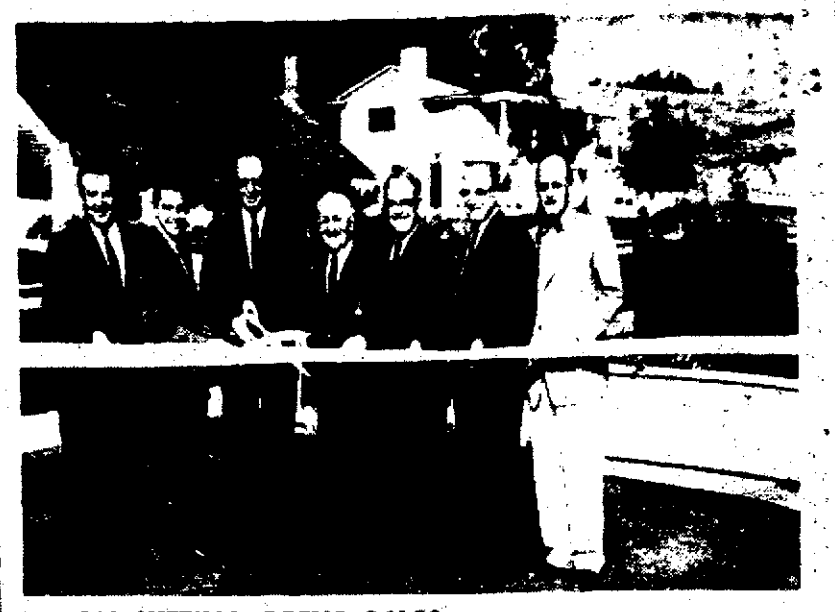

SLAYTON'S ANSWER in part to the first criticism is the new rules tightening relocation practices which communities getting federal subsidy must pursue. He ordered local authorities to:

—Submit more specific evidence that construction of proposed relocation housing actually will take place. In the case of proposed low-rent projects, authorities will have to show they have secured approval of the U. S. Public Housing Administration "and contracted for the new housing units."

—Spell out in detail how they will advise families to be displaced of assistance they can get in new quarters.

—NOTIFY LOCAL code enforcement officials if a family has moved itself to a substandard dwelling and refuses offers of better housing. The officials presumably would try to get the substandard dwelling improved.

Slayton also encouraged cities to make complete surveys of site residents to be moved rather than spot checks. By interviewing every family, the city can do a better job of relocation. Cost of the surveys will be eligible for the two-thirds federal subsidy which applies to land purchase, demolition and other renewal expenses net of income from sale, lease, etc.

John Chapman, sales director for Peacock Hill, said that an unprecedented number of viewers visited the model homes over the past weekend. He said that the public's response was particularly gratifying since Peacock Hill is being planned to appeal to the luxury market and is being developed to present "an entirely new way of living, unique to exclusive Peacock Hill."

Development Firm Changing Its Name

BROTHERS ARE BUILDERS

Ben C. Deane (right) announced that his building firm was changing its name to Deane Brothers, since his brother, Jim Deane (left), has a full partnership.

One of California's leading real estate development firms is undergoing a name change according to Ben C. Deane, president of the 17-year-old B. C. Deane Co. Henceforth the firm will be known as Deane Brothers.

Reason for the change is the evolution over the years from a business directed by one man, to a management team organization with administrative responsibilities shared by Jim Deane, executive vice president and brother of Ben.

Although founded by Ben Deane, the company in recent years has become a full partnership of the two brothers and has continued to show remarkable growth. The organization has built more than 3,000 homes as well as industrial buildings and urban renewal apartments.

BEN DEANE is past president of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties and is a member of the Presidents Volunteer Home Mortgage Program as well as serving on the economic council of the NAHB.

Western Gear, Lynwood Gets Big Navy Contract

A contract in excess of $1,000,000 has been received by Western Gear Corp.'s Precision Products Division of Lynwood for propulsion components for three unique new U.S. Navy ships.

Termed LPDs, the new ships will be an innovation in attack cargo-transports. Their revolutionary design provides for large landing boats to be launched, fully loaded with troops, directly from an interior covered well in the ship.

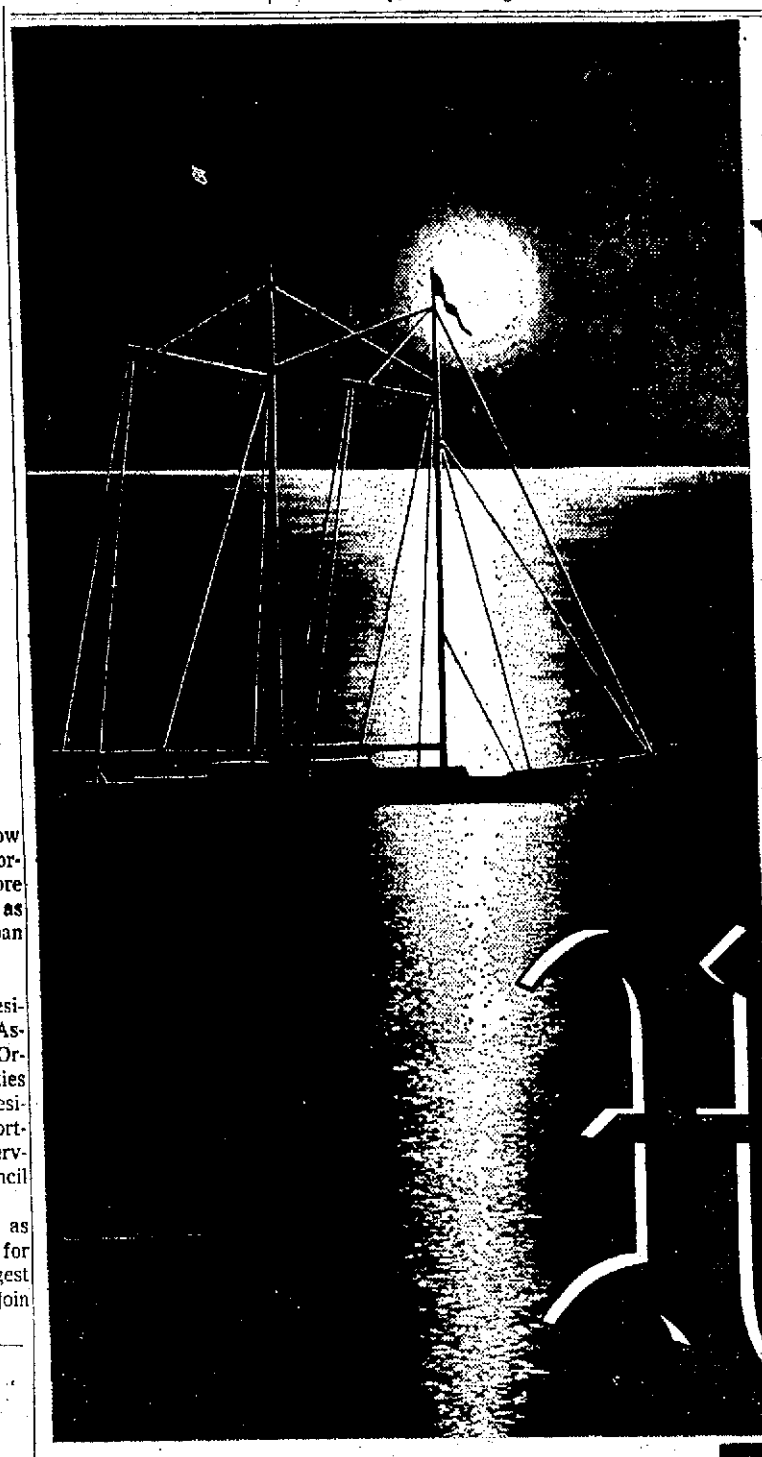

The day of troops climbing over the side and down landing nets into bobbing boats, replete with hazards, will be over when the new LPDs go into service. Instead, the fully loaded landing boats are floated out of the stern of the ship as easily as a pleasure yacht puts out into the bay from its slip.

As a further development of modern attack procedures, approximately half of the ship's topside deck is devoted to a heliport from which fully loaded 'copters can participate in landing operations.

St. Hubert Wood Again Sells Sites

The Walter H. Leimert Co., Southern California developers for more than half a century, announces a new extension of St. Hubert Wood is being readied and offered for sale.

Located in North Tustin and carved from a virgin avocado grove, St. Hubert Wood is one of the Southland's most exclusive residential communities. The many years' experience of the Walter H. Leimert Co. assures proper restrictions, practical architectural control and essential seclusion. Here is truly a protected investment in choice homesites or exquisite homes, says a spokesman.

Plans for homes in St. Hubert Wood are subject to the approval of the review board with a minimum floor area of 1,800 sq. ft. required. Estate size lots are from 10,000 sq. ft. and are priced from $10,500 to $17,500.

Bonus Room Homes Are Offered Again

The big Westmont "Bonus Room" homes are available once again in the Huntington Beach area with a preview showing slated for this weekend of the over 1,600 square foot, three and four bedroom homes.

With earlier "Bonus Room" homes sold out nearly three months ahead of schedule, the new unit will offer the Westmont homes in all plans and exteriors plus one new floor plan, the developers, George M. Holstein and Sons, revealed.

* * * *

PRICED FROM $17,900, FHA, veteran and conventional terms will be offered at the site that will be adjacent to a new park site, new school location and new shopping center.

The developers pointed out that recent Westmont homes had been sold out many months ahead of scheduled completion and urged buyers to act quickly for favorite plan, exterior and lot size. All of the new community' lots will be, however, at least 7,200 sq. ft. in size, the Westmont builders assured.

The new "Bonus Room" makes an ideal rumpus room, play area, teen-age hide-away, or can be converted into as many as three full size bedrooms.

* * * *

ALONG WITH the Bonus Room, the Westmont homes feature luxuries such as fireplaces, paneling, built in gas kitchens, tile baths and kitchens, big glassed in showers, wallpaper, rich floor coverings, and a choice of two different cabinet finishes.

From Long Beach go out Seventh St. to Hwy. 39 and turn South about three miles to Westmont. The models are just on the left of Highway 39 about five minutes from Huntington Beach State Park on the beach.

IN WESTMONT HOME

Fireplaces, paneling, spacious living areas are all part of the big Westmont "Bonus Room" homes once again available in Huntington Beach. FHA, VA and conventional terms are offered at the site on Highway 39 about three miles south of Westminster Boulevard.

1,000 Westmont Homes Started in New City of Fountain Valley

A five-year dream, the new city of Fountain Valley, took its first step into reality when ground was broken on the first subdivision in the city's history, the 1,000-home Westmont community of George M. Holstein and Sons.

With Mayor James Kanno and other of the fledgling city's officials on hand, the first construction was started with a blast of TNT in the new city where 20,000 new homes have been planned in the next three to five years.

The first Westmont development will include 7,200 square foot lots, parkway streets, lights, sewers, and other improvements and will be adjacent to one of the city's planned eight parks, and 26 school sites.

The Holstein development will actually launch the new city on its way to a community of 100,000 population that will be strategically located adjacent to the new San Diego Freeway, as well as Hwy. 39, Brookhurst, and other main county arteries. The Holstein community, to be called Westmont, will be located on Warner Ave., one of Orange County's main east and west streets.

* * * *

A DEVELOPER in Southern California over 40 years, the Holstein organization is one of the leading land owners in the new city. At the ground breaking, Holstein pointed out the strategic location of the new city, its ideal weather, and careful planning, along with proxity to the sea, as all important in making the new community the "city of the future."

The Westmont community will not only offer the larger 7,200-square-foot lot, but will offer buyers the big Westmont "Bonus Room" home that gives purchasers up to 1,660 square feet of living area. Prices will start at $17,995 for the Westmont homes and go to $20,350.

Realty Investments Continuing Strong

"The strong, continuing trend of investment in real estate indicates that investors are turning away from the stock market after the Wall Street 'soft spot'."

So declared Frank R. Hart, executive vice president of Walker & Lee, Inc., the nation's leading real estate organization.

In support of his statement, Hart announced that Walker & Lee had sold a total of 94 homes the first week of June for a total dollar volume of $1,883,280.

"Buying was heavy in resale houses with 48 sales while new home sales totalled 46," Hart said.

Total dollar valuation of the resale homes was set at $898,680 and new home volume was $984,600.

The four resale offices in North Orange County (Lincoln-Magnolia; Fullerton, Euclid - Katella and Garden Grove) accounted for 14 sales amounting to $248,450. The Tustin office sold six homes for a total of $100,950.

The Newport Beach and Costa Mesa offices sold 11 houses for $233,980 and the six offices in Lakewood-Long Beach areas assounted for 17 sales with a dollar volume of $315,300.

The 46 new house sales were reported from 24 subdivisions for which Walker & Lee act as sales agents.

PRICED FROM $13,950

This is the Sea Sprite, one of the models offered in Seahaven, which is offered from $13,950. It has two bedrooms, living room, separate dining area, all-electric kitchen and many quality features.

Payments On Seahaven Homes Lower Than Comparable Rent

Response to Seahaven Homes has been so enthusiastic, that private showings of the models are being initiated for the benefit of Orange County personnel directors interested in the welfare of their employes, according to Jim Deane, speaking for Deane Brothers, builders of the 540-home development in Huntington Beach.

Sales of 108 Seahaven Homes, representing $1,650,000, was made during the first 10-day period after our preview showing," Deane reported, "and even though the first and second units have been sold out, personnel directors are invited to visit the models privately and discuss the investment and financing of the homes.

• • • •

"SEAHAVEN OFFERS a wonderful opportunity to get out of rentals," Deane continued, "and build equity in a home that can only go up in value as the years go by. This is the first time homes of this quality have been offered for less than it would cost to rent a comparable home or apartment inland. Veterans can move in for just $89 and total monthly payments of $89, which includes everything, taxes, insurance, principal and interest. Non-veterans may purchase through FHA with minimum down payment and $95 total monthly payments, including everything."

Seahaven offers two, three and four-bedroom models, each with a choice of three exterior designs and are priced from $13,950. Outstanding feature of the homes, and unusual in the Seahaven price range, is the Westinghouse All-Electric Kitchens, which are standard equipment in all models.

Seahaven Homes are located just off Beach Blvd., (Hwy. 39) on Adams Ave., two miles north of Pacific Coast Hwy. (101).

Army Rite Honors Col. Young, L.B. Broker

Col. Gordon C. Young, Adjutant General's Corps, U.S. Army Reserve, was honored at retirement ceremonies held by the 47th Artillery Brigade at Fort MacArthur recently. Following the retreat formation on the parade ground and the reading of retirement orders, brigade and garrison troops, including a company of WAC's and an Air Force detachment, marched in review with Brig. Gen. C. deW. Lang and retiring personnel taking the salutes of the troops.

On Army Day this year, Colonel Young completed 30 years service, of which nearly 10 years was spent in the active forces. In the Pacific in World War II, he served as a staff officer in division and army headquarters, and in Gen. MacArthur's theater headquarters. Promoted to Lt. Colonel during the Luzon campaign, Col. Young was also a depot and service force commander in Australia, the Philippines and Japan before returning to Washington, D. C. for an assignment in the Pentagon. He holds 13 awards and decorations and commanded three units in the war which received special citations.

In 1958 Young was promoted to full colonel while at Fort Leavenworth where he completed the Army's Command and General Staff College course.

OCEAN CITY, N.J. (AP)—Boosters claim even the Indians used Ocean City as a summer resort.

Hundreds of years ago, according to the claim, the families of the Lenni Lenapi Indians came to Ocean City, then known as Peck's Beach, to escape the heat and to bathe and fish.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO

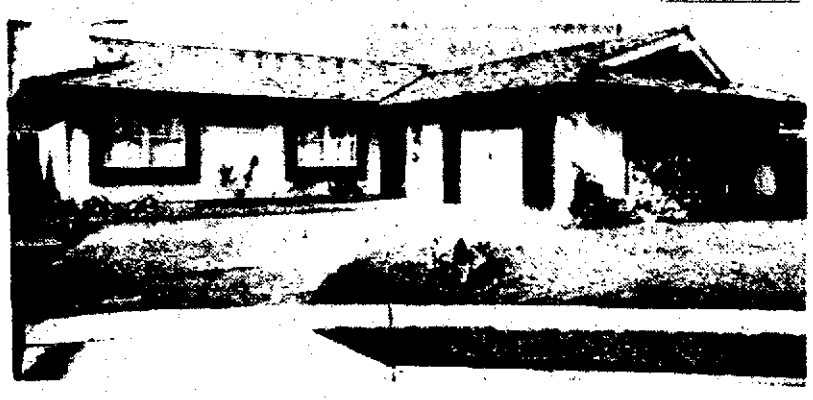

IF YOU OWNED A 50 ACRE AVOCADO GROVE?

Live on it? Sell it? Or subdivide it? This was our problem. We have held for many years a lovely avocado grove in Tustin. The trees are magnificent, the environment superb. It was adjacent to St. Hubert Wood which has met with such wide acclaim in Orange County.

We decided to subdivide and preserve as many trees as possible, permitting the new lot owners to benefit by the park-like atmosphere. Streets are now complete, improvements in and the lots are ready for sale. There are not many, but each is a gem. Priced from $10,500. You're invited to be one of the first to choose.

A BOLSA PARK HOME

Here is a four-bedroom model of a Bolsa Park home which has drawn much comment. A new five-bedroom model is now available for larger families.

New Five-Bedroom Model Home in Bolsa Park Proves Popular

"The new Bolsa Park five-bedroom plan is proving an outstanding success with growing families visiting the development," said sales director Ernie Merrill. "Pricing is fully $3,000 below any other five-bedroom plan in the area. The plan is a single-story design with no stairs to climb."

The new Bolsa Park five-bedroom plan has direct bathroom access from the rear of the house, permitting owners to move directly from pool area to shower. The master bedroom suite occupies a separate, private wing of the house, with large wardrobe and walk-in closet included.

* * * *

BESIDES the five-bedroom plan, Bolsa Park offers four-bedroom homes priced from $19,800, and three-bedroom models from $19,250. Pricing for the five-bedroom plan, which includes a spacious family room and kitchen dining area, is from $22,990. The pricing includes dishwasher, shake roof and Palos Verdes stone fireplace.

Ceilings and walls in Bolsa Park homes are of lath and plaster. Special decorator tiles highlight the ceramic tile central bath, which has shower over tub, and the separate ceramic tile shower in master bath. The homes also include a ceramic tile kitchen with breakfast bar.

* * * *

FROM LONG BEACH, the homes may be visited via Seventh Street east to Bolsa Chica, turning right two miles to models.

Bolsa Park homes may be purchased with VA no-down-payment terms, 35-year FHA financing with 5% interest and 6% conventional financing.

Stardust Offering New Luxury Model

Now open for inspection at Stardust Homes in Huntington Beach is a new three-bedroom model featuring a luxurious "step-down" living room, said Robert H. Grant, builder. The "step-down" room is available with sliding glass patio doors, custom wood paneling, and a decorative raised-hearth fireplace.

Also on view at Stardust Homes is the Stardust "X-Ray House," a model home incorporating 53 separate displays to show details of construction. Special cutaways permit viewers to look through the ceiling, walls, and floor of the home. In addition, cutaway models reveal internal workings of such products as the water heater, forced-air furnace, and garbage disposal.

* * * *

PRICED FROM $16,600, the Stardust homes are offered with VA $1-down terms or 35-year, 5¼ per cent FHA financing.

Stardust buyers may choose a popular four-bedroom model with "Jack and Jill" expandable bedrooms.

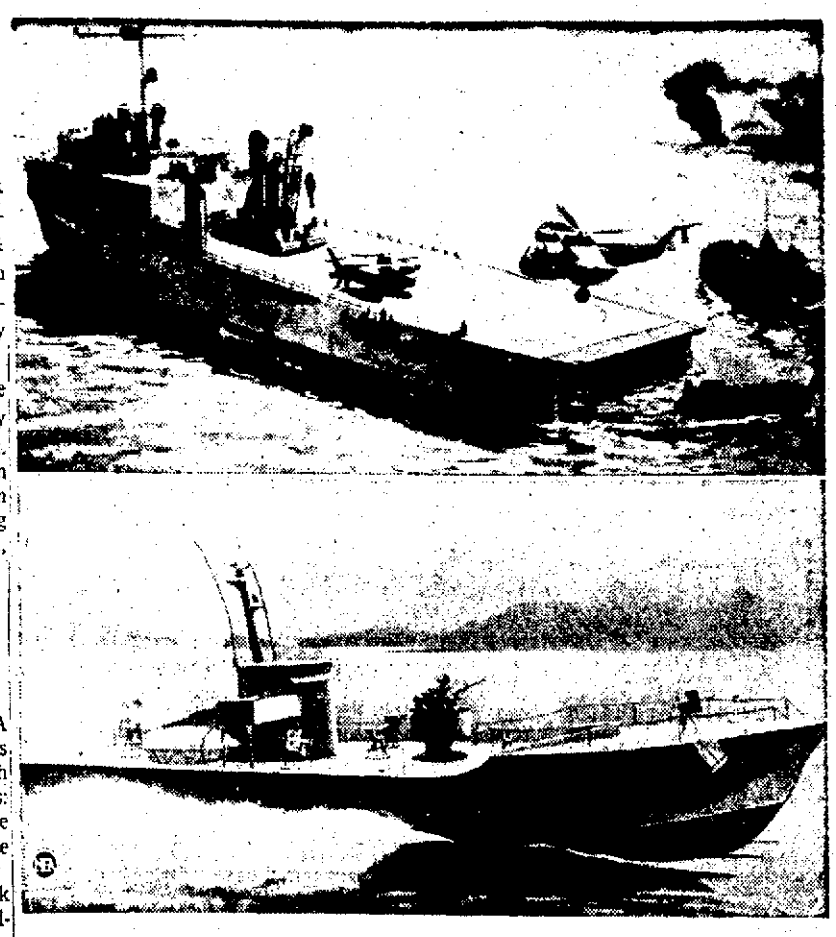

Stardust three- and four-bedroom homes include oak floorig throughout; large family room; built-in Gaffers & Sattler colored gas range with 20-inch oven; forced-air heating, fireplace and utility rooms.

From Long Beach, the homes may be reached by driving east on Seventh St. (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.), turning right on Bolsa Chica and continuing south 2 miles to Bolsa Ave., then left to models.

Advice Offered Job Hunters

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A business consultant has this advice for job-seeking high school and college graduates: Know something about the company to which you are applying for employment.

SMALL WARS, SMALL BOATS

Navy planning includes small, versatile craft, such as these in artist's sketches. Mother ship (top) launches helicopters and small landing boats. Seventy-knot gunboat would be capable of patrolling coastal waters.

Navy Planning Fleet of Small Fast Gunboats for Blockades

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—New boats and new tactics for small-scale wars of the future are being developed by Navy architects and strategists. Under development now:

Small, high-powered motor gunboats that could be used to blockade small inlets which penetrate the shores of countries like Cuba, the Congo or Communist China. These shallow-draft boats are designed to be deadly against small smuggling craft and junks.

Navy experts figure that these motor gunboats could put a crimp in the seaward infiltration of North Vietnamese Communist troops and supplies into South Viet Nam.

* * * *

A SERIES of even smaller craft to enforce a blockade along the rivers and canals of the guerrilla-infested delta country of South Viet Nam. These include small collapsible rubber boats for the marsh country, shallow double-bottomed craft for transport, fast infiltration attack boats and small convoy patrol craft.

The Navy hopes that some of these will hit speeds of 70 knots, enabling them to hustle quiskly to trouble points.

The theory behind this development is that guerrilla strength will ebb if they can be denied access to waterways for moving troops and rice. If loyalists can control water routes they will have mobile bases from which to raid enemy pockets.

* * * *

BEEFED-UP units of Navy frogmen who would go ashore two to three days in advance of an amphibious landing and scout the enemy, block key roads and create diversions.

These frogmen would be carried in by submarine or in a new type of high-speed landing craft.

These frogmen, Navy men think, would insure that future U. S. or allied assault troops would not get caught in the kind of trap that awaited infantrymen at the Bay of Pigs in Cuba.

Old aircraft carriers converted into super communications ships that would work closely with large-scale amphibious task forces. This many-channel communications setup will enable a series of operations to be coordinated closely by a Pacific Ocean or Atlantic Ocean commander and by Washington as well.

* * * *

A SERIES of amphibious assault ships. Each will be able to stand well out at sea and land a reinforced battalion of 2,000 Marines on target by helicopter.

A new type of mother ship which would support amphibious landings with a brood of 20 minesweeping launches and two helicopter mine sweepers.

New Navy transports are being designed to carry troops and their equipment in the same ship, where possible. The sinking of one ship, as in the Cuban invasion, would not leave a landing force "naked."

Most of these craft will take several years to develop and produce in the quantities needed. But Department of Defense planners say they expect the war in South Viet Nam will still be going.

Lakewood Manor Is Appealing

Unprecedented sales at Lakewood Manor have forced sales agents to begin taking reservations in the second unit of the 380 home walled community now being built in Lakewood.

Located between Candlewood and South St. in the City of Lakewood, Lakewood Manor homes have three and four bedrooms and two baths. The homes were designed by L. C. Major and Associates, the nation's largest designer of homes.

More than 70 homes have been sold in the first unit in the three weeks since the model homes have been open, reports Ray K. Cherry, president of Hadley-Cherry, Inc., builders of the planned community.

Lakewood Manor homes are selling from $18,750 to $19,250 through sales agents, Walker & Lee.

Over 300 in Leisure World Units

Ninety-seven apartments, with over 300 people, are now occupied at Rossmoor Leisure World, huge senior citizen development in Seal Beach, William G. Brangham, general sales manager, reported.

Move-ins are proceeding at an average of 18 apartments a day, he said. And, 2,108 apartments in the first three units have been sold in five months of selling, he noted.

Leisure World, reportedly the nation's largest senior citizen project, is the first to include medical care, drugs, and all diagnostic tests in the monthly payment. Four doctors and three nurses are already on duty full-time at the project's temporary medical center. Over 1,000 physical examinations have already been completed among first buyers.

* * * *

THE FIRST clubhouse is now open for residents. Ground was broken on the second clubhouse this past week. Work will start on the third clubhouse within 10 days. The $500,000 medical center—to house the community's 10 doctors and 26 nurses—and the $45,000 amphitheater, seating 2,500 people, were started May 18 and will be completed Oct. 15.

When completed in 1963, Leisure World will have 6,750 cooperative apartments, three clubhouses, a golf course, swimming pool, lawn bowling courts, 12½-acre shopping center, facilities for services for seven churches, and its own intracity transportation system. Unit Three prices, Brangham reported, are $10,750-$11,350 for one-bedroom with 604 square feet of living area.

TWO-BEDROOM styles with 759 square feet of living area are priced $12,000-$13,000. Payments range from $100.50 to $118. Minimum down payment is $963.

Included in the purchase price is an all-electric, built-in kitchen with oven, range, refrigerator and garbage disposal.

Minimum age for residents is 52, Brangham noted, with no physical examination necessary for acceptance.

Twelve model apartments are open daily from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the project, located at the corner of Los Alamitos and Garden Grove Blvd. in Seal Beach.

To get to Leisure World from Long Beach, drive out Seventh St., past Pacific Coast Hwy. (101) to the property, about two miles east of the Veterans Hospital.

"H.M.S. PINAFORE" on pennies. Lea Ora Mead and Harvey Waggoner sang in first Singers' Workshop shoestring production 14 years ago in Elks Hall. Today's Civic Light Opera has upped budget 60 times for its top-flight musicals.

CIVIC LIGHT OPERA: BUSTIN' OUT ALL OVER!

By MARY ELLIS

Long Beach goes in heavy for civic light opera. Everybody from Oklahoma to Finian's Rainbow knows that.

And no wonder—what with a group of Guys and Dolls like Long Beach Civic Light Opera.

You need sit stage-side only one night of current "Show Boat" rehearsals to understand why this hometown show biz group not only survives, but thrives!

. . . and this at a time when other amateur operatic, theatrical and light opera aggregations throughout the country are foundering in the face of financial odds.

But not so LBCLOA, which for many seasons now has been hitting high "C"—both in culture AND cash.

• • • •

"BOTH ARE important," said Civic Light Opera's first-and-only manager, Harvey Waggoner.

He was speaking over the strains of "Can't Help Lovin' That Man," being rehearsed on stage by hometown songbird Bette Feuer Arntzen, who portrays Julie in the group's upcoming musical, "Show Boat," at Concert Hall, July 5-8 and 12-15.

"We haven't always had it so good . . . and we didn't grow like Topsy," said Waggoner. "Things were so slim at times . . . we practically had to eat the shoestrings."

• • • •

THE LEADING-man-turned-manager peeled off his coat and settled down for some flashbacks.

In the early days, he reflected, the group was known as Singers' Workshop and "among our tribulations were people who called about lessons on you-know-what sewing machine."

It was started in 1948 by originator Henri Scanlon, a Long Beach-born lyric tenor then just back from a nationwide tour with Savoy Light Opera. He decided his home town should have a medium through which nonprofessional actors and singers could express their talents.

The first production, Gilbert and Sullivan's "HMS Pinafore," was staged at a cost of only $35 in the Elks Club auditorium—"rent-free, of course," Waggoner said.

Despite the low budget and lack of experienced cast, the show was an unqualified success.

"It even made a little money—enough to help finance a second venture," he said.

SO STARTED a long line of successful improved-with-every-season extravaganzas, now produced at the rate of four a year and at a cost of more than $20,000 per.

And they're so professionally done, these days, that a leading Los Angeles music critic a couple seasons ago hailed the group's production of "Kiss Me Kate" as a "better show than we get from many touring companies that wander this way from Manhattan."

That same year, the I, P-T editorialized that the group had "come to be regarded as perhaps the strongest entertainment force in the community."

Civic Light Opera...

* * * *

CIVIC LIGHT OPERA'S full-time paid general manager is a talented baritone in his own right and was leading man for most of the group's early-day productions.

"I met my wife (Jackie McFadden) during one of the first plays," said Waggoner, "courted her behind footlights through several more . . . even postponed our marriage for two years until the association got on its feet."

So dedicated was he to the cause, in fact, that during his first year as manager he worked sans salary.

"In those days, everybody did everything—acted, built sets, whipped up costumes, painted signs and sold tickets.

"Members contributed time, their back yards, props and extra lumber. Their goal was to make productions look uptown."

With the result that, today, they really do!

* * * *

PATRICIA ZIEG, who plays the feminine lead of Magnolia in "Show Boat," is one of the group's 14 charter members, as is Arthur Carah, who portrays Capt. Andy.

James Boyd, president of Civic Light Opera, who rehearsal night was rushing from this chore to that, paused long enough for a hurried interview.

He accredited the group's success to increasing theatrical know-how, combined with careful management of the financial aspects of production.

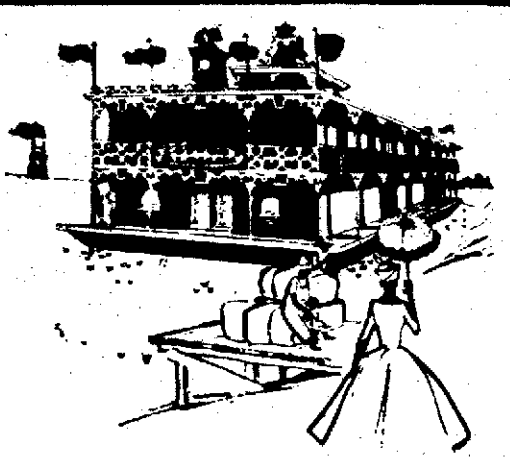

"Each dollar purchases top quality settings and costumes, as well as the best directorial talent," he pointed out.

But he emphasized another, even more important, factor: the broad and deep involvement of the community itself in light opera productions.

"For everything we buy, somebody donates three times that," he said. "Furthermore, most productions play to SRO audiences."

* * * *

OTHER BOARD members of the 300-member organization are Edward Grieve, first vice president; Frederick A. Kepke, second vice president; Virginia

Breneman, secretary; and Ray Griffiths, treasurer.

Boyd estimated that at least 250,000 man hours of work—most of it volunteer—goes into each production.

In 1958 the City of Long Beach itself appropriated $1,500 for the light opera. The next year, another $1,500. The next: $2,500.

In return, talented amateurs in the association sing at important civic functions, participate in such affairs as the Salvation Army's Christmas concert, affairs as the Salvation Army's Christmas concert.

As another step in the association's expansion explosion, Boyd noted that this fall a Long Beach Civic Light Opera Guild will be originated—with Mrs. George Taubman as organizing chairman.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, on stage, the 120-member "Show Boat" cast was going into grand finale under the able supervision of director-choreographer Bill Roberts and music director Jack Kroesen.

Young and dynamic Roberts, a walking-talking-acting prototype of the successful director, gathered the amateur thespians together for these parting words about "Show Boat":

"It looks like we have a show. Remember, this is a show that's old and classic . . . most show-goers have seen it many times . . . and for those who are coming to see it because they love "Show Boat" . . . we want them to feel this is the first time they've seen it anywhere.

"Everything is set. Now all we have to do is polish it . . . make it clean and tight.

"Remember, doing a play is like painting a picture. First you sketch it in, then add color. All we have to do now is add the color."

And you can bet your season ticket they'll do just that!

Scouting Pays in Campsites

Scouting around for a nearby campsite?

Long Beach Girl Scouts have and have come up with some pretty nice ones—just down the block.

Their summer day camps will be held in Long Beach city parks and at Signal Hill beginning July 9 and continuing through Aug. 17.

An additional day camp for older girls, this Monday through Friday, will be climaxed by an overnight session at El Potrero, a Girl Scout campsite in Cleveland National Forest.

Each camp session, of which there are six, will last for five days. The program is administered by Long Beach Area Council of Girl Scouts.

Overseeing the day's activities will be local Girl Scout staff trained adult volunteers. Senior Girl Scouts will act as program aides.

* * * *

DAY CAMPS are established on principles of Girl Scouting. Each camp is divided into small units which are governed by girls with the guidance of the adult counselors.

The programs are planned and executed by the girls themselves. In keeping with Girl Scout camping objectives, the camps provide an out-of-doors along with the give-and-take of community living.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson • I. P-T Women's Editor

A BUBBLING, elated Vicki Van Hook telephoned her parents last Sunday as fast as she could get to a telephone after arrival in Japan which wasn't very fast, at that, as you shall see

Beaming welcome

What amazed and delighted the internationally famous water skiier was the reception she had awaiting her in Tokyo. A beaming crowd of Nippon admirers were on hand to fete her at a huge reception and shower her with gifts. Not only that, she learned she was scheduled to make a movie with Japan's leading actor, Kayama.

Vicki, who is in Japan to instruct skiiers there as well as travel throughout the country giving exhibitions, informed her parents that if they wanted to know what time it was her time at any given moment here in Long Beach just add a day and subtract eight hours.

I bought that, hook, line and sinker. Then began to ponder . . . why not just ADD a plain 16 hours?

Well, that's Vicki for you. Do the most complicated things (with skis or hours) and make it look easy.

PREDICTION on the social weather scene: June showers will be followed by July weddings. Carol Cummings, John Barbee's dearly beloved, was honoree at a luncheon and kitchenware shower Wednesday at Long Beach Yacht Club. Producers of the party reign were Nancy Ott and Clare Hossom.

* * * *

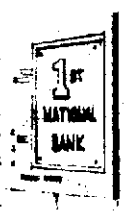

THESE ARE the whirling weeks for Nancy Viets, too . . . going by in a blur of parties preceding her marriage to Jerry Thompson July 7.

Vivian Yunker and daughter, Sue, entertained for Nancy at a mother-daughter luncheon and linen shower Wednesday. Bev Matlock and daughter, Margie, will fete the bride-to-be at a kitchen shower Tuesday while Tish Reid, Helen Taylor and Vera Jackson cohostess a luncheon for Nancy at Captain's Inn next Thursday.

Also on the entertainment agenda is an early July party to be hostessed by Lucille Garrison and daughter-in-law, Diane, (she and Mike will arrive from Baltimore, Md., July 2) plus a couples' gathering in Arcadia of the bride-elect's Stanford friends.

KIND OF get the impression that Gretchen (nee Markley) and husband, Dr. Bill Lee, have a corner on the First National Bank. Or maybe it's just because Bill hails from Texas. They left four years ago on their honeymoon and have been traveling ever since!

"An Impression"

After leaving here they went to the Philippines then to Hong Kong where they bought a yacht for comfortable, glamorous cruising. But, at long last, Gretchen is headed in the direction of home for a summer visit with friends here and her parents, Hazel and Weir Markley in Whittier. She left Bill and the yacht in Perth, Australia, is now in Honolulu to visit daughter, Pat Gollum, before coming on here.

OFF AND fishing for another long, sunny weekend went members of the Tuna Club. This time they chose La Grulla Gun Club, 78 miles below the border; were gone five days.

Surf fishing and sun tanning were Nan and Roger Williams, Phylis and Dave Alcorn, the Macrates . . . Laddie and Art, Dorothy and Bill . . . Katie and Carter Boswell, Mary and Julian Knutson, Ruth and Harrison Moore, Polly and Mel Marsh and Margaret and Bob Sully, to name a few of the sizeable crowd.

SOON-TO-be-mates Lois Baker and "Nev" Hallinan were partymate honorees at a couples' dinner party last weekend, hosted by Gayle and Phil Clock. Continuing the week's good time dates, Lois' bridal attendants, Marlyn Wells, Paula Irwin and Judy Rowan were hostesses at an only for girls type shower at Marilyn's Tuesday.

Incidentally, Lois' maid of honor, Carolyn McCulloch (of Riverside) will wed "Nev's" best man, Dave Keen, in August—so for them this whole procedure of parties and ceremony is one grand dress rehearsal!

THIS IS what I call the casual approach. Talked with Elva Lawson Wednesday and discovered she planned to leave with the children almost immediately or maybe not until this week for Virgina Beach, Va. Also, she would either fly, drive or take the train, all decisions blithely still up in the air. Dick, back East on business, will join Elva and the Lawson Srs., for a summer stay at a vacation home they have taken.

Ray-Welch Nuptials Sealed

Susan Lynn Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rexford Lynn Welch, 5380 El Prado, became the bride of Alvin Wilton Ray Jr., Los Angeles and Fallbrook, in a mid-afternoon ceremony at All Saints Episcopal Church.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore an original gown of egg shell linen fashioned with bell shaped skirt inset with Irish lace panels. She carried a single white butterfly rose.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

How About the Charleston?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy. My father is teaching me how to dance. He is supposed to be a real good dancer (at least that's what my mother says.) Well, maybe he was considered good in his day, but he dances like they used to way back in the early 40's and I can't get it. Anyway, even if I could I wouldn't care to dance that way because no one dances like that any more. How can I cut off his lessons without hurting his feelings? — LEARNING TO DANCE.

ABBY

DEAR LEARNING: Don't be foolish. Let him teach you. It might come in handy when you have to dance with your girl friend's mother. In the meantime, get someone in your generation to teach you how to dance 1962 style.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: My two-year-old son sucks his thumb. I have discussed it with his pediatrician who advised me to ignore it. My problem is this: Whenever I take the child marketing, strangers will say to him, "Does that thumb taste good?" Or, "BIG boys don't suck their thumbs!" All this teasing and shaming have aggravated the habit. I have even had clerks pull his thumb out of his mouth while I paid for my purchases. What should I do?—MRS. J.

DEAR MRS. J.: You can't control the remarks of strangers. Ignore them, too.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I received an invitation to a shower by the mother of the bride. On the invitation was written: "PLEASE BRING SANDWICHES."

I am not a relative. I wasn't sure if she meant I should bring sandwiches for the crowd, or just for myself, so I called her up and she said to bring a sandwich just for myself as she'd serve coffee. I have never heard of a shower like this, have you? And I never knew the bride's mother could give the shower. Will you please straighten me out?—NEWS TO ME.

DEAR NEWS: It is news to me, too. YOU are all straightened out, my dear. It is the bride's mother who is confused. SHOWERS for brides should be given by friends—not relatives. And a guest should not be asked to bring her own lunch.

• • • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FORBIDDEN FRUIT": Don't waste any more time on someone who does not respect his present vows. If you finally "win"—you lose.

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

• • • •

IN 1960 the couple traveled to Norway where they visited her brother and sister whom she had not seen since she left her native land 52 years before.

PARENTS' CORNER

'Repeater' Needs Love, Understanding

By RICHMOND BARBOUR

Do you have a child who wasn't promoted this spring? A boy who will repeat his grade next year? Then be careful. He needs your love.

Put yourself in his place. He knows why he is repeating. He may even be convinced that it will be good for him. But his buddies don't see that side of it. As far as they're concerned he failed. In their minds, he's been disgraced. He knows very well what they think. So your son is touchy, nervous, defensive. I don't know of any experience we adults have which equals the shock some children get when they repeat a grade.

Don't scold him. Don't tell him that he "flunked" or make him feel any worse than he already feels. Unless you've special instructions to the contrary, let him forget school. For a month or more, let him be free. No reading, spelling or times tables. Let him run with his buddies and play with them. Let him get over his blues.

* * * *

LATE IN the summer you may want him to read. Try to make it fun, not work. One way will be to get comic books for him. Leave them around the house. Let him browse through them at his own speed. Try not to show any anxiety. Don't press him. Your goal is to have him discover that reading can be fun, and that he can succeed in his schoolwork. If you push, he'll push back and you'll get a stalemate.

He'll face another crisis when school begins. His buddies will be in another room. He'll be back with kids he previously called babies. Give him extra love and support at that time. He'll need it.

Slate Luncheon

Good Sports Club will give a public noon luncheon and card party Monday in the Garden Room, Third Street and Alamitos Avenue.

Bid Ups Hand Value

When does a minimum opening bid change into a powerful hand? Sometimes your partner's bidding does not promote one card in your hand, but when his bidding clearly shows that you hold exactly the right cards to fit with his, your hand becomes more valuable.

South's 12 high card points and six card spade suit constituted a minimum opening bid and his partner's two heart response led to an automatic two spade rebid. When North went to three clubs on his second bid, most players would either rebid to three spades or try three no-trump, but John McGervey of Cleveland saw no reason to bid anything but three diamonds.

* * * *

NORTH'S response to the three diamond bid was a jump to four spades and now John revalued his hand upward.

It was obvious that North held not more than one diamond. Otherwise, he would not have bothered to bid hearts and clubs before raising spades. Also, North ought to have a couple of aces. Again he had made those two other bids before giving the spade raise.

John felt that his hand justified a Blackwood call of four no-trump and when South showed two aces John went to six spades.

West opened a diamond and John made all the tricks. He took the ace, ruffed a diamond high, led a spade to his jack, ruffed his last diamond, got back to his hand with a club and claimed the balance.

Atty. Don C. Wallace Jr.

Case of the Illegal Native

Chef of the Week

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
P-T Food Editor

He's fundamentally a native. He just happened to be born in Minneapolis, Minn. If that sounds a bit ambiguous, here's the story! His dad was studying at the University of Minnesota when today's Chef of the Week, Don C. Wallace Jr., arrived.

Actually, Don's grandfather, W. H. Wallace, one of our early bankers, came to Long Beach in 1909. The family home was in the "suburbs" at Tenth and Linden.

Don's parents returned to Long Beach in 1926, when he was two years old. He attended Los Cerritos Grammar, George Washington Junior, and Poly High Schools prior to entering Stanford as a pre-law student.

At the same time, the V-12 Naval Reserve plan held equal interest for him, and since that course was not available at Stanford, he switched to Cal Tech and engineering. He eventually took the regular competitive examination and received an appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

• • • •

IN 1948, a full-fledged ensign, and his Navy duty completed, Wallace decided there was greater future to be found in Law than in the general line Navy officers, so he returned to Stanford, earned his law degree, passed the bar, and in 1952, joined Attorney Bruce Mason. In 1955, the present partnership of Mason, Kinley and Wallace was formed.

Wallace's extra curricular interests have been an intermingling of public speaking, debating, football, tennis, golfing, boxing, mountain climbing, and cruising.

He played end at both Stanford and Navy. He coached the football team on the S.S. Columbus, which won the cruiser championship. He, himself, was a member of the National Collegiate La Crosse team at Navy the year it won the national championship. Don, also brought other honors to the Navy as light heavyweight boxing champion. In golf, he shoots to a 10 handicap at Virginia Country Club.

Wallace has written about sports, too, having been Poly High cub reporter for the old Long Beach Sun.

A MEMBER of the Long Beach Kiwanis Club, he is a director of Stanford Law Society of Southern California, is a past president of the Barristers, and serves on the Board of Governors, Long Beach Bar Association.

With a keen interest in Boy Scouts, he has been on the executive board since 1952, has his merit badge as a counselor and is presently chairman of Cub Pack 78. Scouting interest has been inspired by sons Alex 12, and Don III, who is 10. There are also two daughters, Anne, 9 and Nancy, 7.

Mrs. Wallace, the former Elizabeth Wailes, also inspires a number of his extracurricular interests. A member of Junior League, she "engaged" his legal counsel for Children's Programs, a co-sponsored program by the Junior League and Children's Theatre. He's also on the board of the Dental Foundation.

Family-wise, they enjoy cruising, and also heading for their cabin at Idylwild. Up there, they're either mountain climbing or fishing.

His recipe today is for Louisiana Brunswick Stew.

LOUISIANA BRUNSWICK STEW

- 1 4-lb. stewing hen
- 1 quart canned tomatoes
- 1 quart whole kernel corn
- 2 cups fresh lima beans (if frozen are used, do not overcook)
- 1 cup okra, cut in rings
- 6 small potatoes, cubed
- 4 medium onions, sliced
- ½ cup sherry

Simmer chicken until almost tender. Add vegetables, and cook until all are done. Remove bones and skin from chicken, season with salt, pepper, cayenne and sugar. Just before serving add sherry.

Serve in soup bowls with crusty bread.

Fashion From the Ground Up . . .

There's No Biz Like Shoe Biz

By MARY ELLIS
I. P-T Fashion Editor

Footprints on the sands of time have a way of changing. Just ask any shoe man.

He'll tell you that once was the time a gal could be perfectly fashionable with only a couple-or-so pairs of shoes in her then-limited wardrobe.

Said shoes went everywhere — WITH everything.

But today's fashionable femme, regardless of status, has at least 20 pairs of suitable footables in her wardrobe, according to a poll of local shoe merchants.

They point out that for jetting around in 1962's high-stepping, fashion-conscious society, the modern woman not only requires her shoe to fit the foot—but the occasion, as well.

It's modern shoeology: fashion starts from the ground up.

• • • •

MISS 1962 Fashion Plate's stepped-up wardrobe may include opera pumps and street shoes, slings and sandals, thongs and tennies, clogs and wedges, boots, oxfords, one-strap and two-strap spectators, moccasins, walking shoes and dancing shoes.

The toes may be open or closed, needle or modified point, rounded or square, vented or snubbed, crescent or snipped.

Heels may be high, low or in-between . . . double-Louie, stacked or needle. They can be flat, square, pancake or arched like a cat's back.

And for even more glamour afoot, heels can be styled of metal or contrasted fabric . . . they can be embroidered, striped, jeweled, dipped in silver or gilded with gold.

Which all adds up to fashion by the foot for the ladies . . . but represents acres and acres of shoe problems for the buyer or salesman.

• • • •

BUT HE TAKES this all in good stride.

Like Wilbur Jordan, area manager for Buffums' shoe salon.

Says he: "It's most exciting to have such a variety for today's woman to select from."

He notes that not only is variety unlimited in shape and silhouette, but that there's much exciting news afoot in fabrics and materials.

These days shoes are made of peau de soie, brocade, satin, lustre leathers, new man-made patents in all colors, lustre lizards, snake, straw, calf, suede, plastics, metallics and denims.

They come in stripes, polka dots, florals, two-tones and three-tones, plains and fancies.

• • • •

AND AS IF THAT weren't enough to ponder over, there's the ever-present problem of size ranges.

Jordan estimates that it requires as many as 80 pairs of shoes to buy all sizes in ONE style of the same color. To buy it in depth, and in several colors—well, that's stepping into higher mathematics.

Irvin Harris, manager of Leed's downtown store, estimates that a shoe-shopping femme usually tries on seven pairs before she makes up her mind.

"At least we try to show her that many so she'll get an idea of the different styles available," he notes.

What's today's average shoe size?

Well, feet are getting bigger, says he. Most-sold size is 7 or 7½B, compared to the average 6 or 6½ when he first started in the business.

"Of course," says he, "what a woman most usually wants is a shoe that's big on the inside, small on the outside."

PATENTS PENDING FOR SUMMER . . . a variety of colors (left) for all times of day and for every occasion. Black and white patent is fashioned in a series of swirl stripes on a square toe . . . cinnamon-colored patent highlights a tucked vamp . . . pleated dressmaker detailing accents bright red . . . two tones of beige and brown go checkerboard for casual wear . . . brilliant blue patent is fashioned into moc-type walking pump.

AT RIGHT, Wilma Hastings model Joel Wegley poses amid myriad of today's shoe styles at Guild House shoe salon.

After a Fashion

FASHION BY THE FOOT . . . (left) De Liso Debs' multi-colored Swiss lace—cool and open—for fancy fashion look . . . and (below) Capezio's oval toe, gently shaped strap on two-piece spectator with one-inch stacked heel.

MR. AND MRS. C. H. Wood, sole mates and owners of the local Guild House Salon, note that independent shoe stores, because of versatility in styles, are going more and more into specialty types.

"Chains and discount houses are taking care of the masses," he points out. "The independent operator is becoming more and more specialized in what he stands for."

Like for fall, the Woods are going in for new looks and fabrics.

"We're buying dull-finished silks instead of suedes . . . jubilee patents in depth, many combined with genuine Calcutta lizard . . . also lots of matte lustres . . . many in the new nip toe," they point out.

And what about color?

"Black's always the top seller, but there are many colors—dozens and dozens of them," the salon owners point out.

And as to the general trend, there's more good style and more fashionable mischief afoot than there's ever been before in the history of shoe biz.

Blush Is Becoming--On Someone Else

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I get red. Bright, gruesomely red. I am a blonde and I blush at the drop of a look.

It wouldn't be half as bad if I only blushed half of the time. If I have to recite, I fairly burst with a blush.

When a certain boy winks at me, I blush from the top of my head to the sole of my flats.

When I talk to people I know slightly, I begin to feel warm and then stutter and then a hot flash envelops me all over.

Mrs. Mayfield, it's awfully square. —RED NECK

DEAR RED NECK:

So many of you write me with this same problem. I think in acute cases it is a nerve problem that a doctor should diagnose.

But if you are exaggerating at all, let me assure you a blush shows shyness that is rare and charming. Too many women can't.

I can't tell you how to curb it, but I wish you could tell the rest of us how to blush. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have a problem nephew! He is 17 years of age, and since his mother died his father and I have tried to cope with him.

He seems to be very popular in school and his grades are decent enough, but at home he won't have a thing to do with either of us. I am only 26, and he thinks there is an affair between his father and me.

He knows I often go out on dates, but he still insists on having nothing to do with me. I think a lot of him and it hurts me!

How can I convince him? —OUTSIDER

DEAR OUTSIDER:

That young man is old enough to be talked to like a man.

He needs to be told straight out how mixed up he is. He needs to know how unfair his attitude is.

I'd say he needs to hear this from both you and his dad—and in no uncertain terms.

Let me say, however, that he may not be the only one to judge unfairly. When an unmarried woman of 26 continues to live along with a widowed brother - in - law, well, tongues, alas, have a way of wagging.—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Why is it I never can seem to get the kind of present from my boy friend that I want. I'm 16 and by that age I think I ought to know my own mind. But my 18-year-old dating machine says I'm weakminded and he'd better choose for me.

For example, for Christmas I told him I wanted a pair of earrings like Cleopatra wore, dangling down to my shoulders. He got me a wrist watch instead. Last week was my birthday. I asked for an anklet with our initials and a heart engraved on it. He gave me a blouse and a scarf to match.

Why can't he give me what I want? —MYRTLE

DEAR MYRTLE:

A present is something that should be given with affection and sentiment. It isn't something to be demanded. And I think you are acting like a shrew long before a woman's supposed to become one.

Furthermore, strikes me that your boy friend has a lot better taste in gifts than you do. If you keep up your complaining, you're going to lose both him and the presents. —M. M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

Nobody loves me and if you think that isn't enough trouble, let me describe some others. I've never known anything but hard times.

It's hard to bear trouble any time, but when you don't even have someone to talk to about it, you're in real trouble.

I'm 38 and I look 68. Really I do. At any rate, when I give my age, people laugh.

I've been married three times. None of the marriages took and I've had no children. I wanted a baby so badly.

I had a job that paid a dollar an hour and now it is gone, too. I guess I got too bitter.

I lost my insurance last week, couldn't make the payments on my unemployment check.

Why is it some people have everything and I have nothing?—CYNIC

DEAR CYNIC:

Nobody is without trouble. It comes in different sizes and shapes but it comes. So stop dwelling on yours.

If you would think less often of yourself and more often of others you'd find their troubles double yours. Really you would. — M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I don't have many dates and in some ways I'm very, very thankful. I am a junior in high school and most of the girls in my class have lots of dates and neck with every one of them. I really don't want to.

I want a boy to go with me because he enjoys my company, not necking. Parents sure would be surprised if they knew how their kids carry on in cars.

I wish I knew, though, whether boys think more of girls who neck than they do of the ones who don't.

—GINNY

DEAR GINNY:

I took a poll. That is, talked with several teen-age friends of mine. One boy, all of 16, said he frankly liked to neck and avoided the girls who didn't. He did look shifty-eyed.

The next one, 13, said he was afraid to ask a girl to neck but he was working up to it.

The best one, 15 plus, said if he had his choice — and there were so few who didn't —he'd go with the girl who would not neck.

So there you are. The poll didn't prove anything, but as I looked at the boys while they talked I would have wanted the 15-year-old myself. Take it from there, Ginny. —M. M.

English, Japanese Films Set

Alec Guinness meets his match in a 77-year-old landlady, and Japanese boys turn out just like their brothers around the world in two films to be shown at Long Beach State College Little Theater Saturday night.

Guinness stars in "The Ladykillers;" the Japanese youngsters are seen in "Big and Little Kids," on the third program of Long Beach Film Society's summer series. Showings begin at 7 and 9 p.m.

Starring with Guinness are Kate Johnson and Peter Sellers. The film is directed by Alexander Mackendrick who also directed "Tight Little Island" and "The Man in the White Suit."

"Big and Little Kids" takes its title from the fat boy new to the neighborhood and the tiny fellow who befriends him.

Tickets will be available at the box office.

League Honors Pat Jones

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

After guiding the growth of Artists League of Seal Beach for five years, Pat Jones has retired from the office of president and is succeeded by Al Danfeldt.

The league, however, refuses to let Pat step out of a major position. Members created the post of general advisor and elected her to fill it.

Their appreciation for her work took a tangible form, too, at the league's installation dinner Tuesday at Knotts' Berry Farm. Pat was given a gold life membership card and a check to pay for a trip to Hawaii.

As general advisor she will visit and study techniques of other galleries and art schools, gleaning ideas for the league.

"But," she said, "it's a funny thing — they're all coming here to borrow our methods!"

Other newly-installed officers are Florence Mays, Jo Bartholomew, Don Bregman, Don Hadley, Rae Simmons, Audre Hutchins, Dorothy Facer, and Fontella McKelvey.

"HIDDEN MASTERpieces" will be offered for sale by Long Beach Art Association through August in the association gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd.

Members' Special Exhibits currently are on view at U.S. National Bank in Los Altos, Buffums', the Unitarian Church, Bach Branch Library, North Long Beach Branch Library, Bay Shore Branch Library and General Surgical Supply.

Dr. Charles Thompson will conclude his lecture series Monday evening in the gallery with "Surrealism and the Subconscious Source."

Other scenes are of the scientist in his laboratory, the Vermont lawyer in his office, a California wagon tire shop with hand bellows and andirons, a flax scutching-bee party, clipper ships and sport scenes.

The docents of the gallery will host an invitational champagne and buffet dinner Thursday evening. Guests and dignitaries will be invited to meet Col. and Mrs. Garbisch.

YOUNG ARTISTS SING GEMS FROM OPERA

By RACHEL MORTON
I P-T Music Critic

The other day I received an invitation from that live-wire innovator, conductor Johnny Green, to the gala opening of "Opera in the Rendezvous" at the Beverly Hilton Hotel. I accepted and found myself in the gay company of a select group of invited guests, musically-minded as myself, including two Los Angeles music critics.

After dinner we settled back comfortably and listened first to Johnny Green's inimitable quips as master of ceremonies. But he was in all seriousness as he described why we were invited.

Johnny Green really has a deep interest in music and musicians, especially young musicians. Together with his friend, Fred Hayman, the manager of the Beverly Hilton, they conceived the idea of presenting melodic, well-loved golden nuggets of operatic repertoire six nights weekly for a three-month season in the friendly atmosphere of the Rendezvous room. Twelve exceptionally fine singers, the cream of the Los Angeles operatic young artists, performed. Since singing opera every night is a bit arduous, there will be six singers alternating every other night.

* * * *

WE, WHO were privileged to hear the preview, heard all 12 of the engaged singers, who gave us an uninterrupted program of gems from opera. Young and handsome, their voices were no less lovely and they suggested the action of the scenes most appealing. At a grand piano sat that incomparable accompanist, Natalie Limonick, music director of Opera in the Rendezvous, who directed authoritatively, but unobtrusively. To her goes the praise for noteworthy performances.

* * * *

THESE ARE the gems of opera we heard: solos and scenes from "Carmen," "Madame Butterly," "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," "Tosca," "La Boheme" and "Porgy and Bess."

These were the young artists whose beautiful voices gave such pleasure: Nancy Bramlage, Enid Clement, Dolores Davis, Norma Lynn, sopranos; Kathleen de Spain, Lois Varga, mezzo-sopranos; John Guarnieri, Chris Lacona, Richard Riffel, tenors; Daniel McCaughna, Ned Romero, baritones; and George Ewing, bass.

For a perfect evening of relaxation, inspiration and good food try "Opera in the Rendezvous" some night soon.

AGO Schedules July Convention

American Guild of Organists will hold its national convention from July 2 through 6 in Los Angeles county with headquarters at the Ambassador Hotel.

The convention is being sponsored by the three chapters in the county: Long Beach, Los Angeles and Pasadena-Valley. Gene Driskill of Long Beach is general chairman.

Other Long Beach members charged with convention responsibilities include Mmes. Una Connor, Richard Mitchell, James Herley, Shelby Barnard, Fern Frantz and Maxine Maxwell; Marcia Hannah, Thelma Paynter, Elizabeth Vasa, Izora Brandt, Barbara Watson, Elizabeth Loomis, Agnes Spies and Helen Davenport; James Weeks, Earl Lamken, Donald Palmer, Joseph B. Riddick and Axel Anderson.

Clarence Mader, convention program chairman, has announced that international artists and lecturers from Argentina, Italy, Austria and Canada will be presented in addition to many American artists.

July 3 has been designated "Long Beach-San Pedro Day" with programs and activities scheduled in this area.

Libraries to Screen Prize Films

Film programs featuring prize-winning documentaries in color will be shown at two branch libraries this week. There is no admission charge.

"Where Mountains Float" shows how social change has come to the people of the Arctic Circle of Greenland. Through the eyes of a 12-year-old boy, his sister and their grandfather, the viewer experiences their move from primitive oceanside hunt habitations to the more modern houses in town. "Where Mountains Float" will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Dana Branch Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave.

* * * *

THURSDAY, "Flamenco" will be offered at 7:30 p.m. at Ruth Bach Branch Library, 4055 Bellflower Blvd. Antionio, Pilar Lopez, Maria Luz and the Ballet Espanol appear in this story of the gypsy dance. Photographed against authentic backgrounds, this 80-minute film is based on ancient tradition. It will interest those who love the dance, music and beauty of Spain.

James Watts and Miss Betty Reid will introduce the film programs which were arranged by Miss Nina Boyle, film librarian.

Five Artists Share Jewish Center Show

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The show at Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave., is so well hung that the composite effect is better than the sum if its parts. Oddly enough, the five artists all use greyed, neutral palettes, but the combined effect is one of rich color.

David Rosen's large black, white, and sepia oil drawings dominate the show. He is concerned with people congregated socially. "Playground" is an eloquent, enigmatic cluster of persons solidly drawn with masterful economy. A large area of white in the foreground reinforces the composition. Others of his works include "Prayer," "Oriental Synagogue," and "Rejection," which is rather anecdotal. Rosen's seeming ease and simplicity are based on real and sophisticated technique, composition and point of view.

* * * *

KENNETH BYLER of San Francisco is the only one of the group not from Laguna. He approaches both surrealism and abstract classicism. His large canvasses are rich and deep-toned. Each is built around a mysterious form which might be, as in "Portero," a radio control for science fiction aficionados.

Leonard Kaplan is represented by nearly a dozen "Bathers," round, soft nudes skillfully done in charcoal and conte. Gail Stenlund does nudes in delicate silverpoint; the most arresting is "Late August" with its fine perspective and subtle suggestion of beach by a few pebbles.

* * * *

JANE CALLENDAR'S "assemblages" are collages of gifts from the sea—rusted tin, driftwood, sand dollars, glass—attached to pieces of weathered wood. Her one oil painting, "View—White and Brown Houses," is average, but shares the one fault of her "assemblages": too tight an effort for orderliness. Of the collages the most successful is "Reflected Glory;" the least successful is "Mikado" with an arrangement of shells made to look like a figure holding a fan.

HEADS CAST

Chita Rivera, creator of the role of Anita in the Broadway production of "West Side Story," will star in the same role when the award-winning musical opens at Frank Sennes' Moulin Rouge in Hollywood Thursday. Carla Alberghetti co-stars as Maria.

'Pops' Programs to Open July 7

Hollywood Bowl's Saturday Pops programs will begin July 7 with a Romberg concert conducted by Johnny Green. Stars will be Jean Fenn of opera and musical comedy; Chris Lachona, tenor; and James Tippey, baritone. The Roger Wagner Chorale will be featured.

The Bowl's 41st season of Symphonies Under the Stars will open July 3.

Bowl Bills Folklorico

In Hollywood Bowl Aug. 15, 17 and 18, Mexico's colorful Ballet Folklorico will be presented on its first tour of the United States, although the company already is well known in this country. It is estimated that two million American tourists have seen the company's weekly Sunday morning performances at the Palace of Belles Artes in the Mexican capital.

Also in their first U. S. tour, the Royal Scots Greys and the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders will be in Hollywood Bowl Sept. 27, 28 and 29. They include the massed bands, pipes, drums and dancers of the Scottish Regiments of the Grays, Argylls and Sutherland Highlanders.

All of the productions except the Scots will be presented by S. Hurok in cooperation with the Bowl Association.

SILK NEWS—One of the drawbacks of silk is its tendency to crease easily. This problem has largely been overcome by blending silk with a synthetic fiber without any appreciable loss of feel or appearance. Speaking of silk, you can help prevent yellowing of white silk by ironing on the wrong side, using dampened cheesecloth as a press-cloth.

The nifty sloop on our cover is the Dyad II, which has been raced consistently over the years and a frequent winner of such events off Long Beach. Jointly owned by Ashton Castle, a familiar figure in Southland yachting circles, and by Charles Errington of Pacific Palisades, the Dyad II is of the K-38 Class. Castle, a director of the Los Angeles Yacht Club and manager of the Jonathan Club of Los Angeles, says he takes great pleasure in skippering the boat. When not entered in racing events or out on pleasure runs, the sleek craft is moored at the Los Angeles Yacht Club, Terminal Island. For more about yachting in the Long Beach area, see Page 7.

A blue-eyed girl with blonde curls who lived at 11th and Cherry Avenue, and walked nine blocks to Lincoln kindergarten, grew up to be Barbara Britton, film star. Next week, Southland reveals how this tiny doll hurdled the obstacles to gain renown before the movie cameras. It's an absorbing story.

GRADE CARD

Quit Now, Pay Later

By Harry Karns

Education Research Associates

THE CEREMONY and excitement of high school graduation are over; a milepost has been passed. What do the graduates do now?

To 50 per cent of them, the summer is a vacation before college starts next fall.

To the other 50 per cent, it marks the end of formal education and the beginning of a workaday life.

The latter group of students may not know it, but each is forfeiting $178,000.

Here's how the loss is calculated: From age 18 to retirement, the average lifetime income of persons with a high school diploma is $257,557. The average income of college graduates increases sharply—to $435,242. The difference is $177,685.

So the new high school graduate faces a decision that will affect his entire future.

Some persons, it is true, are never ready to go to college. Some need a period of maturation before enrolling for college work. But it is a serious mistake for the average high school graduate to look automatically upon the high school diploma as his ultimate educational achievement. In today's world, the men with the college diplomas start in better jobs at better pay and move up faster to executive positions. Many jobs and fields are closed entirely to those who lack college diplomas.

THE PERSON least able to compete, of course, is the one who dropped out of high school and failed to get a diploma at that level. A person with a high school diploma will earn approximately $50,000 more in his lifetime than a person with one to three years of high school education.

The critical decision to quit high school or to abandon the idea of going to college is normally made in the summertime while the youngster is enjoying his freedom from the classroom routine.

If you notice signs of "drop out" fever in your child, quote some of the above facts and remind him that what he sees as "freedom" now can prove to be the chain that shackles him to a dull and unrewarding job for the rest of his life.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Room 403, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

Q. Do the pigeons that roll over in the air do this by nature or are they taught to do it?—L.D.

A. Roller pigeons ("Birmingham rollers") are born with the instinct to roll over and over, and seem to enjoy doing so. Some have performed in the air for hours at a time. The most famous strain of roller pigeons is the Pensom strain developed by William H. Pensom of Smethwick, near Birmingham, England.

Q. Where will I find the lines beginning "The woods are lovely, dark and deep"? B.E.

A. Stanza 4 of "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening" by Robert Frost: "The woods are lovely, dark and deep,/ But I have promises to keep,/ And miles to go before I sleep."

Q. What causes moles on the body? G. E.

A. Moles are caused by a defect in development of the skin; their growth is the result of cell activity. Moles begin before birth as unstable cells which wander to various tissues but usually lodge in the skin and there become more deeply colored (pigmented) than the rest of the skin.

Q. What is "informal English"?—P.W.

A. By this term is meant the level of speech and writing that educated people use in conversation, letters, magazine articles and books on general subjects, newspaper stories, and the like. Informal English does not include substandard of vulgate English or slang.

Demand for Marinas continues to mushroom in the Southland

Give a Man a Ship He Can Sail

By George Eres

Familiar scenes along the Southern California coast each weekend include the fleets of sailboats heading out in competition and pleasure cruising.

NO VACANCY signs hang out at marinas from San Luis Obispo to the Mexican line and the situation doesn't appear to be easing up despite big anchorage building programs in the Southland.

"Slip availability is practically zero in most areas," said Robert B. Hoffman, 245 Pomona Ave., Long Beach, commodore of the Southern California Yacht Racing Association.

And the long-range prospect for slip space isn't optimistic.

Between San Luis Obispo and San Diego, there is space for mooring approximately 17,600 yachts. And in many places there is a waiting list "a year long."

ANOTHER 10,000 to 12,000 ships will be available when construction is completed in the various marinas south of San Luis Obispo. Playa del Rey, where bulkheading is complete, plans slips for 6,000 boats. King Harbor at Redondo will have space for another 1,000 craft. The Ventura Marina will have space for 2,200 boats and facilities at Huntington Harbor and at Dana Point will add facilities for perhaps another 2,000.

At the Long Beach Marina, built at a cost of $9,700,000 — exclusive of connected demolition and construction work which brought the over-all cost to $14,300,000—the four basins can berth 1,800 boats. Most of the slips can handle yachts up to 100 feet long, but there are three berths here for vessels up to 196 feet.

"We have a waiting list for every space," said Larry MacDowell, marine department chief. "We hold slips for no one, although we do have 75 to 100 slips reserved for guest boats on a day-to-day basis."

LONG BEACH has plans for a fifth basin, a "shelter" to Alamitos Bay at the end of the peninsula. It will have slips for about 40 boats.

Overall, the Los Angeles-Long Beach Harbors, exclusive of Alamitos Bay, have berthing space for some 4,000 craft at the various anchorages.

For the most part the yachts in the Southland range from 30 to 80 feet with the biggest concentration of larger yachts at Newport where there are numerous craft in the 65 to 75-foot category. Overall, Newport Harbor can handle berthing of some 4,000 yachts.

More slip space is being created at Mission Bay which houses about 2,000 yachts and the big San Diego yacht center has slips for 6,000.

BUT AS FAST as the slips are built they are occupied. The situation is akin to freeway construction—as soon as they are built they are jammed.

The big boom in boating can be attributed to several things—more available money, more leisure—but most of all it has been attributed to the development of the relatively low cost plastic boat.

"The trend," according to Commodore Hoffman, "is toward the plastic and the smaller boat. Ocean-type sailboats today average 30 to 35 feet, and there is a steady movement to the more capable 24-28-footers that sleep four. Boats over 30 feet, however, are for the most part wood."

In Long Beach area waters—best sailing waters in the world, according to men who have sailed all over the world, Fred Miller, of Newport, national Finn Class champion, and Long Beach's Chuck Kober, Olympic Class Dragon skipper—yachtsmen compete strenuously as well as just cruise about.

More than 400 regattas will be held this year in Southern California waters—plus innumerable club regattas and national one-design class boat championships.

WITH MORE and more landlubbers learning the difference between port and starboard, there is not only eagerness for slip space but for membership in yachting organizations.

In Southern California there are two major yachting organizations, the Southern California Yachting Association and the Yacht Racing Union of Southern California.

The SCYA has 35 member clubs, and eight associates—newly formed clubs not yet "proven" ready for full membership; according to Commodore Hoffman.

West Coast yachting circles are less restrictive about membership than their eastern counterparts, but owning a boat doesn't make you eligible for club membership on the West Coast any more than in the East.

GENERALLY, yacht club fleets are made up of various classes of boats. Club membership is not a requirement for fleet membership. In most cases, boat owners are invited to join the fleet activities and later may be taken into the club. For club membership, a sponsor or sponsors is required.

While club membership carries with it certain social prestige, for the most part it has the same relationship to sailing as country club membership has to golfing. Boats don't care who sails them, and the waters are free.

For the most part the mass of weekend sailors care little about clubs, but a great deal about getting out in a boat weekends.

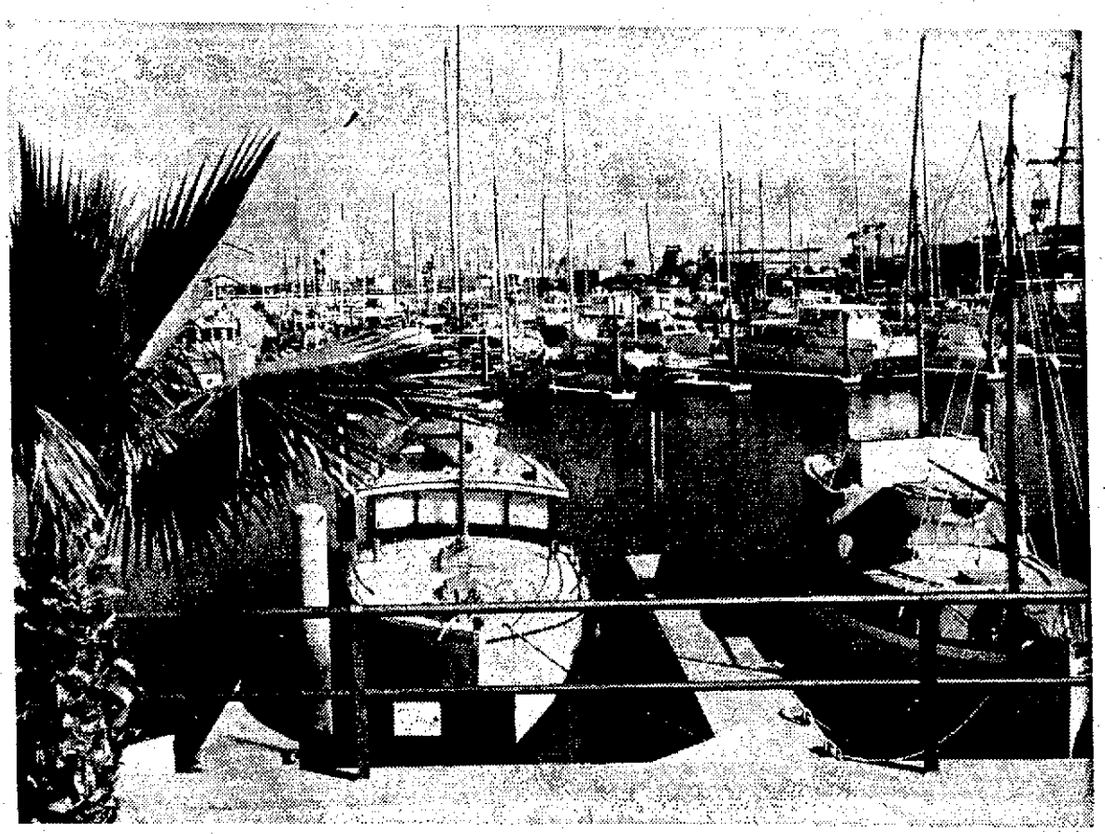

Yacht Races

FOLLOWING is a partial listing of vacation season regattas in Southland waters, as posted in the Southern waters, as posted in the Southern California Yachting Association's 1962 Master Calendar:

June 24, Long Beach Yacht Club, Invitational Regatta. 24—Los Angeles Yacht Club, Channel Island Race (third day). 24 — Lido Isle Yacht Club, June Regatta, L-14 Championship, Jr. Division. 30—Del Rey Yacht Club, Alamitos to the Isthmus. 30, July 1 — Newport Harbor Yacht Club, Independence Day Regatta.

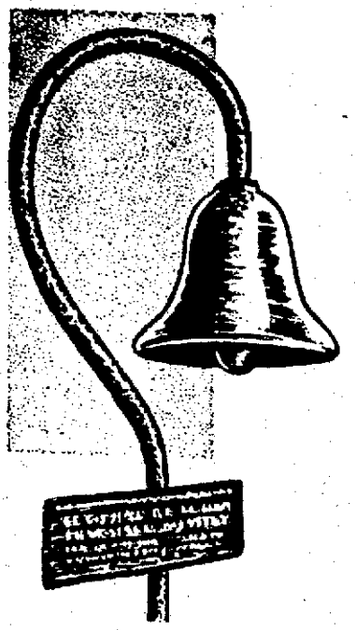

July 4, 7, 8—Alamitos Bay Yacht Club, Fourth of July Invitational. 5 — Newport Harbor YC, Twilight Series, July. 7—Cabrillo Beach YC, Around Catalina Island Race. 7, 8—Cabrillo Beach YC, Cabrillo Catamaran Championships. 8 — Newport Harbor YC, Snipe Eliminations. 14-15—Balboa YC, Summer Regatta, Invitational; Cabrillo Beach YC, Lightning District Championship. 21—California YC, Santa Barbara Island Race from Del Rey. 27, 28, 29—Southern California Yachting Association Summer Championships at San Diego. 29—Newport Harbor Flight of the Snowbirds.

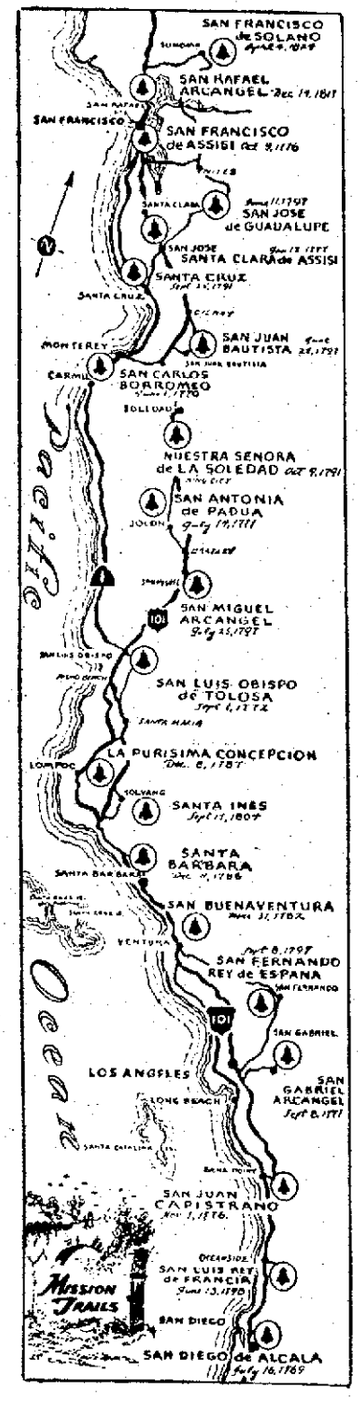

August 2, 3, 4, 5 — Yacht Racing Union of Southern California Invitational Cruise.

Slips at the Long Beach Marina are filled as fast as they are built, and there is a long waiting list for each vacancy. The same is true of other yacht facilities all up and down the coast as boating gains favor.

California's Mission Heritage

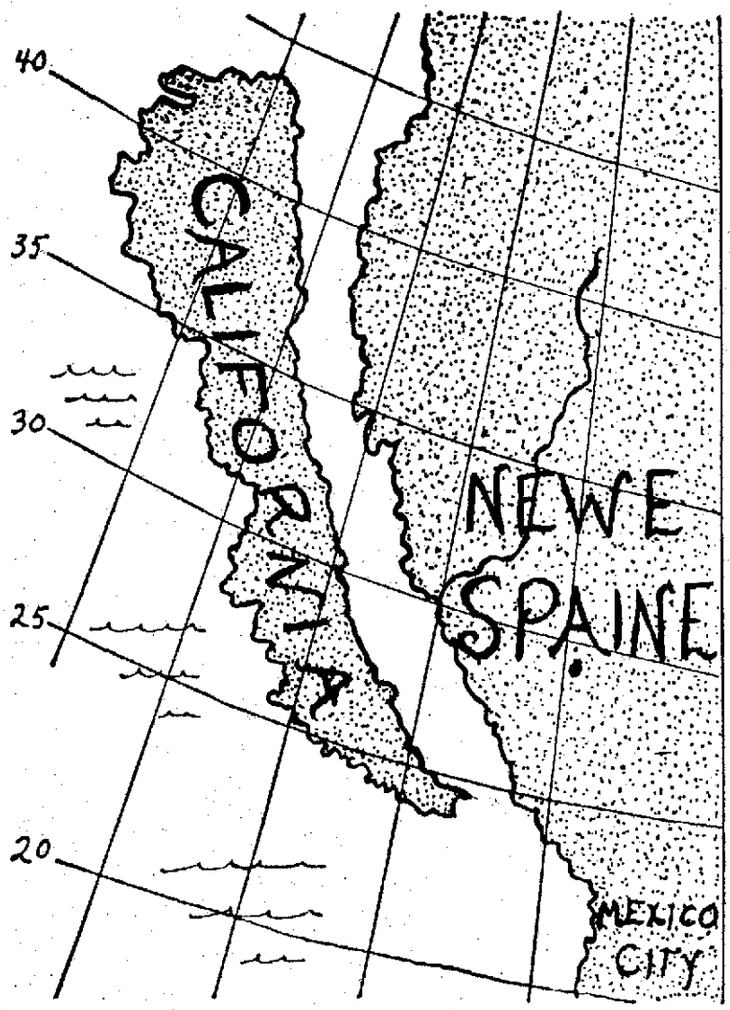

Civic aid is returning famed bells along the highway linking missions.

By Jan Heminway

NATIVES OF IOWA—a state which some Americans believe has its capital in Long Beach—had their little joke by declaring that there is no California. But, optical illusion or no, Iowans as well as residents of other states that do exist still come West to see what they can see.

Among California's phantasmagoric attractions are the adobe ruins of 21 old Spanish missions along El Camino Real, started by Father Junipero Serra. U. S. Highway 101 follows the approximate route.

Until the great Franciscan blazed his now famous trail, California was a mythical land described in a Spanish novel written in 1510, three years before Balboa discovered the Pacific. Called the Isla de California (Island of California), it portrayed a land of wealth and treasure. It was still on the best-seller list when Cortez, in Mexico, heard tales of a fortune across the "sea" that bore his name. There, he was told, lay an island with pearls the size of grapes and vast quantities of gold and silver. Promptly, it was dubbed "California." Before it could be explored, Cabrillo, contending with other leading aquanauts of his day, set off in search of the Northwest Passage. From Mexico, he crossed the gulf then known as the Sea of Cortez, rounded the tip of the peninsula they thought to be an island, and sailed north beyond San Francisco—which he missed because of fog. He didn't find the passage, but, since he'd seen no break in the coastline, his log refers to all of it as California.

"California, sometimes supposed to be a part of y westerne continent but scince by a Spanish Charte taken by y Hollander it is found to be a large and goodly Island." (Quote from 1625 writings on California exploration.)

WHEN Father Serra began his journey, the area was still popularly supposed to be an island. Maps of the day show it as such, lying weirdly misshapen and unreal, a little to the west of New Spain, now Mexico, and our own southern states.

As for the legendary pearls at the peninsula, several desperate attempts to find them met with failure. The country was bleak and barren, and the Crown shrugged it off. It abounded in Indians, if not material wealth, so the Jesuits established a charity fund through which they founded 12 missions below San Diego. The land was too poor to support them without help from other stations in Mexico. Yet, the rumor of riches persisted, and when the Jesuits were expelled by Carlos III, it was because he believed them to have found and buried the fabled pearls. They were rounded up and hustled aboard ship with nothing but the robes they wore and their breviaries. Then the Spanish went into a frenzied treasure hunt that gained them nothing but blisters.

Two years later, in 1769, the king's inspector-general sent Father Serra

Franciscan padres, led by Fr. Junipero Serra, found a harvest of souls but those who came to California in search of riches failed to find the alleged pearls and gold. This is a view of Mission Capistrano.

Here Comes Your Beach Car

By Bob Sanders

IF YOU'RE one of those people who have always thought it would be nice to own one of those ancient vintage cars you see putting along the side of the road in the summer but felt you couldn't afford the price, hold on to your bonnets and goggles. There's a woman just arrived in town from up north who may have the solution for you.

She is Mrs. Mary Clare McShane, until recently a Northern California and Nevada businesswoman who came to the Southland to start a new venture. She plans to go into the business of manufacturing ancient, modern cars for popular consumption.

Don't let that "ancient, modern" label fool you. They're not really either or both, but Mrs. McShane says they combine the better qualities of both. They're modern, she says, because they're brand new and consequently parts will be readily available. And they're ancient because they're designed along the lines of the early American cars that roamed the dirt roads of the early century and thus have that rakish, devil-may-care appearance.

Primarily a "fun car," the Swift T, a new car on an old model style, will soon go into production in this area. Other models will be manufactured and will be geared to perform at a top speed of 35 m.p.h.

BEFORE THE END of July, Mrs. McShane says she will have an assembly line in production somewhere in Long Beach or Orange County—the exact location is secret pending final negotiations for one of several sites—that will turn out at least 1,200 of the little cars a year.

This newest of automobiles, and without doubt the most radical in design of the 1962 models, are destined to be called Swifts—not for that swiftest of birds, the Swift, although they do have some things in common. First the cars appear to perch upright like the bird although not because of weak underpinnings with which the bird is cursed. According to Mrs. McShane, the car, like the bird, will be able to spend many hours on the move—and with a minimum of gasoline expenditure. And on the road the car will probably catch as many flies as the bird, although that's not its main occupation.

Produced in three models, the Swift cars are expected to sell for from $695 to $895 to beat the price market in Detroit. The least expensive of the three will be the Swifter Roadster, a takeoff on the 1906 Cadillac roadster, which you don't see much these days. The most expensive will be the Swift Cat, a miniature imitation of the old Stutz Bearcat. The in-between model will be the Swift T, which resembles the early Model T pickup. The T will sell for $795.

WITH LINES SO OLD they appear to be new, or vice versa, these little cars measure only 80 inches in length and 60 inches in width. They weigh a scant 400 pounds, will hit a top speed—top speed, that is—of 35 miles an hour. And they're expected to get between 70 and 80—that's between 70 and 80—miles to the gallon.

Driving them is simple since they have only one speed forward. Press in the clutch and you're going, let it out and you're stopping. Reverse involves pulling a lever and then pressing the clutch. High seats and low front ends assure the greatest visibility. In fact driving one the first time may make you feel like you're riding a broomstick.

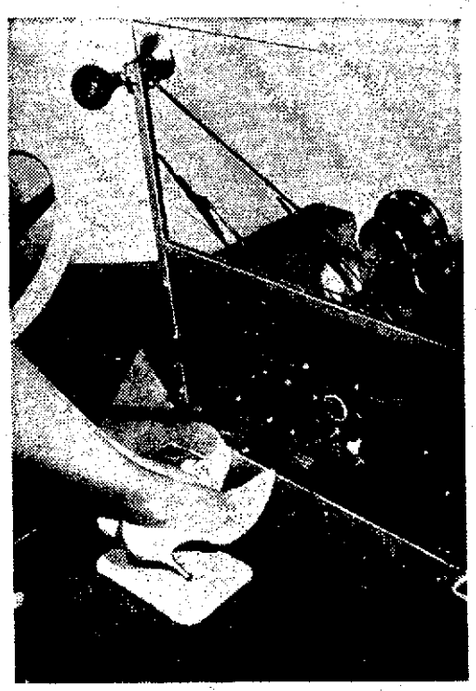

Other appurtenances that come as standard equipment include: an electric starter (with a "kill" button so you can stop the four-horsepower power plant); 12-volt battery and generator, sealed beam headlights; safety plate windshield to look over the top of while you drive (it's too low to look through); turn lights and electric windshield wipers (to keep the windshield clean while you're looking over it in the rain). The cars come in red, black and cream.

Optional equipment that can be ordered includes: convertible top, white sidewall tires, radio and spare tire and wheel (sometimes called a Continental kit).

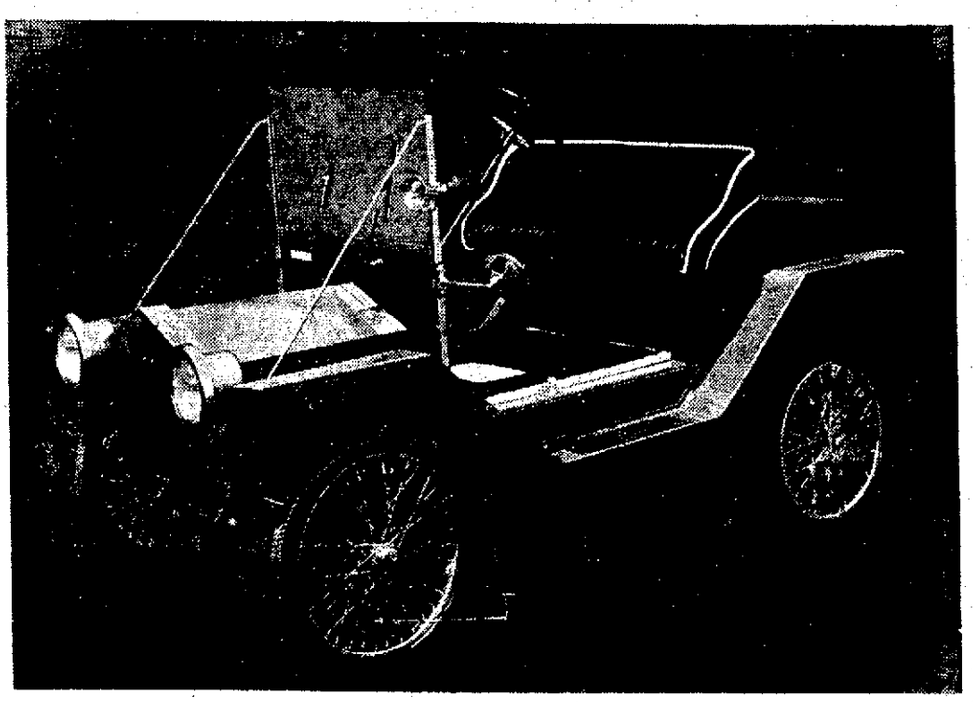

MRS. McSHANE, who says this is her first venture into the auto business, says she chose Southern California to start the enterprise in because of two things: one, the climate seems so right for an open-air car, and two, she has always wanted to live here.

She bought the business, including a complete inventory of parts, from a man who manufactured about 200 of the cars in a plant in San Diego before selling out to her. She says she already has orders for 170 cars.

Driving is simple. To go, just push in the clutch; to stop, release it.

Swift cars are scheduled to go into production next month. They will sell from $695 to $895 for various models. The cars measure 80 inches in length, 60 in width, and designed to get 70-80 miles per gallon.

Mrs. Beth Hams owns an aviary but there's no flutter and fuss about it. Her "birds" have pine cones as bases for their bodies. She's shown here with part of her collection.

HOBBIES

Aviary With Nary a Chirp

By Walter Finch

BIRD COLLECTION without a chirp. That's the "aviary" of Mrs. Beth Hams, 647 Lime Ave., whose hobby has brought orioles, bluejays, canaries, wrens, eagles, hawks, cardinals, robins, whooping cranes, pigeons, parrots and thrushes into her home.

Her birds have pine cone bodies, wire legs, cardboard heads and most of them have dyed duck and goosefeathers.

Her hobby began 12 years ago when Mrs. Hams lived on the bank of the Sydenham River at Windsor, Ont. Pine trees flourished along the river and Mrs. Hams picked up many cones. She noticed that some of the cones were shaped like birds' bodies.

THE FIRST bird she made was an owl, covered with chicken feathers.

She spreads a paste similar to photographer's paste, over each pine cone, pads it with crepe paper or cotton batting molded to shape, makes neck and legs of wire, attaches a cardboard head. Then, beginning with the tail, she works forward to the beak, laying each feather carefully in place.

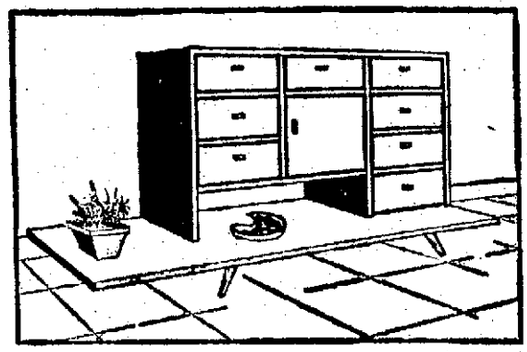

Her husband, Arthur, gathers many of the feathers for her. She finds duck and goose feathers the most pliable.

SHE STUDIES bird books for size, shape and coloring. She boils feathers in Rit to get the colors she wants, then dries them in the oven, fluffing them with her hands.

For variety, Mrs. Hams also makes bird pictures, using the feathers.

"There are only 37 whooping cranes in the world—and I have three," she says. The whooping cranes counted in the census are alive. Two of hers have pine cone bodies; the third is a feathered picture.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Sleek, modern and easy to build, this chest has eight drawers and center cabinet for bulky items like hats.

By Ursula M. S. Dadras

IF YOU THINK furniture is too complicated for your skill as a do-it-yourselfer, it's time for you to think again.

Anybody able to saw a straight line, hammer a nail, drill a few holes and turn a screwdriver can build for himself this strikingly modern eight-drawer dresser. In addition to the abundant drawer space, it has a hinged cabinet door and a wide, flaring base.

Construction is simple and planned especially for inexperienced woodworkers. If you have no power saw, you can have your lumber dealer do most or all of the cutting for you.

Chest top is 57 inches across, 15½ inches deep and 37¾ inches from the floor. The modern display base extends 6 inches out in front of the chest face and 18 inches at the side.

Legs are purchased ready-made, and screw into metal brackets attached to the dresser bottom.

Pattern for Sunny Days

TIME FOR being out of doors is at hand, and a spot in the sun is mighty fine—if you have a comfortable place to relax. A comfortable chair for lawn or patio is just the ticket, and one that fills the bill is pictured with this article, decorated with pretty Marilyn Manning of NBC-TV's "The Outlaws" show.

Any inexperienced amateur with a few simple tools can easily build this chair and the cost is slight when you do it yourself. You simply trace the full-sized pattern parts on wood, saw them out and put them together. After that, give the chair a coat of paint, or varnish, and it's ready for use.

To obtain the full-sized California lawn chair pattern Number 55, send 50 cents in coin, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

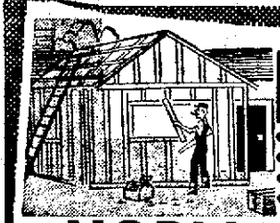

Marilyn Manning of NBC-TV finds this easily made lawn and patio chair is ideal for relaxing in the outdoors.

La Reina Rule

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy; for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give genealogy on FLOWERS. — E.C., Long Beach; M.O., Torrance.

E.C., M.O.: FLOWERS has an interesting, medieval English occupational origin. This name began as Floers, meaning "Son of the Floer." A Floer was an ancient arrow-maker. Devonshire 13th century records include John Le Floer and William Floer, remote forefathers. One of the several shields for the Flower and Flowers lineage has an ermine centered silver, five-leafed rosette on an ermine coated background.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would appreciate history on MOFFATT. — Mrs. C.M., Long Beach.

C.M.: MOFFATT had a founder called Maufet, a characterization meaning "quarrelsome one." The Maufets were natives of Normandy in northwest France. One adventurous descendant followed William the Conqueror to England in 1066 and established the lineage in Britain, where the name was changed to Moffatt and Moffett. Later progeny migrated also to Ireland and Scotland. One Irish family with this name however had a different origin, which research shows to be the clan name Maghfada, translated as "from the long plain or field. The Moffatt shield is black, emblazoned with a silver St. Andrews cross in the center.

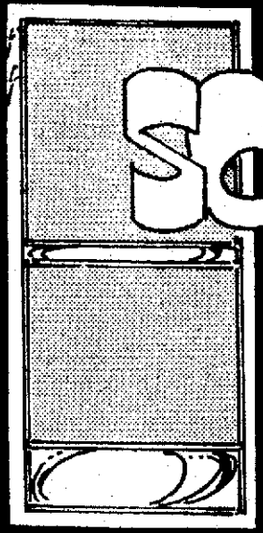

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give data on EDWARDS.— D.E., Mrs. G.Q., Lakewood.

D.E., G.Q.: EDWARDS, an English surname, is from an ancestor baptized Eadweard, deciphered as "Prosperous guardian." A long line of English kings named Edward gave impetus to the use of this name as both a given-name and a surname. The main coat-of-arms for the Edwards family has a golden rampant lion on an ermine covered shield. Matthew Edwards of England arrived in Massachusetts in 1657. Numerous modern Edwards families are descendants of his nine children.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain the source of the surname PRUDENCE. — L.P., Compton.

L.P.: PRUDENCE is French, used first by a progenitor baptized Prudentius meaning "Cautious and wise one." Prudentius or Prudence was adopted in honor of a 9th century bishop Prudentius of the French city of Troyes. No coat-of-arms is accessible for this family.

HOMES

A Design

By Stella George

HOMES designed for large families with growing children must meet qualifications established from divergent viewpoints. Richard Poper, architect for the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fey Looman and family, 5641 El Parque, filled the bill with a dwelling of unique quaity that appeals to the needs and tastes of the adults and is pleasing to the children.

Heavy double doors mark the front entry. White brick faces the doors in the spacious entry hall, with twin English chairs flanking a tow chest against the wall. A winding candelabra adorns the wall, and the appearance of the entry is almost Spanish rather than English.

To the right is the dining room. Beyond sliding glass doors in the room is a grilled wall, artistic and acting as a screen. Host and hostess chairs are upholstered in black and white checked

for a Large Family

First view on entering home is white brick wall of spacious entry hall. Twin chairs flank chest.

wool; other chairs are black. A turquoise sideboard provides a color accent.

THE LIVING room is done in subdued, pleasing colors. The fireplace is of white brick. Furnishings include a dark turquoise couch, a gold couch, and twin print chairs. A walnut spinet piano is in one corner.

The family room has a paneled mahogany wall which camouflages TV and other items when not in use. The couch is of white naugahyde.

In the large kitchen-dinette area, white tile and mahogany cabinets give the room a clean streamlined feeling, and work areas are in abundance. The room was so designed that the refrigerator and oven, are enclosed in custom wooden frames that give the appliances a decorative appeal. A long, low, sit-down bar can be used for work space.

Special attention was given to the bedrooms. A girls' room, designed for two, is large, and can be divided with a floor-to-ceiling divided of pleated plastic, located between twin beds. Each half of the room is a complete unit, done in a color that blends with the other half: One is pink, the other lavender. Each half includes, besides the bed, a custom corner desk, dressing table and accessories. Shutter doors open to spacious closets, well-lined with shelves and storage space

Another girl's room is pink with flowered wallpaper behind a pink headboard. A small balcony outside the glass door affords a touch of individual luxury.

A boy's room down the hall is tailored to masculine needs.

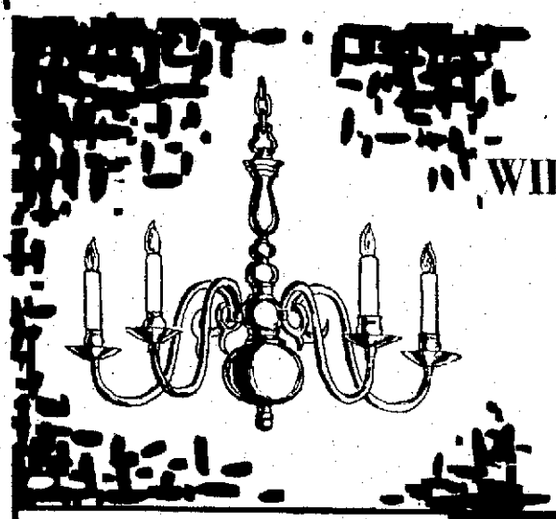

THE LARGE bathroom, shared by the youngsters, is carpeted in turquoise, and divided into sections, with the main room a type of powder room with twin wash basins facing a large mirror. From the powder room, doors lead to three separate units: the bath, the shower, and the toilet.

Down the hall, a door leads to a real surprise room reached by a small stairway. This is a large "fun" room where the family can play ping pong, draw, paint, or go for an attic retreat on a rainy day.

Grill (right) gives privacy to dining room which has a sliding door of glass. Lines are long, low.

Now from Scott Paper Company—Confidets
... the new shape in sanitary protection

5 reasons why new Confidets make other leading sanitary napkins out-of-date, ill-fitting, inadequate...

1. Only true anatomical shape. Confidets® are the only sanitary napkin fully tapered and shaped to fit body contours. Wide in front for protection —narrow in back for comfort—don't bunch or bulge. Confidets can be worn with any standard belt.

2. Only one with proportioned depth for more protection. No other napkin has extra thickness in middle where greatest absorbency is needed. Protects like a super pad with less bulkiness than a junior size.

3. Only accident-proof inner shield that's full size and securely held in position. Moisture simply cannot penetrate this feather-light shield, so under part of Confidets stays dry, soft.

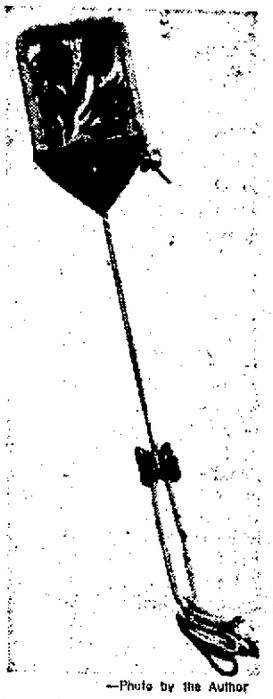

4. Only multi-layer filler with this unique arrangement. It holds 8 times its weight in moisture as proved by laboratory tests. The pure, fine quality materials absorb at maximum speed. You're blissfully secure with Confidets!

5. Exclusive ultra soft-strength cover. Only Confidets has a cover so comfortably soft against the skin yet has so much flexible strength in use. Try Confidets—developed and patented by Scott Paper Company.

Fly Swatter Goes Plush

Yarn, beads, sequins and bits of flannel make a fly swatter a bright article of interest.

By Dollie Lee

IF YOU have a room that you feel is dull and could be lifted with a bright spot of color and you don't want to put much money in that spot of color, here is a quick answer.

All you need is: a fly swatter—a good one will look better, but just any one will do.

Some yarn — left over strands are all right, but be sure they are the right color to fit your scheme.

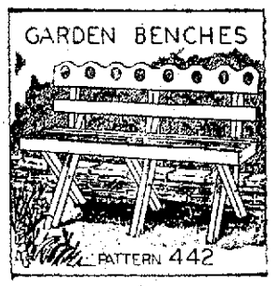

Flannel—you can get this in scraps at about 15 cents each. But here again be sure they are the right color to fit your scheme.

Some small pearl beads or sequins—or both.

Making the decoration is quite simple, if you know how to cut and sew. The patterns may be taken from previous embroidery patterns, or you may cut them yourself on paper. Any design may be used to applique on the fly swatter. The edges may be wound with the yarn or covered with the felt, whichever you like. The handle may also be treated this way. As you will note, a neat little bow can be tied at the bottom of the handle. Sparkles may or may not be used. This depends on where and how you want to use this simple decoration.

Upon completion they may be used as follows: Small gifts or light remembrances. May be laid across a couch to touch up a dark corner. May be hung on the wall to brighten the room. May be used as a fly swatter!

You Make It

An unusual design for a bench to be placed at some focal point will lend distinction to your yard. Pattern 442, which gives lists of materials, illustrated directions and actual-size cutting guides for three different sturdy types of stock sizes of lumber, is 35c. It also is one of four full-size patterns in Yard Furnishings Packet No. 73—all for $1. Address: Pattern Dept., Independent, Press-Telegram, Bedford Hills, N. Y.

MEDICINE AND YOU

'Old Dogs' Adage Disproved

By Ben Zinser
Independent, Press-Telegram Medical-Science Writer

THE ADAGE that you can't teach an old dog new tricks is false, says famed neurologist Dr. Wilder Penfield.

It's untrue both for dogs and men, he says.

Dr. Penfield, until his retirement the director of the Montreal Neurological Institute, says that many men suffer from "false senility" when they should be beginning a second career.

"When a man reaches his 60s he should be released from heavy harness," Dr. Penfield admits. "But he should be given the opportunity of starting on a new or modified career."

In a report in the journal Midway, published by the University of Chicago, Dr. Penfield continues:

"The theory that the man or woman of 60 has nothing more to contribute to society during the 10 or 20 years of active life that remain to him or her is wrong. The belief that men in later years cannot learn new skills and educated men new professions is false."

Dr. Penfield said false senility—a retirement neurosis—sometimes occurs when a retired man suffers from a delusion of incompetence.

SWEDISH pediatricians report the case of the 14-year-old girl who ate increasing quantities of match heads for several months.

At times she consumed up to several boxes a day, they disclose in the American Journal of Diseases of Children.

A medical examination showed that she suffered from severe anemia. She was given iron for the condition.

But six months after her iron medication was discontinued, she began eating match heads again. Doctors found that the anemia had recurred.

The doctors theorize that her iron deficiency anemia induced an instinctive compulsion to search for the lacking element. Unfortunately her match binge didn't solve the problem—there's no iron in match heads. Instead, it created a new one. She suffered potassium chlorate poisoning as a result of her perverted appetite.

CHILDREN who have ordinary nearsightedness need not be forced to wear glasses full time, according to a report in the American Journal of Ophthalmology.

Dr. Paul W. Miles, St. Louis, checked the records of 28 nearsighted youngsters fitted for glasses when about 8 years old.

For various reasons some of these youngsters failed to wear their glasses full time for one to four years. Then the same youngsters began to wear their glasses full time—for one to six years.

Dr. Miles says that failure to wear glasses for prolonged periods had no effect on rate of eyesight change.

A TABLET containing bacteria has cured or brought about dramatic improvement for 95 per cent of a series of patients afflicted with fever blisters. The same drug helped 80 per cent of a series of patients suffering from canker sores.

The drug contains Lactobacillus acidophilus and bulgaricus, micro-organisms involved in fermentation of milk.

Dr. John J. Weekes of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, says the way the drug works in these cases is not understood.

Challenge of the Cossacks

ON THE ROUGH, pampa plains of Argentina, a towering 16th Century walled and turreted Polish city will change hands this summer as Cossacks and Poles clash in savage battle.

It will be the filming of "Taras Bulba," the story of a Cossack chieftain who waged the classic Russian war with the West.

Here, on the frameless unending pampas of Argentina, director J. Lee Thompson (who also directed "Guns of Navarone") found the required geography needed to stage the grand scenes of war the screen play depicts. Among the most lavish of motion pictures, this incredible sequence involves 7,000 actors and 5,000 horses.

For more than 4,000 years Aryans, Scythians, Bulgars, Tartars and the Golden Horde invaded, fought over and ultimately lost the Ukraine, a land of rolling steppes gouged deep by rivers. Finally in the 16th Century, when a Turkish army overwhelmed a Polish army, hundreds of Cossacks suddenly rode into the fray, driving the Turks over a sheer cliff and out of Ukranian history forever.

THIS DRAMATIC story of Asia and middle Europe some 40 years ago includes an all-star cast headed by Tony Curtis and Yul Brynner.

Filmed in Technicolor Widescreen Panavision, "Taras Bulba" also stars Christine Kaufmann, Brad Dexter, Perry Lopez, Ilka Windish and Sam Wanamaker. Produced by Harold Hecht for release through United Artists, the picture promises to be a 1962 smash hit.

With a budget of $7 million, Hecht started preparations two years before actual filming started. Hecht, Thompson and the executive production manager Gilbert Kurland literally searched the world for a location which would double for the Steppes and have available 10,000 skilled horseman and horses for the battle scenes.

They found what they wanted in Salta, Argentina, an old Spanish colonial city of 120,000 population in the foothills of the Andes, 800 miles northwest of Buenos Aires. The location could be reached only by road and plane.

Norma Koch, costume designer, was signed to create the wardrobe for the stars and cast of 10,000 gauchos—portraying Cossacks, Poles and Turks.

EDDIE CARRERE, bilingual art director, was sent to Salta months ahead of the cast and crew to build the walled city of Dubno, which the Cossacks were to besiege and ultimately burn to the ground. He also had to build farm houses for the Cossacks, barracks and a 50-acre tent city to house the gauchos and corrals to stable the 10,000 horses.

Bill Jones, who had finished the "Alamo" for John Wayne, was sent to South America six months ahead of filming to round up necessary livestock, including a black stallion and two matching white stallions for Tony, his screen brother Perry Lopez, and Yul Brynner to ride. To insure against trouble, Bill had to get three mounts for each in case of accidents.

Jones also contracted for 120 teams of matched oxen for battle scenes.

"Taras Bulba" will be released the latter part of this year.

Taras Bulba, fierce and majestic Cossack chief who challenged the western world more than 100 years ago, is portrayed by Yul Brynner in a dramatic new motion picture spectacle now being filmed for 1962 release.

Fuchsia Control

Pinching and pruning are the two operations whereby the gardener can control the growth of fuchsias and encourage their utmost production of new blooms.

With hanging fuchsias, pinch to direct the pendulous growth, and once the shape is established, pinch to encourage side shoots and bushiness. With upright shrubs, pinch to get the shape you want. Pyramidal growth may be attained through pinching outside shoots at varying lengths. Broad horizontal growth will result from heading back the upright growth.

Egg cartons can be used to give jewelry sparkle room.

By Lois Donahue

WITH costume jewelry as lovely and inexpensive as it is today, it doesn't take long to out-jewel a jewel box. The surplus, no matter how carefully placed in any box-like container, soon becomes a mess of tangled necklaces and seemingly mismatched earrings. Egg cartons can solve the problem.

Cut the tops off these cartons and spray paint both sections in your favorite color or colors. The cupped bottoms are made to order for earrings, pins, pendants and similar items. The flat shallow tops are ideal for larger pins, bracelets and necklaces. Use as many as you need for they can be piled compactly in a drawer or attractively stacked on your dresser.

Party Fare With a Foreign Flair

Tostadas with refried beans is a South-of-the-Border dish that adds interest to a party occasion that can be augmented with dress and decorations of Latin nature.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

AS A CHANGE of pace, a party with a "foreign accent" can be great fun. A colorful South-of-the Border fiesta calls for little more than a bright tablecloth, gay paper napkins with a Mexican motif, a sombrero and a few cha cha records. To add to the spirit of the occasion, invite your guests to dress as caballeros and senoritas in bandanas and flouncy skirts. Refreshments can be as elaborate or as simple as you like but a Mexican main dish should be included.

Here are two, Tostadas and Frijoles Rio Grande—neither too spicy nor too hot for American tastes, either one sure to rate bravos for the hostess!

Tostadas

Soak overnight in cold water to cover, 2 cups dry navy beans.

Bring to boil in same water and add ¼ tsp. ginger.

Cook, covered, over low heat for 2 hours or until tender. Try to avoid adding water. When beans are tender you should have so little water in the pan that it appears to have been entirely absorbed. With a potato masher, gently mash the beans so that about half are completely crushed.

Meanwhile, heat in large heavy skillet, ⅓ cup olive oil or bacon drippings. Add and cook for 5 minutes; 1 onion, chopped fine (about ½ cup) 1 clove garlic, chopped fine.

Turn mashed beans into skillet and season with:

2 tsp. salt

¼ to ½ tsp. dried ground or crushed chili peppers.

¼ tsp. black pepper

Heat and stir for 5 to 10 minutes, until thoroughly hot. Mixture should be almost dry. Taste for seasoning. Add more chili peppers if desired.

In heavy skillet, heat enough oil to fill skillet about ½-inch deep. Fry, one at a time, turning to brown both sides very lightly; 1 pkg. (12¾-oz.) frozen tortillas thawed.

Drain on absorbent paper and keep warm in slow oven, 250 degrees, until all tortillas have been fried. To serve, place a hot tortilla on plate and spoon some of refried beans on half of tortilla.

Sprinkle with finely shredded lettuce and shredded sharp cheese.

Fold tortilla over filling and eat out of hand, just like a hamburger sandwich. If desired, serve with chilled chili sauce. Makes about 15 tostadas.

NOTE: Refried beans are excellent served cold, topped with chili sauce or catsup.

To Latin Americans, beans are a staple, often combined with rice and hominy. This recipe for Frijoles Rio Grande combines beans with split

Gourmet's Delight in Jamaica

TRAVEL POTPOURRI: You don't go to Jamaica without coming away with delightful memories — tropical days and nights kissed with Caribbean tradewinds, the delightful people, and food.

One dish I'll never forget while down there as a guest of Delta Air Lines was baked black crab. Fellow travelers agreed that it was a gourmet's delight, and we vowed that one day we'd come back for more.

We told the chef at Tower Isle Hotel, on the north coast, how we felt about his delicacy, and asked for his recipe. He graciously gave it to us, explaining that it just might be possible to prepare it in the States—if we had the ingredients.

We haven't checked to see if all the ingredients are available but here's how it's made:

Prepare and boil one dozen black crabs for an hour. Separate inside, pick out all bones. Put aside crab meat and stock. Prepare one cup bread crumbs, one cup finely chopped onions, four cloves of garlic. Put to braise with the crab meat in a little butter. Season with hot sauce or "country pepper" (fresh hot red pepper). Fill crab shells with stuffing, sprinkle lightly with bread crumbs and bake for 10 minutes in a low oven.

Serve it hot and you'll see why we raved about it.

YOU WON'T GO far these days without running into something new that motel people have cooked up for your comfort and convenience.

Newest of these, and a sign of today's tense times, is a motel with, of all things, a house psychiatrist!

This head-shrinker comes as a kind of ultimate in special services for the executive crowd at Chicago's newest downtown motel, the Imperial Inn.

He will be part of the facilities, just like room service, the outdoor swimming pool, TV and the traditional pitcher of ice.

The whole idea, according to general manager Edward J. Toole, is that the motel will cater to the new breed of traveling exec in this era of decentralized business. Away from home base, these men-under-pressure — beset by traumas and tensions—simply jingle for the house psychiatrist and unload their troubles on him.

Sounds like an easy way to clear the slate, but how's the barkeeper going to like it?

ON JULY 15, Northwest Orient Airlines will celebrate the 15th anniversary of its inauguration of transpacific scheduled flights to the Orient.

In the beginning, Northwest flew Douglas DC-4s from the United States, via the Great Circle route over the North Pacific to Tokyo, Seoul, Shanghai and Manila — miles and hours shorter than flights via the Central Pacific.

Today, Northwest operates daily DC-8 jet round trips over the North Pacific between the United States and Tokyo, with service beyond to Seoul, Okinawa, Manila and Taipei. Total elapsed time from Seattle-Tacoma, one stop to Tokyo, is 11 hours, 56 minutes.

COL. PEDRO A. CHAPA, a veteran of almost 50 years as a pilot and pioneer in the Mexican aviation industry, has been named president of Mexicana Airlines (CMA). Educated in the United States, Col. Chapa also has a distinguished record in such diverse fields as industry, labor, civil aviation and national transportation in Mexico.

WEEKEND GADABOUTS:

July 4 — Some 75,000 visitors are expected for a picnic on a two-mile-long table under the pepper trees on Ontario's Euclid Ave. The occasion: All States Picnic.

July 4 — Huntington Beach marks the Fourth with a parade of 3,500 bandsmen, marchers, riders and floats which ends at the beach for a stage show, followed by a bathing beauty contest and fireworks.

Sarasota, famous for a circus background, displays two more of its attractions, 1961 Miss Florida, Sherry Grimes (top) and Melody Ann Reeves, a contestant for 1962 title in the city's beauty pageant July 1-7.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"All our friends (except us) seem to be going to Europe. We're running out of bon voyage ideas. Not too expensive, please!"

YOU never miss it until you get up at night in a strange hotel room. But a very handy thing to carry is a little penlight flashlight. Awfully handy on a dark plane at night when you don't want to turn on the overhead and wake everybody.

Anybody driving in Europe will be grateful on the road for those two Thermos bottle kits with room for a picnic lunch.

Since no gas station in Europe checks tires or washes windshields, a tire gauge is good.

Write "Be My Guest, Inc.", 20 W. 43rd St., New York City, for their catalogue. You can buy people an arrival dinner in Rome, have a bottle of perfume delivered to their room in Paris or buy them a session at Elizabeth Arden.

(Haven't used this service myself. But I heard it's being run by friends of mine and I know they are knowledgeable on the overseas stuff.)

You can buy something substantial if you feel generous. They list among gifts a $5,000 Ethiopian safari and a cruise of the Greek islands.

A nice present that costs you nothing: Air France will give you "Round the World Postal Guide." Lists air mail letter and postcard rates for 80 countries served by Air France and T.A.I. Saves your friends plenty time looking up the postal rates. Pocket size. Write Air France, Public Relations, 683 Fifth Ave., New York City, 22, New York.

". . . whether it would be a good idea to stay in Madrid—(you say it's cheap) — and drive out of there or take bus tours on short trips in Europe?"

IF YOU mean before late September, Madrid is a hot town. Spain is good on the south and east coasts. But these have been discovered by wealthy Europeans and prices are high in the season.

I think you'd do better around the Swiss - Italian lakes. Lugano and Locarno are wonderful towns. More central for traveling, too.

Portuguese beaches in the far south are great. Country's inexpensive. But you have to travel a long way to get up to central Europe.

"Do you have any 'key' words that a person should learn for traveling say in Japan or Hong Kong? We are going on an Orient tour . . ."

You won't need any language in Hong Kong, Singapore or Manila. Plenty of English.

Japan you can use taxi-resturant language: "Right, left and here" — "migi, hidari and koko." For bathroom you can ask for "benjo" — though I think there are politer shades of words, this works. Food you have to work off menus. Or trust the waitress.

Finding places: Give the driver the phone number of the restaurant, 10-yen coin and say "denwa" — telephone. He phones. Gets the directions and "soko," you're there.

"What do you think of going around Mexico by second-class bus?"

For the adventurous. Mexico has more than a share of bus accidents and bad ones. I ride the first-class ones, but not with much confidence. I wouldn't get on those locals with the chickens. I used to. But I've used up my nerve.

"A good book to read on old Mexico?"

I still think "Life in Mexico" by Mme. Calderon de la Barca (1840) is tops for description and lively reporting. Buy it paperback in Mexico City. And any translation of "The True History of the Conquest of New Spain" by Bernal Diaz, the eye-witness soldier of Cortez. Best of war reporting.

"I've been trying to get a newspaper I read in Rome—the Daily American or something like that?"

The Rome Daily American, 8 Via Danolo, Rome.

"What do you take as presents for people who entertain you in foreign countries?"

I SHOP the 10-cent stores for trick can openers and kitchen gadgets. LP records from late Broadway shows and 45-speed rock'n'roll for kids pack flat and go over big. The new American non-snag, seamless stockings haven't got overseas much yet and are a good item. Western gear like silver belt buckles are good.

Stan Delaplane finds it impossible to answer all of his travel mail. For his intimate tips on Japan, Italy, England, France, Russia, Hawaii, Mexico, Ireland and Spain (10 cents each), send coins and stamped, self-addressed, large envelope to Chronicle Features, 821 Market Street, San Francisco.

Here's Your Beach Car

She says her car is primarily a "fun car" by which she means you can have a lot of fun driving it around in your back yard. However, since it can be licensed for the road in California for $10, you can also use it for marketing (it has a 200-pound luggage capacity), visiting around the neighborhood or quick trips to the beach (if you live close). In fact Mrs. McShane thinks it may have such an appeal to the beach crowd that she may have to install surfboard racks on the sides. Also she can see a use for it by merchants to make light deliveries in.

AT PRESENT only one car is available for inspection. It is on display at the first sales agency Mrs. McShane has set up at 2825 E. Spring St.

This one is the Swift T and her manager, Tom Brophy, will show you a trick with it that you can hardly do with any of the new cars this year. If you should happen to want to inspect the underside before you buy you don't have to get down and crawl under. Just ask Brophy and he will flip the whole car over on its side and let you take a close-up look. Makes repairs on the road pretty easy, he says.

A View of the Vatican

By Vera Williams
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

BARRETT McGURN, newspaperman whose beat for 12 years has been the Vatican, gives a behind-the-scenes view of the massive organization that controls the world's largest church and an account of the papacy in terms of the current Pope and his predecessor in "A REPORTER LOOKS AT THE VATICAN" (Coward-McCann, $5).

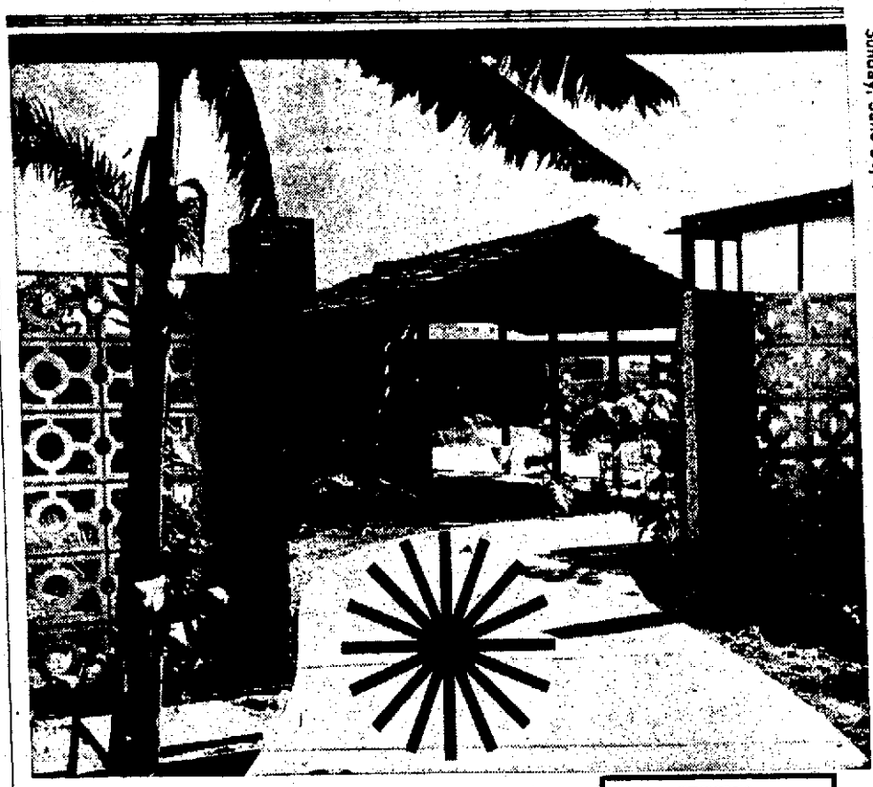

The volume, a Catholic Book Club selection, is certain to be of interest to Catholics and non-Catholics alike.

McGurn's account encompasses every aspect of modern life in the 108-acre area that is the headquarters of the Catholic Church. Included are an explanation of the Vatican's curious status as an independent state, a discussion of its press relations, a study of the papacy in terms of staff and operation, and an investigation into Vatican changes in the past 20 years and the outlook for the future.

The author outlines the role of Americans in Vatican affairs, the machinery of sainthood, and the church's efforts to reconcile dogma with the changing needs of today's 500 million Catholics, touching on such controversial issues as birth control and the 6,000-book Index.

PHILIP ROTH, fast-rising eastern writer whose "Goodbye Columbus" short stories won the National Book Award for distinguished fiction in 1960, has followed with his first full-length novel, a prolific and spectacular work.

"LETTING GO" (Random House, $5.95) is a keen probe into the soul of Gabe Wallach, a rational, poised but indecisive young university instructor, and his relationships with Libby and Paul Herz, cut off by their families and unhappy in their mixed marriage; and Martha Reganhart, a worldly, alluring divorcee, mother of two, who probably should marry Gabe but doesn't.

Roth etches his characters well—some comic, some pathetic, some brutish, some exasperating. The dialogue is often startling. Yet the story of how Gabe progresses to the realization of his spiritual destitution is tragic and comic; humanly warm and bitterly cynical — but never dull.

"THE AMERICAN ESTABLISHMENT" by Richard H. Rovere (Harcourt, Brace & World, $4.95) contends a super-power bloc influences American policy — regardless which party is in power.

Rovere speculates that Dean Rusk, the Republican who is secretary of state during the current Democratic administration, may well be chairman of the Establishment today.

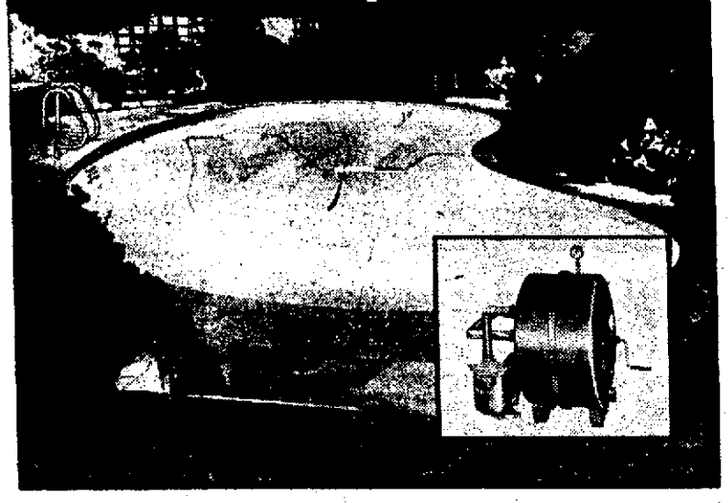

The New York Times editorial policies follow the Establishment's party line faithfully, says Rovere.

The Establishment usually has one man on the presidential ticket of both parties in any election, declares Rovere. If the Establishment wants, he says, it can place one of its own men in any cabinet post.

PETRU DUMITRIU, himself once an "insider" and now an exile, gives a terrifying view of the inside of Communist power in his novel "MEETING AT THE LAST JUDGMENT" (Pantheon, $4.50). The Communist machine here examined is that of Rumania, where Dumitriu once served as director of the State Publishing House.

PENNEY'S DOWNTOWN LONG BEACH

with an expedition to a New Frontier. Catherine the Great was sending ships southward along the coast from the Russian base in Alaska and the rest of California must be occupied before the Russians found a port, and military conquest had gone out of date. A spiritual conquest was less expensive, especially since the Franciscans could own no worldly goods and the missions would be built and furnished through the Jesuits' fund. All they required was military protection.

UPON WINNING independence, the Mexican government confiscated the prosperous mission lands and livestock. As the incumbent Fathers died or were deported to Spain, the buildings were left to the elements. Sun, rain and earthquakes took their toll, and the gringos took California.

In 1862, Abraham Lincoln returned the buildings to the Roman Catholic Church, and restoration was begun.

It was Father Serra's plan that the mission trail be such that a horseman might travel from one to another within a day and have a safe place to spend the night. This was not accomplished within his lifetime, but the groundwork was laid and by the end of the century it was true. The California he knew was a largely pagan territory, where a bodyguard was required to go from one mission to the next. His real goal was the spiritual and cultural rebirth of the Indians. A secular purpose brought the necessary cooperation from the civil authorities, but additional missions would also reach additional Indians. Besides, the long gap between stations hobbled his efforts when soldiers could not be spared for escort. As prefect, he had charge of all the missions then in operation, and they stretched from the Mexican border to San Francisco. Five hundred and fifty miles is a day's travel by automobile. At that time, it took more than two weeks of hard riding, if the trails were passable.

"I am only sorry that I do not know how to fly," he once wrote wistfully.

FROM THE earliest days, the missions were an oasis for tourists. The first was 1774. With about 30 men, Juan Bautista de Anza blazed a trail across the desert from Sonora. When they dragged their dying horses to a mirage calling itself San Gabriel, they knocked on the wall to be sure. The friars rang the mission bells in an excess of joy, and, as the ghostly echoes reverberated through the valley, the exhausted men were willing to believe in the hallucination. So willing that, two years later, De Anza led the first group of colonists to California, and San Gabriel welcomed 240 refugees, conjuring up food enough to support them for more than a month.

With the population explosion by the turn of the century, travelers took their hospitality as a matter of course. The Fathers had no radio or newspapers. Mail was slow and irregular. A guest brought news from outside and an exchange of ideas. The adobe rooms prepared for them were dark and damp, often without heat. The floor was hard-packed earth and the windows merely openings in walls four feet thick. If needed to keep out the cold or rain, a cowhide, stretched thin and greased for translucency, was fastened across them. The best bed was usually another cowhide attached to a frame on four legs. It might not have been like sleeping on a cloud, but consider the rates: the only charge for board and shelter was conversation. And when the visitor left, the gray-robed Fathers sent him off with food for the trek ahead.

THE PARADE

It's a Day for Dogs

By Eleanor Avery Price

TODAY hundreds of canine beauties will be trying to nose out other doggy competitors in the second day of the Harbor Cities Kennel Club show and obedience trial at Municipal Auditorium and grounds.

The Long Beach event is one of the finest of its kind in the nation. Beautiful trophies (displayed flanked by flowers), refreshing Pacific breezes, the integrity of David H. Upright, president of the club (whose motto has always been "good sportsmanship, showmanship, and entertainment"), the slate of fine judges, the hard-working team of Jack and Claire Bradshaw, superintendents, the unsung efforts of the stewards and clerks, and many other factors combine to attract a big entry and thousands of spectators.

Exhibited today are sporting dogs, hounds, and working dogs. Specialties include springer spaniels, weimaraners, bassets, bloodhound, borzoi, dachshunds, Irish wolfhounds, and Rhodesian ridgebacks.

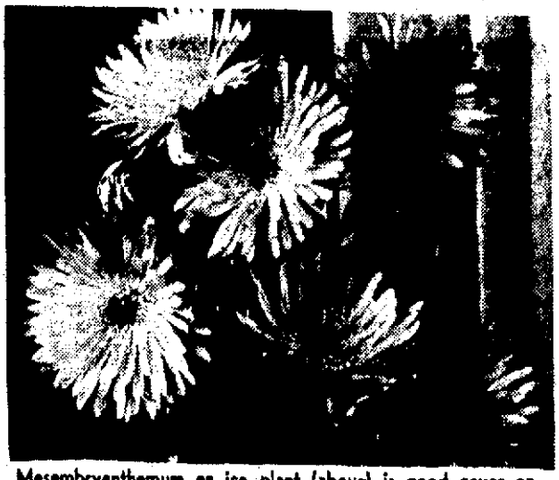

The six group winners from both days will be judged in the finale by Dr. E. S. Montgomery from Natrona Heights, Pa. Best-in-show winner will receive the Louis Upright Memorial Trophy.

SOUTH BAY Kennel Club all-breed, all-age fun match will be held July 1 at Normandale Playground, 224th Street and Normandy Avenue. This is an open club and information on membership may be obtained at the match.

Plantings for Slopes

By Joe Littlefield

THERE aren't many plants to choose from when considering planting some form of ground cover on a steep hillside.

Such a sheer hillside calls for vine-like ground cover to be planted several feet back

Fuchsias Are the Easy Way

By John Ronson

TENDER beauties of fuchsias in bloom completely belies the ease with which these shrubs grow in California. Given enough shade and water — the two main requirements in our summer-dry state — these rampant shrubs will produce mass after mass of their pendulous blooms through summer and well into fall. And if they are at their best in coastal gardens, it does not mean they won't flourish elsewhere.

One of the most delightful things about fuchsias is their willingness to produce new faces with each new year. Like roses, they seem to have an infinite capacity for change and that change seems always for the better. The following are only a few of the new fuchsias which California Association of Nurserymen members offer this year.

THE VARIETY Uncle Jeff is one you'll like. It's a large red and purple fuchsia that will scramble all over a wall or trellis. And another sturdy new one that will catch your eye is the white and pink Chantilly. Then come Vanity Fair, a lovely pink, Flirtation Waltz, a double pink and white, and Not So Big, a dainty little newcomer with blue and pink coloring. These are all upright shrubs.

Upright or slightly trailing in habit are Fan Dancer, a mixture of blue, pink and red, Blush O Dawn, a blue and white beauty, May Queen, a combination of pink and blue, and Royal Velvet, a striking combination of deep purple and crimson.

Given enough shade and water, fuchsias will produce masses of bloom all summer long and well into fall.

Trailing varieties for pot and container culture include Satan's Folly, a single fuchsia with long blooms of purple and maroon, Squarehead, a miniature single with delicate pink shadings, and Pink Foremost, a large-flowered beauty with varied shades of pink to identify it.

from edge of the drop, then allowed to grow in one direction, which is downward. Runner branches which grow in opposite direction from the embankment should be cut back to force growth into branches hanging down.

There are only about two we could recommend for such adverse growing conditions. One is English or Algerian ivy, the other is the common honeysuckle.

THE VINES should be planted two feet in from edge of the slope, in holes prepared with some organic mulch material mixed with soil. As the vines grow down, a fine mist soil soaker should be placed at the top near the edge of the hillside. A slight moistness in the hillside soil may encourage vine runner branches that are in contact with the soil to root from joints, and to a degree help anchor them and relieve weight pressure from the top.

Berms (mounds of soil with plantings on them), too, should be watered with fine mist soaker on the top of berm. This is even more important if a gardener at planting time doesn't work in some organic material that has a sponge-like quality to add to a coarse sandy soil, or into a dust-like soil that sticks together like gum when wet and hardens like cement when dry, in order to prevent it from packing tight again.

Recently, when discussing slope plantings, a nursery salesman helped a customer get good blooming results from roses growing near a slope planted to ice plant. He diagnosed the roses poor showing due to ice plant roots invasion in the rose bed. After the customer ripped the ice plant four feet down from the top, the roses improved in growth and flowered well.

Fuchsia Meet Set

Microscopic illustrations of food action within plants will be shown by C. B. (Doc) Houghton in a lecture before North Long Beach Branch, California National Fuchsia Society, at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at Houghton Park Clubhouse, 6301 Myrtle Ave. Potluck dinner is planned. Visitors are welcome.

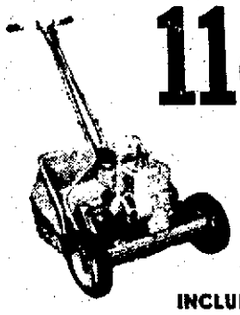

Fuchsias and gardenias will be part of a large plant table.

IVALOU JONES

Personable Sincerity

PERHAPS the word which best describes the atmosphere at Jones Dining Room and Cafeteria is sincerity.

During the 30 years that they have owned those two good-looking restaurants, Harold A. Jones and his wife, Ivalou, have been known throughout the community for their personable sincerity and integrity. In addition, these characteristics are reflected by all the personnel at the restaurants—from the waitresses, hostesses, servers and bus boys to the cooks and cashiers.

The pleasant thing about this sincerity is the fact that it is not pretended. The Jones' employes enjoy their work, their surroundings and the people they meet. When they say "Hello" or "how are you feeling?" to the guests, their voices and expressions show unaffected friendliness and sociability.

The food at the Dining Room, 120 E. 5th St., and at the Cafeteria, located next door, is consistently top quality. The Sunday dinners in the Dining Room are among the most generous in town and include all of the following: Chilled juices, soup du jour, salads selected from a lavish tray display; entree, potato, two more vegetables, a vast selection of muffins, rolls and breads, choice of beverage and choice of pie, pastry, parfait, pudding or ice cream for dessert. Among the entrees are chicken fried steak and breaded pork tenderloin, both $2.25; sea food platter (shrimp, scallops, and sea bass), $2.25; 12-ounce cut of prime rib au jus, $3.25; fried chicken, $2.25; Dover sole, $2.25; roast lamb with mint jelly, $2.40, and baked ham, $2.25. —TEDD THOMEY.

RALPH EDWARDS BACKS 'FAMILY-VIEWING' SERIES

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Ralph Edwards, with the enthusiasm of a college cheerleader but the vocal restraint of an announcer introducing the President of the United States, talked about his new show.

His organization is producing a summer series that replaces "The Jack Benny Show" for 14 weeks starting 9:30 p.m. today, channel 2.

"The title of the series, 'Speaking of People,' states the case so beautifully," he said.

"When we came up with the title, we researched it carefully to make sure it had never been used before."

The program, according to Edwards, will be "the feature page of life."

From all corners of the world, it will attempt to bring such individuals as the camel driver who talked with Vice President Lyndon Johnson or the Oscar Awards' gate-crasher.

"We won't try to compete with the news aspect, Edwards said. "What we want to do is go beyond the story and find out why did it happen. Why does a man set out to become a famous gate crasher?"

THE PROGRAMS will be for family viewing. They will deal with "life-and-blood people," not fictitious characters.

Their prime objective will be to entertain, but Edwards also hopes they will "throw off some good along the way."

The host of the program will be Warren Hull, formerly associated with "Strike It Rich."

"I hope," said Edwards, "that when people read about an interesting individual in the newspaper, they will say they'll bet that person will be on 'Speaking of People.'

"Because in our program we will be speaking of people by speaking to people."

Two days after the interview, a staff member of the Ralph Edwards organization called me. The "beautiful" title of the series had been changed.

It no longer was scheduled as "Speaking of People." It was now "Face to Face."

INTERVIEWING RALPH EDWARDS face-to-face, I asked him about "This Is Your Life," the TV program he hosted for 11 years. It was dropped this past season.

"We've had two offers to bring it back," he said. "One offer was for it to come back as a summer replacement show and the other was to return it as a regular season program.

"I am planning on bringing it back, but I no longer will be the master-of-ceremonies."

Edwards has a new program in mind for which he would like to be the host. He's tentatively titled it "This Is the Land."

The basic idea would be to geographically show viewers the different areas of our nation. To enliven the proceedings, Edwards would interview personalities from the different areas, former President Truman in Missouri, for example.

"I would like to make people more aware of our land," he said. "It seems to me that this thing has been neglected."

Edwards, from a financial point of view, doesn't need to host any television program.

His organization is associated with such productions as "Truth or Consequences," "It Could Be You," "About Faces," "Place the Face" and a number of others that have not yet hit the TV air.

But there is a reason why he wants to host the "This Is the Land" projected series and Edwards frankly admits it.

"I don't know if the ham in me would allow me to give up performing," he said.

It was "ham" that wasn't evident in the face-to-face interview.

Hey! Stop the presses!

New announcement just in from the Ralph Edwards organization.

"Title of the series originally scheduled as 'Speaking of People,' which was changed to 'Face to Face,' has now been re-named 'Who in the World.'"

Speaking of people, I'd like to come face to face with the title-changer for this series. What in the world's going on?

Sullivan TVer Enters 15th Year

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI)—The man with the rrrceeely big shoe is going to barge right into his 15th year tonight (Sunday, 8 p. m., channel 2) as the one and only proprietor, master of ceremonies, chief scout, moving spirit and stone-pussed Irishman on what he invariably calls "our show"—only when he pronounces it, it comes out "ahr shoe."

This, of course, is that hardiest of perennials, "The Ed Sullivan Show" (pronounced shoe). Lord Tennyson had a brook. Ed Sullivan has a television show. May they both run on forever. Matter of fact, Tennyson's brook is about the only performing artist that hasn't appeared on the Sullivan show. But it will. Give him time.

Ahr shoe began its run on CBS-TV on Sunday, June 20, 1948. In between that date and tonight have been thousands of star performers and a quest of more than a million miles by Sullivan in search of talent all over the world.

SULLIVAN CAN REMEMBER when snake-oil docs spieled in Liberty Square in Port Chester, N. Y., and when oxen pulled farm wagons on Pearl Street, two blocks from the Sullivan home. He came down from Port Chester, where he was a 12-letter athlete in high school, and went to work as a sports writer on the old "New York Evening Mail."

That was 1920 and he's been around here ever since. You may have known—and forgotten—that he put Jack Benny on radio. It was on March 29, 1932, that Benny made his radio debut on the Sullivan program.

Sullivan, in gray-blue-checked lounging robe and blue-checked pajamas, was swinging a hammer helping his wife hang pictures his piercing blue eyes a-squint to line them up just right—when the reporter arrived at his Hotel Delmonico apartment.

Well, to what—as the classic question goes—did he attribute his longevity, or, that is, his TV shoe's long and healthy life?

"Well," he said, "sometimes I go to banquets where the master of ceremonies takes so long introducing speakers that the speakers have hardly any time to speak. One of the reasons of ahr shoe being so successful is that I've never abused that. The most difficult thing in the world is to shut up. Our performers get the spotlight right quick. We operate on the principle that if you've gone out and got singularly talented people, for heaven's sake turn 'em on.

"ANOTHER THING is that we've brought stars from all over the world and have taken the shoe all over—Russia, Portugal, Spain, and filmed shoes in 18 countries. Another thing, we all work like dogs.

"If you respect your audience, it respects you. People know darn well that we respect them. If we didn't, we wouldn't work so hard. Everybody helps. Sylvia, my wife, was under a hair-dryer and a lady, a stranger, told her about two kid performers in Jamaica. We flew a scout down there and they were just as good as the lady had said.

"People send us postcards about acts from all over Europe—from such obscure places that you've got to get a map to track 'em down. Elevator operators and cab drivers will give you tips. One cab driver told me about a magician he had seen when he was stationed in Munich, and we got him and he was fine.

"You know who's one of our talent scouts? Carl Sandburg. He used to cover vaudeville in Chicago. He got us the acts of the Australian woodchoppers and the fellow who apparently stitches his fingers. Everybody gets interested in TV—it comes into your home and you get a proprietary feeling about it."

The first Ed Sullivan TV show cost about $375 for talent. A pair of youngster comics, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, got $150. Ruby Goldstein, the boxing referee, got $50. Rodgers and Hammerstein got nothing—they were just friends of Sullivan. Today's Sullivan show is budgeted at $40,000 a week for talent alone.

Pan and Fan Mail

Why can't we have a few TV programs that are interesting and not repeats?

Why can't we have a ball game and a couple of good wrestling matches (live)?

Why can't the whole bunch of repeat programs be thrown in the blue Pacific and a few new ones put on?

No wonder so many people are so disgusted and fed up they don't turn on the TV after 7:30 in the evening.

Mrs. Iline Ores, Long Beach

I don't think the State Fish Commission would approve of your idea to pollute the ocean.

* * * *

Just a note to tell you how much I enjoy your "Tele-Vues" and also want you to know that my mother in Redlands takes your newspaper just because of the TV section.

It has been several years since I saw the movie "Moonlight Sonata" and would like to see it again.

How about your influence to have it shown again?

Lisa Guante, Long Beach

I'll try, but I have considerably less influence with most TV programming managers than I do with your mother.

* * * *

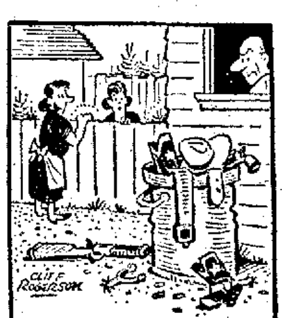

What happened to Lee Aaker of "Rin-Tin-Tin"?

R. Smith, Long Beach

He's just finished roles for Columbia in "Bye Bye Birdie" and Disney in "The Moon Cussers." In neither motion picture does he play second fiddle to a dog.

Judy Garland

CBS-TV will repeat its Judy Garland special on Sept. 19. The network also is negotiating with Judy for another special next spring.

everybody loves a warm bath...

...and a professional massage

Now your whole family can enjoy both with a Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath. It's like having a trained masseur at your beck and call 24 hours a day!

Jacuzzi WHIRLPOOL BATH

The most effective massage is water massage. Whirlpool water massage offers the advantage of providing penetrating heat combined with the simultaneous action of gentle massage.

Before development of the Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath, hydromassage was available only at clinics, health spas, and expensive private clubs. Never before could your family enjoy professional whirlpool massage in the home bathtub.

Whirlpool is not a new idea

Water massage in various forms has been used for many centuries. Ancient civilizations—the Romans, the Greeks, the Japanese—used water and water baths for relaxation and many human ills. Today, throughout Europe and America, better hospitals provide whirlpool water massage for those who can afford it.

The Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath is used professionally by physicians and therapists—in their own offices and hydrotherapy departments, and many doctors prescribe the Jacuzzi for their out-patients' use at home.

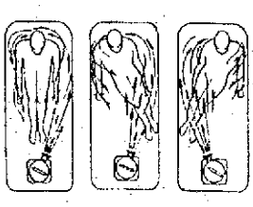

Hydromassage induces relaxation

The Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath causes moving water, charged with thousands of bursting air bubbles, to massage away minor aches and pains. It peps up local blood circulation where applied and induces relaxation—makes you feel good!

Every day, several times a day . . . you and your family can have beneficial water massage in your home bathtub. While you relax comfortably in the tub, the moving water caresses your entire body, like many tiny hands. You get the pleasure of professional massage without leaving the convenience and privacy of your own home.

You relax in the tub of water. Like tiny fingers, the moving water filled with millions of vibratory air bubbles massages every part of your body.

Change the massage pattern to suit yourself. Adjust the unit for vigorous hydromassage or gentle whirlpool bath. Unit maintains water temperature.

SUGGESTIONS FOR USE

Adjust the unit for vigorous hydromassage or gentle whirlpool bath, as you wish.

In the morning, use cooler water and full force of the Jacuzzi to produce a tingling, stimulating massage. It wakes up the blood stream, the brain and the ambition.

In the evening, use warm water and gentle flow of the Jacuzzi to calm jangled nerves, soothe minor aches and pain, and prepare you for deep restful sleep. It brings peaceful relaxation.

You can try it . . . FREE

Many everyday aches and pains may be unnecessary. Hydromassage relaxes and brings temporary relief of minor pains associated with

Chronic arthritis Sprains & bruises Aching back
Nervous tension Muscular soreness

But, you don't have to buy it in order to try the Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath. We want you to try it yourself, in your own home bathtub, FREE. There's no obligation. Call us today for your home trial.

STEVE ALLEN BACK ON TV

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Steve Allen is coming back on television Monday at 10:30 p.m. on channel 5 in a new show he describes as "90 minutes of everything" including an occasional filmland screwball, of which we have a variety.

Steve will do his 90-minute shows five nights a week. The show is being sponsored by Westinghouse and replaces that company's "PM" program which featured Mike Wallace.

A regular nighttime chatter show is nothing new for Steve. The humorist, who also writes books, music and plays the piano, cut his video teeth on the old "Tonight" show, later hosted by Jack Paar.

* * * *

"I'LL DO very much of what I did on the Tonight show," Steve said. "We got out a couple of kinescopes of that show just to see what it was I did do. They were funny so I guess we'll do the same thing.

"It'll be essentially a comedy show with attention paid to good music. We haven't decided yet who'll be with us but I have a couple of writers lined up."

Steve will have guests discuss various subjects, but he objects to a running stream of name talent which just sits around looking pretty.

"We won't use too many guests," he said. "Recently I saw a show which had guests and it was ridiculous. There were about seven important people, and the man didn't have a chance to talk with all of them."

* * * *

ALLEN'S PERSONAL interests include a wide variety of subjects and he often talks on philosophy, religion, literature and politics. He'll expound ideas over the air, something he's wanted to do for years.

"One of the reasons I decided to accept this offer from Westinghouse was because they said to me, 'Would you mind doing something with a little meat on the bones,'" he said. "Boy, was that wonderful to hear!

"Usually I would be saying that to sponsors and things didn't go too well. We see eye to eye that television has come of age. We hope to give people with various tastes something to grab on to."

Steve's show will not appear on a network. He'll be aired over the Westinghouse stations. The videotaped show will be offered to other telecasters, however.

"They're trying to cover the majority of the American people," Steve explained. "You can do that with about 15 stations."

* * * *

STEVE'S PROGRAM originates from the Fine Arts Theater on Vine Street in Hollywood.

"We're going to be working across the street from the Hollywood Ranch Market," Steve said. "It's a good theater for comedy. Groucho Marx and Art Linkletter did their shows from there in the old days.

"And we'll get some of our eccentrics from the market. Either that or we'll do the show from the market and let people shop in the theater."

Don't be surprised if you turn on your television set some night and see Steve interviewing a housewife at the cucumber stand.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dave Madden, born in Canada and reared in Terre Haute, Ind., is rapidly making a name for himself as a big-time comic. Not yet 30, Madden has played the Chi Chi in Palm Springs, Murray Franklin's in Miami Beach, the Tree Club in Dallas, has been signed to open Frank Sinatra's Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe on June 29. Madden, who features satirical one-liners in his comedy routines, majored in radio and show business at the University of Miami where he entertained at fraternity houses, worked his way up to odd jobs in the beach hotels. In 1961 Dave played Ye Little Club in Beverly Hills, Calif., where members of the movie colony caught his act and recommended him for the big-time. Here are some of Madden's funnies:

It's the awful fear of not belonging that's so depressing to the American male—his car doesn't belong to him, his clothes don't belong to him, his house doesn't belong to him.

No man is perfect, except of course the guy your wife could have married.

The most important thing in a relationship between a man and woman is sincerity—whether you mean it or not.

By importing millions of cars we have really solved the traffic problem—in Germany, France, Italy and England.

I understand that Joe Kennedy's favorite saying is: "Another day, another $42,625."

The only advantage I can find to being poor is that it is so inexpensive.

There's a rumor that fallout causes sterility. It got started because a sign on a bomb shelter stated: "Last One In Is An Old Maid."

I'm writing a book that's going to have the market all to itself. It's for people who want to be unpopular, unadjusted, unsuccessful and fat!

The easiest way to find the American Embassy in any South American country is just to follow the mob.

Those East Germans aren't taking any chances—they just tore down a statue of Horace Greeley.

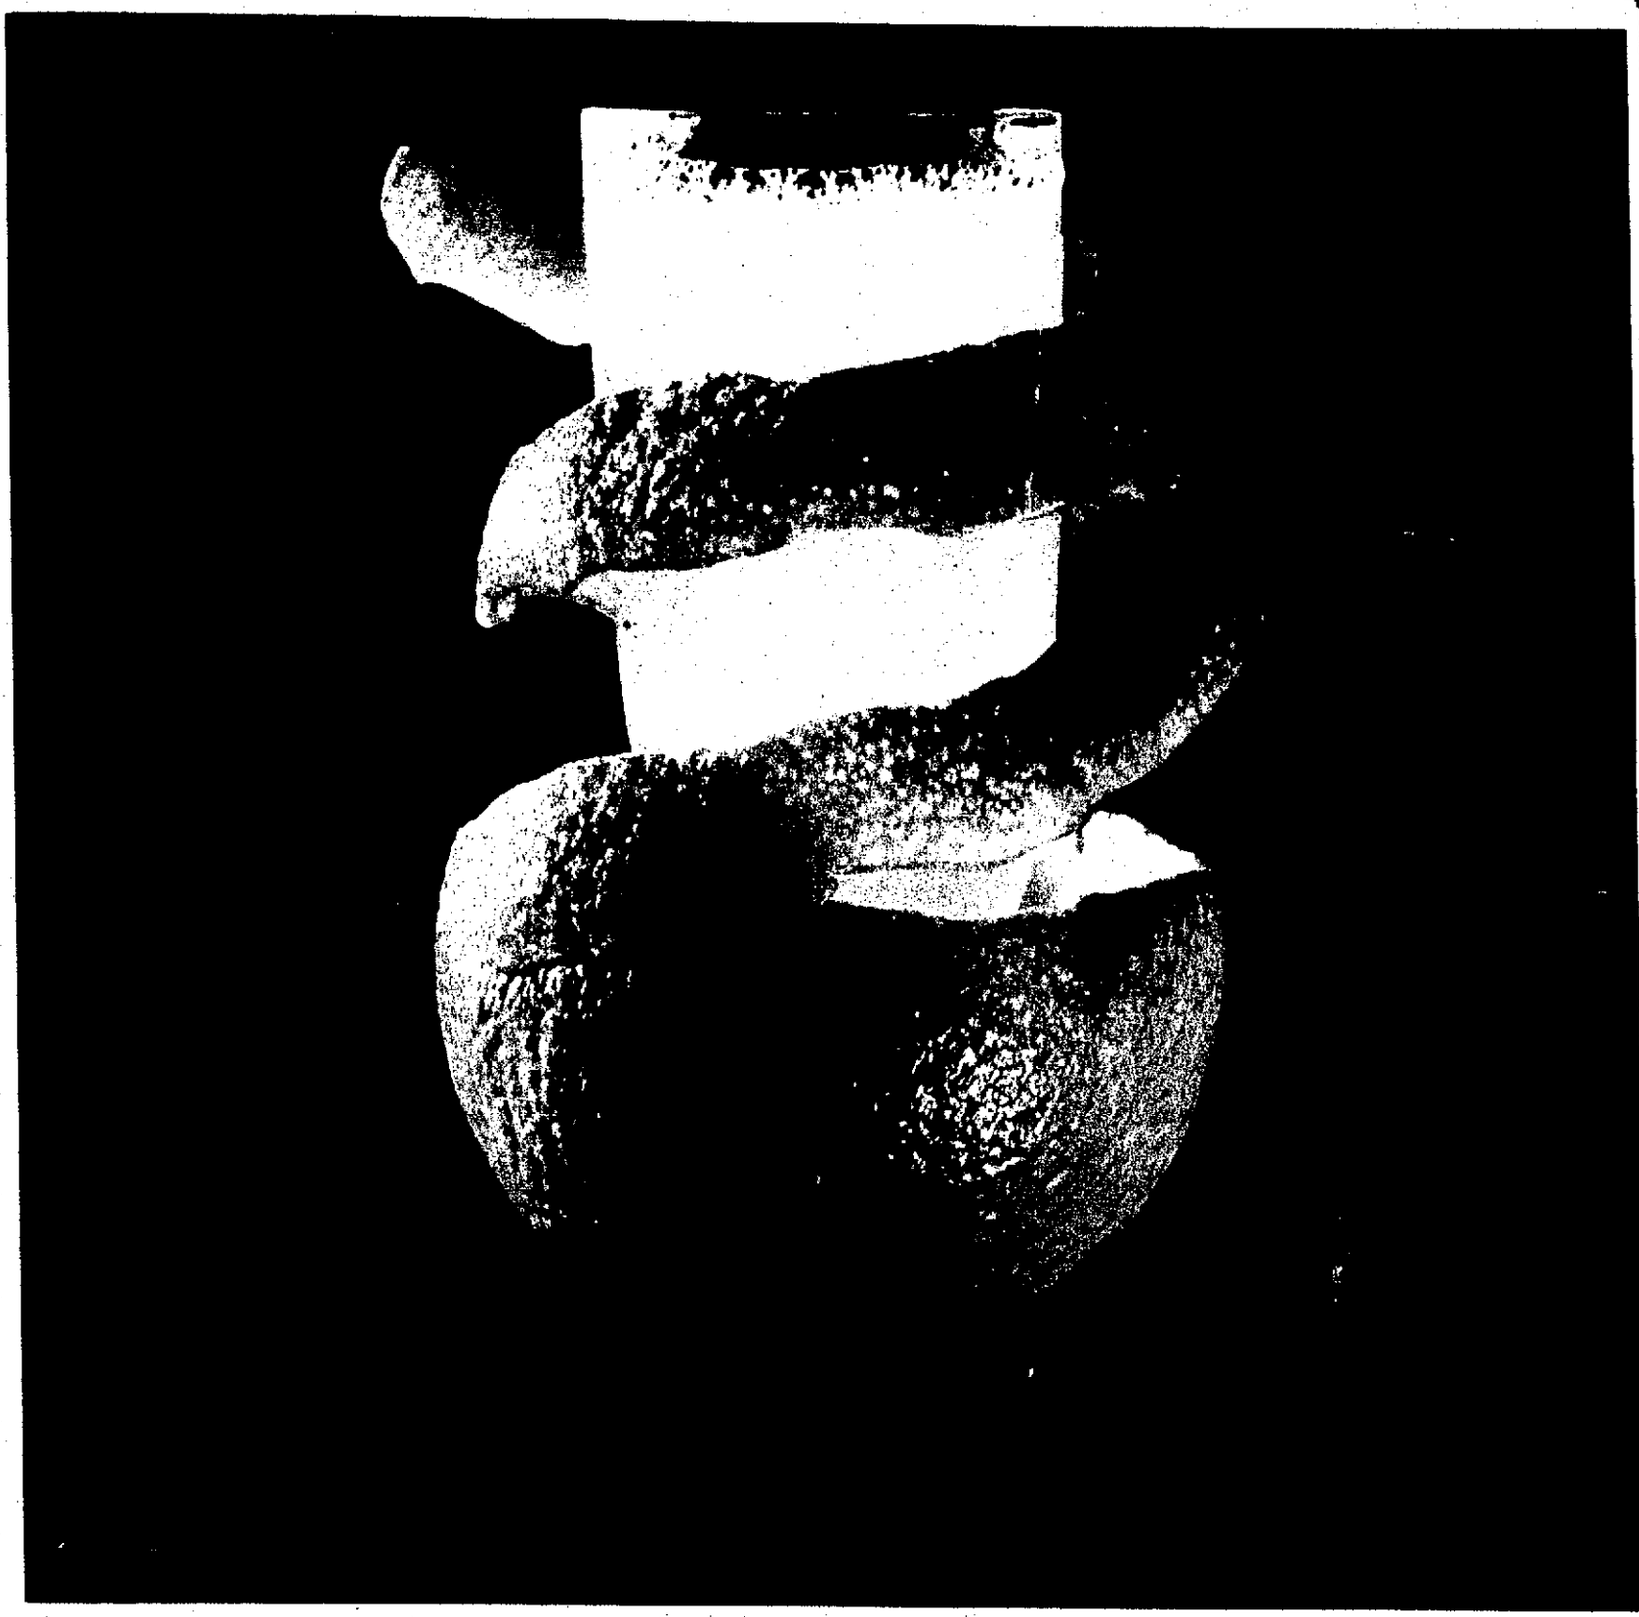

I have an idea which will save the United States government millions of dollars. All we have to do is stop making H-bombs and missiles and give one of each to Japan. Then, three months later we'll be able to buy all we want at one-third the cost!

Space scientists at Cape Canaveral are still trying to whip the most vexing, troublesome problem facing our Astronauts in their journey to outer space—what to do about itchy noses.

I'm impressed by the large number of reservists recently activated. Now it's possible for the Army, at a moment's notice, to throw 150,000 reservists into picking up cigarette butts.

I know a fellow who invented a device which allows you to share your neighbors' bomb shelter—it's called a bullet-proof vest.

And I have an uncle who is also an inventor of sorts. He tried to make a new kind of car and took wheels from a Cadillac, radiator from a Chevy, hub caps from a Ford, tail lights from a Buick. You know what he got? Two years!

THE RICHEST ORANGE FLAVOR IS SKIN DEEP... AND THAT'S WHERE TANG GETS ITS NEW NATURAL FLAVOR

Amazing but true: The richest orange flavor is not in the juice, not in the pulp, but locked in the rind of tree-ripened oranges. And that's where TANG gets its new natural flavor.

So, no matter how much you might have liked TANG before, you'll like new Natural Orange Flavor TANG even more.

Not a juice—not a soft drink, TANG is the instant breakfast drink that gives you more vitamin C than fresh or frozen orange juice... plus important vitamin A, too.

WHY HE'S UNDER FIRE: YOUR

TODAY'S DOCTORS are in trouble. They are under fire by the general public, politicians, and patients.

A large segment of the American people neither trusts nor respects them.

A mounting minority looks upon the contemporary physician as a mercenary more concerned with his pocketbook than his patients. In many areas he is regarded as an ultra-conservative dedicated to perpetuating his financial and social status quo rather than the health of the nation.

A recent PARADE poll reveals that the public image of the average doctor is changing for the worse.

No longer is he considered the devoted father-substitute — wise, understanding, self-sacrificial, blessed with nobility of purpose and loving kindness. He has traded in his horse and buggy for a shining, new high-priced car.

This is cruel, harsh, unfair, but it is a fact reflective of the current climate of opinion. In the PARADE poll, for example, 1200 adults throughout the country were asked: "WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE MEDICAL PROFESSION TODAY?"

Approximately 65 per cent thought doctors were doing a fine job. Another 3 per cent didn't know or wouldn't answer. But 32 per cent—one out of three—said they were disappointed or disillusioned in today's doctor, although not necessarily in their own.

Here is a cross-section of the negative replies which contain most of the public's complaints and charges:

"The good doctors are great. But let's face it—so many of the others should be cutting hair."

"Today the doctor-patient relationship has gone to hell."

"Physicians charge too much."

"Half the surgery they perform nowadays is needless."

"Medical costs are getting so high, only the rich can afford to get sick."

"In my community, physicians drive the biggest cars and live in the biggest houses. Who's paying for it? The public."

"I have a great doctor. He specializes in headaches. For every other pain he sends me to a different doctor."

"Instead of feeling your pulse, so many doctors feel your purse."

"As soon as a doctor finds out you're covered by insurance, he automatically raises the bill 25 per cent."

"Too many doctors are in the referral business. You pay them to refer you to another doctor who operates whether you need it or not."

"Doctors make more money than any other group of professional men in America."

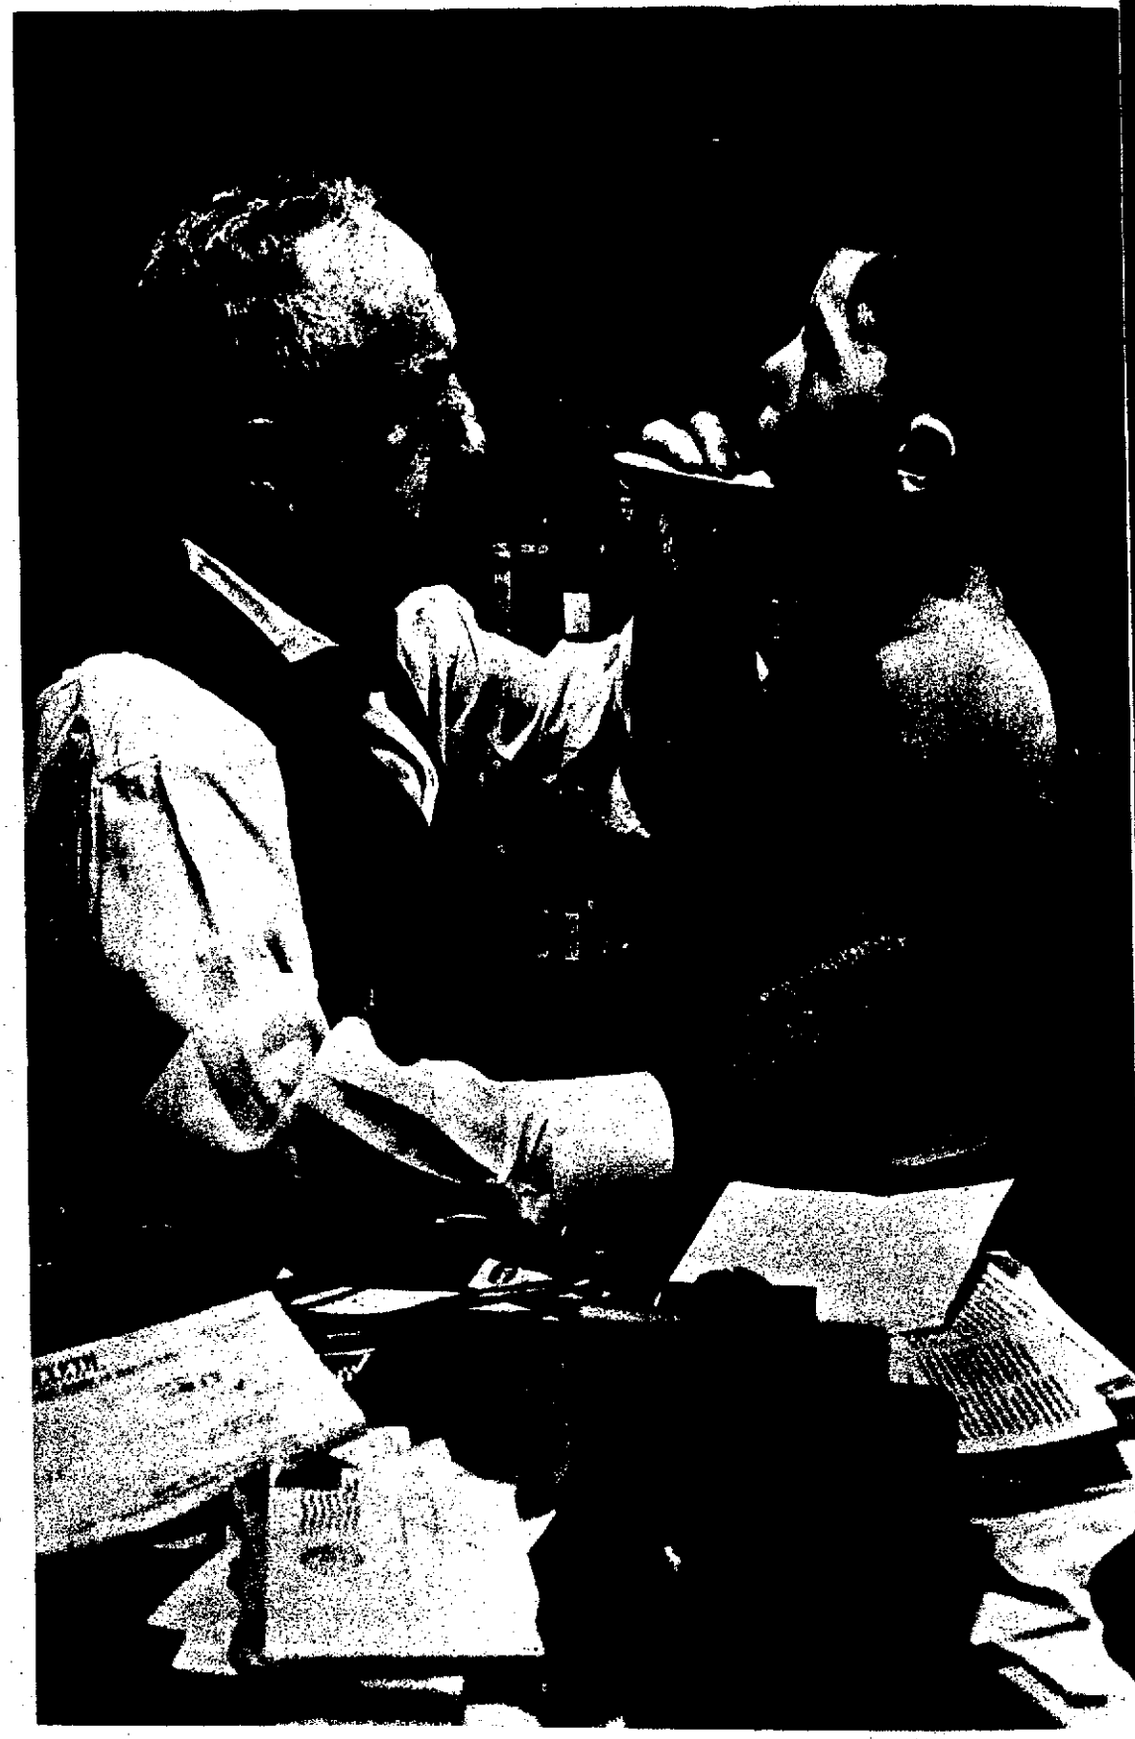

"I can't understand why I should pay $10 for a penicillin shot which costs my doctor 90 cents."

"Most people like myself simply can't afford a yearly physical."

"Doctors don't mind keeping you waiting, but just call them at night or on weekends and watch the way they brush you off."

"Doctors don't identify themselves with the sick any more. They identify themselves with the American Medical Association."

"Some doctors are so exclusive—no house calls, no night calls, no office calls on Wednesday afternoons. They limit their practice to the telephone."

Old-time family doctor (above) was a revered figure in American life. Doctors' image slipped after World War II.

DOCTOR

How true are these charges? Is it true, for instance, that doctors currently earn more money than any other professional group in our society?—a contention which seems to bother so many people.

Physician's Management, the doctor's business journal, says in its May 1962 issue: "A recent survey showed that the average individual net income for general practitioners was approximately $25,000 per year."

Medical Economics, another journal devoted to the physician's financial affairs, reports the typical doctor grossed $40,000 from his practice in 1961, paid $15,000 in professional expenses, $5,000 in taxes, had a net after taxes of $20,000.

Although the Department of Commerce has not yet made a final tabulation from the 1960 census of income by occupation, Edwin Goldfield, chief of statistical reports, claims that from the available figures, physicians and surgeons in the U.S. earn more money than any other professional group.

While this fact may underlie the layman's financial jealousy of the doctor—an important factor in the declining image—the vital question is: Do doctors deserve what they earn?

With the possible exception of the clergy, no group works longer or harder than the medical. No profession requires a more arduous or expensive education. In no profession are the requirements for practice and promotion more stringent. In no other profession—teaching, dentistry, engineering, architecture—are students made to serve internships and then to render services without fees. In what other profession does it take a man at least ten years to establish himself?

Today's honest, capable doctor truly deserves what he earns.

Take next the frequent charge that doctors perform needless surgery out of incompetence or fee-splitting venality. There is a good deal of evidence that in many communities this is true.

In New York City a group of expert doctors and medical professors, headed by Dr. Ray Trussell of Columbia University, studied recent medical records of 250 Teamster Union members and their families.

The Columbia University report released in May, this year, shows that one-fifth of all the hospital admissions were unnecessary, that of 60 hysterectomies (removal of the uterus) performed, at least 20 were needless; of 13 Caesarean sections, only six were necessary. One woman, bothered by a small cyst, was persuaded by a doctor to submit to major surgery during which her completely normal appendix was removed. Worse yet, the doctor would not sign her out of the hospital until she paid $450.

In New York City, too, approximately 1500 doctors —or one in every 12—have been implicated in an insurance claims racket "of conspiring with lawyers to submit false claims, exaggerating medical reports, submitting bills for treatment not administered and listing X-rays that were never taken."

Are the doctors of New York an isolated, exception-group, more greedy and mendacious than the doctors of other states, or do they reflect the moral malaise of our times?

There is a mounting belief by the public that the so-called "few" rotten apples in the doctor barrel are increasing in number, that somewhere along the line the physician's altruistic call to serve the sick has been corrupted by his monetary desire to serve himself. There is a nagging suspicion that perhaps the doctor after all isn't such a great guy, that he's an ordinary man with ordinary character weaknesses, beset by and submitting to the temptations of selfishness and self-aggrandizement like the rest of us. There's a great difference between a father image and a "one-of-us" image. The difference lies in trust and respect. Nowadays physicians are getting less of each.

Probably the major cause in the downgrading of the doctors' public image is the change which has taken place since World War II in the doctor-patient relationship. People resent what they consider the impersonal yet expensive business-like treatment rendered by overworked physicians.

Listen, for example, to a Chicago auditor who volunteered to explain his antagonism towards doctors.

"Two weeks ago," he said, "I went to my doctor, who's always busy. Told him I was feeling lousy. The usual complaints—tired, tense, jittery, couldn't sleep, pains in the chest. I wanted to tell him more, but he said that was enough. He sent me down the hall to have the chest X-rayed. Then I had a blood count and a cholesterol count and a heart tracing and an electrocardiogram and a urine analysis, the whole works.

"When I returned a few days later for the results, I was feeling just as bad as I had if not worse. I still had pains everywhere. But the doctor told me I was in good physical shape, and the nurse told me that my bill was $95.

"I wrote out a check for $95. Then I took the elevator down to the garage. Next to my car, I noticed a brand new 1962 Mercedes. I looked inside, and sure enough, who was the owner? My doctor!"

The average doctor in America works at least 60 hours a week, sees at least 20 patients a day. He is over-worked and understaffed. There is a shortage of doctors in this country. The doctor has little time for the chit-chat or pleasant conversation wanted and needed by the auditor from Chicago. He's got to get down to business if he's going to care for his daily patient load.

The result is that at a time when the stress and strain of living has increased, when people need father-confessors more than ever, when at least 20 per cent of all disease is psychosomatic in origin, the average doctor is compelled by circumstances to give his patients less rather than more personal attention.

What is the solution to the problem? What can doctors do to upgrade their public image? First, they must patrol their own ranks more carefully and ruthlessly remove rather than protect the incompetent and dishonest practitioners. Second, they must educate the public into realizing that diagnostic procedures have now reached the point where the patient's subjective recitation of his symptoms can be shortened. Patients must be told that medicine is changing, that there are too few doctors, that general practice is being avoided by new doctors, that the gap between physician and patient is widening, that group medical practice is replacing solo medical practice, and that the patient must accustom himself to these changes.

In short, doctors have to start telling the public that they "ain't what they used to be"—and couldn't be even if they wanted to. ■

A frank appraisal from a Parade medical panel

Participants were the center's executive director, Dr. Wolf; Dr. Callow, Associate Chief of General Surgery, New England Center Hospital; Miss Katz, Administrator of the Boston Floating Hospital for Infants and Children; Miss Wheeler, Director of Social Service, New England Center Hospital; Dr. Gibson, Chief of Home Medical Service, Boston Dispensary; and Mr. Galvin, Managing Director of the World Trade Center in New England.

Here are some of the points they made:

People move around more. They don't stay in the same neighborhood as long as they used to, don't develop a stable relationship with one doctor. And increasing specialization means they see less of their regular general practitioner.

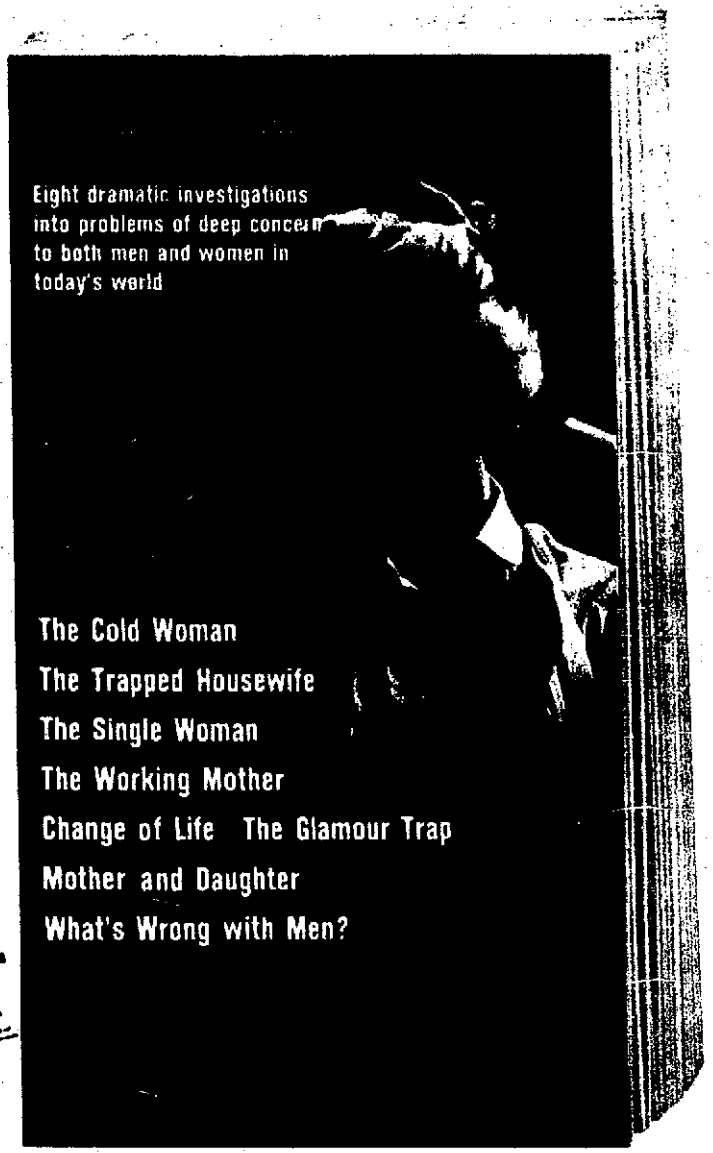

Costs are up. Hospital bills rise seven per cent a year; doctor and drug costs aren't far behind. But the panel pointed out the average patient is perfectly willing to pay for expensive cars, appliances, etc., yet skimp on medical bills.

TV makes doctors too glamorous. "It never rains in surgery on TV," one doctor commented. "Ben Casey has only sunny hours." Result: viewers are baffled and disappointed when their own doctor doesn't match Casey or Dr. Kildare.

Medicine is getting less human. Hospitals are bigger, more crowded, more mechanized. Inevitably, there's less consideration for individual patients. "It's like the difference between the old corner grocery and the modern supermarket," said Galvin. "You lose the warmth, but you gain a range and variety of services you never dreamed of."

Dr. Margaret Mead, noted authority on human relations, says, "Every woman who lives with the loneliness of her own emotional problems will want to read this understanding book."

The screen's fastest rising star

HORST BUCHHOLZ

by LLOYD SHEARER Parade Hollywood correspondent

HOLLYWOOD.

CAN ANY ACTOR born and reared in Hitler's Germany become an international movie star?

The feeling here is that if any leading man can pull it off, that actor will be Horst Buchholz, 28, a lean, brown-eyed, handsome Berliner who has starred in four major Hollywood movies none of which was filmed in Hollywood.

Buchholz made The Magnificent Seven in Mexico. He worked in Fanny in France. He made One,Two,Three in Germany and recently finished Nine Hours to Rama in England and India.

Prejudice dies hard, especially in war-wracked Europe where the Germans are still the most widely and intensely hated people on the continent. This is why Buchholz, popularly termed "The German Jimmy Dean," has been constantly urged to change his name to something more Hollywood—like Hart Brown, Vick Virile, Brick McCarthy or Hugo Maria, a combination of his parents' Christian names. On occasion he has also been advised to deny his German origin or to become a Swiss citizen like Maximilian Schell or at the very least, to use his middle name of Werner instead of Horst.

Early in his film career Buchholz permitted himself to be billed as Hans Buchholz, but he says now, "My name is Horst Buchholz. I was born in Germany. My father was a poor shoemaker in Berlin. He was not a Nazi. I will not change any of the facts in my life to help my career. People say I am just like Jimmy Dean. I am not just like Jimmy Dean. I am just like Horst Buchholz. I am what I am, and I hope people will accept me as an individual and as an actor. I don't represent any group or generation or nationality. I represent myself."

Unlike Jimmy Dean, who was a rude, ill-mannered, selfish, physically dirty young man, sullen and resentful, Buchholz is an extremely likeable actor, well-mannered, smiling and, according to Billy Wilder, who directed him in* One, Two, Three, "One of today's two young actors who are not money-mad. The other is Jack Lemmon, and they both have a shining integrity.

"Buchholz, for example," says Wilder, "can now command maybe $200,000 a picture. Yet he is going to do a show on Broadway this fall, something called Andorra—the play is a kind of La Dolce Vita in a small European country—for peanuts. In this day and age that's very admirable. The other thing I like about Horst is his consideration. He's a very good son, he's bought his parents a house in Bad Godesberg, he's given his sister Heidi a job answering his fan mail, he's a wonderful husband and father—he insisted upon flying back to Hollywood when he was making Nine Hours to Rama to see his first-born child—and he helps everybody he can.

"Consideration is a very unusual and revealing trait in an actor," Wilder maintains. "Most actors consider only themselves. Not Buchholz. I remember when we were shooting One, Two, Three in Munich, Horst had a day off and went to lunch with Nelson Gidding, who wrote the Rama screenplay. Gidding told Horst how he wanted him for the part of the man who assassinated Gandhi. Horst got so excited he drank two or three extra vodkas. Then he got into his new Cadillac and smashed it up. He was almost killed and he had to pay a fine of $6,250, but the only thing that worried him on the operating table was that he was delaying the production of One, Two Three. Any other actor would have said, 'For God's sake, Billy, look at my face and tell me the truth. Am I scarred?' Not Horst. He just said, 'Forgive me for the delay, Billy.'"

Miriam Bru, the French actress to whom Buchholz is now married, says, "Horst is very easy to live with. He does not behave like an actor. He behaves like an American."

Mark Robson, who last month finished directing Buchholz in Nine Hours to Rama, believes that the high-cheekboned young actor "is essentially a nice human being who will become one of the world's leading movie stars within the next five years because his intelligence appeals to men, his virile sex to women." Robson says, "There is nothing Germanic or Prussian about Buchholz, nothing in his bearing or his speech that is Teutonic. He has great compassion for others, and I think this compassion was born out of his own suffering and hardships."

War-Torn Childhood

Horst Buchholz was born in Berlin on December 4, 1933, the son of parents who found it so difficult to make ends meet that for the first four years of Horst's life they boarded him with foster parents. After World War II broke out in 1939, Horst began to experience life in a war-torn city. In 1941, after his sister Heidi was born and his father was drafted into the German army, the youngster was evacuated first to East Prussia, then to Saxony, and finally to Czechoslovakia.

"What I learned from the war," says Buchholz, "was to judge people. I remember in Czechoslovakia I had no idea of how the Czechs felt about us. After all we were just children. But when the Russians began approaching in 1945, the Hitler Youth officials decided to ship us back to Germany. The Czechs mined some of the railroad beds. They used what we call 'telemina,' those flat mines that blow up anything. Well, there were about a thousand German kids on the train, and when the mine exploded it got the last two cars.

He became her 'awful wedded husband'

Scavenging for Survival

"After that we had to walk into Germany. To survive I stole potatoes from the fields and cooked them over fires. I begged from peasants. No one had anything. One farmer would share what he had. Another would run you off his land. One woman would feed you. Another would throw rocks and put the dogs on you. To survive, I developed self-reliance. When I finally made it back to Berlin I found my mother. She told me my father was in a prisoner of war camp in France. At 11, I became the man of the house."

It sounds incredible but Horst Buchholz was the sole support of his mother and sister from 1945 to 1948 when his father was finally released. The boy worked in the East German rhubarb fields. He exchanged his mother's curtains for food. The schools weren't open, but he picked up English from the American soldiers.

When he was 13 a friend of his told him that someone was staging a musical at the Metropole Theatre in Berlin and was hiring children as extras for 75 cents a day. Horst applied for a job. "That's how I got started in show business," he confesses. By the time young Buchholz was 15 he was going to school, working in films dubbing children's voices, acting in radio, and dancing in the theatre. At 17 he left home to earn more money in West Germany. Each weekend he crossed back into East Berlin, gave his parents the lion's share of his earnings. His first big acting break came when he was cast in Jean-Paul Sartre's The Dead Without Coffins. He was then signed for a role in Die Halbstarken, re-titled in the U.S. Teenage Wolf Pack.

Immediately the bobby soxers cottoned to him, insisted he was Germany's version of Jimmy Dean, began inundating him with fan mail. Because he was popular at the box office and cheap to hire ($5,000 to $10,000 per film) Buchholz worked steadily all over Europe.

In Italy four years ago he filmed Tolstoy's Resurrection with a French actress, Miriam Bru, and fell in love with her while they locationed on the island of Ischia. He had to report to London for Tiger Bay with Hayley Mills immediately after Resurrection, "so I never had time to tell Miriam how I really felt about her. One day in London I got lonely and phoned her in Rome. I asked her to come to England."

Says Miriam, "When I arrived in London, Horst said to me, 'I'm going to marry you on Sunday.' I thought he was fooling but he was not."

Wacky Wedding

The wedding, which took place at Caxton Hall, was comedic. Halfway in the ceremony the justice said, "Repeat after me: 'I, Miriam, take Horst Werner to be my lawful wedded husband.'"

The bride repeated, "I, Miriam, take Horst Werner to be my awful wedded husband."

The slip in pronunciation broke Buchholz up, and it was minutes before the ceremony could continue. Buchholz still kids Miriam about the error.

Ever since her marriage to Buchholz, Miriam has abandoned her acting career. "Who needs it," she asks, "when one has a husband like Horst?"

Because of his outstanding performance as Marius opposite Leslie Caron in Fanny, young Buchholz is now in demand by virtually every independent producer and major film studio in Hollywood. Billy Wilder has a multiple-picture deal with Horst. Josh Logan has him signed for two more pictures. Twentieth Century-Fox has offered him a seven-year contract on his own terms. At 28 Buchholz is in the enviable position of calling his own shots.

"You know," he said to me in London recently, "I am beginning to get rich, and it frightens me. I know I can handle poverty. But money, that's much more difficult."

In addition to boundless talent, Horst Buchholz possesses genuine humility. In a motion picture star, that's almost impossible to find. ■

Success in One, Two, Three proved Buchholz could do comedy as well as drama.

THIS IS THE MAN your family may have to turn to some day... choose him carefully

THE BIG EAR

It will pick up sounds and pictures from space satellites

Huge 177-foot "ear" waits at Andover, Maine, ready to pick up signals from first communications satellite.

ANDOVER, MAINE.

IN A MATTER OF DAYS, the world's first communications satellite—Telstar—will soar into orbit. Shortly thereafter, if all goes well, it will emit its first infant peeps— tiny electronic signals, undetectable by ordinary scientific equipment.

Waiting to pluck those signals from space and transform them into sounds and television pictures, beamed into every home, will be the huge horn-shaped object pictured above, hidden deep in the wooded hills near this Maine town. "Earth Station, for Communicating by Satellites," says the sign at the entrance. Scientists working on the project call it "The World's Biggest Ear."

The Ear will make it possible for the first time to transmit live television across the ocean. Broadcasts will be aimed at the Telstar in the sky, which will receive them and aim them back down to the Ear. Scheduled to star in the first transatlantic telecast are President Kennedy and Britain's Queen Elizabeth, who'll exchange greetings. By the end of the year daily transmission should be under way between here and Goonhilly Downs, Cornwall, where the British are building their own earth station.

ESSENTIALLY EARTH STATION, MAINE, is a gigantic electronic ear trumpet, made of aluminum and steel, built to the precision of the finest watches and weighing 340 tons. It can pick up an incredibly minute signal from the 2-watt satellite transmitter 3000 miles out in space, multiply it one billion times, and send it out across the nation —as a telephone call, TV program, or news picture.

The need for such a device is becoming urgent. By 1980 we'll make 100 million international phone calls a year, 20 times as many as now. There'll be new demands for world-wide television, world-wide news coverage for people who want to see events and places "live."

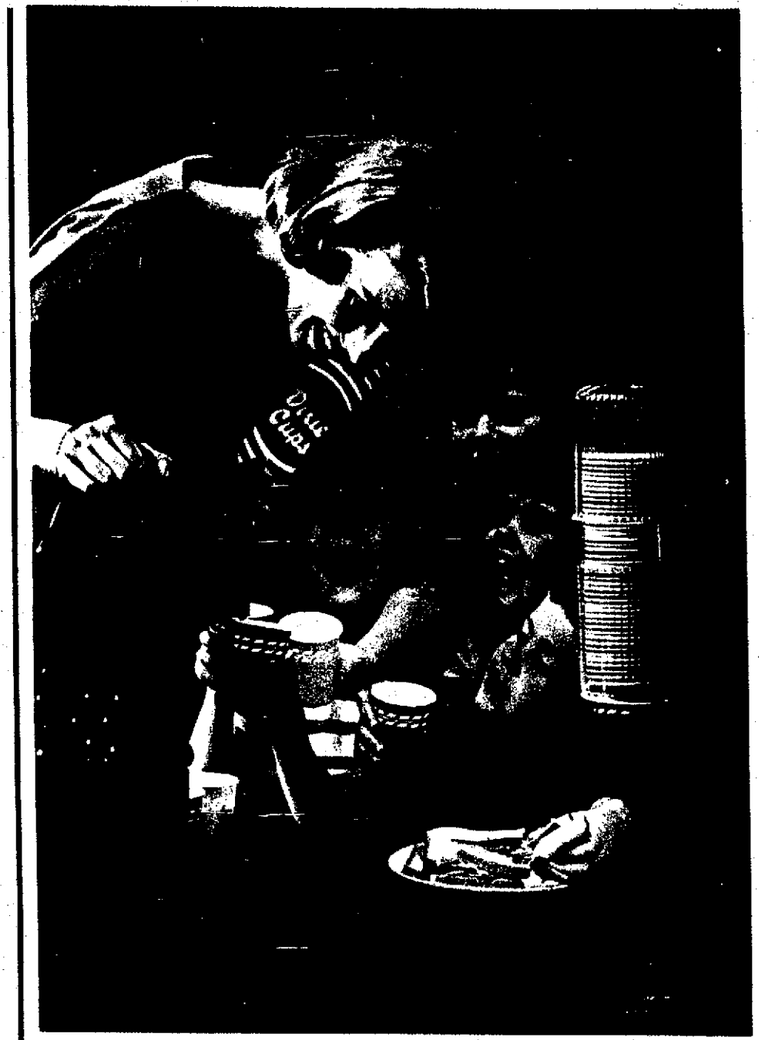

Says Irwin Welber, 38-year-old director of operations at Earth Station, "I can easily foresee international television on a round-the-clock basis within eight years—and a vast increase in country-to-country phone calls. To do that, though, we'll need some 60 Telstars continually orbiting the earth at the equator and the poles."

WELBER AND HIS ASSOCIATES here are all members of American Telephone and Telegraph's Bell Laboratories. They're wizards at communications in space. On earth, though, they have the same problems as everyone else. "We can hear a star squeak 200 million light years away," one scientist told me, "but until recently, to call our wives, we had to ring up Mr. Alston Meisner's general store in Andover. That's where the town switchboard is."

The work here is only a start. Already Germany, Italy and France plan earth stations. Newer, more sophisticated Telstars will someday pepper the sky. They'll bring the world into your home. They might even save your life.

That could happen if a missile ever ran out of control. A runaway missile headed, say, for the U.S. or the Soviet Union could start an accidental war. To prevent such a catastrophe, PARADE editor Jess Gorkin was the first to propose a 24-hour direct telephone line between the White House and the Kremlin (PARADE, March 20, 1960). A foolproof means of such direct communication would be to bounce the signal off a satellite. If that emergency ever arises, we'll all be grateful for the Telstar.

OPEN TO DISCUSSION

should you KISS IN

Duchess of Windsor seems pleased with peck on cheek as Duke returns from trip to Europe. Britain's Lady Astor, also American born, takes opposite view on public kissing. She abhors it.

by ROSALIND MASSOW

When Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy came home from Greece last year and was greeted by her husband at the airport, the pair kissed a warm hello. Prodded by cameramen covering her arrival, Mrs. Kennedy kissed him again. Flashbulbs popped, spectators cheered and the embarrassed President, like a little boy who didn't want to be seen being kissed, mumbled to his driver, "Come on, come on, let's go."

While there are undoubtedly many Americans who would take a dim view of the President greeting his lovely wife with a handshake, kissing in public has long been a source of world-wide controversy. Laws have been written about it, people have been arrested for doing it, cars have been wrecked over it and suburban traffic has been jammed by it.

In many countries, kissing in public is against the law. Italian police, who look the other way when ladies squeal from a flirtatious pinch, don't hesitate to incarcerate public kissers. In Rovigo, Italy, last year a couple kissing on a dance floor were arrested and fined $16 each.

Special police squads to halt kissing are responsible for a Supreme Court ruling in Italy: that it's a crime to kiss in an auto, even if the windows are frosted and no one can see inside. Three months to three years in jail are the penalties that could be imposed for public kissing, a long time to think back on fleeting pleasures, and yet Italian girls certainly don't look neglected.

In Cairo, Colombo, Bangkok, most parts of Asia and in South America kissing al fresco, where people can see, is considered immoral. Paris, known all over the world as an open city for lovers, made a mild show of primness in 1953. The famed Café de la Paix handed out cards to customers saying it would be appreciated if they would please repress their emotions and not display any signs of affection over their cognacs.

It's Contagious

Paradoxically enough, Communist countries, which are not noted for their high political principles, are very prudish when it comes to public kissing. In the Soviet Union, for instance, where public displays of emotion are considered "Nyet Kulturni," the younger element has become park-bench bold. Kissing has become so prevalent that anti-kiss propaganda has been attached to benches in most Komsomol (Communist Youth) parks. One placard reads: "Citizens, take care! Influenza is an infectious disease. It is transmitted by kissing and hand holding." Another warns: "Heart attacks, tuberculosis, cancer and other illnesses are transmitted by kissing." But the young people, with the extreme self-confidence of their age, find that they have been able to resist all diseases except love, which is also communicable—and so now kissing in public is at least tolerated.

In the U.S. political campaigners have made ample use of the kiss in getting out the vote. While kissing babies is the accepted formula for attracting mother's vote, it has less publicity value than kissing local beauty queens on the tip of the nose. At least these pictures get into the paper.

A veteran political reporter in Washington, who has seen much of this type of campaign, reports that kissing for votes belongs to the old-style flamboyant politician. The new breed of office-seeker shies away from such corny displays. Sen. Kenneth Keating, of

PUBLIC?

Hello kiss at airport between JFK and Jackie on her arrival home from Greece embarrassed him.

N.Y., an up-dated type among office-holders, has his own thoughts on kissing.

"Historically there is some question as to when the practice of political kissing actually began," says Keating, "but there is no doubt that this form of lip service to one's party is on its way out. Like the whistle stop harangue or the torchlight parade, it appears to be succumbing to television, which more and more obliges the candidate to demonstrate the coldness of his logic rather than the warmth of his heart."

To find out how some other people feel about kissing in public, PARADE conducted an informal canvass of some of our more prominent Americans in the fields of arts and science.

Olivia de Havilland, actress and writer, married to a Frenchman, Pierre Gallant, thinks kissing's grand, anywhere, anyplace and anytime.

"I believe in kissing my husband anytime I am moved to do so, but of course my husband isn't President of the U.S.," declares Olivia. "I suppose my husband is a little embarrassed if I give him an affectionate kiss in the street or at a party, but it's a certain kind of embarrassment—a pleasurable kind.

The Surprising English

"I don't know why," Olivia adds, "but everybody thinks the French are the great kissers. I have found they are not. The English may not be aware of it, but a visitor to England is more shocked at the kind of thing that goes on in Hyde Park than what he may see under a street light in Paris."

Writer Abe Burrows, whose Broadway play, How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, won him a coveted Pulitzer Prize this year, is for kissing in public—in a limited way.

"I can't understand people who are annoyed by it—and yet I don't think people who really want to kiss would do it in public. I think it's all right if a guy kisses his wife at the airport, but if a kiss is full of real emotion you don't want everybody to know about it. Teenagers kiss in public because they want to show everybody how grown up they are."

Under the microscope of the sociologist, kissing becomes unbelievably complex. Dr. Robert O. Blood, a professor of sociology at the University of Michigan and author of the current book Marriage, says kissing attitudes are a matter of upbringing.

"It's perfectly acceptable in American society for a wife to kiss her husband after a long absence," states Dr. Blood, "even though it may cause the husband some embarrassment.

"In general if it is kept within the bounds of propriety, it's all right, but the decision whether to kiss or not to kiss in public is related to how people are brought up. While we may be very modern in other respects, our society has not changed enough to allow intimate behavior in public without offending social attitudes."

Some people who might otherwise be disposed to show affectionate regard in public have learned not to do so, through bitter experience. In San Antonio there's one fellow and his wife who won't go around kissing each other in their moving car anymore. They both landed in the hospital with bruises and lacerations when she kissed him while he was making a turn. He missed the curve, but made it to the hospital.

If Joseph R. Callahan's wife of six months thinks he's not demonstrative enough on meeting her at airports, bus terminals or even fresh out of the subway, there's a reason. Callahan, who is in charge of the U.S. Passport Office in New York, attributes his anti-kiss attitude to a childhood experience.

"The reason I don't kiss in public," he reports, "is that when I was a little boy of 10, I went to kiss my aunt Maggie McKenna goodbye. She was off for a vacation, and something happened. Either she moved too quickly or I moved too quickly, but I broke her glasses, and she never forgave me. She kept referring to me as her idiot nephew for years after because I ruined her vacation. I guess I've had a block on kissing in public ever since."

It Began at the Well

The public kiss is no invention of modern times. The first recorded Biblical kiss took place between Jacob and Rachel at the well. Public kissing in ancient Greece was a capital crime. Outdoor osculation was a favorite pastime of the British until Oliver Cromwell's Puritan regime forced it indoors and kissing went underground.

An 18th century kisser had a field day, for it was good manners to kiss every lady present when he entered a room. Historians report that only a century ago furniture was often equipped with a "kissing bell." Ladies who were kissed simply placed their heads in the bell to protect their coiffures.

Today in many suburban communities, the kiss has been called most detrimental to the free flow of traffic. Suburban railroad terminals and bus depots are one big bussing station. One New York commuter can't stand watching the daily ritual of puckering up before train time. "It's all so phony," he reports. "I live in Westchester, and I see these guys giving their wives a kiss before the long journey to New York, all of 30 minutes. It's ridiculous, it doesn't mean a thing, because many of them later in the day call their wives and tell them they have to work—yeah—on their blonde secretaries."

The kiss has also come under the close scrutiny of Dr. John Ellis Large, vicar of St. Boniface Church in Sarasota, Fla., a long-time observer of human behavior (he's just published a book, The Small Needle of Doctor Large). "It is not good taste to kiss in public," says Dr. Large, "if such bussing is an aspect of courting—for the art of wooing should be conducted as privately as the art of love itself. Sex is cheapened when its techniques are displayed in public. It is permissible to kiss your spouse in public, unless this kissing bespeaks a show of affection which is not present in the heart—but rather meant to affect bystanders."

What's the future of kissing in public? Will Americans become freer in their show of emotions or will the space age with its unlimited possibilities limit romance on the street level? A recent Space Strategy Conference of European and American experts in England came up with this unhappy ending: when people are ready to be orbited off to other planets, the goodbye kiss will be discouraged. Space experts declare it's too dangerous to raise emotional temperatures before flight time. ■

What will happen to your job?

by JACK ANDERSON Parade Washington correspondent

Dwight S. Sargent: The problem for older persons is that companies have rules that prevent them from hiring anyone over 50.

Mrs. Betty Sexton: I'm a college grad out of the labor market 14 years. I want to work again but I have to be retrained.

Gary E. Martin: Don't you feel a lot of relocating, of good citizens leaving homes, is having a bad effect on the community?

WASHINGTON, D.C.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN to your job in the 1960s?

Suppose you are a machinist displaced by a shutdown, a college graduate trained for an overcrowded field, a mother trying to get back in the labor market after rearing her children, an unskilled teenager who has dropped out of school. Can you find a job?

Or you may be a construction worker whose job depends upon the building boom, a clerk unaccustomed to electronic office machinery, a family doctor trying to keep up with the latest medical discoveries, a New England factory worker wondering whether to go West. What future does your job hold?

Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg met recently with a group of men and women (see photos, left) facing such questions. During the present decade, he said, challenging new fields will open up while some other jobs will be less in demand.

"Earlier in this century," explains Goldberg, "change occurred at a slower rate. Take the blacksmith, once a vital occupation in our society. The need for blacksmiths dropped steadily as automobiles replaced horses. This change was stretched over a period of a working lifetime. But change today is entirely different; it occurs within a few years."

How will your job be affected as the nation moves into the space age? Here are the Secretary's views and predictions:

Overall job outlook: "During the 1960s we expect the number of workers in the U. S. to increase by 20 per cent. Job opportunities will grow at varying rates. Real estate and construction work will grow the fastest, with employment gains of 30 per cent.

"White-collar jobs and service jobs will also increase somewhat faster than average. A slower growth will occur in skilled and semi-skilled jobs. Unskilled openings will remain the same, and farm employment will decline."

Real estate and construction: "Millions of new families in the '60s will push up the demand for more homes, schools, highways, stores, and facilities of all kinds. Construction will boom; real estate activities will flourish; finance insurance will benefit."

Wholesale and retail trade: "Here is another fast-growing industry, which should bring employment increases of 25 to 29 per cent during the decade. Most of the job prospects are in retail stores but opportunities are also growing for clerical workers, truck drivers, delivery men, porters, packagers, and repairmen of various kinds."

Government: "A similar increase is predicted in government jobs. Most of them will be in state and local government as our people demand more services such as public education, health, welfare, recreation."

Labor Secretary Goldberg, right, assures Robert Carbaugh he can get job. Janet Morrissey looks on.

Manufacturing: "Our largest employer, the manufacturing industry, will provide a 20 per cent employment increase during the 1960s—a job growth equal to the national average. But this industry will produce goods for American consumers at a faster rate than the expected job increase. The fact is, our manufacturing plants are producing more with fewer workers."

Services: "The fact that we no longer need as many people to produce goods has brought about a phenomenal growth of the service industry. This trend will continue in the next decade and will offer many opportunities for such workers as waiters, cooks, barbers, beauticians, policemen, firemen, practical nurses, FBI agents."

Professional and technical: "For all our professional and technical occupations, we can expect over 10 years a growth rate about twice that of the labor force as a whole."

Clerical: "Clerical occupations have been increasing at a phenomenal rate of over 30 per cent during the 1950s. A further increase of 26 per cent is expected in the 1960s. So hundreds of thousands of these jobs will open in the next 10 years."

Self-employed: "The number of self-employed proprietors will rise only moderately. In the retail field, for instance, supermarkets are replacing the corner grocery store and the meat market."

Transportation and communications: "Employment opportunities in these fields will move up at a much slower pace than in most others. In transportation, most of the decline has been in the railroad industry. But bus, airline, and ship transportation will also offer fewer jobs. Openings in communications will level off because of automation. A good example is the telephone industry. The use of the dial system has increased productivity. As a result, fewer workers are needed for each individual operation although the total number of workers has increased because of greatly expanded phone facilities."

Agriculture: "While agriculture will continue to offer opportunities, the decrease in the number of farms and the increase of young people in farm communities make it obvious that many farm young people will by necessity have to turn to other fields of work."

How will your job change during the '60s? It probably will become more specialized and demand higher education.

"Today's job applicant makes the least headway," warns Secretary Goldberg, "when he tells the company personnel manager, 'I can do anything.' This is true not only for white-collar workers but for the majority of jobs in our complex industrial economy.

"Even in highly specialized work, further specialization is required. The young person seeking a professional job should remember, too, that often applicants are not accepted unless their school grades are high."

You can also expect your job to become more automated. In offices, electronic computers are taking over more of the paperwork. Those who handle routine volume work can expect to find their jobs changed or abolished. To put it another way, the fastest-growing clerical occupation is office machine operator.

Automation will also bring changes in blue-collar work. A recent technological breakthrough, for instance, may affect the jobs of more than 1 million machine workers in this country. Engineers can now translate part dimensions, tolerances, and other data into numbers, then feed them into electronic devices which translate the numbers into actions, such as cutting or drilling.

"Employers today are looking for workers who have the potential to learn more and to learn quickly the new skills and techniques opening every day in their businesses and industries," says Goldberg. "The substitution of mechanical equipment for manual labor will continue during the '60s. We are the greatest automated technological country in the world. If we hadn't improved our technology, we would still have the same low labor standards as people in other countries."

What will happen to your job may depend, too, upon where you work. For the job opportunities won't be spread evenly. Employment growth in California, Florida, the Rocky Mountains, and the Southwest has been twice the national average. In the Southeast, growth has been slightly slower. Most sluggish areas: New England, the Middle Atlantic and East North Central states. Yet these three areas still provide 60 per cent of all manufacturing jobs, half the service, trade and transportation jobs, 40 per cent of those in construction and government.

But Goldberg warns: "Workers may not only have to acquire occupational mobility, but geographic mobility as well, depending on their interests and abilities and what they look for in a job."

How can you find a job if you need one? "The problem of unemployment," says Secretary Goldberg, "is an area problem, of course, but it is also a national problem. There is no single solution. The federal government has a responsibility, as do the state and local governments, private employers and labor unions. We all have to work together to realize our goal of full employment. Anybody who wants to work in our country ought to be able to work."

Concludes the Secretary: "American working men and women have proven themselves the most versatile, best equipped, and most productive in the world. Changes in industry, forecast for the '60s, are not revolutionary. Occupation changes have been taking place throughout our industrial history, and our workers have dealt with them all along." ■

"No...Belief in God Is NOT Enough!"

Many people are risking their eternal salvation on a "religion" of their own... which is actually no religion at all.

"Oh, I believe in God," they say, "but I don't go to church. I'm just not the religious type."

Almost everybody, of course, believes that there is a God. Common sense tells us that this is so. But if we actually believe there is a God, should not this same common sense tell us we must do something about it? And how can we give expression to our belief in God if not through religion?

Religion is simply the consequence of our realization of Who God is. It is our striving to be honest and consistent with this knowledge – to learn and fulfill our duties to our Creator.

Catholics believe that God created us for a definite purpose... that He gave us the intelligence to recognize what that purpose is – and the means to fulfill it. It is through our religion that we give evidence of our desire to honor and serve God. It is through religion that we approach God in faith, repentance, love and gratitude.

If you are living in the belief that you don't need religion...that all you have to do is to believe in God and live a moral life... we urge you to ask yourself these questions – NOW: "Why am I living? Why did God create Me?" The most elementary common sense answer is that you are living because God created you... and that God has a purpose in doing so. Catholics believe it is our duty to find out what God's plan is for our lives – and do our best to live it.

If you have been living without any deep religious convictions... it will pay you to read a specially-prepared pamphlet which we will send you in a plain wrapper, without cost or obligation... and nobody will call on you. It discusses such questions as: Can the truth of Christianity be proved? Is it honest to ignore religion? Is science, ethics or education a substitute for the Church? Also other topics that should concern you deeply. For free copy write today... ask for Pamphlet No. PR-18.

PRETZELS in a PIE

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

One day we remembered a childhood treat—sweet chocolate and salted crackers, munched together, were an unusual but satisfying snack. Nostalgia resulted in this luscious pie —rich mellow chocolate filling in a slightly salty shell made of pretzel crumbs.

CHOCOLATE PRETZEL PIE

- 1¼ cups fine pretzel crumbs
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ½ cup melted butter or margarine
- ⅔ cup sugar
- 4 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2½ cups milk
- 3 squares (3 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, cut in small pieces
- 3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 tablespoon crushed toasted almonds
- Pretzel thin sticks and bowknots

Combine first 3 ingredients; press evenly into 9-inch pie pan, covering bottom and sides completely; press down firmly. Bake about 8 minutes in moderate oven, 325°. Cool thoroughly. Combine next 4 ingredients in top of double boiler. Cook over boiling water until thickened, stirring constantly. Cover; cook 15 minutes longer. Stir a little of the hot mixture into egg yolks; add to remaining mixture in double boiler. Cook and stir 2 minutes over hot, not boiling, water. Cool. Add vanilla. Pour into pretzel crust. Decorate with pretzels. Sprinkle with almonds. Chill.

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

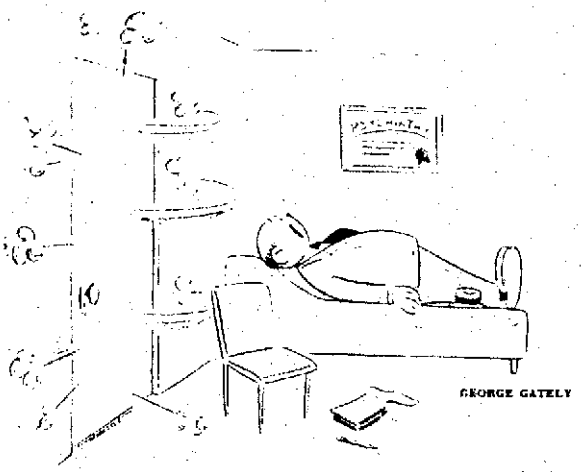

DIVORCEES. The Census Bureau recently released a surprising statistic--in 1961 one in every 14 American women was divorced or separated.

TV GYPS. Repair cheats are back in the TV racket. Better Business Bureaus report that complaints are mounting on dishonest practices of TV repairmen. Some of these phonies were driven out in the 1950s, but others, just as dishonest, have apparently replaced them. To protect yourself, advises the BBB, beware of the TV repairman who advertises an extremely low flat rate per call. Use a repairman recommended by neighbors or the local Chamber of Commerce. Demand a detailed service bill. Ask to see the tubes or parts which have been replaced.

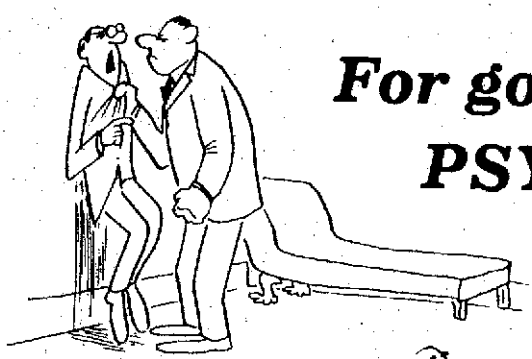

A DOZEN WORDS. Do you know the 12 basic words in the English language which comprise almost one-fourth of all the reading, writing and talking of the average American? Here they are: a, of, the, and, I, in, that, he, it, is, was, to.

MEXICAN OPIUM. A large share of the narcotics currently smuggled into this country originates in Mexico. For the past 25 years, clever and ruthless Mexicans have cultivated large poppy fields in the states of Durango, Chihuahua and Sonora. The poppy fields are cared for by ignorant Indian farmers who are directed and financed by a secret group of shrewd, wealthy Mexican smugglers. U.S. authorities have known about them for years, have been able to do relatively little since the Mexican government seems unable to crack down on them.

POLIO DISAPPEARING. Polio is no longer a serious public health problem in the U.S. despite the fact that 38 per cent of the people in this country have never been inoculated with the Salk vaccine. In 1961 we had less than 5 cases of polio per million population. Before Jonas Salk developed his vaccine, we had 162 cases per million. Thanks to Salk, there has been a 97 per cent reduction in the annual polio toll.

What Desenex does

Desenex seeks out, attacks and kills not only common athlete's foot fungi, but also checks bacteria that often cause more stubborn cases. Maddening itch is relieved, healing rapidly promoted. Simply use Desenex Ointment at night; Powder during day. It's guaranteed to work or money back! Desenex — at all drug counters.

CONTRACTS GO WHERE ABILITY IS CONCENTRATED

California Leads in Defense Work, to Continue

By BILL BROOM
L.P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — California's share of defense contracts is the biggest in the nation and will grow even larger, a Pentagon report indicated Saturday.

Last year, $5,277,000,000 in military prime contracts were placed in the state, 23.9 per cent of the national total.

Of even more significance, California received 41.34 per cent of all contract awards for experimental, developmental, test and research work. The total was $2,491,669,000.

"This is of major importance," the report said, "because any company which has conducted or managed the research and development work on a new weapons system and has assembled the engineering talent and experience for this purpose, is obviously in an exceptionally strong position to compete for the follow-on production contracts, and for new developmental contracts, as well."

Deputy Defense Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatric said the report, which shows the geographic distribution of defense contracts, was prepared in response to many inquiries. Most of these have come from congressmen and senators in Northeastern and Middle Western states. They complain often that the geographic shift is causing economic dislocation and unemployment in their states.

The Defense Department offered little hope to these states for immediate relief. It emphasized that military production has shifted away from mass-produced tanks, trucks and heavy ordnance into research, development and small-quantity production.

"It should be recognized," said Gilpatric, "that defense must shape its needs where capability exists, in order to be responsive to the technological requirements of modern warfare."

The geographic distribution of research and development contracts has "undoubted potential significance in the future placement of production orders," Gilpatric said.

Just how the changes in weapons systems have affected geographic production was shown in the statistics assembled. In 1953, missiles accounted for only 0.5 per cent of all military contracting. By 1961, they took up 33.6 per cent. Meanwhile, electronics contracts rose from 11.2 per cent in 1953 to 18 per cent in 1961. By the end of that year, missiles and electronics between them took up over half of all prime hard-goods contracts.

This almost reversed the standing of mass produced ordnance for conventional warfare. In 1953, it constituted 50 per cent of military spending. By 1961, it had shrunk ot 12.4 per cent of the total.

States hardest hit by the shift were Michigan (down from 9.5 per cent of the total to 2.7 per cent), Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

States showing the biggest percentage gains were California, Massachusetts, Texas, Colorado and Florida.

As a result of the shift, defense production showed "a strong tendency toward concentration of contracts in California, and in the coastal strip from Boston to Washington," the report said.

"A region that gains a long head-start in a new and expanding field of procurement is bound to enjoy an enduring advantage, especially when research and development is a primary element," it continued. "Successful R&D leads to follow-on production contracts, and in turn, engineering work creates a new R&D capability. The process is circular, and it regenerates itself."

Of prime importance in the assignment of research contracts are the presence of nearby scientific and uni-

VETERINARIAN DRAWS BLOOD FROM PETE'S HEART WITH SYRINGE

PETE'S NO BLUEBLOOD BUT—

He's Saved Lives of Champions

Pete probably never will take a prize in a cat show, but in his veins runs the blood that has been given, on occasion, to top breeds.

Pete's a cat blood donor.

He's a 5-year-old mixed shorthair, the pet of Dr. Philip N. Ramsdale, veterinarian.

"He's sort of the boss around here," Dr. Ramsdale said. "I put up with all sorts of his nonsense. For instance, whenever I'm doing paper work, Pete's got to hop up on the desk and make himself at home."

As a donor of blood for ailing cats, accident or anemia cases, 14-pound Pete has three prime attributes: he's good natured, healthy and available.

Pete's an old hand at the blood-donor bit. He's been giving blood for five years now. The blood is drawn from Pete with a hypodermic syringe. Pete doesn't even flinch. "It doesn't bother him," said Dr. Ramsdale.

Pete's blood is injected into a vein of the cat in need. Pete can donate about once a month—50 to 75 cc., two to three ounces.

Having done his bit, Pete gets a shot of B-12, a saucer of milk and takes a nap.

Kennedy Calls Airline Strike 'Irresponsible'

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Kennedy said Saturday night it would be the "height of irresponsibility" for the Flight Engineers Union to persist in its "unnecessary" strike against Pan American World Airways and Eastern Air Lines.

"The way is still open for a sensible solution without the injury, both to the parties and to the public, inherent in the present course of action," Kennedy said in a sternly worded statement issued by the White House.

Kennedy said, "It goes without saying that all court orders issued in connection with this dispute must be obeyed." A federal judge ordered engineers back to work at Pan Am a few hours after the 2 p.m. EDT walkout.

* * * *

KENNEDY said that the engineers' settlement with Trans World Airlines earlier this week "demonstrates that the strikes on Eastern and Pan American airlines are unnecessary."

The Engineers Union promptly responded with a statement by its president, Ronald A. Brown, saying that it should not be blamed solely for the strike, and also that it "will not abdicate its right to strike."

Brown said the strikes against Pan American and Eastern were "perfectly legal and justified" and that the management of the two lines must share equal blame for lack of a contract agreement.

STEWARDESSES of Eastern Air Lines watch through glass partition as flight engineer pickets Boston terminal Saturday, leaving girls grounded.

He also said that the proposed guidelines for a settlement suggested by the Labor Department, which were used in resolving a similar dispute with TWA, would not serve the public interest.

Kennedy said the Trans World agreement should have been followed promptly by similar agreements with Pan Am and Eastern.

"The course was plainly open to all flight engineer chapters for a sensible and equitable resolution of the issues in dispute," the Chief Executive said.

"The good offices of the government were and are fully available, as they were

Assistant to Nixon Beaten Up

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police say an aide to Richard M. Nixon was beaten brutally Saturday by two robbers as he walked to work.

Charles Lichestein, 37, a research assistant, was in critical condition after surgery for a depressed skull fracture.

He told police he was walking from his apartment, three miles away, to his office at Ninth Street and Grand Avenue in downtown Los Angeles. He said two men jumped out of a car and asked him for his wallet when he was almost at his office.

Lichenstein said he refused, and the men slugged him with pistols on his head and face. They then fled empty-handed.

* * * *

THE INJURED man lost a great deal of blood, said attendants at County General Hospital. He suffered severe facial lacerations and shock, in addition to the skull fracture.

A spokesman for Nixon said Lichenstein had been doing research in Nixon's campaign for the governorship of California.

Lichenstein worked for Nixon in the 1960 presidential campaign. He recently rejoined the staff.

Lichenstein, a Yale graduate, was once an assistant professor of political science at Notre Dame University. He was with thhe Central Intelligence Agency before he joined Nixon.

He is a bachelor. Friends said he always walked to work for the exercise.

Douglas Strike Election Today

The troubled Southland labor picture continued to boil this weekend with a strike vote scheduled at one plant today and talks scheduled Monday in an effort to break a construction industry deadlock.

Members of the United Auto Workers Union in Douglas Aircraft Co.'s Long Beach plant are to take a strike vote at 2 p.m. today.

Meantime, cement masons began walkouts in the construction industry and carpenters and building contractors were scheduled to resume talks Monday in their dispute.

* * * *

THE LATHING Contractors Association of Southern California and the five Los Angeles County locals of the Nail-On Lathers have announced signing of a three-year agreement, ending threat of a walkout in that phase of the construction industry.

Cement Masons Local 627 of Los Angeles went on strike Friday and began piecemeal walkouts against selected contractors. In retaliation, the contractor's joint negotiating committee said all contractors were directed to lay off non-striking masons Monday afternoon. Local 627 has 5,000 members.

The masons were called off their jobs after failure to reach contract agreements Thursday. Negotiations were expected to resume Monday but the masons were reported to have boycotted Friday's talks.

* * * *

A LOCKOUT against carpenters has been in effect since Wednesday. The union has 55,000 members. A spokesman for the contractors said chief obstacles to agreement were disputes over fringe benefits and "technical issues." Neither side would elaborate on details of the dispute."

A spokesman for the contractors said construction in 11 Southern California counties will be shut down by Tuesday unless settlements are reached with the carpenters' and mason' unions.

Island Test Zone Closed

HONOLULU, June 23 (AP)—The Christmas Island nuclear test zone was ordered closed at 1:30 a.m. (6:30 a.m. EST) Sunday, signifying the possible detonation several hours later of the 23rd nuclear device in the current Pacific series.

50 Homes Ripped by Twister

CHICAGO (UPI) — A tornado swept through a new suburban subdivision Saturday damaging about 50 homes and injuring 18 persons, two seriously.

The twister, described as a "baby tornado" by the Weather Bureau, struck without warning in the late afternoon when most residents were outdoors in the yard or on shopping trips.

"If it had come a couple of hours later when everybody was in the house, it could have been a lot worse," a fireman said.

The twister, accompanied by a driving rain, cut a path about two blocks wide and only a half-mile long. Savage winds tore roofs off homes and garages and blew out hundreds of window panes.

Firemen, police and civil defense workers converged on the area, which is known as El Vista, located near Oak Forest south of Chicago.

MUSICAL DAYS

L.B. Opera Viewed 'From Then to Now'

Mary Ellis takes a "then and now" look at Long Beach Civic Light Opera as she traces the group's growth from early Singers Workshop days to its current near-professional status in a cover page story today in the Women's Section.

The group currently is in rehearsal for "Showboat," which begins a seven-performance run Thursday evening at Municipal Auditorium.

And, of course, the Women's Section is crammed full of its regular features including Iola Masterson's "The Wild Waves Say," Mildred Flanary's Chef of the Week column, Molly Mayfield, music and arts, fashions and Oswald Jacoby's highly popular bridge column.

Alcatraz Doomed as Prison

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said Saturday the government probably will close Alcatraz penitentiary in the not-too-distant future.

He said that shutting down "The Rock" in San Francisco bay would be a saving to the taxpayers. The inmates would be transferred to another federal maximum security institution.

* * * *

CONSIDERATION of Alcatraz's future had been going on long before the June 12 escape of three bank robbers who dug holes in the wall with sharpened spoons.

The three, Frank Lee Morris, 35, John William Anglin, 32, and his brother, Clarence, 31, are presumed to have drowned in the swift current of San Francisco Bay.

Justice Department officials said that deterioration of the prison, established in 1934 on the site of an Army disciplinary barracks, was far advanced.

Embassy Bombed

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)— Three bombs damaged the Spanish embassy and the homes of two right-wing leaders Saturday but caused no injuries.

Girls Rescued on Island Cliff

A rescue party retrieved two injured girls from a precipitous canyon wall on Santa Catalina Island late Saturday ending a day of terror that began as an outing for six girls and three boys.

Constable John Windle said Marsha Shields, 14, of Sun Valley fell and was stranded on a ledge in the rugged Pacific Divide area at about 10:30 a.m.

Also injured was Merloyn Powell, 19, of Burbank who was hit by a rock. Both were reported suffering from shock and were in Avalon Hospital.

* * * *

TWO GIRLS in the party of teen-agers from Burbank hiked back to Avalon and notified authorities about 1:40 p.m. A 12-man rescue party headed by Hollis Jones, chief security officer for the Santa Catalina Island Co., Windle and Dr. Robert Staff, was organized and hurried to the canyon equipped with a basket stretcher.

It took more than two hours to reach the stranded girls and it was 7:15 p.m. before they were returned to Avalon Hospital. The 14-year-old girl was brought out of the canyon in the stretcher.

Windle said the teenagers are in a chaperoned group visiting the island.

Film Pair Wed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor Brian Kelly and Actress Laura Devon were married Saturday at the Blessed Sacrament Roman Catholic Church.

Gardena City Official Dies

GARDENA (AP) — Paul A. Rowley, 49, Gardena city administrator, died Saturday apparently from a stroke at a city-wide civil-defense exercise.

Rowley had just told 200 doctors, nurses and civil-defense workers: "We never know when tragedy or death can strike."

He staggered and fell into the arms of the city's mayor and police chief.

LBJ Aide Confirms Estes Call

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Clifton C. Carter, a staff assistant to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, said Saturday he received two or three telephone calls from Billie Sol Estes earlier this year, including one the day before Estes was arrested by the FBI.

Carter also said Estes paid "one social call" on him early this year in Johnson's office but that "no business was discussed." Carter said Estes stayed only about five minutes. He said the "purely social" visit was in January, February or possibly March.

The Johnson aide said the indicted Texas financier telephoned him long distance at his home in nearby Arlington, Va., on March 28, the

L.A.C. Says:
Should Not Make the Same Mistake

Gov. Brown has called a special session of the legislature to place the June 5-defeated $270 million bond issue on the November ballot. It is hoped the voters will approve the issue then. They defeated it by an overwhelming vote in the June 5 election. Unless it is presented in a more realistic program it may well be defeated again. Unless the voters are permitted to vote separately on the college and university programs—without the hidden other projects—it will lose much of its support.

Of this $270 million the governor and legislature asked the people to support there were some $70 million of projects which normally are provided in annual budgets. Brown did include them in his "balanced budget." But he expected to get the money from this bond issue. It was the old political trick of placing many unrelated projects in a measure with a project of popular appeal. In Congress it is called an "omnibus bill," where all the pet projects of legislators are thrown into a bill that must be passed to keep the government in operation.

The primary object of Prop. 3 was to provide the many essentials for our expanding college programs. It was to be used for the University of California, state and junior colleges. These new facilities are essential if we are to care for the ever-increasing number of students seeking higher education. It is probable that if Prop. 3 carried only these provisions it would have had a large majority. Instead, it suffered a drastic defeat.

In Prop. 3 were included such building projects as health department, military department, ranger unit headquarters, forest fire stations, prison for men, hospitals and numerous like projects. On the ballot not one word indicated how or where the money would be used. It said: "State construction program." But the Governor's campaign emphasis was placed on the need for colleges—not the miscellaneous projects. It may be these are also essential to our needs. But they should be placed in a separate package so the voters would know what they are voting for. To do otherwise would seem to be an effort to achieve something by devious methods rather than by straightforward methods.

The Governor is in an embarrassing position. He has made quite a point of balancing his almost $3 billion budget. But in doing so, he did not make it a point to tell the people this was dependent upon borrowed money to come from passage of Prop. 3. The voters turned down the bond issue because the wording of the measure did not clearly define what the money was for, or where it would be used.

It is now up to the Governor and the legislature not to make the same mistake on a new bond issue to be voted on in the November election. The needs of our colleges should not have to also carry the responsibility for many unrelated projects. Let these projects be honestly placed on a separate bond issue if that is the way they are to be financed. To do otherwise will cause even less confidence in the proposals —and probably again defeat the vital educational projects which we believe a large majority of the voters would approve. The legislature should not repeat its former mistake if it is sincere in wanting the college bonds passed.—L.A.C.

Kennedy Brands Flight Engineers' Strike as Irresponsible Maneuver

in the TWA dispute, to assist in such a resolution.

"Such a proffer was made last night by the National Mediation Board. It is most regrettable that this offer was spurned by the flight engineers."

A flight engineers spokesman in New York said earlier, "Our people are fed up with government interference."

Kennedy said, "To persist in the strike course would be the height of irresponsibility" on the part of the Flight Engineers Union and its Eastern and Pan American chapters.

"It is a course clearly destructive to the best interests of the membership of the Flight Engineers International Association," Kennedy declared.

"Good judgment and even a minimum concern for the public interest require prompt termination of the strikes so that sensible collective bargaining and effective mediation can result in an equitable solution, as was provided in the TWA agreement," Kennedy said.

The Pan Am strike was quickly stopped by a restraining order issued by a federal judge, but Eastern closed up shop and sent home its nearly 18,000 employes, disrupting travel plans for hundreds of Americans.

The Flight Engineers Union called the strike despite pleas for a delay by George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, and the National Mediation Board.

Picket lines were thrown up across the nation at 2 p.m., EDT. Eastern immediately closed shop and denounced the strike action.

Pan American attorneys went before Federal Judge George Rosling in New York and obtained a temporary restraining order — effective until 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday. He ordered both sides to appear for a hearing at 2 p.m. Tuesday. The order did not apply to Eastern.

The heart of the labor dispute is the Engineers Union demand that a union engineer be included with two pilots in the makeup of jet cockpit crews when they are reduced from four men to three.

Malcolm A. MacIntyre, president of Eastern Air Lines, said the strike was called in defiance of President Kennedy and with no regard for the American public. He said the fight was between two unions with the airlines caught in the middle.

"The union's president, Ronald Brown, said they were striking for self-representation rights — in other words, over which union will control the third seat in jet aircraft," MacIntyre said.

"This is purely a jurisdictional dispute between two unions (Flight Engineers and Air Lines Pilot Association) which no airline management can resolve."

The strike came at the height of the tourist season.

The airlines said it could cost them $1 million per day.

Pan American had to cancel some flights early in the afternoon. Others went out with supervisory personnel. After the restraining order was handed down, union engineers were called at home and ordered to report. Many flights were delayed but there were no more cancellations.

A Pan American spokesman said the company was "delighted" the federal court had taken its action, and added that Pan Am was confident it would lead to a "permanent solution of the problem without further disruption of service to the traveling public or further damage to the government's critical balance of payment position."

Jack Robertson of Miami, Fla., president of the Eastern chapter of the union, said he was "surprised" that Eastern did not go along with Pan American in the restraining order.

There appeared to be no possibility for negotiation before Monday at the soonest.

The shutdown of Eastern operations caused hundreds of passengers to look for seats on other airlines. To help handle the travel load, Northeast Airlines announced it would operate a number of extra flights in addition to its regular schedule.

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — The 2½-hour flight engineers walkout against Pan American World Airways Saturday forced the cancellation of a Los Angeles to London polar flight, but had no other effect locally.

Pan American said all operations were back to normal Saturday afternoon after a temporary restraining order was issued in the East blocking the strike.

The flight engineers went on strike at 11 a.m., Los Angeles time, and were back at work by 1:30 p.m.

The polar flight's 112 passengers were diverted to European flights of Trans World Airlines and British Overseas Airlines Corp.

Pan American operates seven incoming and seven outgoing flights daily at International Airport.

Aide to LBJ Confirms Estes Calls

day before Estes was arrested, and told Carter he understood he was being investigated.

"I told him I knew nothing about it," Carter told United Press International. He said Estes asked him to call back if he found out anything "but I did not call back."

Records which Texas Asst. Atty. Gen. William Poole introduced at the court in Estes' hometown, Pecos, also showed a total of 38 calls to Sen. Ralph Yarborough, Texas Democrat. Two were made March 29, the day the FBI arrested Estes.

THE RECORDS of the Statler-Hilton Hotel in Dallas showed one call from Estes at 9:02 p.m., EDT, to Carter, whom Atty. Gen. Will Wilson described as Johnson's administrative assistant. Estes made the call to Carter in Arlington, Va., and talked six minutes.

Three calls from Estes' telephones in Pecos were made to Carter, according to the records. There was no way of telling how many of the calls Estes personally made. The telephones were either at his home or his various businesses.

Poole, pointing to the records, said two person-to-person calls were made from Estes' telephones to the late Henry H. Marshall, 51, believed to have been the first farm official to have suspected that Estes was illegally getting cotton-acreage allotments.

A Joe Bennett made one call. There was no indication who made the other. Marshall was found dead June 3, 1961, in Franklin, Tex., with five bullet wounds in his body. It was officially listed as a suicide.

There still is some question, however, as to what it was. A grand jury reopened the case, investigated five weeks and gave up last Monday, saying it could not decide whether Marshall was murdered or committed suicide.

Wagner, Long TVA Aide, Board Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Saturday promoted Aubrey J. Wagner, a veteran of 28 years with the Tennessee Valley Authority, to be chairman of the TVA board of directors.

Wagner, a member of the board since February, 1961, was named to succeed Chairman Herbert D. Vogel, who resigned last week.

NIXON GREETS members of California Assembly at meeting Saturday in El Segundo. The Republican candidate for governor said Brown should "get off the fence" and accept or reject support of "left-wing extremist" California Democratic Council.

Hall Says Party Favors Nixon's 'Bircher' Stand

EL SEGUNDO (AP)—Selection of Richard Nixon as the GOP gubernatorial nominee means state Republicans approve in principle his stand against the right-wing John Birch Society, a California Republican leader said Saturday.

Fred Hall, former Kansas governor who now heads the volunteer California Republican Assembly, added, however, that members of his group still are divided over Nixon's position that Republicans should choose between the Birch Society and the official GOP. Hall addressed the Assembly at a meeting here.

* * * *

HE SAID HE intends to do everything he can to bring the 14,000-member organization into line with Nixon's political opinions.

Hall recalled that members of the group differed last March over the former vice president's proposed resolution condemning the Birch Society. The Assembly's convention subsequently approved a watered-down resolution condemning Birch leader Robert Welch.

Other speakers at the meeting included Nixon and San Francisco Mayor George Christopher, Republican nominee for lieutenant governor.

Nixon, who defeated Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell, a conservative, in the primary, insisted that Gov. Edmund G. Brown accept or reject support of what Nixon has termed the "left wing extremist" California Democratic Council.

"It's time for the governor to get off the fence," Nixon said. He added that he firmly opposes the council's key resolutions, which he said "would gravely weaken our state and nation."

MAYOR CHRISTOPHER proposed a legal ceiling on California's bonded indebtedness to "preserve the fiscal integrity of the state."

He suggested limiting the amount of bonds outstanding to a percentage of the total property valuation in the state, as assessed by the counties. Said Christopher:

"A ceiling on the debt would prevent further flagrant abuse of the bonding process by irresponsible state leaders whose first interest is the handing out of political largesse from a public pork barrel."

Yukie, With Her Dad, Mom Heads for Home

Marine Master Sgt. and Mrs. Stanley G. Baker and their newly adopted daughter, Yukie Fujii Baker, 10, pursued a leisurely course towards Yukie's new home in Buena Park Saturday.

By a late hour they had not arrived at the Baker home at 6514 Constance Circle on their trip from Travis Air Force Base where Yukie landed after Baker untangled the red tape that had kept her from joining him.

Baker first saw Yukie in a Japanese orphanage and decided to adopt her. When he told newsmen of the red tape which barred Yukie from the United States, the resultant stories cleared the way for their reunion.

California's Defense Jobs Lead Nation

versity research laboratories, the report said.

"The evidence is overwhelming—Route 128 encircling Boston, the industrial complex around San Francisco Bay, that related to California Institute of Technology and UCLA in the Los Angeles area, are cogent examples of the clustering of industry around centers of learnings."

Only in this respect, does California lose its leadership. In contracts for research by schools and nonprofit institutions, Massachusetts leads with $120.4 million. California comes next with $87.5 million, and Maryland is third with $47.9 million. The three states gobbled up more than half the total of $431 million in contract awards.

"Defense policy stresses awards on merit," the report concluded. "Local initiative seeking defense business must direct itself to the creation of capability responsive to the exacting needs of modern warfare. Communities which fail to recognize this fact, and which fail to energize and mobilize their institutions to adjust to it, cannot reasonably anticipate a major role in future defense procurement."

Rusk, Italian Chiefs Agree

ROME (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and leaders of Italy's leftist-leaning government announced Saturday night they were in full agreement on a wide range of cold-war problems in Europe.

This unity of views was announced after Rusk ran through a day of talks with President Antonio Segni, Premier Amintore Fanfani and Foreign Minister Attilio Piccioni.

A communique said they discussed "Soviet-American conversations on German problems; the process of European political unity, and the problems of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, an essential factor in maintaining peace and freedom in the world."

Brown Victory Seen on Bonds

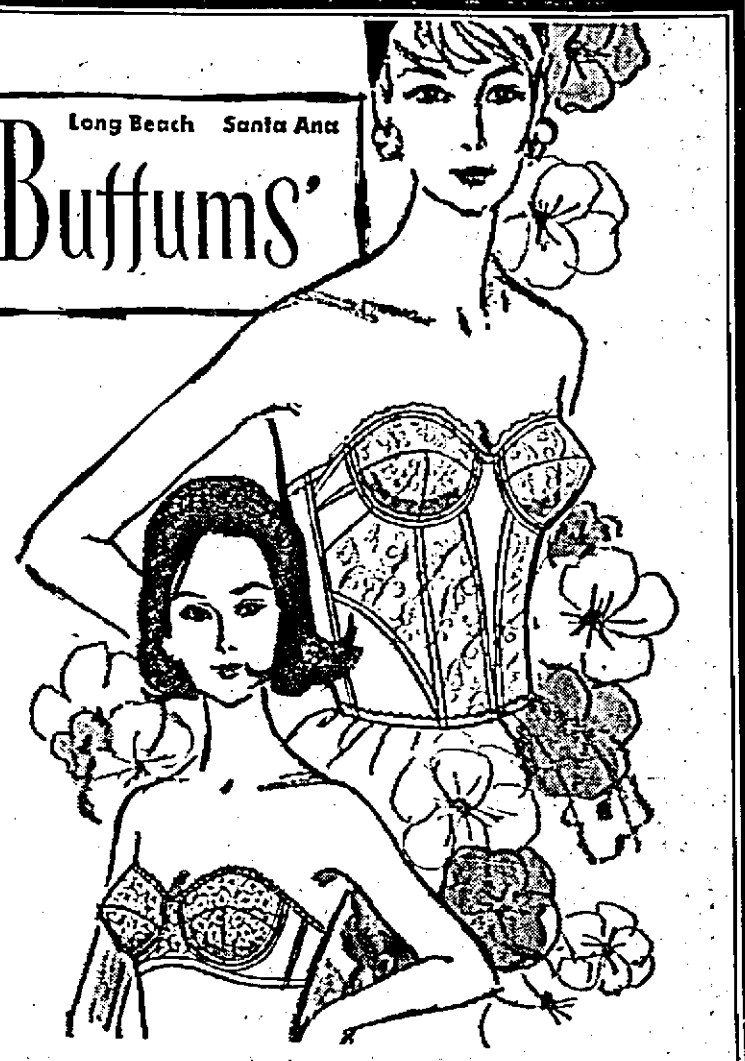

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The legislature convenes in a special session Tuesday to consider asking California voters to reverse their June 5 defeat of a bond issue for construction of university and college buildings, mental hospitals and prisons.

Democratic Gov. Brown is expected to hand the legislators a package similar to the $270-million Prop. 3 rejected in the primary. With Democrats in control of the Senate and Assembly, majority party leaders predict speedy approval. The measure would be on the November ballot.

Minority Republicans in the Assembly, admitting they don't have the votes to stop Brown's program, promise a bond plan of their own.

They also may try to force a revision of the governor's $2.9-billion budget.

INFORMATION RETRIEVAL

State Department Testing Foreign Affairs Computer

By DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) —One of these days a new revolution will break out in a far country. At the State Department there will be no panic. An official will calmly press buttons on an electronic computer.

There will be a soft whirring, and out will come a complete resume of the country, its economics, military strength, politics, international hopes and quarrels.

The diplomat will have all the information before him to decide whether to send the Marines.

Fantastic? Take another look.

* * * *

THE STATE department already is experimenting with electronic computers in making foreign policy decisions.

In a rented office over a drug store a few blocks from the White House a small group of foreign service officers has spent the last three months analyzing and coding thousands of State Department documents. They will soon begin feeding them into the magnetic tape "memories" of computers.

The project so far is merely an experiment in "information retrieval"—limited to a few selected countries and international problems and designed to prove the concept and devise ways of coding and storing facts so they can be extracted in a meaningful way.

* * * *

HENRY H. FORD, deputy assistant secretary of state for operations, who oversees the project, is the first to admit it would be impossible to put the policies of Kennedy, Khrushchev, De Gaulle and Adenauer on tape and come up with a Berlin Crisis solution.

But he sees a number of roles for computer machines.

"Everybody talks of the 'population explosion'" Ford said, "but there has also been an 'information explosion' in foreign affairs. The state department receives thousands of bits of information about a country every day, from our embassies, from intelligence reports, from newspapers, from international radio, and from other agencies such as the commerce department and the military.

* * * *

THE OLD SYSTEM of filing these away in cabinets in hopes that you can find them again in a hurry is becoming obsolete."

It would be possible, officials believe, to put all of Khrushchev's speeches or tens of thousands of facts about a given country on computer tape so that any aspect could be quickly extracted.

There may be other uses which go beyond mere memorizing of facts. For example, the price of copper may be a key political factor in a given area and, by collecting enough data, computers could predict price changes and thereby help predict political events.

* * * *

"THERE HAS been considerable experience in using computers in this way in the business world," Ford said. "What we are doing is applying these proven techniques to new problems in the field of foreign policy."

Officials would not say what countries have been selected for the pilot project, apparently on the theory that some might resent being fed into computers.

Senior diplomats in the department are backing the project and seem unworried by the thought they might be replaced by machines.

But the experiment has caused some spoofing. One anonymous diplomat has written an article in the Foreign Service Journal describing the State Department in 1990 as run by a secretary, 150 ambassadors and 1,500 machines which will decide everything on a formula: "A is either greater or less than B."

Red Wall Now Built Into River

BERLIN (UPI) — The East German Communists extended their anti-refugee wall underwater Saturday. They sank barriers like upended bedsprings into the Spree River to balk refugees seeking to swim their way to West Berlin.

Communist frogmen plunged into the Spree to sink the new barriers while the East Germans also strengthened their barbed wire noose around the city on land.

At the same time the U.S. Army rolled four troop convoys along the superhighway through Communist East Germany without opposition from the Communists.

The American convoys shuttled beween West Berlin and West Germany without Communist hindrance in a new demonstration of Western rights of access to the isolated city.

Hunt Man in Assault on Spouse

Long Beach police Saturday night were seeking an AWOL sailor for what they described as the attempted murder of his wife.

Officers said the suspect, Jesus Martinez Jr., 25, attempted to choke his wife to death early Saturday.

The wife, Constance, 32, told police her husband is AWOL from the USS Isle Royale. She said she had fallen asleep on a couch in their Navy housing project apartment at 2151 San Gabriel Ave. Friday night after she and her husband attended a movie.

• • • •

MRS. MARTINEZ said she awoke in the morning as her husband was choking her. He throttled her into unconsciousness, she said. She awoke later, bleeding from the mouth. Officers said her throat bore large bruises.

She was treated at the Naval Dispensary.

Mrs. Martinez said she crawled to a neighbor's apartment after she regained consciousness and the neighbor called police. She said her husband took $200 from her wallet before he fled.

Religions Plan to Mark Signing of Emancipation

CHICAGO (UPI)—A joint attack against racial segregation will be initiated next January by Protestant, Catholic and Jewish groups to mark the centennial of Lincoln's signing the Emancipation Proclamation.

About 600 clerical, religious and lay workers have been invited to the National Conference on Religion and Race, Jan. 14-17, the first such meeting crossing major religious lines.

More than 40 Protestant, Jewish, Catholic and Orthodox groups were expected to participate in the meeting.

50 LOCAL OPERATORS

Radio Hams Play Important Part in Public Safety Tests

Approximately 50 ham radio operators are taking part here in a 24-hour world-wide exercise which began at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Local ham are working at the home of Dr. Edgar E. Daniels, 3003 Palos Verdes Drive East, Palos Verdes, where 12 amateur radio stations have been set up.

Twelve antennae have been put up on the grounds of Daniels' house. Al Lee of Lakewood, director of the local operation, said the 12 stations are powered by an emergency generator and are operating simultaneously.

The annual exercise, held under rough emergency conditions, is designed to test procedures and equipment which could be used by public safety groups when normal communications are disrupted.

• • • •

INCLUDED in the plan for emergency radio use are such agencies as Red Cross, Civil Defense, police and public utilities.

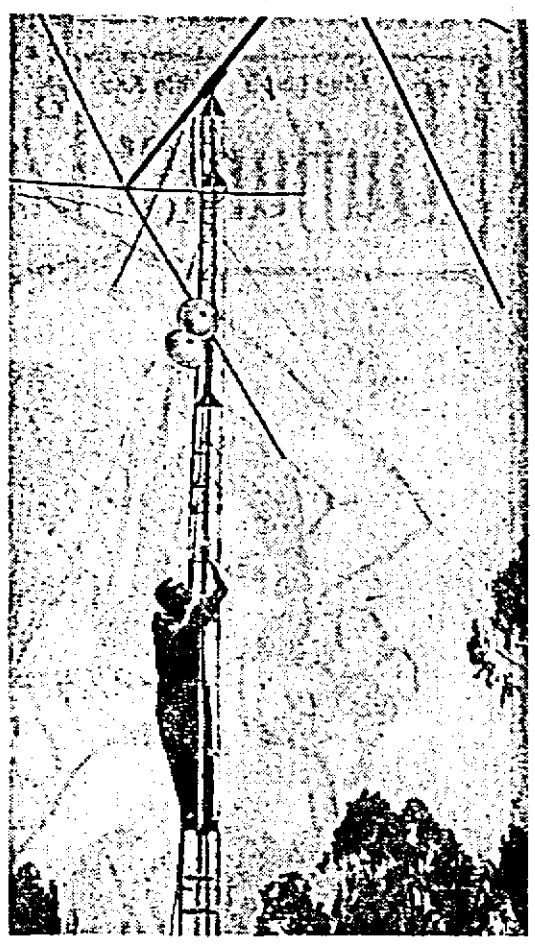

Sponsoring the event is the American Radio Relay League. Local direction is by Associated Radio Amateurs of Long Beach.

The call code W6PMO is used by the local group.

Director Lee invited all licensed operators to participate directly in the field day or make contact on the air.

More than 15,000 American and Canadian radio amateurs, stationed in tents, log cabins, barns, floating rafts and fire towers, are taking part in the field day in the Western Hemisphere.

The field day is run in the form of a contest. Club groups score points for number of contacts made and simulated emergency messages exchanged. The point system makes allowance for output and the fact that hams work on portable power.

Brown Adds New Chapter to N.Y. Growth Debate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Brown has written a new chapter in the story entitled: "New York vs. California," or, "My State Is More Prosperous Than Yours."

Seven days ago, Brown noted press reports of a speech in which Gov. Rockefeller of New York said his state was leading California in industrial growth. Not so, replied Brown in a weekend statement.

The governor said new businesses have announced more than $500 million in major new California plants and expansions in the first five months of the year. The tabulations included only projects costing more than $1 million.

"In the light of this analysis by the Economic Development Agency, it is highly unlikely that New York is ahead of California in new plants and plant expansions," the governor said. He said California is the first choice of American industrialists for new plant locations and expansion of existing facilities.

BUT REINS SLACK

Chief Gripe of Teen-Agers--Mother Nags

LONDON (UPI) — Parental reins are slack for British teen-agers, according to a survey of 16,000 of them. Most can smoke and drink and many can stay out all night.

Seniors at 500 schools were polled by a student magazine, sixth form opinion. Three quarters of the boys and girls said their parents let them smoke and drink. Almost half of the boys and a good third of the girls said they had no deadline on coming in at night after dates.

About half of them had one chief complaint—their mothers nagged.

Leniency Refused to Cohen

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Federal Judge George H. Boldt Saturday refused to reduce Mickey Cohen's 15-year prison sentence for income-tax evasion, describing the ex-mobster as "among the greatest of the confidence men and swindlers."

Cohen had sought the reduction on the grounds he was no longer the cocky underworld figure of the past and that his attitude toward law and order had changed since his conviction a year ago.

• • • •

THE ONETIME gangster, who is in Alcatraz, pleaded in a four-page letter written from "The Rock" last Monday for a chance "to make amends" for his previous actions. But Judge Boldt, who came here from Tacoma, wasn't impressed and, after a two-hour hearing, described Cohen as a man who "preys on everything" to whom nothing is sacred.

"Friendship, religion, politics, sickness are all things he uses to his best advantage," said the jurist.

• • • •

IN OPPOSING the sentence reduction, Asst. U.S. Atty. Thomas R. Sheridan put television personality Tom Duggan on the witness stand and introduced a tape of Duggan's KTTV show last Feb. 20 during which Cohen commented:

"I don't know what I was convicted of. All the evidence they had was my reputation."

Attorney A. L. Wirin, who has represented Cohen during his long legal fight, which was carried all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, introduced a letter to the lawyer in which Cohen wrote:

"No one knows better than myself that I haven't been an angel throughout my life, but I have always been a true American all the way."

The march began Friday at Glen Douglas and will end today in Glasgow. It was organized by the Scottish Council of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

Bureau Finds Dope in Odd Places

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smugglers are an imaginative type. It's just their tough luck that customs are pretty sharp too.

Take the case of Edward Earl Beck, arrested at Laredo, Tex., on charges of trying to smuggle from Mexico five marijuana cigarettes, 15 seconal capsules and 41 benzedrine tablets—all in his girl friend's hair.

Beck was a skilled hairdresser, the official reports say, so skillful that he managed to plant the contraband in her hair without her knowing it. The customs men apparently had better information than she, however, for they nailed Beck cold. He got six years.

* * * *

THIS SMALL case is just one of hundreds closed each year by the Bureau of Customs, a high-morale, glamor-packed government agent that goes back to 1798.

These days the service is busy especially with problems of narcotics and marijuana smuggling along with smuggling of diamonds, Swiss watch movements and even vitamins.

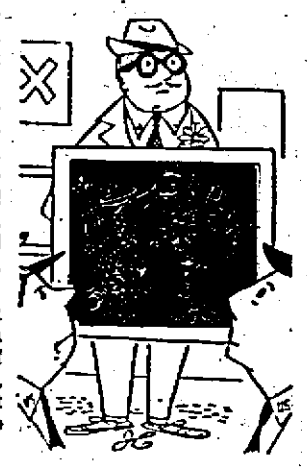

And with the summer peak of the tourist season at hand, there's an upsurge of activity to see to it that ordinary travelers pay the required duty on goods they bring in from abroad.

* * * *

CHESTER EMERICK, deputy commissioner in charge of investigations and enforcement, is a big easy-going man with a small mustache, who looks more like a rotary club president or ivy league college professor than a tracker-down of criminals.

But he's had 42 years of fighting smugglers, 32, of them in the field. And nothing they dream up can surprise him now.

Seated in his office he flipped through a handful of monthly narcotics intelligence bulletins that tell of

You never can tell where, how or what is being smuggled.

arrests and court actions by the score, with incidental information on hiding places, such as:

* * * *

SUSPECT WAS taken to a hospital "where he regurgitated a bindle of heroin." (a bindle is a small amount, a gram or so.)

"A search dislosed about 3.4 grams of heroin concealed in the baby's diaper."

At an Arizona station, customs officers performed a physical search on a strapping young man without success. The bulletin went on, mattter-of-factly:

* * * *

"A MEDICAL search was then attempted, but was frustrated by the resistance of the subject, who was 6-foot-3 and weighed 270 pounds. At one point he arose from the examination table, picked it up and threw it at the two doctors and four officers, then swung his arms and hit a customs agent in the head. Subject was then placed in jail and kept under observation for about four hours, whereupon he passed a package containing 13 grams of heroin."

"On their person smugglers will use shoe soles, heels, natural body cavities, plastic bags taped to their skin. They'll use brush handles, just anything," Emerick said.

* * * *

"JUST ANYTHING" has included women's handbags (they're not sacrosanct although many women tourists think they ought to be), linings of luggage and clothing, stuffed animals, stretcher handles, hatbands, false teeth, wooden legs, covered overcoat buttons, shaving cream, toothpaste tubes, flower bulbs and even diamonds fed to pet dogs.

Much valuable information comes from informers, who do all right by themselves, too. An informer who tips off the customs men will get up to 25 per cent of the value of the seized contraband, with a maximum of $50,000 in any one case.

There is one story of three informers having passed the same tip—that a returning woman tourist was smuggling in a diamond necklace. The three were the merchant who sold her the necklace overseas, the builder of the secret jewel compartment she used. And her own personal maid. The maid got her tip in first and she was the one who collected.

Nothing to declare.

"THERE ARE professional informers," Emerick says. "There are business people whose business is being injured by smuggled merchandise. There are envious members of society who report on so-called friends who have acquired jewelry and other valuables abroad, and there are respected citizens of the United States who believe their fellow citizens should pay the duties provided by law."

Some informers use strange aliases in their roles, cashing reward checks made out to such names as Sinbad, Father Goose, Joe Blow and Moisha Pipick (Moses' gizzard).

Recent cases have especially added to the laurels of the customs men.

In one of them, agents tracked a 216-pound shipment of marijuana from El Paso, Tex., to Chicago and one of them hid in the trunk of the car as it made deliveries in the latter city.

The agent, William Magee of Eagle Pass, Tex. used a two-way radio to maintain contact with his colleagues, and on arrival at destination emerged to arrest the violators.

Laos Will Shun Any SEATO Help

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma and his coalition cabinet were sworn in Saturday by nine orange-robed monks in an ancient candle-lit Buddhist temple. The new premier vowed to bar "any foreign interference" in Communist-infiltrated Laos.

The 19-man government took office in the religious ceremonies at Vientiane's crumbling yellow Sisaket sacred temple after pro-Western Premier Prince Boun Oum resigned in equally formal ceremonies at King Savang Vatthana's palace.

SOUVANNA PHOUMA

Souvanna, in a formal address at the palace, said his government would "not recognize the protection of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO)."

He said this was one of the conditions stipulated in the political program approved by all three rival factions—pro-Western, Communist and Neutralist — which led to the coalition. Souvanna outlined a seven-point program. It bars all foreign military bases from Laotian territory.

Suspect Charged in Girls' Slaying

MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. (UPI) — An 18-year-old ex-Marine was charged with the bludgeon-murder of two pretty high school cheerleaders Saturday as a group of parents, including mothers with babies in their arms, milled outside the courthouse.

JAMES VANCE

The suspect, James Vance, smoked and appeared nervous as he entered the courthouse through the crowd of about 70 persons. As he was charged with "willful, felonious and premeditated murder," his mother stared blankly out a window.

"I'd like to get my hands on him," murmured a man whose daughter had dated Vance as the slender, 5-foot-9 suspect entered the courthouse.

Vance was ordered held without bail for the tire-iron slaying of Noreen Buckley, 17, and Margaret Ann Kennedy, 15, in a lonely lover's lane Wednesday night.

Nearly Starved to Death, Sayre Says

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — Prof. Woodrow Wilson Sayre, exhausted but cheerful on arrival Saturday by helicopter from a Mt. Everest base, said Saturday his mountain-climbing party came very close to starving to death.

Sayre, 42, grandson of the late President Woodrow Wilson, was so weak that two men had to help him cover the 200 yards from a helicopter to a hospital building. The Tufts University professor said a misunderstanding about a rendezvous with their Sherpa bearers and a Nepalese government liaison official left them without food.

"We were compelled to walk without food for one long week," Sayre said. "Towards the end of this most difficult trekking we had to crawl on all fours to cover several miles."

L.A. Blonde, 21, Miss California

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Miss Los Angeles, a willowy blue-eyed blonde, reigns today as Miss California.

Marilyn Tindall, 21, a secretary in the City Department of Water and Power, was selected to represent California in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant at Miami Beach, Fla.

MISS CALIFORNIA

Miss Tindall, whose vital statistics are 128 pounds, 5 feet 8, and 37-22-37, was chosen from 39 contestants. She also won a $3,000 swimming pool, a complete wardrobe and cash prizes.

Runners - up were Miss Huntington Park, Diane Simpson, 19, an aspiring actress; Miss Downey, Sharon Larson, 18, a high school student; Miss Reseda, Alicia Nelson, 19, a Valley State College student, and Miss Millbrae, Betty Luporini, 18, San Mateo State College student.

SAO Blows Up Oran Gas Holder

ALGIERS (UPI)—European terrorists blew up a giant gas-storage plant at Oran Saturday.

The Secret Army Organization action followed its rejection of the SAO-Algerian national peace accord in Algiers and its pledge to continue its battle in Western Algeria.

Report Fire on Airliner Before Crash

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (UPI)—An Air France 707 jetliner which crashed Friday on a stone cliff 1,500 feet up a rain-obscured mountainside was off the regular approach course to the airport, residents of this Caribbean island said Saturday.

The crash killed all 113 aboard.

Residents of Basse-Terre Island where the Boeing jet crashed in a rain forest said planes never before had passed over that area in approaching Le Raizet Airport on Grande-Terre. Two fishermen who saw the plane flying through the squall said it appeared to be on fire in the air. A woman who rushed from her home said a "long flame" was escaping from one of the jet engines.

China Threat

TOKYO (UPI)—The official New China news agency said Saturday Nationalist China is "preparing for an invasion" of the Communist Chinese mainland "with the support of the United States." The news agency said the Nationalist invasion troops were courting "destruction."

American military observers recently have received intelligence reports that Red China is massing the biggest force since the Korean War on the Fukien coastline opposite Formosa.

Demo, GOP Tempers Flare Hot Over Farm Bill Issues

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A spate of bitter, partisan debate in the Senate pointed up Saturday that both sides intended to make House rejection of the administration's farm bill an issue in the congressional campaign.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., started it off with the assertion that, instead of saving the taxpayers $1 billion as the Democrats claim, the bill would have cost $1 billion a year more.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., jumped up to dispute this. He said he was surprised that an "economiser" like Williams would oppose the bill.

Morse teed off on former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who told a Republican rally here Saturday night that the administration's bill was "based on the ruthless concept of ruling or ruining American agriculture."

"I'm ready to take on the great farmer from Gettysburgh," Morse said. "We'll make it a partisan issue if that is what the Republicans want."

• • • •

MORSE SAID Eisenhower's Gettysburg farm "was principally subsidized by gifts." Editing his remarks for the congressional record, Morse added that the former president "should be almost the last person in the country to comment upon the farm subsidy issue" since the value of these gifts had totaled "thousands of dollars."

He said Eisenhower has "suggested that the old people in our country should not support a medical bill under Social Security.

"The great farmer from Gettysburg does not have to worry about ever paying a hospital bill," Morse said. "He has been taken care of all his adult life at the expense of the taxpayers in government hospitals."

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Thomas C. Kuchel, R-Calif., the assistant majority and minority leaders in the Senate, also traded words over the farm bill and Eisenhower's stand on it.

"When the general ventures off into agriculture," said Humphrey, "it becomes a dissertation in fiction rather than fact."

• • • •

KUCHEL retorted that Eisenhower "lives on a farm in Gettysburg and classifies himself as a farmer, and therefore he is not entirely unfamiliar with this jungle of farm legislation."

"Would that our farmers in Minnesota could operate their farms from Palm Springs, Calif.," came back Humphrey.

Humphrey also lit into the farm program of the Eisenhower administration, saying it had resulted in increased costs to the government and reduced income for the farmers.

When Ellender said Williams was ignorant of the provisions of the measure, the Delaware Republican replied tartly:

"If the senator says I'm ignorant, I'll have to accept that because I know of no man on the Senate floor more qualified to judge ignorance than the senator from Louisiana."

• • • •

DEMOCRATS are putting their chips on the belief that disgusted taxpayers in the cities and suburbs will accept their contention that the bill would have saved them $1 billion a year in the costs of storing crop surpluses.

Republicans believe their opposition to the measure will be popular in the corn and wheat states of the Midwest where the farm vote still is to be reckoned with.

Hosmer Farm Vote Rapped by Johovich

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Joseph J. Johovich, Democratic congressional nominee in the Long Beach area 32nd District, Saturday assailed the incumbent Craig Hosmer's vote against the farm bill, saying he "chose to ignore his urban constituents, who must foot the bill, to follow the call of GOP."

Johovich said he would support the administration farm legislation as being in the best interest to all, adding:

"Those who put partisan politics above national interest will applaud urban Republican representatives voting with rural Republican representatives and a minority of Democrats to defeat the Kennedy farm bill, thus insuring an increase in taxes next year for all taxpayers.

"Those who believe the welfare of the nation supersedes the crack of the party whip will take a closer look at their representative's voting record in Congress.

"Those who voted to send the farm bill back to the House Agriculture Committee spelled its virtual death.

"Staggering agricultural surpluses are fated to make greater chaos next year, as taxpayers see their money used to store additional unneeded produce. Only one GOP representative voted for this bill — Phil Weaver, representing Nebraska, an agricultural state."

Health-Care Action in Senate Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Balked by delays in the House, the Kennedy administration will turn to the Senate in an effort to get a vote on its proposals for health care for the elderly.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana announced in the Senate Saturday that an amendment embodying some compromises of the original Kennedy program will be offered next week in the Senate. He predicted it will have bipartisan support.

Mansfield said "it would be preferable, as a matter of legislative procedure, if the House moved first." But, he added, "we have waited for the House to act and it has not acted."

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., coauthor of the administration's bill, plans to offer the amendment. He said he expects to confer with Sen. Jacob K. Javits, of New York, and other Republicans in an effort to work out some compromise which might insure majority support for the amendment in the Senate. Anderson said the revised proposal probably will provide for health care of needy elderly persons who are not on Social Security rolls through some such agency as the Blue Cross.

CHAPLIN, RUSK CO-STAR

'Little Tramp,' Soon to Be Father Again, Will Get Degree at Oxford

By MARIS ROSS

OXFORD, England (UPI)—Charlie Chaplin, 73, has a rare personal appearance scheduled next week and his co-star, of all people, is the Secretary of State of the United States.

It is more or less a coincidence. Chaplin, who once said, "I no longer have any use for America at all," will be getting an honorary degree from Oxford University on the same day as the touring Dean Rusk.

For both, it is a walk-on role. No speeches by recipients.

• • • •

THE ceremony Wednesday will confer a controversial degree of doctor of letters on "The Little Tramp." Rusk will receive an honorary degree as a doctor of civil law.

After the convocation here Chaplin is scheduled to dash back to his home near Vevey, Switzerland, to be on hand for the imminent birth of their eighth child to his 37-year-old wife, Oona O'Neill Chaplin, daughter of the late playwright Eugene O'Neill.

Secretary Rusk, just winding up a five-nation swing, leaves after the Oxford rites for Lisbon, last stop on a tour that will have taken him to Paris, Berlin, Bonn and London for conferences.

• • • •

IN HIS DAY, Chaplin has had considerable contact with the U. S. State Department. Chaplin left the United States in 1952 following charges of moral turpitude and alleged communist ties, and was refused a re-entry permit.

Later he engaged in a sensational tax battle with the U. S. Department of Internal Revenue, subsequently settled in 1958 by a lump sum of $425,000 in back taxes. In 1955 it was that he said, "I no no longer have any use for America at all."

Does he ever plan to return to America?

• • • •

U.P.I. PUT the question and others to him recently through his secretary, Mrs. Eileen Burnier, at Vevey on Lake Geneva. Chaplin's answer:

"No trip whatsoever to the United States is planned within the foreseeable future."

CHARLES CHAPLIN
Shares Billing

Mrs. Burnier provided these other answers:

On his present major occupation:

• • • •

"I AM completely taken up with my memoirs. I am working very hard on them to have everything ready for publication before the end of the year."

Any movie plans or projects?

"Nothing tangible at the moment. I might take up one idea or the other after the memoirs are finished."

• • • •

ANY OTHER specific plans for the future?

"Mainly living here peacefully at the Manoir De Ban, surrounded by my family."

When is the new baby expected? "At the end of June or beginning of July. That is why Mrs. Chaplin cannot accompany me to England for the honorary doctorate ceremony, unfortunately."

File Search Fought By Food Industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food misbranded foods, or products pressed vigorous opposition to proposed legislation that would give government inspectors power to search company files.

The power would be given Food and Drug Administration inspectors seeking information on contaminated or otherwise in violation of law.

H. T. Austern, counsel for the National Canners Association, said such an inspection would be "an unlimited fishing expedition" which would amout to unconstitutional search and seizure.

Congress Asked to OK Radio for Embassies

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department has asked Congress to approve a bill that would speed communications between Washington and its diplomats abroad.

Acting Secretary of State George W. Ball appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in behalf of the measure. It would allow the President to authorize a foreign government to build a radio transmitter near its embassy if it grants the United States the same privilege in its country.

Motorist's Body Taken From Rocks

Lifeguards Saturday used a patrol boat to pull the body of a 22-year-old Torrance man off the rocks below a Palos Verdes Estates cliff.

Police said a resident told them he saw the car at the bottom of the cliff Friday. The body was not discovered until Saturday morning. Police said tire marks indicated Thomas turned off Paseo Del Mar and drove more than 40 yards before plunging over the side of the cliff.

Detectives said Koehler was wanted in Arizona, Washington and California.

High Court, After Hard Job, to Rest

By CHARLOTTE G. MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court expects to adjourn for the summer on Monday after a term of unusual stresses and the heaviest docket in history.

The justices have 19 decisions still undelivered, including a controversial challenge to recital of a state approved prayer in New York public schools.

Some of these cases could be set for reargument next term. Fourteen cases have already been rescheduled.

The normal flow of work was interrupted in late winter by the illness and subsequent retirement of Justice Charles E. Whittaker. Before he was succeeded by Justice Byron R. White, Justice Felix Frankfurter was stricken. He has been hospitalized ever since. His office has said he expects to return to the bench next fall.

• • • •

THUS, ONLY a seven-member court remained to handle the undecided cases argued before these events took place. Reconsideration of some of the sticky issues next term will permit a decision by nine justices and possibly a more decisive majority.

Last term the court closed with about 2,300 cases docketed. This term will see the total approach 2,600.

The increase is accounted for by the growing number of appeals by indignant prisoners who claim they have not had a fair trial. Time is required to examine all of them. Further, the court has been collecting a backlog of lunch counter sit-in trespass appeals.

• • • •

LAST DECEMBER the bench reversed for lack of evidence convictions of a group of 16 Negro students in Baton Rouge, La. But that case did not present a trespass issue.

Most of the demonstrations are represented by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. They contend that a state may not use its police power to enforce segregation in lunch counter areas of stores which in all other respects serve the general public, regardless of race.

Recently appeals have been filed by Robert Soblen of New York, convicted of conspiring to give U. S. defense secrets to Russia, and by Memphis, Tenn., public school authorities who have been ordered to produce a comprehensive desegragation plan.

The fight against reciting the so-called "regents' prayer" in New Hyde Park, N. Y., was started by a group of parents which included Jews, Unitarians, members of the Ethical Culture Society, and non-believers.

THE PRAYER, designed to be non-sectarian, says:

"Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country."

The objections were based on the first amendment to the Constitution which says: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

The business community is awaiting a decision in the "brown shoe" case, which is expected to establish guide lines for future antitrust activity by the government. The court has been asked to interpret amendments in 1950 to the Clayton anti-monopoly law. Under the law the Justice Department obtained an order in federal district court in St. Louis invalidataing the merger of two big shoe firms—the Brown Shoe Co., and G. R. Kinney Co.

• • • •

THE COURT also has a new problem with regard to obscure literature. A 1957 decision held that obscenity is not protected by the free speech guarantee in the Constitution.

CO-OPERATION AND RESISTANCE

Papers Reveal Story of Axis Spies in South America During War II

By LOUIS DE LA HABA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Axis spies operating in South America during World War II, and their roundup are described in State Department documents made public today.

The 838-page volume, part of a series on U. S. foreign relations, covers relations with Argentina, Chile and Brazil during 1942.

It tells of close U. S. cooperation with the Brazilian government in an effort to round up an intricate network of Axis secret agents.

It tells also of not-so-close cooperation from Argentina and Chile, where Axis agents worked almost openly to undermine the allied war effort.

A memorandum prepared at the time by the State Department on spy operations in Argentina said that information transmitted by clandestine radios included movement of warships of United States and England, moves of U. S. airplanes and information on the Panama Canal.

• • • •

THE MEMORANDUM reports that "The work done by these agents has been extremely accurate and especially harmful," and adds:

"Millions of dollars worth of ships, merchandise, petroleum, munitions and foodstuffs have been sent to the bottom of the sea due to the efforts of these agents. Much of this property belonged to countries still on friendly relations with the Axis powers. These agents are also directly responsible for the loss of the lives of hundreds of men, women and children who died when their ships were destroyed by German torpedoes."

In Brazil, acting with the help of U. S. intelligence organizations, authorities were able to arrest 26 Axis agents in one day—March 20, 1942.

• • • •

BRAZILIAN police raids uncovered several radio transmitters and such evidence as chemicals used in the preparation and developing of letters in secret ink, documents and photographs of Hitler.

In Argentina, meanwhile, the United States was having its difficulties with the regime of then acting president Ramon S. Castillo. The U. S. Embassy reported July 17, 1942 that "to date there has been very little indication of any disposition on the part of this organization (a special anti-subversive unit) or any other agency of the national government to take any effective steps to suppress activities of the kind described on the part of Axis elements in Argentina."

In Chile, Ambassador Claude G. Bowers wrote on Oct. 6, 1942, that the "Chilean government apprehended six members of one of the Axis radio rings and seized transmitter used by the clandestine station for past year and a half. . . . Service of investigations is prosecuting the investigations vigorously but we must reckon with the possibility that the Chilean government, through fear of offending Axis embassies, may try to retard an extension of the investigations."

• • • •

UNDERSECRETARY of State Sumner Welles said in a speech in Boston on Oct. 8, 1942, that Argentina and Chile "are still permitting their territory to be utilized by the officials and the subversive agents of the Axis as a base for hostile activities against their neighbors."

"But I cannot believe these two republice will continue long to permit their brothers and neighbors of the Americas . . . to be stabbed in the back by Axis emissaries," he added.

Axis spy operations in the two countries were gradually curtailed from then on, but Chile did not make a final break with the Axis powers until Jan. 20, 1943, and Argentina waited until Jan. 26, 1944—the last two of the American republics to take such a step.

Pilots Group Challenges Crash Report

By ROBERT J. SERLING

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA) took sharp issue Saturday with the official government report that blamed the crew of a United Air Lines jet for history's worst air disaster—the collision of two airliners over New York Dec. 16, 1960.

ALPA's news president, Charles H. Ruby, said the pilots' union will ask the Civil Aeronautics Board to reconsider its findings.

The CAB attached virtually the entire blame for the accident, in which 134 died, on the United pilots for a navigation error which took them 11 miles beyond the point at which they were supposed to hold for a landing clearance.

"The board's report ignores what we believe to be a substantial number of highly important contributing factors," Ruby said in a statement. "We are determined to pursue this case until these factors are made a part of the official accident report."

• • • •

RUBY MADE the announcement after conferring with Capt. Edward Bechtold, regional safety chairman for Eastern Air Lines, who headed the ALPHA accident team in the investigation of the United-TWA collision.

Bechtold said the CAB verdict "completely whitewashes" the role played by the Federal Aviation Agency's Air Traffic Control (ATC) system.

"The CAB's treatment of the Air Traffic Control system as infallible is reprehensible," Bechtold asserted. He added that the CAB report itself noted that FAA had made six major rules and system changes as the direct result of the New York disaster.

"We find it particularly difficult to understand how the board could have ignored this admission or failed to note the full significance of these changes in its report," Bechtold said.

PREVUE OF FUTURE WAR

Buzz Bomb, V-2—Weapons of Terror

(This is another in a series of articles recalling people and places, campaigns and catastrophies of World War II. Subsequent articles will appear at intervals of approximately two weeks.)

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

The war of tomorrow was previewed in June of 1944, when the Germans unleashed a furious robot attack on southern England.

For 80 days winged bombs rained on the British. Each day the British lost an average of 70 dead and 200 injured, despite a heroic defense that pressed the American Air Force into one of its most important missions.

In all, the Germans sent 8,000 robot bombs against England, and 2,300 of them penetrated the British defense.

The V-bomb raids from June 13 to Aug. 31 used all the techniques of intercontinental missillery. They lacked only the distance, and the atomic warhead.

• • • •

THE WAR of the machine against mankind had its inception in 1942, when German tacticians conceived and developed a mechanism that could fly between 300 and 400 miles an hour, at low altitudes, on a controlled course.

Early in 1943 pilot models were tested, and successfully carried one-ton bombloads to targets. British espionage learned of the tests, and aerial reconnasissance in November of 1943 revealed the Germans to be building launching ramps along the French channel coast, all facing London.

Immediately the Allied high command attached an urgent priority to these ramps. British and American planes were diverted from other targets to plaster the ramp sites continously.

• • • •

THE ENGLISH made other preparations for their war against the machine. Airfields were established between London and the coast, and stocked with fast interceptors. Behind those fields, the British massed antiaircraft fire; behind that, balloon blockades.

Completely forewarned and enjoying control of the air, the British and Americans were still unable to stop the terror of the machine.

• • • •

THE FIRST flying bomb was launched the night of June 12, 1944.

About 25 feet long with a 16 foot wing span, it carried an explosive charge equivalent to a one-ton bomb. At 1,500 feet, it flew straight on course into London. At 400 miles an hour, it could outrun most of the interceptor planes of that day.

The first major attack by robot came June 17. Hundreds of V-1 missiles streaked through the air. They were attacked on all sides by the fighter planes, crashed into the heaviest antiaircraft barrage in history, and plowed through the world's biggest balloon blockage.

A third of them got through to target. Thousands of people were killed and injured, millions of dollars worth of buildings, material and stores were destroyed.

• • • •

THEIR tails spitting out a strem of red fire, the bombs swopped down on England—and occasionally other southern coastal towns — with deadly accuracy and horrible frequency.

Not since the winter of 1940-1, when the Germans and British staged their furious air war over England, had the British been under such punishment. Once more they returned to their subway shelters, once more their homes and landmarks were blitzed. Once more their hospitals were filled.

• • • •

THE ALLIED retailiation was swift. Thousands of American and British bombers were assigned the mission of destroying ramps, razing factories where bombs were made, and breaking up the German transportation system that fed the launching ramps.

The British kept a tight censorship on the truth. They could not deny the bomb existed, but they minimized its result.

After the war they revealed that nearly 25,000 people were killed, injured or reported missing in the first two months of the machine's war against man. In mid-July the situation was so serious that the entire anti-aircraft defense of England was transferred to the southern coast to protect London.

• • • •

ALL THESE measures produced results. Some of the fastest fighters shot down robots; antiaircraft, adjusted to the new form of attack, began taking a heavy toll. The constant pounding of the launching sites on the French coast reduced the Germany ability to get V-1 into the air.

But not until the Allies drove the Germans off the coast entirely did the attacks cease.

• • • •

IN OCTOBER of 1944, perhaps to compensate for their inability to get numbers of missiles into the air, the Germans introduced a new flying missile, a long range rocket named V-2. The British soon called it the "flying telephone pole."

Without wings, it was an elongated rocket designed to fly through the stratosphere, attainig heights of 60 to 70 miles before descending to earth.

It was the first weapon to fly faster than the speed of sound, and its power plant enabled it to successfully reach targets 200 miles away.

The age of missile warfare was truly under way when V-2. Its explosive warhead was rated at 14 tons. At the time of its launching, the Allies had no defense that could intercept or destroy the V-2. It left pursuit planes far behind, flew out of the range of anti-craft batteries.

BUT THE Germans had pulled an Allied stunt—"too little and too late."

They didn't have the V-2 in quantity, and they didn't have the ability to defend the launching pads. The British, perhaps understanding the terror of a people toward a weapon that ignored defenses, never revealed the damage done by the V-2.

More than likely, it was comparatively small, for few were launched.

The Allies who invaded Germany had definite instructions—get the V-2, and get the launching pads. So did the Russians. From the V-2 the research scientists gained considerable insight into rocketry.

The rockets of today fly further and faster and carry more loads the defense is faster. But the principal is the same—the war of the machine against man.

Festival Group Sets 5 Shakespeare Plays

L.A.-P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Five Shakespearean plays and an evening of "famous scenes" by the bard will be presented this summer, starting July 6, by the Hollywood Shakespeare Festival Players.

Admission to all of the productions is free.

The plays will be given each Friday at 8:15 p.m. in Plummer County Park, 7377 Santa Monica Blvd., West Hollywood.

Opening the productions will be "Winter's Tale," which will be staged July 6 and 11. It will be followed by "Love's Labor Lost" on July 20, "Cymbeline" on July 27, "Two Gentlemen of Verona" on Aug. 3; "Henry IV, Part I" on Aug. 10, and a Shakespearean Gala (famous scenes) on Aug. 17.

"Winter's Tale" will be presented also on Aug. 24 and "Cymbeline" again on Aug. 31.

Another summer program at Plummer Park will be Theater Universal's presentation of "The Many Adventures of Alice in Wonderland" July 14 and 28 and Aug. 11 and 25 on the outdoor stage.

The programs are presented under co-sponsoring of the Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation.

Stocking Up of Shelters Under Way

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Stocking of fallout shelters in California with food and medical supplies is under way, the California Disaster Office reported.

The Civil Defense agency said a survey of buildings suitable for use as shelters has been completed.

In the second phase of the nationwide program, suitable buildings will be marked to identify them as shelters and stocked with supplies.

Brown Names Zem to Nurse Examiners

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown has named Joseph L. Zem, director of St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco, to the State Board of Vocational Nurse Examiners.

Zem has been appointed to succeed William W. Stadel, M.D., of San Diego, whose term expired.

Brown also reappointed Stuart M. White, president of Fresno City College, to a new term on the board.

Tycoon Fails to Get Cut in Tax Term

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI)—Reno millionaire La Vere Redfield has failed in his attempt to win a reduction of his five-year prison sentence for income tax evasion.

Federal Dist. Judge James A. Walsh said after full consideration of the evidence presented in Redfield's behalf that he concluded "favorable action should not be taken" on the request to vacate, set aside or modify the sentence.

Redfield is serving out his sentence at the Terminal Island Prison. He also drew a $60,000 fine for evading payment of $350,000 in taxes.

Reaction Varies to Ike's Urging of Defense Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — A suggestion by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower that U.S. defense spending should be reduced stirred surprise, plus some dissent and some support, on Capitol Hill Saturday.

Speaking at a Republican fund-raising rally Friday night, Eisenhower caught his fellow party members off guard when he said defense spending reflects "unjustified fears, plus a reluctance in some quarters to relinquish outmoded concepts."

The surprise was deepened when he went on to say he believes "the defense budget should be substantially reduced." He did not elaborate on his reference to unjustified fears and outmoded concepts Friday night. Nor would he do so for newsmen Saturday at a breakfast given by Rep. Perkins Bass, R-N.H., for him and Republican congressional wives.

Military spending, now running at $50-billion-plus a year, has been about the only money subject that has not stirred partisan controversy under President Kennedy. In fact, Republicans and Democrats consistently have joined in voting more funds than asked by the administration under Kennedy as they frequently did under Eisenhower.

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House armed services appropriations subcommittee and a chief architect of military spending bills, said "a cutback in defense would be misinterpreted both at home and abroad... as a move toward a no-win policy, which, of course, President Eisenhower in no way had in mind."

But on the other side of the Capitol, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said he supports Eisenhower's suggestion for a cut in defense spending. "I think we should discuss every item in the defense budget," he said. Proxmire's position was no surprise, however, since he has sought in the past to eliminate certain defense budget items.

In the 1960 presidential campaign, both Kennedy and Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon supported increased military spending and the Kennedy defense budget now is running about $2 billion over Eisenhower's.

Mahon said that he believes if Eisenhower had remained President in 1961 and 1962 he would have embraced and supported many of the programs and policies and improvements which have been initiated during the last 18 months." The changed policies, Mahon said, imply no criticism of Eisenhower but "they are in response to changing conditions which have been in the making for a long time."

Mahon said the massive-retaliation policy enunciated under Eisenhower "was a good policy as long as we had a monopoly or near-monopoly on nuclear weapons."

ONCE BOMBED HER LAND

Now They Team Up and Push Red Cross Drive

Lee N. Mulligan was dropping bombs from his B-24 on the Ploesti Oil Field in Rumania the latter part of 1943.

Sixty miles from Ploesti, in the city of Tisoara, Lia, a school girl, heard the windows rattling.

Last week Mulligan, and Lia, now Mrs. Geza J. Krempels, recalled their war years as they made plans for a common endeavor — the Red Cross campaign drive in Long Beach next March.

ROTES KRUEZ, Voros Kereszt, Cruca Rosa, Cruz Roja—they all mean Red Cross in various countries where Lia Krempels has lived. Lee N. Mulligan, Red Cross campaign chairman, and Mrs. Krempels, Women's Residential chairman, find spot on map where Mrs. Krempels lived while Mulligan was dropping bombs as B-24 pilot.

MULLIGAN, 44, has just been appointed chairman. Chairman of the women's residential division will be Mrs. Krempels.

Mulligan and Mrs. Krempels are getting a long running start for the campaign. Their first job: to round up 1,000 men and 3,000 women volunteer workers.

Both Mulligan and Mrs. Krempels come into volunteer Red Cross work from personal experiences of its value.

• • • •

MRS. KREMPELS, as a teen-ager in Europe, had first hand knowledge of Red Crosss activity. "Our work primarily was trying to bring together separated families." She speaks six languages: German, Rumanian, Hungarian, Spanish, English and Siberian and can understand Italian and French.

Active in numerous organizations in the city since she arrived in 1956, she has been a captain, colonel and area chairman of the Long Beach Chapter, ARC. Called on to help, she helps. "You cannot help being helped if you help," she says.

"I have lived in many places," she said, "but I never get tired of repeating that Long Beach holds the nicest people and I have made it my home town."

MULLIGAN, who manages the North Long Beach District office of the Automobile Club of Southern California, has been active in Red Cross work since 1955 and has been a captain, division chairman and general business chairman in previous campaigns here. Prior to coming to Long Beach he was volunteer disaster chairman for the ARC Oxnard Chapter.

"I first became interested in Red Cross as a result of some very fine experiences during my service career," he said.

He made 50 missions over Europe as a pilot of a Liberator Bomber—hitting targets in Italy, Greece, Austria and Germany.

During a rest period, Mulligan and some of his crewmen were shipped off to Tel Aviv, Palestine for a week.

"Tel Aviv is a fine place," said Mulligan, "but we found we only had money for a couple of days. We went to the local Red Cross and explained our problem."

LOVELY WELCOME TO LONG BEACH

Diane Is a Very Big Hit as Miss

By MARY ELLIS

Miss Welcome to Long Beach is a hit everytime she's a miss.

DIANE AT BAT
She's a Real Hit

And striking 18-year-old Diane Olson's been that—a miss—quite a few times. Twenty-three to be exact. Enough to set a record in most anybody's league.

Fact is, with THOSE curves (38-24-36), she could strike out most any competition.

And has.

• • • •

IN HER short but active title-holding career, she's reigned over baseball games ("I love baseball") . . .

A ski tournament ("I even learned to ski — at least I can stand up") . . .

A deep-sea fishing expedition ("I almost fell off the boat — they really had to move fast to catch me") . . .

Opening of the horse racing season ("love horses—I've lived around them most of my life") . . .

And a track meet ("I even ran around the track for photographers").

• • • •

IN THE past three years, shapely Diane Olson has been miss-this and miss-that so many times she can hardly recall the lineup.

But a look at the records shows she has scored as Miss Maritime Industries (her first title, age 15), Miss Pre-Olympics, Miss Long Beach Food Sales (she's had that title three years running), Miss Port of Long Beach . . .

Also Queen of the World Water Ski Tournament (last summer), Miss Speedcraft for the Sports Show, Miss Softball for the LA Sportsman Show, Miss Colt League (at Blair Field), Miss Western Softball Congress . . .

AND Miss General Telephone, Miss Tasman Sea (for restaurant's opening), Queen of the Long Beach Air Rescue Squad, Miss Robinhood (for Red Cross archery benefit), Miss Los Altos Race Track, Miss Harmony Hostess (for Barbershop Quartet Society), Miss Pierpoint Landing and Miss Pieces of Eight (a restaurant opening in Playa del Ray).

All that in three short years! But the local flurry of fame and fortune hasn't turned Diane's pretty blonde head a bit.

• • • •

THIS 5-feet-7, 123-pound beauty queen and free-lance model had an aura of modesty, self-confidence and charm . . . also a definite I-know-where-I'm-going! air that sets her apart from the prototype of today's teenager.

You know right off there'll be no rhubarbs in HER life.

Not a title-seeker, she points out that up-to-now honors have been offered, not sought—"They're complimentary titles," she explains.

About several offers from Hollywood: "Not interested."

About future plans: "I'll enter Long Beach City College next year to become a dental assistant. From there, probably on to UCLA. Along the way, I'd like to do some TV commercials."

About state and national beauty contests: "Not for me. I'm happy right here."

About the Miss Welcome title: "It's the first contest I've ever entered . . . but I've had my cap set on this title for years.

"When I was 14, I decided I'd try for it as soon as I turned 18."

She did just that this year. Her batting average: 1000.

• • • •

AND IT'S THAT same life-with-a-purpose attitude that has made Diane, at only 18, one of the city's most-sought-after professional models.

Recently she was named "Model of the Year" by the Wilma Hastings Agency, where she received her initial training.

Besides a heavy schedule of modeling assignments, title-holder responsibilities (most of which bring a nice fee), she's also demonstrator for a nationally known camera manufacturer, appearing in stores throughout Southern California.

All this — the modeling, public appearances, luncheons, dances, dinners, et al—naturally calls for a rigorous schedule of clothes-keeping, good grooming habits and schedule juggling.

"That's where mom (Mrs. Eldred Olson) takes over," says Diane, whose sparkling green eyes are enough to turn anyone that color with envy.

"She does the homework."

• • • •

AND speaking of homework, Diane's an unusual beauty queen in that respect, too.

She likes it.

She loves to sew (makes many of her own clothes), knits like a whiz (is on her sixth sweater), also used to make jewelry and hats — "but we had to give that up for lack of time."

Besides that, she likes to cook.

Which proves she's not only a hit in the field . . . she's a pretty good home runner, too.

RECORD of titles beautiful Diane Olson has won is told in sashes she kept as mementoes. Only title she really sought was Miss Welcome to Long Beach presented by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

L.B., UP Swap Oil Work Jibes

By GEORGE WEEKS

The City of Long Beach and Union Pacific Railroad Co. are investigating each other—and finding some causes for criticism on both sides—in connection with unitized oil production in the harbor district.

As the majority interest holder in the uplands, UP is the unit operator for that segment and controls the unitized production. The city, through its contractor, Long Beach Oil Production Co., is discharging a similar role in the tidelands.

City Auditor Murray T. Courson last week issued critical comments based on a 14-day examination of UP's books at the company's main office in Omaha, Neb. His report listed numerous alleged errors in distribution of credits and debits.

• • • •

THE COMPANY already has agreed to make total credit adjustments of $12,196 and debit adjustments of $517, Courson said. Others are still in dispute. His report did not charge deliberate misapplications in accounting.

Typical of Courson's findings was a conclusion that costs incurred in raising wells and facilities as a result of subsidence were charged to unit expense erroneously, possibly as a result of clerical mistakes.

Two of Courson's aides, Chief Deputy Auditor Robert Shepherd and Deputy Auditor J. W. Hansen, made the examination of the company's books last month.

Meanwhile Union Pacific auditors have been checking the records of Long Beach Oil Development Co. in connection with the tideland unitization, in which the city holds the largest interest.

• • • •

THEIR FINDINGS have not been publicly reported. But Charles L. Vickers, port general manager, told city councilmen that costs of the unit operation have in some cases turned out to be high.

"We expect to improve as we go along," Vickers said.

The unit operations in Fault Blocks II and III were inaugurated in 1960 as a part of the effort to control subsidence. Official reports since that time have confirmed predictions that large-scale water injections, made possible on a systematic basis through unitization, would check land sinkage. A secondary effect also noted has been an increase in oil production from the declining field.

Annual Meet of L.B. Music Council Set

Annual conference of delegates to the Long Beach Music Council, sponsor of the Long Beach Music Festival, will be held at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Music Department Choral Room, Long Beach State College.

Wallace Leininger, vice president of the council, will preside in the absence from the city of President Lauris Jones. New officers of the council will be introduced.

Delegates from various affiliated organizations will report on programs and plans for future Music Council activity will be discussed.

The conference meeting, called for under organization by-laws, will hear a report by Dr. Gerald Daniel, council president-elect, on the recently concluded second annual Music Festival. Daniel was coordinator for the event.

Three Reappointed to Book Committee

Three members of the Library Book Committee have been reappointed for one-year terms by City Manager John R. Mansell. They are the Rev. Robert C. Walker, Mrs. Malcolm C. Todd and Harold F. Seal.

BUSY DAY FOR Miss Welcome to Long Beach begins when the alarm clock rings—and Teeny, the Olson pet dog, no youngster at 15, makes the most of the last few quiet moments.

LOOKING CHIC in afternoon dress, Diane displays the poise that swept her into the Miss Welcome to Long Beach title. She hasn't let success turn her head.

POSING PRETTILY for photographers is all part of a day's work for a busy model. Diane's already crowded agenda has been made even busier.

AT BIXBY PARK

First Free Pop Concert Program Here July 24

There is a new note on the Long Beach music horizon. For the first time free admission pops concerts will be presented here, James Herley, president of Long Beach Symphony Association, announced.

The first "Starlight Serenades" will be played in Bixby Park July 24 and Aug. 21. The programs will feature popular and semi-classical favorites performed by a full symphony orchestra and outstanding guest artists, Herley said.

Mrs. Herman Ridder is chairman of the pops programs which are being sponsored as a public service by the Symphony Association. Wallace Arntzen is vice chairman.

Funds are being raised from individuals, businesses, and city and county governments, Mrs. Ridder said.

The City Council this week issued a public statement commending the programs. Referring to the expanding services of the symphony the council said:

"This new summer program is a significant step forward for our community. Long Beach has reached the enviable position where we no longer have to look in the surrounding area to find stimulating cultural and musical experiences.

"This is important because communities are judged by the culture offered to their citizens," the council stated.

EDITORIAL

'Duty, Honor, Country . . .'

TOO MANY APOLOGIES are being offered in behalf of decent impulses these days by those who have right instincts but lack the spirit to stand against cynics and skeptics.

This is the attitude that has destroyed nations. A country needs patriots to stand without apology and speak eloquently in behalf of right things, in the face of radical attack and at the risk of being lumped with the reactionaries and the "cornballs."

Gen. MacArthur has a reputation for being "corny," and on occasion, we admit, he has seemed so to us. But there's nothing corny about the following from a recent speech he made to the cadets at West Point. There's something here for all of us:

"Duty, honor, country: Those three hallowed words reverently dictate what you ought to be, what you can be, what you will be. They are your rallying point to build courage when courage seems to fail, to regain faith when there seems to be little cause for faith, to create hope when hope becomes forlorn.

"Unhappily, I possess neither that eloquence of diction, that poetry of imagination, nor that brilliance of metaphor to tell you all that they mean.

"The unbelievers will say they are but words, but a slogan, but a flamboyant phrase. Every pedant, every demagogue, every cynic, every hypocrite, every troublemaker, and, I am sorry to say, some others of an entirely different character, will try to downgrade them even to the extent of mockery and ridicule.

"But these are some of the things they build. They build your basic character. They mold you for your future roles as the custodians of the nation's defense. They make you strong enough to know when you are weak, and brave enough to face yourself when you are afraid.

"They teach you to be proud and unbending in honest failure, but humble and gentle in succes; not to substitute words for actions, nor to seek the path of comfort, but to face the stress and spur of difficulty and challenge; to learn to stand up in the storm, but to have compassion on those who fall; to master yourself before you seek to master others; to have a heart that is clean, a goal that is high; to learn to laugh, yet never forget how to weep; to reach into the future, yet never to neglect the past; to be serious, yet never take yourself too seriously; to be modest so that you will remember the simplicity of true greatness, the open mind of true wisdom, the meekness of true strength.

"They give you a temperate will, a quality of imagination, a vigor of the emotions, a freshness of the deep springs of life, a temperamental predominance of courage over timidity, an appetite for adventure over love of ease.

"They create in your heart the sense of wonder, the unfailing hope of what next, and the joy and inspiration of life. They teach you in this way to be an officer and a gentleman. . . ."

First Lady Treats Protocol Lightly

By Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The First Lady has Diplomatic Row in a dither, because she seldom allows protocol to interfere with preference.

If she finds a White House visitor intriguing, charming or stimulating, Jacqueline Kennedy stages a brilliant social gathering for him. If she doesn't, the visitor receives somewhat perfunctory treatment.

Feathers were ruffled on the diplomatic front by the most recent and flagrant example of Mrs. Kennedy's preference for fun over protocol.

When France's distinguished Minister of Culture, writer and critic Andre Malraux, came to Washington, he was given the big treatment. The White House put on a glittering state dinner with music by Violinist Isaac Stern and a trio. This was followed by a chic weekend lunch at the Kennedy retreat in the nearby Virginia fox-hunting country.

While Malraux was being feted on his non-official visit, Norway's Premier Einar Gerhardsen also was here on an official visit. He got rather casual treatment—one small White House lunch. The First Lady, moreover, was absent from Gerhardsen's return reception at Blair House, just a stone's throw away from the White House. She said she had a cold.

The Norwegians had been persuaded to entertain at Blair House instead of their own spacious embassy just so the Kennedy's wouldn't be inconvenienced. Norway is an important NATO ally, and the Norwegians were not pleased.

THERE WERE surprises for everyone the other evening at a Republican rally in Princeton. Sen. Clifford P. Case (R., N.J.), a Senate liberal, was to introduce Sen. John Tower (R., Tex), who makes his home to the right of Goldwater. Case did so, and with enthusiasm. He laid it on. And Tower responded in kind with a warm tribute to Case.

A New Jersey Democrat tried to stir up a debate between the two, but Tower replied that he and Case would be happy on one condition: that liberal Democrat Harrison A. Williams (N.J.) debate with conservative Democrat Strom Thurmond (S.C.)

The theme for both debates would be foreign aid, and the like.

Fusses and Crises Presage a Season of Political Fun

FUSSES NOW in escrow would keep political news lively through California's 1962 even if no new ones were added. And we're sure to have more. The following program notes are admittedly fragmentary but then it would take a ballot-sized column to annotate properly this opus politicus.

First of about two dozen Nov. 6 ballot propositions will deal with pay hikes for state legislators. They get $6,000 a year now. One measure asks for $11,250 or half the pay of a U.S. congressman. Another asks that state lawmakers be allowed to set their own pay up to $10,000 a year. Crisis: How will Assembly candidates, asking for your vote on the same ballot, stand on the increased pay issue?

HOUSER

Proposition 24, or thereabouts, will be retiring Assemblyman Louis Francis' initiative constitutional amendment to outlaw the Communist party and to set up a labyrinth of safeguards against communist activities. Crisis: What saith the voter in view of opposition to the measure by both gubernatorial nominees Nixon and Brown?

• • • •

AT HAND next Tuesday will be consideration of resubmission of state construction bonds defeated June 5. Nixon and Brown have both supported these, accenting the needs for educational facilities. If the deal is resubmitted it probably will be under a letter "A" rather than as No. 25 on the ballot. Crisis: Did the voters understand what they were throwing out June 5? Will they vote for their favorite governor candidate and buck him on this matter?

The issue of CDC (California Democratic Council) looms big, big, big. Nixon has seized it and asks Brown to "stop stalling and tell the voters" how he stands on six "on-the-record resolutions of CDC" dealing with loyalty oaths, UnAmerican Activities Committee, Red China admission to the UN, repeal of Landrum-Griffin, and others.

• • • •

NOW COMES Jesse Unruh, Assembly speaker, Brown and Kennedy campaign manager in immediate past wars. Unruh has been appointed chairman of the Congressional and Assembly campaign committee of the Democratic State Central Committee of Southern California. Crisis: Unruh is no lover of CDC but more than 70 per cent of CDC's primary endorses were nominated. So he will be waging wars for their election.

Another part of this friction is CDC embarrassment in suffering big defeats June 5 for County Central Committee positions. They say that Unruh and labor's Committee on Political Education (COPE) sent out slate recommendations of non-CDC and anti-CDC candidates for these committees and the slates won in many cases.

Come next January, these hostile committees will be considering charter applications for CDC clubs and may turn very cool. CDC has even been bitterly wondering whether the COPE slate recommendations violated the election code by not bearing source information. Conviction of such violation could possibly prevent seating of committeemen who were a party to the slate mailer.

ANOTHER CRISIS—vote tallying—will get some consideration next Wednesday when Coleman Systems, Inc., of Santa Ana stages a press preview of its "revolutionary" vote tally system. If as good as billed, this could indeed be a welcome revolution.

JACK ANDERSON

Schlesinger Protests Talk by General Barry Goldwater

(EDITOR'S NOTE—While Drew Pearson is in the Far West, his column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — Mississippi Sen. John Stennis has closed his inquiry into military muzzling, but he has left many a stone unturned. Here are some of the facts remaining under the rocks:

—White House aide Arthur Schlesinger protested to Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert against a war college speech by Maj. Gen. Barry Goldwater, who also happens to be the outspoken Senator from Arizona. Schlesinger also asked for "a list of the Air War college lectures for the last few months."

—A confidential army regulation, known as AR 381-135, authorizes local commanders to censor any publication they deem unwholesome for their troops. Some have used this blanket authority to ban such respected magazines as Reporter, Nation, New Republic, and even Mad, the spoof magazine.

—Stennis had a personal experience with censorship when the Navy tried to show his subcommittee a sub rosa movie of the first undersea launching of a nuclear missile. The Navy not only had neglected to ask higher authority for permission to film a nuclear test, but had tried to block the Air Force from making a rival movie. Result: The White House stopped the Navy from showing its bootleg movie to senators.

—Thought control not only is permitted but is prevalent behind the brass curtain.

• • • •

THE AIR WAR COLLEGE used to enjoy the same academic freedom as civilian colleges. But lately, pressures from both the right and left are closing in on the Air Force's school for future generals.

The Georgia American Legion, for instance, protested against the appearance of liberals Vera Dean and Margaret Mead as war college lecturers. At the same time, Montana Sen. Lee Metcalf objected to an address by right-wing publisher Leonard Reed.

Schlesinger described Goldwater's speech to the war college as "blatantly political," but acknowledged in his private memo to the Air Force secretary:

"Of course, if Goldwater were invited to attack our foreign policy and if someone else were given the opportunity to answer, this might be a different matter."

The White House aide was less charitable, however, toward Air Force Capt. Bill Francis who delivered an anti-Communist scare speech last year at the University of Kentucky.

In the audience was Dr. James Halsted, who wrote to Schlesinger that the speech sounded like "straight down the line McCarthyism" to him. Schlesinger forwarded the letter to Zuckert with the sharp note:

"You will be interested in the attached letter from Dr. Halsted of the University of Kentucky medical school. It would hardly seem that Capt. Francis is the best possible exponent of the New Frontier!"

D. J. STEWART

What Is Nixon's Political Future After November 6?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This article appeared in the June 5 issue of the National Review, 150 E. 35th St., New York, N. Y., and is reprinted here as a matter of interest to followers of California politics. The author, D. J. Stewart is an instructor at St. Michael's in Toronto and has a doctorate from Cornell.)

THE SUFFERINGS of Richard M. Nixon become more evident and more pathetic with each new dawn. His campaign to become governor of California is not going to be the easy slide he thought it would be. He is not finding the considerable bulk of Pat Brown as movable as was first predicted. He has a first-class headache in his own party in the person of Joseph Shell, young, rich, pugnacious and appealing. His various ploys and stratagems have mostly failed in the test. His old habit of using the slightly-too-bitter word is plaguing him. He has no idea how strong the Warren - Knight faction is, or how deeply - felt is their desire to cut his throat. And — he hardly seems to want the job!

NIXON

This is the basic problem. Nixon wants to stay politically "alive"; the governorship would provide longevity, but not necessarily of the right sort. For it is entirely out of his hands to elicit any real advantage from such a reprieve. Being governor may prove no earthly good to him. Kennedy may be unbeatable in '64. Or Nixon may be shouldered aside by another candidate. This is the dilemma: he can have the nomination provided it's not worth having; conceivably he could lose it if it has any value, and this is a strong possibility, for he has no real friends in national Republican councils, and has no pre-emptive hold on delegates for next time. If he should win the governorship, and then lose the nomination for the Presidency in '64, he would be horribly thrashed in trying for another term in '66.

His promise to stick to Sacramento and to stay out of the fray in '64 should not be taken seriously. He will be sweating like a coal-miner to catch delegates if it appears that the '64 nomination is worth anything. The man whose conscience inspired the stretchsock will have no trouble in rationalizing his candidacy in '64.

• • • •

THE MORE IMMEDIATE problem, however, is to get to Sacramento. Nixon is finding that his old methods of campaigning seem less than successful. He appears angry and belligerent; he wants to stir things up. Having found that just being Richard Nixon was not enough to assure an automatic win, he has been trying to rake up an issue. This may prove disastrous. California voters tend to punish candidates who lug in issues, probably on the reasonable grounds that there are no issues in California. Or—there is only one, sectionalism, and very few recent candidates have known which end of the issue will pay off. Certainly, Nixon had no notion of how to jump on this. There are good reasons for doubting that the issue of economy is any good, because Californians have never objected to the spending of money, and seem to be satisfied with value received, with the best universities, highways and comforts one could buy. "Statism" or "Welfarism" or what-have-you is only a joke; the state is extremely paternalistic, and most people seem to like it that way. There are problems, like water, education and roads, but these are mostly technical and offer no partisan handles. Nixon might try to junk the Feather River Project, and thus gain the San Francisco vote (Bay Area residents often have a pathological resentment against Southern California); but then he would be slaughtered in Los Angeles, which is a lot bigger. In sum, he needs an issue to get attention, but almost any conceivable issue is either dangerous or useless.

• • • •

After decades of riotous corruption and near anarchy, California seemed to turn a corner with the first Warren administration (1942). Since then our governors have been mild, easy-going men who have managed to make their several opponents seem like addlepated mountebanks. Their whole air seemed to say, "We have a paradise here, let's enjoy it. And let's not become enfevered by the ravings of that fellow with straws in his hair (the opposition candidate)."

Jimmy Roosevelt tried to make an issue out of more welfare (1950) at a time when things were still booming, and the state had all the welfare it could manage. Warren rolled over him, and there wasn't enough left to pick up in a dust-pan. An innocent named Richard Graves tried to fetch Goodwin Knight (1954) with dark warnings about the disaster impending should Knight get another term, his vexation stemming from a view which many unworried citizens freely endorsed — that Goodie's intelligence measured over in the minus-numbers. Said Graves disappeared like a puff of smoke. Then (1958) Bill Knowland galloped home and began charging about like Paul Revere, shouting about an issue that was almost unintelligible in California — right-to-work! The citizens didn't like having their day-dreams interrupted and handed Knowland a thumping defeat. Even though history doesn't repeat itself in a very dependable fashion, I should say that most Californians still cringe when one of these frenzied types begins his incantations, and Nixon may find that rooting in corners for an issue will undo him.

Nevertheless, pretending faith in the polls, I shall assume a Nixon victory. What will he do with it? Very little. He will face a lopsided Democratic majority in the Legislature. The (for once) Democratic gerrymander cooked up last year is, my agents inform me, a masterpiece. It is doubtful that the Republicans will ever get back, unless the state loses half its population. The legislators will foil Nixon, not merely by opposing his bills, but by concocting all kinds of embarrassing legislation on their own, and worse, by putting up a gorgeous array of explosive propositions for referendum to the voters. (One should explain that the California voter must decide, besides his choice of officeholders, on anywhere from thirty to fifty legislative propositions at each election, of which at least six are usually extremely controversial—the ballot is usually as big as a good-sized road-map.) Nor will he get any balm from his own party. Some of the right-wingers who are now sniping at him will shamelessly line up to ask for favors, and cry "traitor" if they fail to get them.

Thus Nixon will be holding an office that he can't enjoy, with nothing certain except trouble. He will be bored by mere administration, and if he tries to meddle in things, he will get burned. Yet he needs to generate attention in order to keep his Presidential stock at a competitive level. But Californians are notoriously callous about Presidential hopes, they want a governor to stick to business. If he goes outside to pose as a national figure, he will be invited by the papers to do so on his own time. California voters are not used to having an incumbent governor shouting at them—he has the office, and the power, so why should he clamor? He can try to keep in the news through his handling of state problems. But here new dangers arise. If he meddles with the water problem he will have secession on his hands. If he tries to fiddle with education there will be rumors of impeachment. If he gets heavy-handed with the powerful Attorney General's office (likely to stay in Democratic hands regardless of other changes) every pro and amateur demagogue will be on his back, and he may get chastised by the courts. If he tries to "de-liberalize" the welfare set-up the Legislature will laugh in his face and dream up more things to put on the ballot. It will be as big as a table-cloth.

• • • •

IN SHORT, IF NIXON contents himself with the usual activities of a California governor (Hollywood premieres, Rose Parades, inspecting freeways, and worrying about water) he will be unhappy. If he tries to act like a Presidential candidate, many others will be unhappy, and will make their condition felt. All in all, his position is fraught with dangers, the principal one being his only chancy prospects of remaining a national figure. Coolly considered, there is almost nothing for him to do in this without getting into trouble at home. I venture to predict that, if elected, he will be foolish enough to try to stir up a row about something connected with welfare, and at that point several politicians I can think of will put the morticians on alert and began thinking of 1966.

PUBLIC FORUM

Paper Played Vital Role, Says Bonelli

EDITOR:

Upon attainmnet of our goal to qualify a Constitutional amendment, via the initiative petition, reapportioning the State Senate and allowing people to vote statewide thereupon at the General Election on Nov. 6 of this year, I hasten to thank, congratulate and commend your newspaper for the manner in which your newspaper pursued objectively from day to day the crash program to qualify in substantially one-half the time normally allotted and needed for such an undertaking.

Certainly, without your newspaper's conscientious, wholehearted support, the goal could not have been achieved and this tremendous mission of vital importance to our state accomplished.

• • • •

MOST assuredly, your newspaper can and will share an important part in the enlightenment of the voting public in the months prior to the November election, as to the dire need for this long overdue basic reform in the upper house structure of our State government.

In addition to thanking and congratulating you, I must in all sincerity thank the wonderful, dedicated volunteer workers who gave of their time and effort freely and faithfully in the circulation of petitions, and, of course, thank all of those who by their signatures thereupon made our effort successful.

AT ADVENTIST CAMP MEET

Minister Tells of Heathen Days

Joseph Mave, native of Emirau Island, near New Guinea, walked onto the stage of the 59th annual Seventh-day Adventist meeting in Lynwood Saturday carrying a spear and drum.

But for Mave, an ordained Seventh-day minister, these are relics of the past.

He could recall as a youth more than 30 years ago when the drums sounded from 6 in the evening until the next morning.

"Twenty to thirty of these single-headed 'sing-sing' drums were played to accompany the all-night ceremonial dancing," he said. These dances are no longer held on Emirau.

Today the population of Emirau — about 500 — is completely converted to Seventh-day Adventist belief, said Mave.

• • • •

HIS PEOPLE were "heathen devil worshippers" once, he said. "My mother was a confirmed devil worshipper. When my brother became ill, she prayed to the devil but it did no good. When a Seventh-day Adventist prayed for my brother, he became well the next morning. My mother sent me to the Seventh-day Adventist school."

Sometimes called a "fuzzy wuzzy" because of his tight, kinky hair, neatly trimmed, Mave says the term is merely a "nickname" given the islanders by westerners. He good-naturedly ran a long-toothed wooden comb, called a "kom" or "al sila," (thing to comb with). "Some of the natives in the bush country have long fuzzy hair," he said.

Except for his "lap-lap" skirt, also known as a "sulu"—a garment adopted from the Fiji Islanders — Mave's dress is western. Most of the islanders speak a pidgin English called "tok ples" (talk of a place).

• • • •

MAVE'S WORK in the Pacific comes under the supervision of Eric A. Boehm, 51, president of the Adventists' Bismark-Solomons Union Mission, with headquarters at Rabaul, New Guinea.

Boehm said since Adventists began missionary work in the islands there are 17,000 converts.

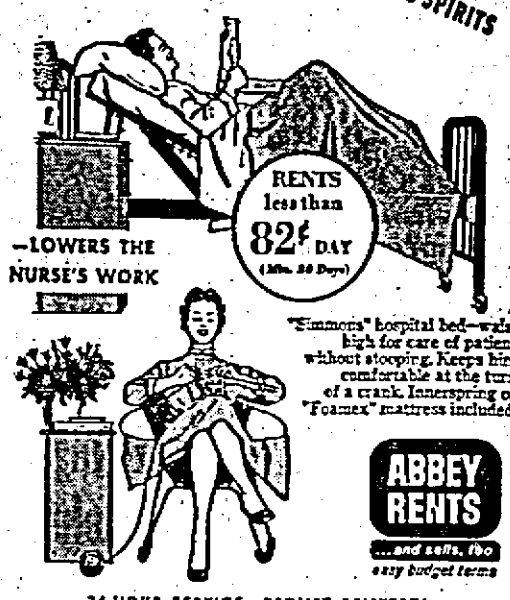

Boehm and Mave were the principal speakers at the Adventist camp meeting at 4100 Imperial Hwy., Lynwood. The meeting will continue through Saturday.

The convocation, attended by thousands of Southland Adventists this year features the foreign missions program which the organization maintains in 196 countries of the world.

Cadillac

When he got the facts . . . he got the car!

And what are the facts about Cadillac that proved so persuasive?

Well, listen for yourself—and judge for yourself.

Fact Number One. A Cadillac can be unexpectedly modest in original cost. The lowest priced model, for instance, actually costs less than eleven models of other less renowned makes.

Fact Number Two. The price of a new Cadillac includes many important features that are extra on most other cars—including power steering, power braking and Hydra-Matic drive.

Fact Number Three. Cadillac cars are extraordinarily dependable—and remarkably frugal in their use of gasoline and maintenance requirements.

Fact Number Four. Cadillac dealers are especially anxious to welcome new owners to the Cadillac family at this time of the year—and they are in a position to make the step up unusually attractive.

Of course, that's only the frosting on the cake. For the basic temptation remains, as always, the greatness of the Cadillac car itself—a greatness that has this year reflected itself in every phase of performance, craftsmanship . . . and in every detail of beauty and elegance.

It's a combination that has this year proved irresistible to more motorists than ever before.

Why not visit your nearest Cadillac dealer soon and let yourself be tempted?

SEN. MURDY

Charges Too Many Agencies

By BOB GEIVET

Mergers of "various departments" of the state government, consolidation of some agencies and elimination of others was demanded Saturday in Huntington Beach by State Sen. John A. Murdy Jr.

He said "the time has come to give serious consideration to reorganization of our state government."

There are, he declared, "too many bureaus, agencies and departments eating up taxes."

Elimination of some of them and consolidation of others is necessary "if we are to remain a free society," he claimed.

"Looking at the problem realistically, our state government has grown larger out of necessity to cope with the great surge in population. But the growing pains of a spiraling population have brought waste, inefficiency and bureaucy" into the state government, he said.

"Too many people are complaining that they have less voice in the government today, and that too many decisions are made by various agencies serving at the pleasure of the governor—not the elected representatives."

• • • •

"THE DANGER here," Sen. Murdy said, "is that big government will tell you what do do and what not to do, instead of the people electing representatives to run the government as the people direct."

Sen. Murdy noted that "obviously, a prime objective should be to reduce the span of control by the state's chief executive."

This is necessary, he said, because "during the past four years of the present administration, some 40 new bureaus and agencies have been created. There are now 363 separate units responsible only to the governor.

"A solution to these problems is not necessarily the creation of new superagencies as has already been proposed," Sen. Murdy said. "This only tends to compound the problem. Mergers of various departments will be necessary; so will transfer of some agencies to proper lines of responsibility. Many bureaus must of necessity be eliminated if we are to remain a free society."

CAMPING

Glenn Family to Get Away From It All

WASHINGTON (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. is going to get away from it all for a while.

For the first time since he joined Project Mercury three years ago, he's going on a camping trip with his wife and two children.

But where and when is a secret.

"We would just love to be alone for a while," said Mrs. Glenn. "John needs to get off by himself."

The Glenns used to take frequent camping expeditions but, said Mrs. Glenn, "John's been a bit busy since then."

The Glenn family will also pull up stakes and leave their Arlington, Va., home in late July or early August, for a new home in Houston, Tex., the permanent site for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's manned space center.

Hefty Volunteers on Special Diet to Help Science

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)—Sixty "healthy obese" volunteers lived on liquid and wafer food substitutes today to help scientists determine whether the fat or the lean disappears in a dieting program.

They are in the first stage of an eight-week, 900-calorie-a-day subsistence program to determine the effects of nutrionally complete food substitutes on the fat-lean ratios of the human body.

Purdue University doctors will use gamma rays from a giant scintillation counter to measure the body's natural potassium which is found only in lean muscle tissue.

CHEFS WELCOME

Men Invited to Take Part in Cook Book Competition

Men are welcome to submit their favorite recipes in the annual Cook Book Contest conducted by The Independent, Press-Telegram, Mildred Flanary, director of the contest announces.

Most of the recipes submitted so far have been from women.

"I know the Long Beach area has many good male cooks," says Miss Flanary, "and, most every man has a favorite recipe of his own. This is a chance for him to share it with others."

Deadline for submitting favorite recipes is midnight July 22. There are 40 different classifications of recipes in which three prizes will be awarded. Grand prize will be a Gaffers & Sattler de luxe range or a dishwasher.

The winning entries and many of the others will be published in a Cook Book supplement of The Sunday Independent, Press-Telegram about Sept. 1.

Recipes should be mailed to:

Cook Book Contest
Independent, Press-Telegram,

'GOING TO THE DOGS' was the vogue Saturday and will be again today on the grounds adjacent to Municipal Auditorium where the Harbor Cities Kennel Club is having its dog show and obedience trial. Above left, Mrs. Nel Fietinghoff of Downey grooms her Yorkshire Terrier, "Curry" for judging. Center, enthusiasts watch judging of Wirehaired Terriers. Above right, suited up and ready to go, three contestants are all set for a doggy game of basketball between the "Lickers" and the "Barkers."

BOY MEETS DOG at dog show. Don Chittenden, 8, of 3617 Cherry Ave., won this purebred Cocker Spaniel during the dog show. They hit it off from the start.

CROOKED SPY

Pick Wrong Man to Be Agent

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—The tale of a trusted comrade who went wrong was related sorrowfully by Havana radio.

Seems a storekeeper in the Havana suburb of Marianao joined the defense committee in his block and watched his neighbors for signs of counterrevolutionary activity—but all the time he was operating a black market in clothing at his shop.

Said the radio: "He infiltrated the defense committee to conceal his dark intrigues."

The fate of the luckless comrade was not announced.

$22-Billion Bank Haul in N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The well-trained team moved with split-second precision into the bank vaults. Not a guard opposed them. All alarms had been silenced.

It was no holdup, but the withdrawal Saturday was the biggest of its kind in history.

Some $22 billion worth of securities were stacked in ordinary cardboard boxes—3166 of them. The boxes were shuttled by seven armored trucks, making a total of 400 trips, from the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. to new vaults on Wall Street.

The securities were moved because the bank plans to transfer its headquarters to the new location in the fall.

Honky Tonk Vice Squelch Demanded

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate investigators called today for a massive crackdown on tax-cheating white slavers allegedly operating behind the gay facade of brightly lighted honky tonk nightclubs.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said in an interview the evidence his Senate investigations subcommittee has produced already in public hearings shows "the condition is an outrage" calling for concerted action by federal and local law enforcement agencies.

A parade of witnesses has charged that powerful, tax-evading crime syndicates and assorted hoodlums have taken over the tawdry night clubs. Defrauding the government and forcing girl dancers into prostitution. McClellan has charged the situation involves collusion with some high officials in the AFL-CIO union, the American Guild of Variety Artists.

• • • •

THIS IS A union which bargains collectively with night clubs and other employers in behalf of entertainers. There has been a lot of testimony that AGVA has done little or nothing to enforce contracts which specifically forbid exploitation of its members.

The union is to present its defense Monday or Tuesday in the windup of this phase of the inquiry.

McClellan said he woud reopen the inquiry later in the summer to test what has been done to crack down on the racketeers.

"The condition is an outrage," he said, "and it addresses itself to the Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Service and Labor Department, perhaps others. It cries out for action."

Much, he said, can be done also through proper local law enforcement. He already has challenged the AFL-CIO either to clean up AGVA or boot it out of the "house of decent unionism."

12% Yield on Volks Shares Seen

WOLFSBURG, Germany (UPI)—They're holding a big picnic next week at this city near the Iron Curtain, and the menu is a big financial pie.

About 5,000 persons are expected for the Volkswagen Co's. second annual stockholders' meeting June 30 which shapes up as something of a love feast. The main item on the agenda is a happy one—approval of a 12 per cent dividend on Volkswagen shares.

The meeting comes after a year that has seen some drastic fluctuations of the stock on the market and brought a knockdown, drag-out battle between the Volkswagen Co. and the West German federal government. But the shares have settled into what appears to be a slow and steady climb and "VW" management came out of its fight with the government in fine shape.

IT WAS A year and a half ago, on Jan. 16, 1961, that the 3.6 million Volkswagen shares were sold to the West German "little man" in one of the biggest de-nationalization experiments in history. By this sale Europe's largest automobile manufacturer inherited more owners than any other company in the world except the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The shares carried a nominal value of 100 marks ($25) but sold for 350 marks ($87.50) each. Since everyone expected their value to rise quickly on the stock exchanges, the sale of VW shares was limited to two, sometimes three per customer. Persons with incomes of more than 16,000 marks ($4,000) a year were excluded from the sale.

Employes of the Volkswagen Co. were allowed to buy up to 10 shares, including one free of charge.

INITIALLY, the rosiest hopes of VW investors were surpassed when the shares climbed to a peak of 1,108 marks ($277) in May, 1961.

Then came a decline. Volkswagen chares slipped steadily and May 29, "Black Tuesday," hit a low of 429. But since then VW has been climbing again, surpassing the 550 mark this month. Part of the reason for the decline probably was due to the company's recent warning with the government over VW price increases in March this year, which resulted in retaliation by the government in the form of tariff cuts for imported cars.

Economics minister Ludwig Erhard tried to persuade Volkswagen management to rescind the price increases. It refused and a power struggle developed between the government and the country's biggest auto maker. The goverment lost for all intents and purposes.

Volkswagen prices stayed up, but so did the demand for the little car. Germans still have to order their Volkswagen three to four months in advance.

SINCE THE federal government retained only 20 per cent of the shares and the state of lower saxony another 20 per cent after de-nationalization, control of the Volkswagen Co. today is in the hands of its management, more specifically manager Heinz Nordhoff, as the government discovered the hard way during its recent tussle with VW.

Under Nordhoff's direction, the little car caught on in Germany, in Europe and then in the United States. The company grew and last year more than a million Volkswagens, 4,233 a day, rolled off the assembly lines in Wolfsburg and in a new plant in Hannover. With a turnover of five billion marks ($1.25 billion) Volkswagen was West Germany's biggest industrial giant and the third largest auto maker in the world.

During the first quarter of 1962, VW production rose 10 per cent compared with 1961 figures, to 287,174 units. Exports dropped to 54.9 per cent in this period, compared with last year's 58.9 per cent.

Although Volkswagen sells its cars to 110 countries and is the world's biggest exporter of automobiles, Nordhoff recently conceded that export sales have become more difficult and he sees little room for expansion.

BRIGHTMAN TO COACH L.B. PRO '5'

Al Brightman was named coach of the Long Beach Professional Basketball Club Saturday.

The signing of the 39-year-old former coaching marvel at Seattle University is the first major step in building the Long Beach area's first major professional sports representative—the yet-to-be-nicknamed team in the American Basketball League.

Brightman's acceptance of a contract, whose terms were undisclosed, was announced by Lauren Proctor, newly-appointed club vice president in charge of promotion and sales.

In Brightman and Proctor, the fledgling cage club has obtained two men with roots deep in Long Beach area sports . . . Brightman as a player and coach, Proctor as a coach and promoter. Both are enthusiastic about the chances of the new club which will play its games in the new Long Beach Arena.

"It's a dream come true for me to return to Long Beach," said Brightman, who replaced Phil Woolpert as coach of the San Francisco Saints of the ABL midway through last season. "I've always wanted to coach a team in my own home town.

"I'm confident that the fans here will find the play in the American League the most exciting in basketball today. The home run has made baseball popular, and the three-point play gives the same effect to ABL basketball."

Under ABL rules, a shot from 25 feet is worth three points instead of the normal two.

Brightman plans "to exploit the long shot regardless of personnel" and will waste no time to search for "home run hitters." Tryouts for the new team will be held at the City College gym Wednesday at 7 p.m. All players are invited.

The handsome father of six—with a seventh on the way—has had a career in sports studded with success.

A native of Eureka, Calif., Brightman came to Long Beach in 1935 and played basketball and baseball at Franklin, Jefferson and Rogers junior high schools and Wilson High.

At Wilson, he led the old Bay League in scoring each year, set a CIF scoring record of 51 points in one game and was CIF player of the year in 1941. He played forward. As a baseball pitcher and catcher, he helped Wilson to win the 1940 CIF championship, and he earned all-CIF honors again.

After school, he joined the famous 20th Century Fox AAU basketball team and was named rookie of the year in the 1942 National AAU Tournament at Denver. He also signed a pro basketball contract with Cleveland, and played briefly at Baltimore, then of the International League, before entering the Navy as a Chief Petty Officer.

Brightman, whose father is a retired Navy man, became captain of the Navy All-Star basketball team.

After service, he entered Morris Harvey College in West Virginia and was second in the nation in scoring with an average of 21.6. In 1946, he joined the Boston Celtics and led the club in scoring. He tried baseball with Baltimore again but an arm injury ended his diamond career.

In 1947, Brightman went to Seattle as a player-coach of that city's entry in the now-defunct Pacific Coast pro league. The next year, he was asked to coach at Seattle U.

Possessor of a winning smile and dynamo's energy, the rookie coach quickly put Seattle on the map as a major basketball power. In his eight seasons there, he had a record of 180 wins against 62 losses, and was one of only five coaches ever to win 100 games in their first five seasons.

The other four read like a who's who of college coaching—Adolph Rupp of Kentucky, Tom Blackburn of Dayton, Everett Case of North Carolina State and Frank McGuire of St. Johns.

Brightman's stay at Seattle was marked by his recruiting of two sensational players, Johnny O'Brien and Elgin Baylor.

O'Brien, whose twin brother, Eddie, also was a Seattle star, probably was the best 5-9 center in the history of basketball. Later to gain more fame as major league

Dodgers on Spree, Rip Cincy, 14-3

By GEORGE LEDERER

Don Drysdale received as much cushioning from his teammates as 47,159 fans tossed on the field to celebrate the Dodgers' 14-3 trouncing of Cincinnati Saturday night.

Drysdale, who hadn't defeated the Reds since Aug. 26, 1960, finally had a laugher. He had 19-hit backing in recording his 12th victory and seventh in his last eight starts.

Everybody but Mrs. Kallabash got into the Dodger act. Tommy Davis and Willie Davis each had four hits. Tommy drove in five runs, a season record for the club.

Catcher Doug Camilli was the only starter who failed to hit safely and he had a legitimate excuse. He walked three times.

• • • •

JOEY JAY (10-7) was the loser inside of two innings. Manager Fred Hutchinson tossed in the towel early and let Jay stay for a 10-man, five-run second inning. Jay's successors were second-liners Moe Drabowsky and Johnny Klippstein, a move that manager Freddie Hutchinson may regret in view of the Reds' late comeback.

Drysdale, tiring mainly from his long innings on the bench, gave the Reds all their runs in the ninth.

The win enabled the Dodgers to protect their 2½-game lead over the Giants and represented their largest margin of the season. The 19 hits tied a season high.

achieved also against the Mets, May 30.

Dodger speed gave Drysdale two runs in the opening inning and from then on, it was pure power. The barrage included five double plus a triple, by T. Davis.

• • • •

A BALK by Jay set up two RBIs for T. Davis in the first inning. Willie Davis, who reached base five times and has a string of six hits in two games, was aboard each time Tommy connected and scored four runs.

Jay left for a hitter in the third when the Dodgers led 7-0. The first of three hits by Daryl Spencer touched off the five-run Dodger second, which included singles by Drysdale, the two Davieses,

Ron Fairly and Frank Howard.

Drabowsky yielded only one run, but Dodger artillery zeroed in on Klippstein for four runs in the fifth and two more in the seventh.

The fifth inning merry-go-round included doubles by Maury Wills and Howard and singles by Spencer, Jim Gilliam and W. Davis. With the

Angels Drop 3rd in Row

By ROSS NEWHAN
L. P-T Staff Writer

ST. PAUL — The Angels have a distinct dislike for cats—especially when they're Siamese and named Jim.

Jim Kaat (rhymes with cat) of the Minnesota Twins shut-out the Angels for the second time this season, 5-0, before 18,993 paying fans Saturday and an additional 4,772 kids who have made this Kaat one of their pets.

The loss was the third straight for the Angels here in the land of lakes, gophers, Vikings and Twins and dropped Bill Rigney's nine into fourth place. It was a bus the Angels rode back to their hotel following the game and not the coach which had carried the Cinderfellas into second place.

While a rain and hailstorm pelted the Twin Cities, 10 miles away the Twins pelted Eli Grba for three home runs and their eighth victory in 11 meetings with the Angels this season.

• • • •

THE TWINS, who lead the American League in batting and fielding, collected only four hits off Grba during his seven-inning tenure, but Zoilo Versalles and Vic Power got all the mileage permissable out of their's.

Versalles followed Bob Allison's double and a walk to Earl Battey with his ninth home run—and third off the Angels—in the second, and

ANGEL OF DAY

BILLY MORAN got one of only three Angel hits in 5-0 loss to Minnesota.

Power, who Cleveland general manager Gabe Paul begged the Angels to take, lashed his seventh and eighth four-baggers in the third and sixth innings.

The gopher balls brought to 11 the number Grba (3-4) has served in 83 innings this year, an average of one every seven and one-half innings.

The Angels, meanwhile, could not scratch Kaat for even a walk after the second inning. Billy Moran and Leon Wagner tagged first-frame singles and Joe Koppe ripped a safety with two out in the second, but after that, Kaat retired 22 Angels in order.

• • • •

THE SHUTOUT was only the second dealt to the Angels this year and both have been administered by Kaat, a 24-year-old lefthander from Zeeland, Michigan. He struck out 10 while white-washing the Seraphs, 5-0, at Chavez Ravine on April 22. This time, he fanned seven and did not walk a man.

Kaat needed only one hour and 56 minutes to record his eighth victory against four defeats and become the winningest lefthander in the American League. It was his seventh straight win and third against the Angels.

With the win, the Twins moved to within one-half game of league-leading Cleveland and kept THEIR Cinderella story alive. It was just one year ago Saturday that Sam Mele replaced Cookie Lavegetto as the Siameses' manager. At the time, Minnesota was mired at 25-41. By the end of the season the Twins' percentage was .489. It's been going up ever since.

• • • •

A SILENT, thorough man, Mele had his leading slugger,

Beatty Scoots 3:57 in AAU

By JOHN DIXON

To the surprise of everyone, not a world record fell in the 74th National AAU track and field championships at Mt. San Antonio College.

But no one in the shirt-sleeved crowd of 10,000 murmured a complaint Saturday. The competition was jammed with spills and thrills and violent finishes.

The mile, 3-mile, discus and pole vault were highlights of the greatest national championship meet of them all.

For the first time four Americans broke four minutes for four laps. The winner, of course, was tiny Jim Beatty, but he had to kick from behind twice to overcome best-ever performances by L.A. Track Club teammate Jim Grelle and Marine Cary Weisiger.

Grelle led at the 440 in 58.6, Beatty was the halfway leader at 1:59.9 and Weisiger led at three-quarters in 3:00.7.

• • • •

WEISIGER fought off Beatty and Grelle until the tape was only 200 yards away. Grelle sprinted past his elbow and finally Beatty followed.

Beatty was home free but Weisiger came on again, made up three yards and appeared to catch the dying Grelle. Beatty's time of 3:57.9 was his fastest ever and tied Herb Elliott's meet record.

The phototimer showed Grelle inches in front of Weisiger and both credited with their pinnacles, 3:58.1. Bill Dotson of Kansas was the fourth American under four minutes, 3:59.0, also his best-ever.

"This was too close for comfort," Beatty gasped. "Let's face it, I didn't have it. I was shooting for 3:55 flat. The way I've felt the past couple of days I'm lucky to win in any time. I've lost my snap. I didn't have my usual zip on the last straightaway and I was laboring. I could hear them coming up to me and I was scared."

MURRAY Halberg, New Zealand Olympic champion who ran a dismal third behind Bruce Kidd and Max Truex at Compton, looked like a champion Saturday.

He won an intellectual, disciplined three-mile in 13:30.6, breaking Alex Henderson's meet record of 13:37.1. Truex was second in 13:32.8 and Kidd, attempting a hercules double after winning the six-mile Friday, an exhausted third in 13:33.8.

"The race was made to order for me," Halberg pointed out. I thought I could take Kidd if I led him on the last half-mile. I'm sure it would have been a different story if Kidd hadn't tried the six-mile. Give the praise to Kidd. He turned in the

By ERNIE MASON

The Hollywood Derby "preview," the $56,300 Cinema Handicap, was done up in true filmland fashion at Hollywood Park Saturday, chock full of excitement, thrills and suspense while coming out as the script had dictated, a hard-fourth, wide-open battle to the wire.

The suspense ended when the photo finish camera revealed that the hero's mantle had gone to C. R. Mac Stable's Black Sheep, a "dark horse" in the casting office listings but a true candidate for the leading man's part under the direction of veteran Johnny Longden.

Black Sheep collected the biggest victory of his career by the narrowest of margins, getting a slim nose verdict over longshot Indian Blood in one of the most thrilling struggles witnessed at the Goose Girl oval in many seasons.

Longden, chalking up the 400th stakes victory of his brilliant career, slipped through between horses on the turn, drove up to overtake highweights Doc Jocoy and Royal Attack, and then hung on to stall off the fast-closing Indian Blood.

The camera revealed that the final four margins were a nose and three necks with Doc Jocoy, Royal Attack and

The New Look at Wimbledon

By ROBERT MUSEL

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (UPI)—No whistling in center court, sir, when the girls come out to play in this year's Wimbledon Tennis Championships with their backs bare down to the waistline.

Next week figures to see a parade of daring fashion—daring for tennis, that is—which the hallowed precincts of the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club have not known since the days of the underhand service.

GUSSIE MORAN
Shades of Lace

Let's face it—they have never seen anything like this before. And some tennis writers are fervently expressing the hope the girls will realize they have gone about as far as ladies can go.

The prettiest players in bigtime tennis have been giving previews this week of what they intend to wear when the Wimbledon umpires call "Play" Monday. If they do, Wimbledon, which is used to fashion shocks — remember Gorgeous Gussie Moran's lace panties?—is going to get the biggest surprise of them all.

Maria Bueno of Brazil, 1960 champion and third seed this year, leads the bare-back brigade. Designer Teddy Tingling said he had made her seven costumes and one of the same for Valerie Forbes of South Africa.

"I have gone overboard about the bare-back look," said another leading designer, Harold Peters, who works with former Wimbledon champion Fred Perry.

AMONG THE OTHER stars whose playing dresses follow the low-back fashion are Carole Caldwell of Santa Monica, Calif., Pat Stewart of New York, and Lea Pericoli and Sylvania Lazzarino of Italy.

Miss Stewart has a diamond-studded number. Miss Forbes breaks away from the traditional white with green chiffon plats in her tunic and a green petticoat.

Miss Pericoli, who once wore mink-trimmed costumes, now has a tunic with side vents showing long shorts frilled with lace.

Tinling said the dresses were cut so low they raised the question of how to make the usual support invisible. He claims that Miss Bueno wore one of these devices—a sort of backless bra—for a strenuous practice set and it worked perfectly.

Skeptical tennis writer Laurie Pignon of the Daily Sketch said he would wait and see with great interest whether a backless bra would hold up in real championship tennis. He complained that if the dresses got any lower, center court might turn into "an afternoon show for tired business men."

HE SAID IT WAS time for Wimbledon officials to call a halt to "the best free show of lingerie" outside the big shops of London's West End.

No wonder that for the first time since 1878 the annual Wimbledon poster carries the picture of a girl instead of a man.

WIMBLEDON PLAY BEGINS MONDAY

CAN YANK NETTERS STOP AUSSIE SWEEP?

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Is there an American Tennis player who can stop an All-Australian sweep in the Wimbledon Championships?

That is the big question hanging over the 76th Wimbledon tournament, which starts Monday within the hallowed, ivy-covered walls of the All-England Club.

For the first time ever, Australians have been given the top seed positions in both the men's and women's singles.

Rod Laver, clear-cut winner of the title last year, was an obvious choice as top seed in the men's division.

Margaret Smith, the 19-year-old rebel who defied the Australian Lawn Tennis Association and toured Europe on her own, was given top place among the women. The committee rated her above Darlene Hard, the U.S. Wightman Cup star, and Brazil's Maria Bueno, winner of the Wimbledon crown in 1959 and 1960.

So if the tournament goes according to the committee's expectations, it could be the climax to Australia's growing domination of world tennis in recent years. Australia has won the Davis Cup three years running and has claimed the Wimbledon men's title six times in the last seven years.

So far, no Australian has ever won the women's crown.

Chuck McKinley, nonstop bundle of energy from St. Ann, Mo., appears America's biggest threat to Laver's title.

At Wimbledon last year, McKinley was beaten by Laver in the final. His acrobatics made him a top favorite with the crowd.

"This time I hope to go one better and win the title," the dynamic American said. "I will be putting every ounce of effort into it. I'm in good form and I'm very fit."

The official United States No. 1 player, Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., didn't get a place in the seedings. He has yet to make much of an impression in this country. The seedings:

Men's Singles: 1. Rod Laver, Australia. 2. Roy Emerson, Australia. 3. Neale Fraser, Australia. 4. Ramanathan Krishnan, India. 5. Chuck McKinley, St. Ann, Mo. 6. Manuel Santana, Spain. 7. Nicola Pietrangeli, Italy. 8. Bob Hewitt, Australia.

Women's Singles: 1. Margaret Smith, Australia. 2. Darlene Hard, Montebello, Calif. 3. Maria Bueno, Brazil. 4. Renee Schuurman, South Africa. 5. Ann Haydon, Britain. 6. Angela Mortimer, Britain. 7. Lesley Turner, Australia. 8. Mrs. Karen Hantze Susman, Chula Vista, Calif.

McCormick in Form, 4-Hits Braves, 4-2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Giants backed Mike McCormick's four-hit pitching with a 10-hit attack and beat Milwaukee 4-2 Saturday before 17,345 fans.

Jim Davenport batted in two Giant runs in the San Francisco half.

Willie Mays started a two-run seventh inning rally with a double. He scored when Denis Menke threw past Joe Adcock at first on Matty Alou's infield hit. After Cepeda was intentionally walked, Felipe Alou scored brother Matty with a single to center.

• • • •

BOB SHAW, Milwaukee starter who had struck out six but allowed 10 hits, was relieved by Jack Curtis. The loss was Shaw's third against nine wins.

McCormick went the distance for the first time this season in winning his fourth against two losses. He struck out four and walked one.

The Giant triumph ended a three-game losing streak. It was the fifth San Francisco victory in 17 games.

Hank Aaron of the Braves was blanked in four trips to the plate after hitting safely in 11 straight games.

Tigers Hold Yanks Even

DETROIT (AP)—The New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers took turns bombing each other with big innings and home runs Saturday and divided a day-night doubleheader.

The Yankees, ignited by Yogi Berra's grand slam homer in the first inning, exploded for two four-run rallies and won the afternoon game, 8-4, despite four solo Detroit home runs.

The Tigers started a five-run rally with two bunt singles in the fourth and won the night game, 5-4, although Cletis Boyer and Mickey Mantle homered for the Yankees.

The Yankees led 8-0 in the opener and the Tigers were ahead 5-0 in the nightcap. But both were forced to hold off late-inning comebacks to split the double admission twin bill.

• • • •

MANTLE tested his injured left knee in both games and cracked his first homer since returning to fulltime duty in the ninth inning of the second game. He played only one and one-half innings of the first game and was lifted after a rainstorm delayed the game an hour and made the footing in right field dangerous.

Ralph Terry was breezing along with an eight-run advantage for the Yankees in the opener before Detroit retaliated with homers by Dick McAuliffe, Steve Boros, Rocky Colavito and Vic Wertz. The Yankees' four runs in the fourth were the difference. Tom Tresh's two-run single was the big blow of the rally.

Gibson Bags Ninth Victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Gibson posted his ninth victory of the season Saturday as he pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Ken Boyer clouted his ninth homer with a runner on base to help the Cardinals spoil the mound-debut of Billy Smith, an undersized 28-year-old southpaw. Smith, whose only other National League start was for the Cardinals in 1958, worked five innings and gave up five runs.

Gibson, who has never lost to the Phillies, scattered six hits in his easy effort, striking out six and displaying perfect control.

Hoak Cracks Homer in 9th, Bucs Win, 4-3

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Don Hoak hit a two-run homer with one out in the ninth inning Saturday to lift the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Hoak's homer, his fourth of the year, came off relief pitcher Don Elston with pinch-runner Don Clendenon on base. The Cubs had taken a 3-2 lead in the ninth when Pirate starter Bob Friend walked pinch-hitter Don Landrum with the bases loaded. Friend was relieved at that point by southpaw Diomedes Olivo who struck out Lou Brock and gained the victory, his second against no defeats.

The 37-year-old outfielder will leave for Japan Tuesday. Terms of his contract was not disclosed.

Randall, White Lead Hawks to 6-0 Win

Jack Randall shut out Oxnard, 6-0, at Park Ave. Field Saturday night at the Long Beach Nitehawks kept alive their Western Softball Congress title chances.

Steadied by the great catching of Stan White, Randall kept the Stars at bay all the way.

White, just out of retirement, collected a single and a double and cut off a run in the sixth with a tremendous pickoff play with Clint Herron at third base.

FRANK Robinson, who had two of the Reds' eight hits, doubled to start the ninth and Jerry Lynch ruined Drysdale's shutout bid with a triple. A sacrifice fly and two singles added two runs, but did little to dent Drysdale's ERA.

Johnny Podres (3-6) faces Jim Maloney (2-1) in the final game of the series this afternoon. Podres will be making his ninth start in search of victory No. 4. He is winless since May 13 and has not completed a game since May 9.

Ashburn Hits Two Homers, Mets Romp

NEW YORK (AP) — Helped by a six-run explosion in the third inning, during which Richie Ashburn hit the first of his two home runs Saturday, the New York Mets crushed the Houston Colts 13-2, to take a 2-1 edge in the five-game series.

The Mets amassed 16 hits off Colt pitchers to make it easy for Jay Hook to register his fifth victory against eight defeats. He went the distance for the fifth time this season.

Ken Johnson was the Colt starter and loser.

Hansen, on Pass, Paces Orioles Win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Shortstop Ron Hansen banged a two-run homer and southpaw Billy Hoeft pitched 7⅓ innings of scoreless relief as Baltimore beat Boston, 5-3, Saturday.

Hansen, on weekend leave from nearby Ft. Meade, Md., hit his second homer of the season in the eighth inning with Marv Breeding, pinch-running for Jim Gentile, who had singled, on base.

It was Hoeft's third straight victory and evened his record at 3-3.

Man to Man

WYNN ROEBUCK

By JERRY WYNN

"Now pitching for the Dodgers, Ed Roebuck."

Twenty - eight times this season that trumpeted call has been sweet music to one of baseball's finest relief pitchers and Lakewood's most notable residents.

For at this time last year, Ed Roebuck wasn't sure if he would ever be able to pitch again. A chronic shoulder ailment had taken the spring from a once trip-hammer arm. He had two strikes against him in the ninth inning of the final game.

Today, a revitalized Roebuck is quietly and happily working on one of the most fantastic streaks in baseball annals. He has made 52 appearances for the Dodgers since Aug. 8, 1960, and he has not lost a game.

What was responsible, Ed, for your arm snapping back into shape this year?

"It's one of those things which is hard to pin down. It took a lot of hard work and a little luck. Last summer, I was ready to give it up completely. Now, the arm feels fine."

During one span last month, you pitched in seven successive games. Do you feel overworked?

"No. Once my arm is in shape, I like to throw every day. If I'm not pitching in a game, I'm throwing in the bullpen. It doesn't make much difference to me."

What is the secret of success for a relief pitcher?

"You must have one pitch you know you can throw, not over the plate but to a spot. The ideal pitches for a reliefer are a good curve and sinker. Perranoski is an example. He has them both. I get along mostly on a sinker."

Who do you consider the best reliefer you have seen?

"Clem Labine. He was outstanding."

Do you ever yearn for a starting assignment?

"Yes, all reliefers feel that way. I have been in 270 games in the majors since 1954, and have only started once. That was in 1956 when we were wrapped up in a couple of doubleheaders. But I only went three innings and was lifted for a pinch hitter even though the score was 2-1."

Which hitters give you the most trouble?

"Mays. He gives our whole staff trouble. Mathews, too. It's funny I've had very good success with some of the better hitters like Aaron, Banks, Boyer and Musial. It goes in cycles. Some years, one guy may be tough on you; the next year, he may be easy."

How do you pitch to Mays?

"I try not to throw him strikes."

After Ebbets Field and the Coliseum, how does it feel to be pitching at Dodger Stadium?

"There's quite a difference. You don't have to be careful on every pitch. When some one gets a homer, he deserves it. And it's nice to have Willie Davis in center field who can go get the ball. Ebbets Field was worse than the Coliseum. There you had to worry about two short fences while at the Coliseum, you had to guard against left field only."

Do you like the enclosed bullpen at the new park?

"It is only half enclosed, and that's not good. There are always about 50 kids heckling us and asking for autographs. When we're warming up, we should not be distracted."

"What do you do to pass the time in the bullpen?

"There are no comic book readers on this club. We talk baseball and watch the game. You have to feel you are part of the game and be ready to go in at any time."

What is your signal to enter the game?

"I get a sign from Joe Becker of a man rowing. Each of us has his own sign. For Sherry, a man drinking. For Ortega, an Indian sign, and for Perranoski, a left hand. He's our only southpaw."

With the exception of Duke Snider, you have been with the Dodgers for more years than any other player. Compare this team with others?

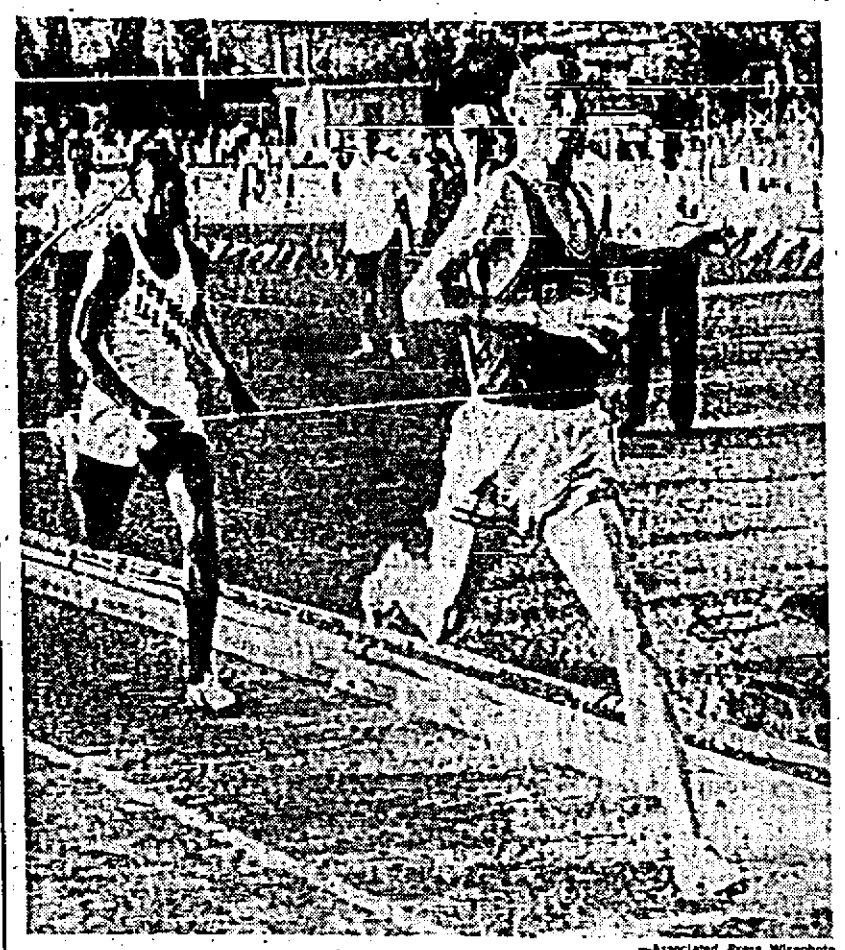

"The big thing about this club is its morale. We have a bunch of guys who think they can win it, and no one is going to do anything about it. That plus good pitching and speed."

What was the best Dodger club on which you played?

"1955. It was all power with guys like Campanella, Snider, Hodges, Furillo and Robinson. We were never out of a game because we could always come back to score a lot of runs."

What has been your greatest thrill in baseball?

"Being able to throw again."

HALF-MILE WINNER

Jerry Siebert of Santa Clara Youth Village is stride from tape in outdistancing Jim Dupree to win 880 in National AAU meet. Siebert's time was 1:47.

greatest distance double in history."

Kidd apologized, "I'm sorry but I just couldn't keep up with them. I guess I'm not a doubler, at least, not yet."

* * * *

TRUEX SAID, "I didn't want to set the pace, but the mile was so slow (4:32.5) I had to. I just couldn't run any faster on that last lap. Halberg isn't in the best of shape but on a nice, comfortable pace like that he's still tough."

Giant Al Oerter missed his world record target in the discus, but he got an American record. The two-time Olympic Games champion from New York culminated the all-time best series with a mammoth 202-2 spin, missing the pending world mark of 202-2½ by Russian Vladimir Trusenyov but bettering his own pending American mark of 200-5½ at the Coliseum Relays.

Oerter's series was 200-3½, 195-5, 198-2, 195-7, 202-2 and 197-7½. Rink Babka was second at 193-4½.

Ron Morris of the Striders, Olympic silver medalist, became the third American 16-foot vaulter by surpassing 16 feet, ¼ inch. John Cramer of Washington, only championship-class vaulter who does not use the big-bend fiber glass pole, was a surprise second at 15-8¼, edging Dave Tork of the Marines and John Belitza of Maryland on fewer misses.

Morris, who was over 16-3 but tagged the bar coming down, credited his coach, Chuck Coker, with the big jump. "He's a genius at analyzing form," the former Trojan praised.

* * * *

"MAYBE I could have cleared 16 feet with my old metal pole but that would have been the absolute limit. With this new gadget I think 17 feet is possible. After all, I've only been working with it about five weeks. And when I started—at Fresno—I almost broke my neck."

In the final event, Paul Drayton of Villanova deadlocked the world record for 220 yards around a turn, 20.5. Roger Sayers of Omaha was second in 20.7.

"Everything went perfectly for me," Drayton said. "I liked my lane (3). I got off as good as I ever have. I felt I must have been in the lead all the way. It's a terrific feeling knowing I tied a world record, but that wasn't my goal. It was just to get to the finish line first any way I could."

The Striders won the team title again with 53 points to 52 for the New York AC and 51 for the Santa Clara Valley Youth Village, but both ventured protests. A ruling will be made today.

* * * *

THE MEET shocker occurred in the hammer throw.

Seven-times champion Hal Connolly, reverting to his Olympic Games form, threw only 215-3½ and finished behind Al Hall's 219-3. Connolly has repeatedly threatened his world record of 230-9.

* * * *

THERE WERE no upsets in the 440 or 880. Favorites Ulis Williams and Jerry Siebert won just as they pleased in meet-record time.

Williams, Arizona State freshman from Compton, broke out of a six-man blanket around the last curve and finished 2½ yards in front of Ray Saddler of the Striders. Second favorite Adolph Plummer was fifth.

Williams' time was 45.8, equalling Eddie Southern's record and missing Glenn Davis' world record by a single tick. It was Williams' life-time best.

* * * *

"I WAS worried about Plummer," Williams said. "I was lucky he was in the lane just in front of me. I kept my eye on him. I started faster than usual and ran even with Plummer. I knew he wanted to jump me as we hit the stretch. I didn't tie up." Plummer commented, "I did."

Siebert had the half-mile gold medal in his hip pocket all the way. His 1:47.1 clocking surpassed the seven-year-old 1:47.6 by Arnie Sowell. Jim Dupree was five yards behind the winner in 1:47.4.

Ford Cards 73 as Lead Cut in Half

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Doug Ford lost his magic touch in the third round of the Eastern Open golf tournament Saturday but still managed to protect his lead—which was cut in half.

The veteran from New York wobbled in with a one-over-par 73, giving him a 207 at the 54-hole mark of the $35,000 event.

This was good enough for a three-stroke lead over Charlie Bassler, a Baltimore product who saves his best efforts for this tournament.

Bassler, a club pro at nearby Silver Spring, Md., posted a 68 on the 7,000-yard Municipal Mount Pleasant course. He was alone in second place at 210.

Bob Goalby of Belleville, Ill., also carded a 68 to move into contention with a 211 total.

ELORDE RETAINS TITLE

'Hometown Decision,' Cries Beaten Copeland

MANILA (UPI)—World junior lightweight champion Gabriel (Flash) Elorde of the Philippines decisioned Auburn (Flash) Copeland of the United States Saturday night in a 15-round title fight that touched off an angry exchange between the two camps.

"It was definitely a hometown decision," said the 29-year-old challenger from Los Angeles and Flint, Mich.

To Copeland's demand for a rematch, Lope Sarreal, Elorde's father-in-law and manager, retorted "Tell him to go to hell."

The 27-year-old Filipino was outboxed in the early rounds, but piled up points against Copeland in the 8th, 9th and 10th rounds. In the 9th, he blasted Copeland with a left that knocked him down, but the challenger jumped to his feet before the count. It was the only knockdown.

Copeland, who used a crouching, weaving style, was unmarked at the end of the fight.

"You can look at both Elorde and myself and see who got the worst beating," the defeated challenger said.

"If they are brave enough, they would let me have a rematch with Elorde here in Manila or anywhere in the world."

Johnson Decisions German Challenger

BERLIN (AP)—Harold Johnson retained his world light heavyweight championship Saturday night by outpointing West Germany's Gustav Scholz in a 15-rounder in Berlin's Olympic Stadium.

Johnson dominated the German almost throughout the fight. There were no knockdowns. The official scorecard was not disclosed, as is customary in European rings. An official AP count gave Johnson eight rounds, Scholz three and made four even.

The bout was staged in the open air arena before 35,000 people. Johnson weighed in at 172½ pounds, to 171 for Scholz.

Johnson exuded confidence throughout the fight, easily taking the sharp lefts from Scholz.

The crowd agreed with the decision of the referee and two judges, although the local fans had strongly cheered for the German.

Max Schmeling, who was the world heavyweight champion 32 years ago, said:

"Scholz should have shown more if he wanted to win."

Hill Duo Takes Lead at Le Mans

LE MANS, France (UPI)—Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., and co-pilot Oliver Gendebien of Belgium regained the lead early today in the 24-hour Le Mans auto racing classic after the withdrawal of the Rodriguez Brothers of Mexico.

Ricardo and Pedro Rodriguez, alternating at the wheel of a Ferrari, abandoned the race while leading after 174 laps.

At the event's halfway mark, the Mexicans totaled 170 laps at an average speed of 118 miles per hour. Shortly thereafter, the car went in for a 10-minute pit stop, during which mechanics worked on the engine.

The Mexicans' car went out on the track again, but the engine burned out and they officially withdrew, permitting Hill and Gendebien to take over the lead in their Ferrari.

Long Beach ten-pin fans will see more than 120 of the world's greatest bowlers shoot for shares in a $15,000 prize pot July 5-8 when the Professional Bowlers Association stages its annual West Coast tournament at Ocean Lanes, Ocean at Magnolia Street.

Similar to professional golf tours, the PBA tournament circuit pits such top pin-sport stars as Don Carter, Ray Bluth, Buddy Bomar, Billy Welu, Harry Smith, Steve Nagy and Glenn Allison in an annual round of competitions throughout the country with cash payoffs that rate among the highest in the game.

The Southern California tournament, traditionally a top drawing card for champions, comes to Long Beach for the first time in PBA history this year, and has already registered a full entry.

Favored in the $15,000 battle will be perennial champion Don Carter, who arrives in Long Beach July 5 fresh from his latest success in the $20,000 Seattle Open where he edged Ray Bluth with a 300 in his final game.

Prior to the all-professional competition, the tournament schedule features a Pro-Amateur doubles event July 5 pairing each of the pros with a local amateur partner.

Professional competition gets under way July 6 with finals July 8.

Once Over Lightly

Pitching 'Tricks' Old as Baseball

The recent incident arising over charges by Baltimore manager Billy Hitchcock that Detroit pitcher Jim Bunning was cutting the ball with his belt buckle stirred up memories among old-time baseball men of the days when every pitcher had a trick or two to make the ball do strange things.

One of the favorite tricks, of course, was just what Bunning was accused of doing—cutting the ball with the belt buckle. Pitchers also sharpened their thumb nails to a razor edge with which to nick the ball.

Chief sources of dispute over pitches today concerns the spitball and the "brushback" pitch.

But in the earlier days of baseball, almost every game produced an argument over trick deliveries by the pitchers.

In those days, of course, the spitball was legal so there was no argument about that, but every hurler had some way of making the ball do things that could not possibly be done within the rules.

JIM BUNNING
Rekindled Memories

It was common to use emery and sandpaper as well as other abrasives. All that had to be done was to roughen a spot on the ball no larger than a dime and it would do some rather peculiar things.

Today, balls are changed so often that a pitcher can't get away with anything over a prolonged stretch. Whenever a ball breaks funny, the batter immediately asks the umpire to look at it. And if the surface is at all "bruised" or discolored, a new ball is put in play.

IN THE OLD DAYS, PITCHERS also used talcum powder to make the ball sail. And they used tobacco juice and mud to load the seams of the balls, which naturally would come at batters in a most abnormal way.

Pitchers also learned how to raise the stitches of the ball, which was not as compact and solid as it has become under improved methods of manufacturing and with better quality materials.

However even today some pitchers with extra strong hands can loosen the cover with a few twists and make it behave strangely.

The old-time pitchers tried everything. They even went so far as when they were at home, they would load half the balls to be used in a game with phonograph needles sunk in deep so they wouldn't be discovered. Then they made sure these balls were used only when the home club pitcher was on the mound. You can imagine what the ball did with the needles in it.

THE SPITTER, OF COURSE, has been the scapegoat of all illegal pitches. As "cheating" pitches became more common, the more the spitball was blamed. Swindle deliveries were almost impossible to detect, but the spitball was out the open and thus became the prime target when baseball moved to outlaw all pitches in which foreign substances were used.

In 1920, the major leagues ruled that no new pitcher could use the spitter. All pitchers then registered as spitball pitchers—some 19 as I recall—were permitted to continue using it as long as they remained in baseball.

Last man to legally throw it in the majors was Burleigh Grimes. He retired in 1934. However, last pitcher to throw the spitter under the rule was Frank Shellenback of the old Hollywood Stars and then the Padres when the club was moved to San Diego. He pitched until the late 1930's.

THERE IS STILL A BIG HASSLE over spitballs. Lew Burdette, Pedro Ramos and a half-dozen others are accused of throwing them. Some baseball men say that every club has at least two or three pitchers who can throw the spitter. There is a strong move to make the pitch legal again.

In many cases today when spitters are thrown, it is said that the infielders will "load" the ball rather than the pitchers themselves.

Russ Ford, who pitched for the Yankees from 1910 through 1913, was the one who discovered the secret of what was to be known as the emery ball.

He revealed when he retired from the game that when he was with Atlanta of the Southern Association, he was working out beneath the grandstand on a rainy day. He uncorked a wild pitch that hit a wooden support. On the next pitch, Ford threw a tremendous curve that aroused his curiosity as well as that of the catcher.

He inspected the ball and noticed a scuffed section where the ball had hit the wood. Later he used emery to rough up the surface of the ball.

While with the Yanks, he would attach some emery paper to a piece of elastic up his sleeve. He would pull down the emery, doctor the ball and when he released it, the elastic snapped back up his sleeve where it couldn't be seen.

Donkey Softball at Its Best (?) at Park Tonight

There was a time when one of Long Beach's favorite attractions was Donkey Softball. Tonight, nearly two decades later, the Long Beach Nitehawks bring back the sport to Park Ave. Field against Coast Grain beginning at 8:15 p.m.

Nitehawk manager Joe Rodgers says it's been 17 years since the last public Donkey Softball battle in the city and that it will be the only one this season.

For those not in the know, the game always proves a riot because for some reason or other the donkeys and the players don't always get along too well.

In this game the players don't run, they ride. Or at least they try to ride. And that's the rub.

Along with the comic struggle for survival, there also will be a special pregame show for kids.

"Harmon is being paid to trot around the bases, not steal his way around," said Mele. "I'm surprised we're where we are the way he's hitting."

If someone doesn't watch out, the Twins, like Killebrew, may steal away with the American League pennant. Ken McBride (7-3) and Ted Bowsfield (2-3) will try and prevent it this afternoon.

Archer Handed Initial Defeat

NEW YORK (AP)—Jose Gonzalez, a whirling dervish puncher from Puerto Rico, handed Jimmy Archer his first loss in 31 bouts by winning a split, 10-round decision over the New York middleweight Saturday night in Madison Square Garden.

Both judges, Leo Birnbaum and Frank Forbes, had Gonzalez the winner, six rounds to four. Referee Jimmy Devlin had Archer winning, 6-4.

Brightman Career Success Studded

baseball players, the O'Briens came to Seattle from South Amboy, N.J.

"It was Eddie I first met," recalls Brightman. "I was playing first base and he was the base runner during a National Semipro Tournament at Wichita. I asked him if he wanted to come to Seattle. But before I could get an answer, he stole second base.

"Johnny was so prolific at basketball that he once out-scored Goose Tatum of the Harlem Globetrotters, 43 to 16. When Tatum came to the sidelines in that game, Trotter owner Abe Saperstein asked him why couldn't he handle that little guy. The Goose replied, "Abe that's no little guy, that's a giant!"

Baylor was playing in near oblivion at tiny College of Idaho at Caldwell when Brightman heard of his prowess from a friendly railroad porter who was a Seattle fan. One private plane ride to Caldwell by Brightman and Baylor was hijacked to Seattle.

Incidentally, Baylor's fellow forward at the College of Idaho was R. C. Owens.

Brightman returned to Long Beach in 1956, enrolled at Long Beach State and earned a BA degree in English. Even with a torturous schedule, he found time to coach the Lockyers AAU team of Long Beach to their greatest seasons.

AFTER GRADUATION, he taught at Bolsa Grande High in Garden Grove and coached there for two years. His first season, the record of the team was 3-21; the second, an amazing 19-4 with a Freeway League title and a CIF semifinal berth.

"I was more proud of that team than any other."

Did you do any long-range recruiting there?

"No," he laughs, "but we just lucked into having Jeff Congdon come out from Wisconsin, and he became all-CIF."

Last year, Brightman took over at San Francisco in mid-season, and moved the Saints from seventh to fourth place in over-all ABL standings. The team won 16 of their first 19 games under his direction.

Al's only athletic interest this year—before Saturday—is in coaching the new Long Beach Connie Mack junior baseball team.

And wouldn't you know it.

The team is undefeated.

Tackle Busters Start 28th Year

The Tackle Busters, a fishing group in which more than 400 Long Beach boys and girls participate each summer, is starting its 28th year, and the interest seems higher than ever.

One of the first Tackle Busters, Mickey Gastwirth, now an employe of the Long Beach Recreation Department, will be the instructor for this summer's courses, which will take place at eight city parks.

Any boy or girl is eligible for the classes or for the six fishing field trips that are being planned. There is no charge for instruction and only a nominal fee for the trips, one of which will be to Marineland of the Pacific. Three are planned to the Belmont Pier fishing barge Paradise and two to Pierpoint Landing.

The summer program will culminate in the all-city fishing rodeo Aug. 23 on Belmont Pier, where annually at least 1,000 youngsters gather to try the new skills they have acquired.

At that event the Southehrn California Tuna Club joins the Recreation Department as host and The Independent, Press-Telegram provides two beautiful trophies for the outstanding boy and girl angler.

The Recreation Department's supervisor of special activities, Dan Dyer, says that two family nights—Northwest on Aug. 20 and Southeast on Aug. 21—are being planned this year.

HERE IS THE SCHEDULE for the classes starting this week:

Tuesdays, 10 a. m. to noon at Bixby Park; 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. at Wardlow Park.

Thursdays, 10 a. m. to noon at El Dorado Park; 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. at Whaley Park.

Fridays, 10 a. m. to noon at Pan American Park; 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. at Veterans' Park.

The Marineland trip is scheduled for Monday, July 9. The fishing trips are booked for July 16, 23 and 30 and Aug. 6 and 13. Nobody is required to take the special trips.

Members learn how to make tackle boxes, wrap rods, tie leaders, what the rules of fishing etiquette mean and the purpose of conservation programs.

While parents are not required for the classes, Dan Dyer stresses the importance of having parents volunteer their assistance for field trips.

A boy or girl in the 9-to-15 age bracket may apply for membership in the Tackle Busters at any of the parks. There is no fee.

A WEEK AGO I promised to discuss the question, "What is your opinion of the reliability of the Coast Guard in answering a call of distress?" Such a pertinent inquiry reaches into the top drawer of the USCG and certainly the commander of the 11th Coast Guard District has a right to make a policy statement.

That statement is being prepared and will be printed within a few days. Then, and then, will I speak out and reveal some of the screwball actions that have been committed—NOT by the Coast Guard, but by persons who own boats. Such persons have just about as much a right to operate boats as I do to fly an airplane. And I can assure that I'd never get one off the ground.

Meanwhile, let's prepare for National Safe Boating Week (July 1-7). Certainly no part of the nation needs a concentrated, massive boating safety movement any more than does Southern California.

We have had some accidents that were absolutely inexcusable off Newport Beach and Long Beach, but the mere fact that we say such mishaps were inexcusable doesn't bring back all those lives that were lost.

CHANCES ARE THAT THIS COLUMN will be read by some excellent boaters, who will nod their heads and say, "that's old hat." Perhaps so, but that's no reason for sitting on your hands and refusing to take part in the forthcoming Safe Boating Week.

These are the organizations that comprise National Safe Boating Week:

American Boat and Yacht Council, American National Red Cross, American Power Boat Association, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, National Safe Boating Association, National Safety Council, Outboard Boating Club of America, U. S. Coast Guard, U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, U. S. Power Squadrons and Yacht Safety Bureau.

That's a rather imposing list of organizations, but none of those can help the situation unless it acts, rather than talks. There is need to distribute posters, safety kits, banners for boats and stickers for automobile bumpers.

We can go farther than that. If every boat operator who has gone through the Coast Guard Auxiliary or Power Squadron safety classes would encourage several who have not, the program would be making great progress.

Please don't call this "old hat." Those who know should help those who don't know. If the fatality and accident records were reduced even one-third, the effort would be worth it, don't you think?

Black Sheep Wins Cinema Handicap

Sir Ribot lapped on each other as they followed the top pair across the finish line.

Winner of the San Vicente Handicap at Santa Anita and an overnight sprint here earlier in the meeting, Black Sheep had posted two third-place finishes in previous stakes competition, taking the show award in both the Debonair and Argonaut stakes. But it was top money of $33,800 which he knocked down Saturday, "earning himself out" for his owner who bought him for $50,000 last December from Rex Ellsworth.

Black Sheep, fourth choice in the 11-horse field, which was reduced when Double Dollar and Pirate Cove were declared during the afternoon, paid $19.40, $8.60 and $5.20 across the board. Indian Blood paid $20.80 and $11.20 and Doc Jocoy returned $4.20 to show.

Bramalea returned a whopping $49.30 win mutuel and $7.20 and $3.90 to place and show. Bobby Ussery rode her. Cicada, with Willie Shoemaker up, paid $2.40 and $2.20 and Firm Policy $2.60 to show.

Shari Lewis Is Big With Kids

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—A friend of mine who knows Richard Burton, Judy Garland, Marilyn Monroe, Elizabeth Taylor and Peter Lawford personally has three children who couldn't be more bored when he mentions those Big Names.

SHARI

"But when they found out I REALLY knew Shari Lewis, they couldn't believe it," he says.

"Their respect for their father increased immeasurably."

• • • •

I WENT calling on the considerably pregnant Miss Lewis, the wife of Jeremy Tarcher, who's now in the publishing business.

"If you'd like a drink, you'll have to mix it because I've never mixed one," said Shari.

"You've never mixed a drink!" I said—having finally met THAT person.

"I have a husband for that," she explained.

Lately Shari has been occupied with carrying on the fiction on TV Saturday mornings, that she's a little girl who doesn't do things like having babies.

• • • •

"THEY PUT me in a barrel of pellon and hung it from my shoulders and we did a clown dance one week," Shari said, bustling around the new apartment.

"They also put me in a long voluminous Little Red Riding Hood cape that covered me up pretty well another week.

"The fifth month I started sitting down behind a small table.

"The sixth month I sat down behind a larger table, the seventh month behind a fence . . . pretty soon you'll just see peepholes and my eyes."

Films to Be Shown of First Lady's Trip

WASHINGTON (AP)—Newsmen will have an opportunity next week to see a 43-minute color movie of Mrs. John F. Kennedy's trip to India and Pakistan. It will be shown Thursday at the National Press Club.

The film is in two parts, one of 25 minutes dealing with the visit to India, and another of 18 minutes filmed in Pakistan. Both parts will be shown.

FROM NEAPOLITAN SLUMS TO HOLLYWOOD

Sophia Loren Biography Shines in Collection of Jewels That Marked Her Climb to Success

Editor's Note:—The life story of Sophia Loren has been told many times before. But her real biography is not written in words. It shines softly, and safely, in a collection of jewels the famous actress enlarges at each step in the long climb up from poverty.

ROME (AP)—From Neapolitan slums to Hollywood Oscar, Sophia Loren's life has been the kind that dreams are made of.

And thousands of Italian girls undoubtedly dream that they can copy her success story.

Once she was a skinny youngster whose world was the squalid Naples suburb of Pozzuoli. She lived there with her mother's family in a four-room tenement flat where nine people slept in one bedroom.

• • • •

TODAY HER world knows no limits, and the brown-haired actress is on top of it, winner of the Academy Award for best actress of 1961.

Her victory — making her the first star to win the top Hollywood prize for a role in a non-English language movie — was page one news in every Italian newspaper.

From Sicily to the Alps, young girls snapped up magazines telling once again the success story of Sophia Loren and romantically hinting that others could do it, too.

• • • •

SOPHIA WAS interviewed on the Italian state television network, and inevitably the question came up: what is your advice to those beautiful girls who want a movie career?

"If you are not physically, intellectually and spiritually prepared," she replied, "don't try it. There are too many difficulties, too much bitterness.

"But if you feel you can do it, then do it—because it is also very beautiful."

Sophia should know. Life is beautiful now.

• • • •

SHE LIVES in a luxurious apartment near the ancient Roman Forum. She and her husband, producer Carlo Ponti, have a chalet in Switzerland.

There's a mink wrap in her wardrobe, and a leopard coat for her mother.

It wasn't always that way.

Back in 1934, when Sophia was born, her mother—Romilda Villani—returned to her family in Pozzuoli after failing in an attempt at her own movie career in Rome.

• • • •

SOPHIA grew up among the crowded pink and white buildings of Pozzuoli, watching the seagulls and ships in the bay of Naples.

World War II made a hard life harder.

There were days when Sophia and her younger sister, Maria, had little or nothing to eat sometimes only a slice of bread and a few drops of water.

Sophia became so thin her friends called her "Stecchetto" — "Little Stick."

But things changed for the 27-year-old actress half a lifetime ago.

• • • •

IN 1948, when the was 14, her skinny, bony figure started to disapper. The ripe, rounded body of a lusty young Neapolitan woman took its place. (Current measurements 38-24-38).

Her mother took her off to Rome, confident that Sophia would succeed where she had failed.

In 1950, Sophia landed her first movie job, as an extra in "Quo Vadis." Her mother—still a striking auburn haired beauty who rivals her daughter for looks—also was signed as an extra.

Bit parts in a dozen more films followed for Sophia.

In between she posed for "Fumetti" magazines —Italian periodicals that used photographs to tell stories in comic strip fashion.

AFTER winning her Oscar Sophia remembered those early days.

"If an actress is good," she said, "she will be good in the theater, in films, on television—or even in the comic strips."

Vittorio De Sica, the Italian film director who won world recognition with "The Bicycle Thief," thought she was good. He gave her a role in his "L' Oro Di Napoli" (Gold of Naples).

From then on, she was a star.

BEAUTIFUL AND BITTER

Sophia Loren expresses two moods: sultry glamour and (at right) unbeautified bitterness, in a scene in "Two Women," which topped her career with a Hollywood Academy Award this year. She rose from poverty to stardom.

Doris Day Faithful to Contracts

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Doris Day is a girl who has yet to cost a moviemaker an extra dollar or an extra day of delay.

She has never deviated from a contract, never allowed her personal feelings to enter into contractural obligations. A very principled girl, she would rather do an unpopular story than violate a promise or break a contract.

All of which adds up to the fact that she is the movies' number one feminine boxoffice draw, outdistancing Marilyn Monroe and Elizabeth Taylor.

She doesn't drink, smoke or get involved in front-page romantic headlines.

'NEW WAVE' NOT ART

Follies Singer Raps French Film Nudity

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—France's arty new wave of movie-making is more striptease than art, says one French actress who now manages to keep her clothes on amidst nude showgirls in a Las Vegas show.

Jenny Astruc, star of the Folies Bergere at the Nevada resort's Hotel Tropicana, came to town the other day to crown the winner of the Cinderella Stakes at Hollywood Park Race Track.

It was her first visit to the movie capital. She would like to make it permanent, and she has the beauty to realize that dream.

"I LOVE American movies because they stick to the story," she says. "In France they send you a script and there are always a half-dozen pages without dialogue, just instructions on how to undress. Sometimes it has a point in the story, most of the time it doesn't. It's just a striptease."

Jenny, a blonde in France and now a stunning redhead, also discloses another innovation in French film-making — nude doubles.

"I have been in many movies where the script required that I undress. No one who is a true actress will do that unless there is a logical reason for it.

"THIS DOES not stop the producers. They just call in a double, usually a stripteaser, and she does the undressing. Some of the biggest stars in France have been surprised to see undressed scenes in their movies, scenes that were doubled for them."

Jenny—a perfect 36-22-36—is no prude but, after training in the Opera Comique and Comedie Francaise, she can't see undressing except for good reason.

"It's very distracting," she says.

The young beauty, who has also done pictures in Italy, said she rebelled by coming to the United States with the Folies Bergere. A singer, she never appeared in the Parisian version of the show.

New Model Corvair Spyder Complements Picturesque Mexico Scene

CORVAIR SPYDER ROMANCES ENSENADA VILLA

Sporty new Spyder became a scene-stopper whenever it parked for any length of time. The 150-horsepower convertible is in limited production. This one commanded attention from Paramount to Ensenada.

By BILL ESIERY
Auto Editor

One of the more elated sensations that can happen to a man one or more times in a lifetime is that feeling he experiences driving his first new car. Although this Corvair Spyder used in our motorlog to Ensenada B. C. Mexico was loaned to us by Oscar Gregory Chevrolet at 14925 Paramount Blvd., Paramount, the elation of possessing a "first" of its kind was comparable to the own-your-own sensation.

The flashing red Spyder convertible pictured above is indeed a rarity on the road and will be the remainder of the year as they are in limited production. It is similar to the Corvair Monza in appearance with half again as much horsepower.

Turbo Charged is Chevrolet's Engineers' latest version of Supercharged.

Since the Turbo Charger is only in use when the engine load is heavy, the Spyder gives maximum power with minimum fuel consumption. We found this instant power climbing the sharp inclines on the scenic drive overlooking Ensenada, and at high speeds when we wanted to pass cars and return to our lane much faster.

After having made arrangements with our host G. Boisson, assistant manager of the Villa Marina in Ensenada to expect us late Friday evening, we wondered if we could make it there in time for dinner.

However, the roads were excellent all the way, and even with a brief stop. The trip was shortly more than four hours. Marco Mancillas, owner and manager of the adjoining restaurant and piano bar was still serving an impressive crowd when we entered the restaurant.

Our first evening meal was a delightful indulgence in Mexican dishes while being serenaded by four wandering musicians who seemed to enjoy themselves no end. A picture on this page shows a Santa Monica couple being interupted from their serenade by our flash camera.

In the adjoining bar is another three-piece group playing behind a piano bar with a small dance floor for the patrons. By now, we were enjoying another Mexican product, tequila, mixed as a margurita. Most American bars limit the use of tequila to a couple of mixed drinks. At the Villa Marina they make daiquires, sours and many others with tequila.

If there is one thing most outstanding in Mexico it is their music. They captivate the tourist with song, dance and instrument. The blind pianist in the piano bar combo could play any tune requested and his style was free and easy . . . a ringer for Carmen Cavallero or George Shearing.

The Twist dance was in demonstration around the night club circuit by both Senors and Senoritas as proficient as you'll see the dance anywhere.

We found the Villa Marina most reasonable in rates in both the motel and the restaurant and bar. The managers, Miguel Ezroj of the motel and Marco Mancillas of the bar and restaurant, go out of their way to make their facilities comfortable and enjoyable for American guests.

The picture of our motorlog Spyder entering the Villa Marina nowhere near shows the size of this 90-unit vacation spot. Also available for the guests to enjoy is a beautiful swimming pool secluded in attractive surroundings with the Marine Room, a card and recreation room, off the pool.

Horseback riding is a few feet away on the sandy beach, and the famous fishing excursions are just a few feet more. There is plenty to see and do South of the border, but if you're just out sightseeing, you'll enjoy the twenty-three mile drive to Punta Banda, the most southernly point of Ensenada bay. The road is paved and there is another beach there for your enjoyment.

Leaving Ensenada about noon Sunday, we took a leisurely drive home stopping at Rosarita Beach and San Diego. The week end had been overcast making our outdoor pictures difficult to take.

The Spyder created a sensation wherever we stopped. Even on the road carloads of passengers would look us over from front to back.

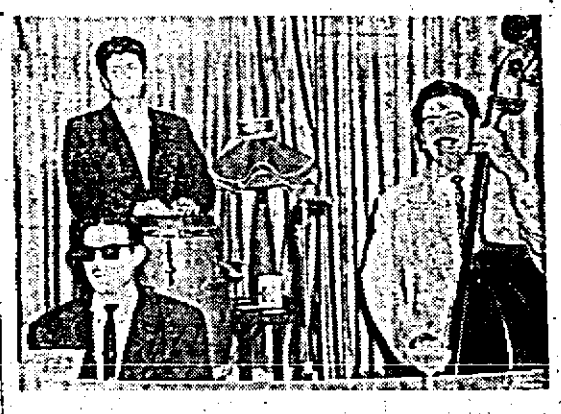

Back to Oscar Gregory's Monday morning, a gas check revealed this 150 horse power Spyder had averaged 20.1 mpg. For a high speed high performance car, we thought this was remarkable economy. My wife and I agreed; it's both a man's car and a gal's car in handling and comfort.

Although the name Oscar Gregory Chevrolet is a new sign in the city of Paramount, some people are not aware that this dealership is a long standing firm. Formerly Glenn Jones Chevrolet, Oscar Gregory became partner with Glenn Jones Oct. 1, 1961. With the death of Jones Dec. 12, 1961, Oscar operated the dealership for the estate until May 31 of this year at which time he purchased the stock and became sole owner. The personnel and policies have remained the same, only the name has changed.

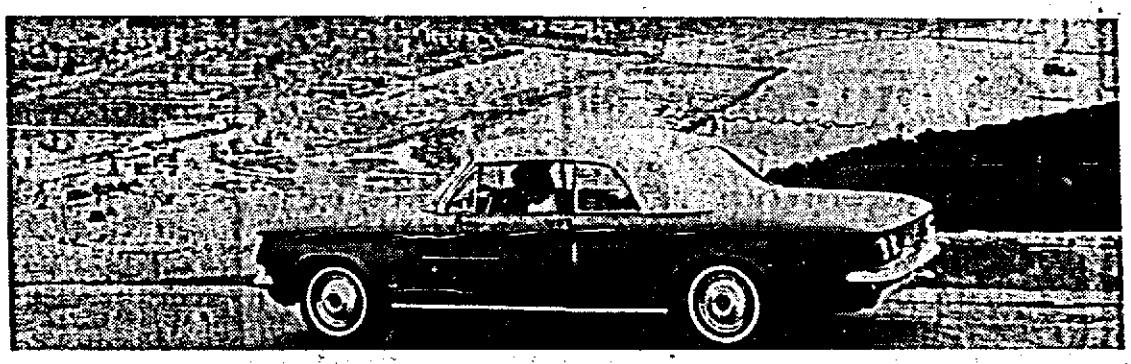

The grand opening celebration continues the rest of this month at Oscar Gregory Chevrolet. That's a good time to get acquainted!

It's All Greek Now Even to Sky Roamers

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every other day or so the Air Force launches another letter of the Greek alphabet into space.

It used to be that the Air Force orbited such things as Midas, Samos, and Discoverer.

But for months, now, these once proud names have been taboo, unfit for official utterance. You can call an Air Force satellite anything from Alpha to Omega, but don't say Midas, Samos, or Discoverer.

The fact that M, S, and D may hang on to their Greek letter designations, though they have lost their names, may make it possible for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration some day to resume publication of its long-suspended "International satellite and space probe summary."

Midas, Samos, and Discoverer have these things in common: They are military satellites, in contrast to NASA's strictly civilian spacecraft; they are put in orbit from the Pacific Missile Range on the California coast, and their launchings, once freely reported, are now secret.

* * * *

MIDAS is a missile warning satellite, Samos is a spy-in-the-sky, and Discoverer — well, Discoverer, according to gossip, has been caught carrying flight test components for both Midas and Samos. It has been tainted, so to speak, by the components it keeps.

Midas IV, Samos III (which failed to orbit), and Discoverer 38 were the last spacecraft of their species to be mentioned by name at launch. Midas IV went up Oct. 16, 1961. The Samos III attempt was made Sept. 9, 1961. Discoverer was launched Feb. 27, 1962.

Since these dates Air Force satellites have taken refuge in the relative anonymity of such designations as Eta, Lambda, or maybe Pho.

The first no-name launch was last Nov. 22. Whatever it was failed to go into orbit.

* * * *

JUST WHY the military decided to stop talking about Midas, Samos, and Discoverer has not been explicitly stated. All NASA launchings, according to frequent declarations by NASA officials, are dedicated solely to the peaceful conquest of space for the benefit of all mankind.

But Midas, Samos, and Discoverer satellites were launched by the military, a fact which evoked howls from behind the Iron Curtain about America's "warlike" space intentions. The Russians publicly reported they tracked Samos, Midas, and Discoverer spacecraft, along with a host of NASA satellites, during much of 1961.

It has always been general practice since the start of the space age to record orbited objects by Greek letter and number as well as by name. The first three launches of 1957, for example, were listed as Alpha 1, Alpha 2, and Beta 1. They were the rocket of Sputnik I, Sputnik I itself, and Sputnik II.

* * * *

TAU 1 AND Tau 2, put in orbit on May 24, 1962, were otherwise known as Aurora 7, Scott Carpenter's Mercury spacecraft, and Atlas rocket.

The Air Force still permits Midas, Samos, and Discoverer launchings to go into the record by letter. But in addition to banning use of their names, it has stopped publicizing such things as recoveries of Discoverer capsules from orbit and which Air Force satellites still in orbit are continuing to send radio transmissions.

There had been 12 Discoverer capsul retrievals before the secrecy order went into effect.

As a result of the Air Force secrecy policy, NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center skipped a few issues of its biweekly "Satellite Situation Report." This report lists all objects in orbit and those which have "decayed," i.e. come down.

* * * *

BUT THE space agency has yet to resume formal publication, suspended with the March 13 issue, of its international box score which summarizes U.S. and U.S.S.R. launchings by category.

Rusk Given Belief France Would Fight

By HARRY SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk last week stood before the Communist anti-refugee wall that separates East and West Berlin and declared:

"It is an affront to human dignity. It will be broken eventually. That is the story of freedom. It must be set aright."

President Kennedy's ace foreign policy planner had flown to West Berlin from Paris in a dramatic new demonstration of American support for the Red-encircled city.

• • • •

IN PARIS he had won new assurances that France would fight alongside the United States if Russia attacks the Western alliance. But he made no headway in trying to dissuade President Charles de Gaulle from building an independent nuclear striking force or in winning his cooperation in future nuclear defense strategy.

This is one of several sore issues dividing Kennedy and de Gaulle. Kennedy fears de Gaulle's stubborn go-it-alone nuclear policy could lead to war by miscalculation. De Gaulle took his course after France was denied U.S. atomic secrets open to Britain.

American sources said that only a meeting of the two presidents could bridge their differences, which also include french opposition to talks with Russia on Berlin. But French officials reacted coldly.

To West Berliners clamoring for renewed pledge of U.S. moral and military

DEAN RUSK
"It Will Be Broken"

support, Rusk quoted Kennedy as saying the defense of Berlin "is essential to the morale and security of West Germany, to the unity of Western Europe, and the faith of the entire free world."

The United States, Rusk said, is determined to fulfill that responsibility.

The secretary toured key spots along the Red wall, where only hours before Communist police had fired on escaping East Germans, then went to Bonn where he and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer agreed that American-Soviet probing talks on Berlin should continue.

In Bucharest, meantime, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev proclaimed that Russia sees no reason to war over Berlin. But he said he would go ahead with a separate peace treaty with East Germany if the Berlin occupation impasse continues.

He set no deadlines but charged the U.S. with sabotoging the Berlin negotiations. He also charged this nation was responsible for Russia's arms buildup. "They force us to produce bombs," he said. "The United States wants to change the balance of power."

In the next breath he blamed Kennedy for higher Russian meat prices, saying that money earmarked for meat production had to be diverted to armaments "to prevent U.S. bombs from falling on our heads."

• • • •

ON THE OTHER side of the globe, U.S. officials were watching "with concern" a large-scale Chinese Communist military buildup on the mainland opposite the nationalist-held Quemoy and Matsu islands. Did this foreshadow an offensive? Or a defense against recurring Chiang Kai-shek threats to invade the mainland from Formosa?

President Kennedy kept in close touch with intelligence channels. During his election campaign he described the islands as of no strategic value in the defense of Formosa, Chiang's nationalist bastion 100 miles seaward. Chiang alerted his forces for eventualities.

Misfortune continued to dog U.S. attempts to explode a rocket-borne high altitude nuclear device over Johnston Island in the Pacific. For the second time —much to Moscow's propaganda joy — American weaponeers had to destroy a rocket and its "big blast" warhead. A malfunction was blamed.

From Cape Canaveral the United States orbited a new "weather eye" satellite — Tiros 5—to warn of storms almost anywhere on earth, including Russia. It was the fifth member of a family of space moons already credited with saving many lives and millions of dollars in losses from tropical storms.

A laggard Congress was prodded by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., to get on with its business. "The voters," he said, "have a right to expect decisions now, one way or the other." He ordered overtime and Saturday Senate sessions.

• • • •

THE HOUSE, with rebellious Republicans in the saddle, dealt Kennedy his biggest legislative setback to date by killing his get-tough farm production control bill.

In the 215 to 205 vote, 167 GOP members were joined by 48 Democrats to scuttle what the Republicans branded as a bill to make Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman a farm production "czar." Only one Republican voted for it. The Senate already had passed a Kennedy-approve diversion.

The President was quoted as saying the vote showed the Republicans were "obstructionists" and "they shoulder that responsibility." He foresaw continuing crop surplus "chaos" and a payers.

oppose the measure without offering their own solution to the $7 billion surplus problem.

"In their secret meeting last year, as reported to financial backers of Billie Sol Estes," he said, "the Republicans vowed to oppose every constructive proposal on agriculture, regardless of the damage done to the nation. Now they have made good that pledge."

Republican leaders said they would attempt to work out a substitute but it was believed the administration would back a one-year extension of the present voluntary program for curbing surpluses. This would be acceptable to the GOP which proposed such action in moving to kill the Kennedy legislation.

Freeman said farm income was at stake. He said he didn't see how Congress and the taxpayers could go on indefinitely voting and paying for farm price supports without supply management, the key to Kennedy's program.

A total of 112 persons lost their lives when an Air France 707 jetliner crashed on Guadeloupe Island in the West Indies.

At Edwards AFB, Calif., 37-year-old Air Force Maj. Bob White rocketed his experimental X15 space plane to a new world's altitude record of nearly 50 miles at five times the speed of sound.

• • • •

RICHARD M. NIXON, GOP candidate for governor of California, was quoted as implying President Kennedy is "a puppet who echoes his speechmaker." Nixon, whom Kennedy defeated for the White House, said in a magazine interview that some of the people around the President have the attitude: "We don't care where the good lines come from as long as the guy at the top puts them out."

The nation's railroads began employment cutbacks to offset costs of wage increases recently awarded to non-operating personnel. They also broke off negotiations with five operating brotherhoods over the issue of "featherbedding" — jobs which they say could be abolished without hurting efficiency.

Sen. Francis Case, 65, R-S.D., veteran of 25 years in the House and Senate, died of a heart attack Friday.

ROCKY REFUTED

California Business Growth Is Fastest

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Brown Saturday wrote a new chapter in a story entitled: "New York vs. California, or My State Is More Prosperous Than Yours."

Seven days ago, Brown noted press reports of a speech in which Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York said his state was leading California in industrial growth.

Not so, replied Brown in a weekend statement.

This weekend, the governor has a new statement which said that new businesses have announced more than $500 million in major new California plants and expansions in the first five months of the year.

• • • •

THE TABULATIONS included only projects costing more than $1 million.

"In the light of this analysis by the Economic Development Agency, it is highly unlikely that New York is ahead of California in new plants and plant expansions," the governor said.

Rulings Puzzling to Oil Industry

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two landmark decisions by the Supreme Court last week gave labor and management in the oil industry food for legal thought.

On the surface, management was dealt a hard blow while the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (AFL-CIO) seemed to have scored a smashing triumph for all organized labor. The AFL-CIO so hailed it.

A court divided 5 to 3 decided in one case:

That a union can strike in violation of a no-strike pledge even though its contract calls for compulsory arbitration of grievances. Management has no comparable redress under present law.

That the 1932 Norris-LaGuardia Act banning federal injunctions in labor disputes, except those hurting the national welfare, supersedes injunctive powers of the 1947 Taft-Hartley Labor-management Act. This means Taft-Hartley cannot be used as a legal wedge to by-pass Norris LaGuardia.

• • • •

IN THE SECOND case a unanimous court ruled:

That a union can be sued for damages in a strike violating a no-strike pledge but that all officers and members are immune from such suits. Left open, however, was whether damages could be sought when a union did not condone a rebel wildcat strike.

The loss or gain on both sides remains to be measured. There was no immediate reaction from OCAW President O. A. Knight, but the AFL-CIO saw both edicts as a tremendous victory for labor.

Management lawyers were taking new legal stock but some industry spokesmen speculated the union victory might possibly backfire.

• • • •

FOR EXAMPLE, they suggested that oil companies will now be wary of signing contracts which don't give them ironclad no-strike guarantees. Also, they speculated, management might be more ready to file damage suits when their contracts are broken.

Justice Hugo L. Black, writing the majority opinion in the injunction dispute, suggested there is a legal no-man's land in federal labor policy which only Congress can correct. But desirable as it may be, he added, the Norris-LaGuardia Act cannot be stretched to "accommodate" the Taft-Hartley Law.

"The question of what change, if any, should be made in existing law," the justice said, "is one of legislative policy properly within the exclusive domain of Congress—it is a question for the law-makers, not law-interpreters."

• • • •

JUSTICES William J. Brennan, William O. Douglas and John M. Harlan dissented sharply. Like industry spokesmen, they warned that "employers will pause long before committing themselves to obligations enforceable against them but not against their unions."

Furthermore, they declared, their colleagues had dealt a "crippling blow" to a national labor policy which favors arbitration as the road to industrial peace.

Black wrote equally-sternly that Congress, in enacting Taft-Hartley, had made it crystal-clear that it was not tampering with Norris-LaGuardia or trying to "accommodate" it out of existence. He said Congress' primary concern in Norris-LaGuardia was to insure workers the right "to exercise actual liberty of contract" and to protect "concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid protection."

The court's decisions grew out of damage and injunction suits filed in 1959 by Sinclair Refining Co., charging the OCAW international and Local 7-210 and its officers and agents with violating no-strike and compulsory arbitration clauses in a 1957 contract covering its East Chicago, Ind., Refinery.

Lutherans to Merge This Week

DETROIT (AP) — American Church history will be made here this week.

Four bodies of the church, including the 2½-million-member United Lutheran Church of America, will merge to form the new Lutheran Church in America.

The merger, to be carried out at a constituting convention, will create a single church of an estimated 3.2 million members, or about one third of the nation's Lutherans.

• • • •

THE MERGING groups say this will make them the sixth largest Protestant church body in the United States.

Joining in the climax to six years of merger discussions will be the United Lutheran Church, American Evangelical Lutheran Church, Augustana Lutheran Church, and Finnish Evagelical Lutheran Church (Suomi Synod).

Merger will be effectuated over a period from Thursday through next Sunday in ceremonies at Cobo Hall following the closing conventions of the four groups. The conventions start Monday.

A thousand official delegates and several thousand visitors are expected.

• • • •

COBO HALL'S big arena is to be turned into a sanctuary for communion service. There will be a large altar at one end of the arena.

The Rev. Dr. Malvin H. Lundeen of Minneapolis, president of the Augustana Evangelical Lutheran Church and chairman of the Joint Commission on Lutheran Unity, will preside over the constituting convention.

Lutheranism in the United States has about 8½ million adherents, including the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod with 2½ million members and the Wisconsin Synod and several socalled splinter groups. These are not involved in the merger.

New Vote Sought on Beaten Park Bill

SANTA MONICA (UPI)—The State Park Commission is asking the legislature to put the $150 million park bond issue, defeated in the June 5 primary, on the ballot in November.

Commission members said that they feel voters would approve the measure to preserve California's "scenic, historic and recreational areas."

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Threats of Recession, Strikes Cloud Outlook

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The question of the nation's economic outlook — will there be a recession in 1963? — flared this week.

Strikes and threats of strikes were jarring notes.

And the stock market continued to pursue its downward course.

Ewan Clague, U.S. Commissioner of Labor Statistics, set off a flurry of discussion when he told a conference on labor statistics that chartings of the nation's postwar economy indicate a recession next year.

"The only question," he said, "has been exactly when it is coming."

Clague added that it was too early to tell the effect of the stock market slump but said that if it continued "I'd be worried about a recession early in 1963 instead of later."

His boss, Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg, quickly disagreed, saying, "The economic facts do not bear out such an assumption" (a recession in 1963).

• • • •

SEEKING TO clarify his remarks, Clague said he was not predicting a recession next year.

"Rather," he said, "I was explaining that historic trends, which show a downturn in the economy every three to 3½ years, when projected, indicate an economic peak might be reached sometime in 1963 which might be followed by a business downturn.

"It does not follow, of course, that there will be a recession, and the basic economic situation at the present time shows no sign of such a downturn."

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges told a conference of business leaders in Atlanta that "Business will finish out 1962 still on the road to expansion and may do better than most economists now suspect." He conceded that "the business advance so far this year has admittedly been slower than expected."

• • • •

THE GOVERNMENT stepped into two threatened strikes against major airlines.

President Kennedy appointed a fact-finding board for the dispute between the Transport Workers Union and American Airlines over wages and job security. The action put off a walkout for at least 60 days.

After marathon negotiations, Secretary of Labor Goldberg announced settlement of the flight engineers' strike threat against Trans World Airlines. It also was expected to lift a threat of a walkout against Pan American World Airways and Eastern Airlines. The settlement provided for an orderly reduction of jet plane crews from four to three.

The settlement was considered a victory for President Kennedy, who had called the threatened strike a menace to the national economy.

• • • •

THE FEDERAL Mediation Service entered the strike of the United Auto Workers Union against Ford Motor Co.'s stamping plant near Cleveland over production standards.

The walkout forced the company to close assembly plants, idling 70,000 workers. This resulted in this week's estimated auto industry production of passenger cars faling to 107,000 cars from 148,047 last week.

Without any pushes from adverse business developments, the stock market kept going down hill. Market experts were at a loss to predict when the decline would stop but some spoke of a summer rally. Averages by which the market is measured fell to new lows for the year.

Many brokers in Wall Street continued to place principal blame for the stock market reverses squarely at President Kennedy's door, accusing him of upsetting investor confidence in business prospects through his successful battle against a steel price increase.

• • • •

MUCH OF the Street reflected bitterness towards the chief executive through a proliferation of jokes — "The favorite drink down here is stocks on the rocks" — reminiscent of "that man in the White House" stories of the early New Deal and Franklin D. Roosevelt days.

The steel price battle reverberated elsewhere. A trade publication, Iron Age, said effects of the clash rule out serious thoughts of a selective price increase before September.

Steel production inched up last week after 10 straight weekly declines, totaling 1.58 milion tons, 0.4 per cent above the prior week. Some companies were reported considering longer-than-usual vacation closings for plants next month.

Alfred S. Glossbrenner, president of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., told the bituminous coal industry it may be "fair game" for government pressure to keep prices down.

• • • •

"THE ATTACK which was visited upon us by that willful band of planners and guidelines in Washington will not be reserved for the steel industry alone," he said.

The Census Bureau reported that housing starts in May showed a slight improvement over April and that orders received by durable goods factories in May appeared to have halted a three-month decline.

Some major railroads, particularly in the Midwest, were reported to have started laying off workers to meet the expense of a 10.2 cents an hour wage increase obtained by unions representing 450,000 non-operating employes.

The Southern Pacific Co. and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad disclosed they were studying possibilities of a merger that would create a 20,000-mile system between Chicago and the West Coast.

• • • •

BRIEFLY AROUND the business scene: U.S. firm losses in May totaled $114 million, up 23 per cent from May 1961 . . . Major producers of shortening are cutting prices due to lower costs of soybean and cottonseed oil . . . Air Reduction Co. plans a $3.7 million automated oxygen and nitrogen plant that will employ only 15 workers . . . Martin-Marietta Co., Baltimore, received $27 million in contracts for work on the Titan missile program.

Case's Widow Voted $22,500

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Saturday to pay $22,500 to the widow of Sen. Francis Case, R-S.D., who died Friday after a heart attack.

The payment is provided for in a supplementary appropriation measure and equals a senator's salary for one year.

Also included in the bill are payments for like amounts to the widows of Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H., and Andrew Schoeppel, R-Kan., who died earlier this year.

The Senate traditionally makes such payments to senator's widows.

First Huntington Harbour Homes Rising

HERE'S ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF HUNTINGTON HARBOUR
America's newest smart residential marina, a $200,000,000 waterfront community south of Long Beach, will provide island paradise homesites for an estimated 10,000 residents. This artist's conception illustrates the variety of houses being offered and the miles of waterways which surround them.

PROGRESS REPORT
This aerial photograph of the new private island community of Huntington Harbour shows custom model homes which are near completion. The bridge (center) will provide access for the 76 families who soon will inhabit the first of nine islands in the master plan.

Construction of 15 custom model homes at Huntington Harbour, the new $200,000,000 residential marina in Sunset Beach, is nearing completion according to Lewis W. Douglas, Jr., president of the Huntington Harbour Corp.

The 860-acre project is located between Long Beach and Huntington Beach adjacent to U. S. Highway 101 in the Sunset Beach area, and on the site of the former Rancho Lomita Gun Club. It first took shape under a group of investors headed by Samuel W. Banowit, Beverly Hills financier, and was subsequently acquired by the Huntington Harbour Corp. with Banowit continuing as a member of the Board of Directors.

• • • •

THE MASTER LAND use plan was drawn by William L. Pereira and Associates. It includes 18 miles of waterfront property for residential construction, and some 246 acres of bulkheaded waterways especially laid out for ideal sailing and boating. There will be two schools on the site.

The first of nine islands in this waterfront community to be offered to the public will contain 76 homesites, virtually all on the water, varying in size from 5,000 to 8,500 square feet.

Douglas stated that four different architectural firms were retained to design homes especially for this water-oriented, private island atmosphere.

The custom model homes are being decorated by W & J Sloane's of Beverly Hills under the direction of Virginia Douglas and Philip Burke Glynn and they will be landscaped by Joseph Copp, Jr.

A new permanent sales office has been constructed adjacent to the bridge offering access to the island and visitors to the site will have the unique opportunity to look over the homesites and custom homes by boat. Don L. Byrnes, president of the Huntington Harbour sales organization, states that people are coming through "by the hundreds."

Huntington Harbour is the first bayfront community to be offered in the West since Lido Island was opened in Newport Beach over 30 years ago.

Look Before You Buy, Urges Realty Leader

Independent-Press-Telegram
R-1 Long Beach 12, Calif., Sunday, June 24, 1962
REAL ESTATE-BUSINESS

Purchasers of real estate should view the property offered before signing agreements to buy, especially if it is undeveloped land in areas unfamiliar to them, declares James A. Edmonds Jr., president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors.

"We are concerned about the number of offers to sell relatively undeveloped lands by mail, newspapers, radio, or television to attract persons who rely upon the representations made without actually viewing the property and determining whether it is suitable to their personal use or that it has investment value," he said.

"Property represented as having investment value may prove to be primarily speculative in nature and of little value to the purchaser for immediate or near future use.

"Therefore," he continued, "it is advisable to personally inspect, before purchase, any property offered for sale, or employ independent real estate counsel to analyze investment or use values before entering into purchase or lease agreements."

• • • •

EDMONDS pointed out that many people continue to seek real estate investments as a hedge against inflation, but in all cases Realtors urge that funds be committed only after careful analysis by trusted experts. The threat of inflation or the anticipation of a quick profit should not cause people to buy real estate sight unseen, he advised, because the price placed upon property by the owner or developer may have no relationship whatever to its real value.

He said that officials in all states in which newly developed lands are being offered for sale or lease nationally should take steps immediately to adopt laws, if not already on the statute books, requiring owners of subdivided lands, or their agents, to disclose all of the pertinent facts about such property to each and every prospective purchaser and to obtain a receipt for such notice.

Such protective measures will not interfere with the sale of homes, or of lots, by reputable development organizations, but will afford some needed protection to the public against fantastic claims by Edmonds added.

mail-order promoters who attempt to make sales without giving an opportunity for personal inspection in advance,

Southland Economy Upswing Continues

Economic activity in Southern California continued its record-breaking pace by advancing to an all-time high in May, L. H. Showalter, vice president and manager of Security First National Bank's Long Beach office, reported.

This marked the 12th time in 14 months that the bank's business index has set a new record, the bank official said.

The bank's index reading for May was 246.7 (preliminary), up 10.9 per cent over the year-ago period, and 1.8 per cent above April.

Showalter pointed out that the upswing was strongly supported by another record level in manufacturing employment and a firm increase in each of the three bank debit series which measure check clearings.

Manufacturing employment in May reached 809,300 (preliminary), toppling April's record of 807,400.

• • • •

Also adding impetus to the climb was the fact that 11 of the index's 14 seasonally adjusted components were above May, 1961. Four were at record levels.

Employment in the Southland increased by 38,000 during the month. Compared with a year ago, there were approximately 67,000 fewer people out of work in the Southland.

Pear Tree Bears at Age of 132

JERSEYVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The oldest fruit-tree in Jersey County, a 132-year-old pear tree, is bearing fruit again this year.

The famous tree was brought here in 1830 from New Jersey by Dr. Ralph Van Pelt by covered wagon.

The tree has attracted wide attention. Several years ago the Department of Agriculture and several state departments of agriculture cut scions from it for propagation.

Must Find Better Housing for Urban Renewal Area Families

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has told cities seeking federal slum-clearance subsidies they must do a better job of finding new housing for displaced slum families.

With the prospect that one million families will be displaced through Urban Renewal activities during the next decade, said Urban Renewal Commissioner William L. Slayton, relocation has become even more important.

Failure to find decent or appropriate housing for slum families is one of the major criticisms leveled at the urban renewal program. Another is that it uproots people from familiar surroundings against their will, and shunts them to strange neighborhoods where they are unhappy.

SLAYTON'S ANSWER in part to the first criticism is the new rules tightening relocation practices which communities getting federal subsidy must pursue. He ordered local authorities to:

—Submit more specific evidence that construction of proposed relocation housing actually will take place. In the case of proposed low-rent projects, authorities will have to show they have secured approval of the U. S. Public Housing Administration "and contracted for the new housing units."

—Spell out in detail how they will advise families to be displaced of assistance they can get in new quarters.

—NOTIFY LOCAL code enforcement officials if a family has moved itself to a substandard dwelling and refuses offers of better housing. The officials presumably would try to get the substandard dwelling improved.

Slayton also encouraged cities to make complete surveys of site residents to be moved rather than spot checks. By interviewing every family, the city can do a better job of relocation. Cost of the surveys will be eligible for the two-thirds federal subsidy which applies to land purchase, demolition and other renewal expenses net of income from sale, lease, etc.

Development Firm Changing Its Name

BROTHERS ARE BUILDERS

Ben C. Deane (right) announced that his building firm was changing its name to Deane Brothers, since his brother, Jim Deane (left), has a full partnership.

One of California's leading real estate development firms is undergoing a name change according to Ben C. Deane, president of the 17-year-old B. C. Deane Co. Henceforth the firm will be known as Deane Brothers.

Reason for the change is the evolution over the years from a business directed by one man, to a management team organization with administrative responsibilities shared by Jim Deane, executive vice president and brother of Ben.

Although founded by Ben Deane, the company in recent years has become a full partnership of the two brothers and has continued to show remarkable growth. The organization has built more than 3,000 homes as well as industrial buildings and urban renewal apartments.

BEN DEANE is past president of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties and is a member of the Presidents Volunteer Home Mortgage Program as well as serving on the economic council of the NAHB.

Jim Deane left his post as executive vice president for one of the nation's largest furnace manufacturers to join Ben in 1958.

Western Gear, Lynwood Gets Big Navy Contract

A contract in excess of $1,000,000 has been received by Western Gear Corp.'s Precision Products Division of Lynwood for propulsion components for three unique new U.S. Navy ships.

Termed LPDs, the new ships will be an innovation in attack cargo-transports. Their revolutionary design provides for large landing boats to be launched, fully loaded with troops, directly from an interior covered well in the ship.

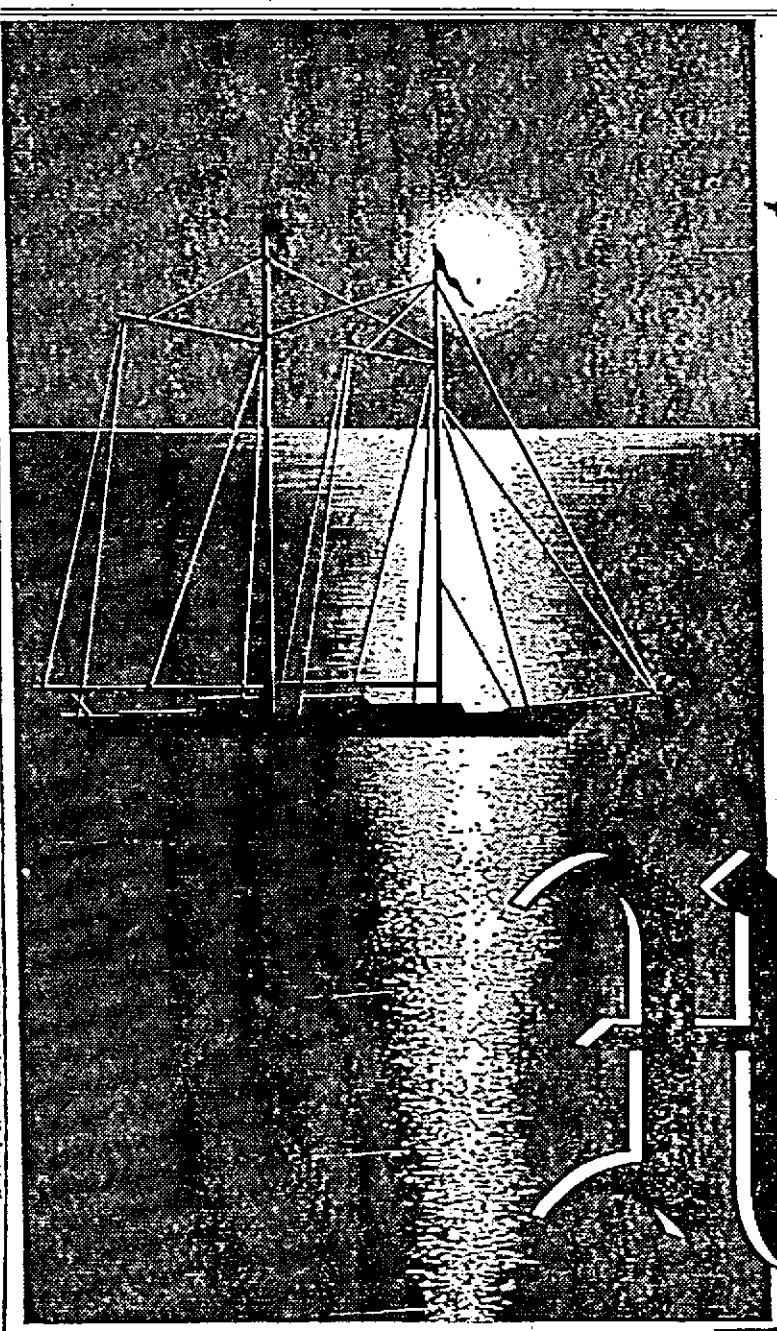

The day of troops climbing over the side and down landing nets into bobbing boats, replete with hazards, will be over when the new LPDs go into service. Instead, the fully loaded landing boats are floated out of the stern of the ship as easily as a pleasure yacht puts out into the bay from its slip.

As a further development of modern attack procedures, approximately half of the ship's topside deck is devoted to a heliport from which fully loaded 'copters can participate in landing operations.

St. Hubert Wood Again Sells Sites

The Walter H. Leimert Co., Southern California developers for more than half a century, announces a new extension of St. Hubert Wood is being readied and offered for sale.

Located in North Tustin and carved from a virgin avocado grove, St. Hubert Wood is one of the Southland's most exclusive residential communities. The many years' experience of the Walter H. Leimert Co. assures proper restrictions, practical architectural control and essential seclusion. Here is truly a protected investment in choice homesites or exquisite homes, says a spokesman.

Plans for homes in St. Hubert Wood are subject to the approval of the review board with a minimum floor area of 1,800 sq. ft. required. Estate-size lots are from 10,000 sq. ft. and are priced from $10,500 to $17,500.

Sales will be handled by the Leimert Realty Co. Its office is in St. Hubert Wood at 18151 Leafwood Lane and is manned by two Tustin men—Nick Gannon and Jay Hickox.

Bonus Room Homes Are Offered Again

The big Westmont "Bonus Room" homes are available once again in the Huntington Beach area with a preview showing slated for this weekend of the over 1,600 square foot, three and four bedroom homes.

With earlier "Bonus Room" homes sold out nearly three months ahead of schedule, the new unit will offer the Westmont homes in all plans and exteriors plus one new floor plan, the developers, George M. Holstein and Sons, revealed.

• • • •

PRICED FROM $17,900, FHA, veteran and conventional terms will be offered at the site that will be adjacent to a new park site, new school location and new shopping center.

The developers pointed out that recent Westmont homes had been sold out many months ahead of scheduled completion and urged buyers to act quickly for favorite plan, exterior and lot size. All of the new community lots will be, however, at least 7,200 sq. ft. in size, the Westmont builders assured.

The new "Bonus Room" makes an ideal rumpus room, play area, teen-age hide-away, or can be converted into as many as three full size bedrooms.

• • • •

ALONG WITH the Bonus Room, the Westmont homes feature luxuries such as fireplaces, paneling, built in gas kitchens, tile baths and kitchens, big glassed in showers, wallpaper, rich floor coverings, and a choice of two different cabinet finishes.

From Long Beach go out Seventh St. to Hwy. 39 and turn South about three miles to Westmont. The models are just on the left of Highway 39 about five minutes from Huntington Beach State Park on the beach.

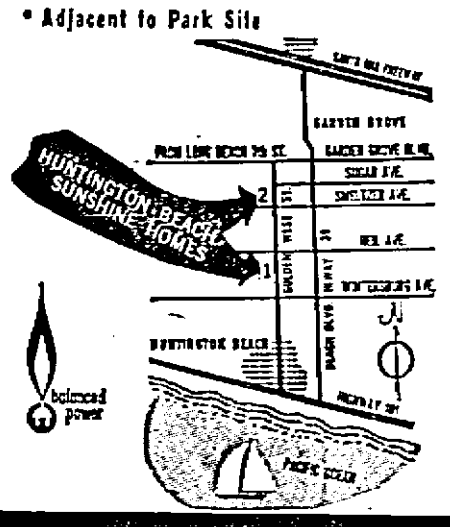

IN WESTMONT HOME

Fireplaces, paneling, spacious living areas are all part of the big Westmont "Bonus Room" homes once again available in Huntington Beach. FHA, VA and conventional terms are offered at the site on Highway 39 about three miles south of Westminster Boulevard.

1,000 Westmont Homes Started in New City of Fountain Valley

A five-year dream, the new city of Fountain Valley, took its first step into reality when ground was broken on the first subdivision in the city's history, the 1,000-home Westmont community of George M. Holstein and Sons.

With Mayor James Kanno and other of the fledgling city's officials on hand, the first construction was started with a blast of TNT in the new city where 20,000 new homes have been planned in the next three to five years.

The first Westmont development will include 7,200 square foot lots, parkway streets, lights, sewers, and other improvements and will be adjacent to one of the city's planned eight parks, and 26 school sites.

The Holstein development will actually launch the new city on its way to a community of 100,000 population that will be strategically located adjacent to the new San Diego Freeway, as well as Hwy. 39, Brookhurst, and other main county arteries. The Holstein community, to be called Westmont, will be located on Warner Ave., one of Orange County's main east and west streets.

• • • •

A DEVELOPER in Southern California over 40 years, the Holstein organization is one of the leading land owners in the new city. At the ground breaking, Holstein pointed out the strategic location of the new city, its ideal weather, and careful planning, along with proxity to the sea, as all important in making the new community the "city of the future."

The Westmont community will not only offer the larger 7,200-square-foot lot, but will offer buyers the big Westmont "Bonus Room" home that gives purchasers up to 1,660 square feet of living area. Prices will start at $17,995 for the Westmont homes and go to $20,350.

Realty Investments Continuing Strong

"The strong, continuing trend of investment in real estate indicates that investors are turning away from the stock market after the Wall Street 'soft spot'."

So declared Frank R. Hart, executive vice president of Walker & Lee, Inc., the nation's leading real estate organization.

In support of his statement, Hart announced that Walker & Lee had sold a total of 94 homes the first week of June for a total dollar volume of $1,883,280.

"Buying was heavy in resale houses with 48 sales while new home sales totalled 46," Hart said.

Total dollar valuation of the resale homes was set at $836,680 and new home volume was $984,600.

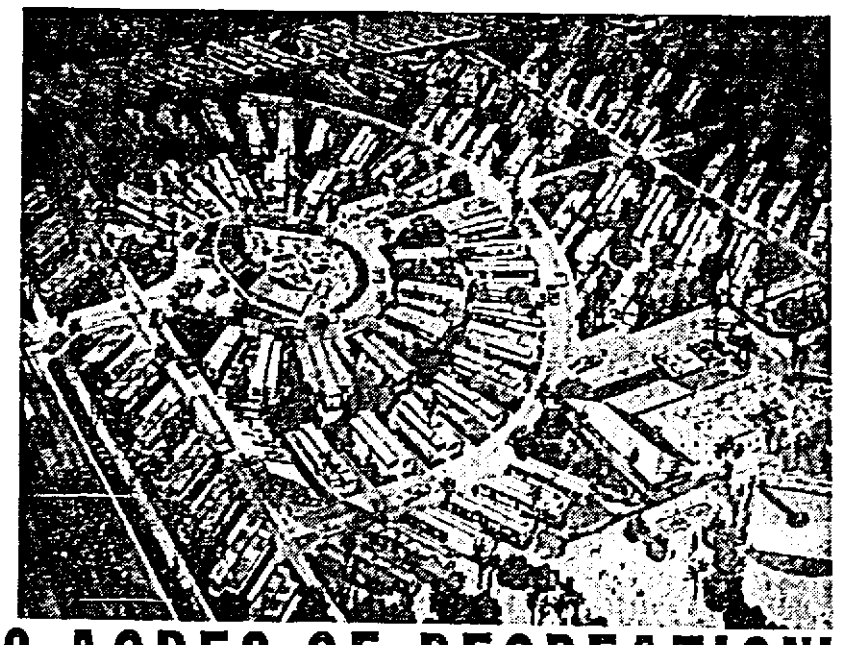

The four resale offices in North Orange County (Lincoln-Magnolia, Fullerton, Euclid - Katella and Garden Grove) accounted for 14 sales amounting to $248,450. The Tustin office sold six homes for a total of $100,950.

The Newport Beach and Costa Mesa offices sold 11 houses for $233,980 and the six offices in Lakewood-Long Beach areas assounted for 17 sales with a dollar volume of $315,300.

The 46 new house sales were reported from 24 subdivisions for which Walker & Lee act as sales agents.

Lake Arrowhead property is a smart land investment. With good reason. Lake Arrowhead is the nation's most rapidly appreciating resort area. And it's the only resort of its kind in Southern California—a living resort—superbly combining the finest resort facilities with the latest living conveniences. Lake Arrowhead is also smog-free and four seasons-rich. All of which makes it a good, healthy place to live—and a good, healthy investment. Little wonder Lake Arrowhead land has been eagerly bought and built upon since the spring of 1961 when the property became available for the first time in 15 years. Sooner than later the demand will exceed the supply. Simply because the sale of this truly unique property is that good a thing—too good to last. So it's suggested you invest now. PRICED FROM $13,950

This is the Sea Sprite, one of the models offered in Seahaven, which is offered from $13,950. It has two bedrooms, living room, separate dining area, all-electric kitchen and many quality features.

Payments On Seahaven Homes Lower Than Comparable Rent

Response to Seahaven Homes has been so enthusiastic, that private showings of the models are being initiated for the benefit of Orange County personnel directors interested in the welfare of their employes, according to Jim Deane, speaking for Deane Brothers, builders of the 540-home development in Huntington Beach.

Sales of 108 Seahaven Homes, representing $1,650,000, was made during the first 10-day period after our preview showing," Deane reported, "and even though the first and second units have been sold out, personnel directors are invited to visit the models privately and discuss the investment and financing of the homes.

• • • •

"SEAHAVEN OFFERS a wonderful opportunity to get out of rentals," Deane continued, "and build equity in a home that can only go up in value as the years go by. This is the first time homes of this quality have been offered for less than it would cost to rent a comparable home or apartment inland. Veterans can move in for just $89 and total monthly payments of $89, which includes everything, taxes, insurance, principal and interest. Non-veterans may purchase through FHA with minimum down payment and $95 total monthly payments, including everything."

Seahaven offers two, three and four-bedroom models, each with a choice of three exterior designs and are priced from $13,950. Outstanding feature of the homes, and unusual in the Seahaven price range, is the Westinghouse All-Electric Kitchens, which are standard equipment in all models.

Seahaven Homes are located just off Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39) on Adams Ave., two miles north of Pacific Coast Hwy. (101).

WHAT WOULD YOU DO
IF YOU OWNED A 50 ACRE AVOCADO GROVE?

Live on it? Sell it? $ Or subdivide it? This was our problem. We have held for many years a lovely avocado grove in Tustin. The trees are magnificent, the environment superb. It was adjacent to St. Hubert Wood which has met with such wide acclaim in Orange County.

We decided to subdivide and preserve as many trees as possible, permitting the new lot owners to benefit by the park-like atmosphere. Streets are now complete, improvements in and the lots are ready for sale. There are not many, but each is a gem.

Advice Offered Job Hunters

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A business consultant has this advice for job-seeking high school and college graduates: Know something about the company to which you are applying for employment.

SMALL WARS, SMALL BOATS

Navy planning includes small, versatile craft, such as these in artist's sketches. Mother ship (top) launches helicopters and small landing boats. Seventy-knot gunboat would be capable of patrolling coastal waters.

Navy Planning Fleet of Small Fast Gunboats for Blockades

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—New boats and new tactics for small-scale wars of the future are being developed by Navy architects and strategists. Under development now:

Small, high-powered motor gunboats that could be used to blockade small inlets which penetrate the shores of countries like Cuba, the Congo or Communist China. These shallow-draft boats are designed to be deadly against small smuggling craft and junks.

Navy experts figure that these motor gunboats could put a crimp in the seaward infiltration of North Vietnamese Communist troops and supplies into South Viet Nam.

• • • •

A SERIES of even smaller craft to enforce a blockade along the rivers and canals of the guerrilla-infested delta country of South Viet Nam. These include small collapsible rubber boats for the marsh country, shallow double-bottomed craft for transport, fast infiltration attack boats and small convoy patrol craft.

The Navy hopes that some of these will hit speeds of 70 knots, enabling them to hustle quiskly to trouble points.

The theory behind this development is that guerrilla strength will ebb if they can be denied access to waterways for moving troops and rice. If loyalists can control water routes they will have mobile bases from which to raid enemy pockets.

• • • •

BEEFED-UP units of Navy frogmen who would go ashore two to three days in advance of an amphibious landing and scout the enemy, block key roads and create diversions.

These frogmen would be carried in by submarine or in a new type of high-speed landing craft.

These frogmen, Navy men think, would insure that future U. S. or allied assault troops would not get caught in the kind of trap that awaited infantrymen at the Bay of Pigs in Cuba.

Old aircraft carriers converted into super communications ships that would work closely with large-scale amphibious task forces. This many-channel communications setup will enable a series of operations to be coordinated closely by a Pacific Ocean or Atlantic Ocean commander and by Washington as well.

• • • •

A SERIES of amphibious assault ships. Each will be able to stand well out at sea and land a reinforced battalion of 2,000 Marines on target by helicopter.

A new type of mother ship which would support amphibious landings with a brood of 20 minesweeping launches and two helicopter mine sweepers.

New Navy transports are being designed to carry troops and their equipment in the same ship, where possible. The sinking of one ship, as in the Cuban invasion, would not leave a landing force "naked."

Most of these craft will take several years to develop and produce in the quantities needed. But Department of Defense planners say they expect the war in South Viet Nam will still be going.

Lakewood Manor Is Appealing

Unprecedented sales at Lakewood Manor have forced sales agents to begin taking reservations in the second unit of the 360 home walled community now being built in Lakewood.

Located between Candlewood and South St. in the City of Lakewood, Lakewood Manor homes have three and four bedrooms and two baths. The homes were designed by L. C. Major and Associates, the nation's largest designer of homes.

More than 70 homes have been sold in the first unit in the three weeks since the model homes have been open, reports Ray K. Cherry, president of Hadley-Cherry, Inc., builders of the planned community.

Over 300 in Leisure World Units

Ninety-seven apartments, with over 300 people, are now occupied at Rossmoor Leisure World, huge senior citizen development in Seal Beach, William G. Brangham, general sales manager, reported.

Move-ins are proceeding at an average of 18 apartments a day, he said. And, 2,108 apartments in the first three units have been sold in five months of selling, he noted.

Leisure World, reportedly the nation's largest senior citizen project, is the first to include medical care, drugs, and all diagnostic tests in the monthly payment. Four doctors and three nurses are already on duty full-time at the project's temporary medical center. Over 1,000 physical examinations have already been completed among first buyers.

• • • • •

THE FIRST clubhouse is now open for residents. Ground was broken on the second clubhouse this past week. Work will start on the third clubhouse within 10 days. The $500,000 medical center—to house the community's 10 doctors and 26 nurses—and the $45,000 amphitheater, seating 2,500 people, were started May 18 and will be completed Oct. 15.

When completed in 1963, Leisure World will have 6,750 cooperative apartments, three clubhouses, a golf course, swimming pool, lawn bowling courts, 12½-acre shopping center, facilities for services for seven churches, and its own intracity transportation system. Unit Three prices, Brangham reported, are $10,750-$11,350 for one-bedroom with 604 square feet of living area.

TWO-BEDROOM styles with 759 square feet of living area are priced $12,000-$13,000. Payments range from $100.50 to $118. Minimum down payment is $963.

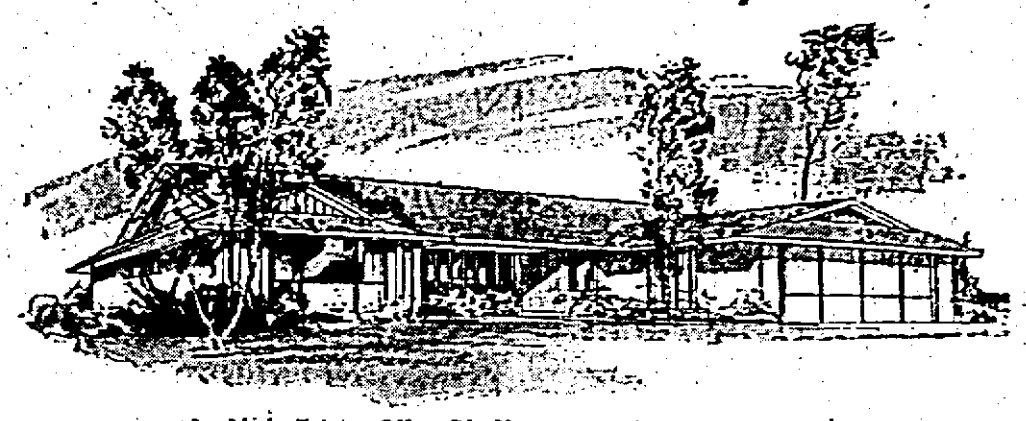

Included in the purchase price is an all-electric, built-in kitchen with oven, range, refrigerator and garbage disposal.

Minimum age for residents is 52, Brangham noted, with no physical examination necessary for acceptance.

Twelve model apartments are open daily from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the project, located at the corner of Los Alamitos and Garden Grove Blvd. in Seal Beach.

To get to Leisure World from Long Beach, drive out Seventh St., past Pacific Coast Hwy. (101) to the property, about two miles east of the Veterans Hospital.

La Linda Estates Offers Big Homes From $17,990 on Low Terms

Big 5-bedroom homes for active families sold so fast in the first unit of La Linda Estates that all were gone three weeks after opening. More of these popular homes have now been constructed.

Located on Sugar Ave. between Verano and Brookhurst in Santa Ana, La Linda Estates has three, four, and five-bedroom homes, all with two baths, priced from $17,990. For just $800 down, a non-veteran can live in one of the most convenient luxury areas in Orange County. Veterans can move in with no down payment. There are no second trust deeds and no balloon payments.

"BIG HOMES in our price range, near shopping areas, schools, and beaches are so much in demand that we were forced to build more," said Dick Hall and Bob Main of Tricon Development Inc.

La Linda Estates has a wealth of extra living enjoyment usually found only in much more expensive homes: kitchens with electric built-in ranges, ovens, dishwashers and disposals, massive fireplaces of rock or brick, ceramic tile double and single pullman tops in baths, lifetime copper plumbing, Arcadia sliding glass doors, plus the fact that all homes are landscaped in front and fenced in back.

All streets and utilities are in and paid for by the developer. The project is served by the City of Santa Ana's water and sewer systems.

"I BUILD ALL KINDS, BUT I LIVE IN A MEDALLION HOME"

"Medallion Homes are jet-age—that is, they're built for the future. At the same time, they offer more benefits to the buyer today. That's why I build them, and that's why I live in one.

"And, once you've lived in a Medallion Home there's no comparison. The greater comforts of electric living are obvious in every room. Especially in the kitchen. It's cool, easy to operate, and stays so much cleaner.

"I wouldn't live in any other kind of home."

When you consider a new home, be guided by the experience of veteran builders. Make sure the house has won the Medallion Home Award.

Only one new home in four earns this distinction. These are the qualifications:

1. A flameless electric kitchen—cool, clean, modern. It comes equipped with major electric appliances, including automatic flameless electric range and oven.

2. Full "Housepower" wiring—Only a home built to rigid Medallion Home standards has the overall electrical capacity necessary for truly modern living.

3. Abundant lighting—planned for comfort, convenience and beauty throughout the home.

A total-electric Gold Medallion Home gives you all these benefits plus:

4. Flameless electric home and water heating.

"H.M.S. PINAFORE" on pennies. Lea Ora Mead and Harvey Waggoner sang in first Singers' Workshop shoestring production 14 years ago in Elks Hall. Today's Civic Light Opera has upped budget 60 times for its top-flight musicals.

CIVIC LIGHT OPERA: BUSTIN' OUT ALL OVER!

By MARY ELLIS

Long Beach goes in heavy for civic light opera. Everybody from Oklahoma to Finian's Rainbow knows that.

And no wonder—what with a group of Guys and Dolls like Long Beach Civic Light Opera.

You need sit stage-side only one night of current "Show Boat" rehearsals to understand why this hometown show biz group not only survives, but thrives!

. . . and this at a time when other amateur operatic, theatrical and light opera aggregations throughout the country are foundering in the face of financial odds.

But not so LBCLOA, which for many seasons now has been hitting high "C"—both in culture AND cash.

* * * *

"BOTH ARE important," said Civic Light Opera's first-and-only manager, Harvey Waggoner.

He was speaking over the strains of "Can't Help Lovin' That Man," being rehearsed on stage by hometown songbird Bette Feuer Arntzen, who portrays Julie in the group's upcoming musical, "Show Boat," at Concert Hall, July 5-8 and 12-15.

"We haven't always had it so good . . . and we didn't grow like Topsy," said Waggoner. "Things were so slim at times . . . we practically had to eat the shoestrings."

* * * *

THE LEADING-man-turned-manager peeled off his coat and settled down for some flashbacks.

In the early days, he reflected, the group was known as Singers' Workshop and "among our tribulations were people who called about lessons on you-know-what sewing machine."

It was started in 1948 by originator Henri Scanlon, a Long Beach-born lyric tenor then just back from a nationwide tour with Savoy Light Opera. He decided his home town should have a medium through which nonprofessional actors and singers could express their talents.

The first production, Gilbert and Sullivan's "HMS Pinafore," was staged at a cost of only $35 in the Elks Club auditorium—"rent-free, of course," Waggoner said.

Despite the low budget and lack of experienced cast, the show was an unqualified success.

"It even made a little money—enough to help finance a second venture," he said.

* * * *

SO STARTED a long line of successful improved-with-every-season extravaganzas, now produced at the rate of four a year and at a cost of more than $20,000 per.

And they're so professionally done, these days, that a leading Los Angeles music critic a couple seasons ago hailed the group's production of "Kiss Me Kate" as a "better show than we get from many touring companies that wander this way from Manhattan."

That same year, the I, P-T editorialized that the

Here, David Roberts, Alex McLeod and Bette Feuer Arntzen rehearse for extravaganza featuring star-studded cast of 102 plus lavish sets, colorful costumes. Final show of current 14th season, Jerome Kern musical will hit Long Beach Municipal Auditorium, Concert Hall, stage July 5. Seven-performance engagement ends July 15.

Civic Light Opera . . .

group had "come to be regarded as perhaps the strongest entertainment force in the community."

• • • •

CIVIC LIGHT OPERA'S full-time paid general manager is a talented baritone in his own right and was leading man for most of the group's early-day productions.

"I met my wife (Jackie McFadden) during one of the first plays," said Waggoner, "courted her behind footlights through several more . . . even postponed our marriage for two years until the association got on its feet."

So dedicated was he to the cause, in fact, that during his first year as manager he worked sans salary.

"In those days, everybody did everything—acted, built sets, whipped up costumes, painted signs and sold tickets.

"Members contributed time, their back yards, props and extra lumber. Their goal was to make productions look uptown."

With the result that, today, they really do!

• • • •

PATRICIA ZIEG, who plays the feminine lead of Magnolia in "Show Boat," is one of the group's 14 charter members, as is Arthur Carah, who portrays Capt. Andy.

James Boyd, president of Civic Light Opera, who rehearsal night was rushing from this chore to that, paused long enough for a hurried interview.

He accredited the group's success to increasing theatrical know-how, combined with careful management of the financial aspects of production.

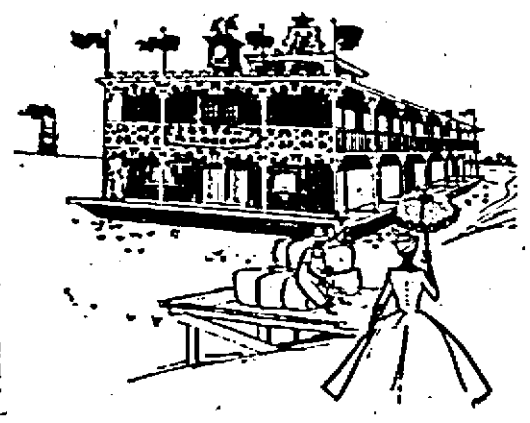

"Each dollar purchases top quality settings and costumes, as well as the best directorial talent," he pointed out.

But he emphasized another, even more important, factor: the broad and deep involvement of the community itself in light opera productions.

"For everything we buy, somebody donates three times that," he said. "Furthermore, most productions play to SRO audiences."

• • • •

OTHER BOARD members of the 300-member organization are Edward Grieve, first vice president; Frederick A. Kepke, second vice president; Virginia

Breneman, secretary; and Ray Griffiths, treasurer.

Boyd estimated that at least 250,000 man hours of work—most of it volunteer—goes into each production.

In 1958 the City of Long Beach itself appropriated $1,500 for the light opera. The next year, another $1,500. The next: $2,500.

In return, talented amateurs in the association sing at important civic functions, participate in such affairs as the Salvation Army's Christmas concert, affairs as the Salvation Army's Christmas concert.

As another step in the association's expansion explosion, Boyd noted that this fall a Long Beach Civic Light Opera Guild will be originated—with Mrs. George Taubman as organizing chairman.

MEANWHILE, on stage, the 120-member "Show Boat" cast was going into grand finale under the able supervision of director-choreographer Bill Roberts and music director Jack Kroesen.

Young and dynamic Roberts, a walking-talking-acting prototype of the successful director, gathered the amateur thespians together for these parting words about "Show Boat":

"It looks like we have a show. Remember, this is a show that's old and classic . . . most show-goers have seen it many times . . . and for those who are coming to see it because they love "Show Boat" . . . we want them to feel this is the first time they've seen it anywhere.

"Everything is set. Now all we have to do is polish it . . . make it clean and tight.

"Remember, doing a play is like painting a picture. First you sketch it in, then add color. All we have to do now is add the color."

And you can bet your season ticket they'll do just that!

Scouting Pays in Campsites

Scouting around for a nearby campsite?

Long Beach Girl Scouts have and have come up with some pretty nice ones—just down the block.

Their summer day camps will be held in Long Beach city parks and at Signal Hill beginning July 9 and continuing through Aug. 17.

An additional day camp for older girls, this Monday through Friday, will be climaxed by an overnight session at El Potrero, a Girl Scout campsite in Cleveland National Forest.

Each camp session, of which there are six, will last for five days. The program is administered by Long Beach Area Council of Girl Scouts.

Overseeing the day's activities will be local Girl Scout staff trained adult volunteers. Senior Girl Scouts will act as program aides.

• • • •

DAY CAMPS are established on principles of Girl Scouting. Each camp is divided into small units which are governed by girls with the guidance of the adult counselors.

The programs are planned and executed by the girls themselves. In keeping with Girl Scout camping objectives, the camps provide an out-of-doors along with the give-and-take of community living.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson • I. P-T Women's Editor

A BUBBLING, elated Vicki Van Hook telephoned her parents last Sunday as fast as she could get to a telephone after arrival in Japan . . . which wasn't very fast, at that, as you shall see.

"Beaming welcome"

What amazed and delighted the internationally famous water skiier was the reception she had awaiting her in Tokyo. A beaming crowd of Nippon admirers were on hand to fete her at a huge reception and shower her with gifts. Not only that, she learned she was scheduled to make a movie with Japan's leading actor, Kayama.

Vicki, who is in Japan to instruct skiiers there as well as travel throughout the country giving exhibitions, informed her parents that if they wanted to know what time it was her time at any given moment here in Long Beach just add a day and subtract eight hours.

I bought that, hook, line and sinker. Then began to ponder . . . why not just ADD a plain 16 hours?

Well, that's Vicki for you. Do the most complicated things (with skis or hours) and make it look easy.

PREDICTION on the social weather scene: June showers will be followed by July weddings. Carol Cummings, John Barbee's dearly beloved, was honoree at a luncheon and kitchenware shower Wednesday at Long Beach Yacht Club. Producers of the party reign were Nancy Ott and Clare Hossom.

• • • •

THESE ARE the whirling weeks for Nancy Viets, too . . . going by in a blur of parties preceding her marriage to Jerry Thompson July 7.

Vivian Yunker and daughter, Sue, entertained for Nancy at a mother-daughter luncheon and linen shower Wednesday. Bev Matlock and daughter, Margie, will fete the bride-to-be at a kitchen shower Tuesday while Tish Reid, Helen Taylor and Vera Jackson cohostess a luncheon for Nancy at Captain's Inn next Thursday.

Also on the entertainment agenda is an early July party to be hostessed by Lucille Garrison and daughter-in-law, Diane, (she and Mike will arrive from Baltimore, Md., July 2) plus a couples' gathering in Arcadia of the bride-elect's Stanford friends.

KIND OF get the impression that Gretchen (nee Markley) and husband, Dr. Bill Lee, have a corner on the First National Bank. Or maybe it's just because Bill hails from Texas. They left four years ago on their honeymoon and have been traveling ever since!

"An impression"

After leaving here they went to the Philippines then to Hong Kong where they bought a yacht for comfortable, glamorous cruising. But, at long last, Gretchen is headed in the direction of home for a summer visit with friends here and her parents, Hazel and Weir Markley in Whittier. She left Bill and the yacht in Perth, Australia, is now in Honolulu to visit daughter, Pat Gollum, before coming on here.

OFF AND fishing for another long, sunny weekend went members of the Tuna Club. This time they chose La Grulla Gun Club, 78 miles below the border; were gone five days.

Surf fishing and sun tanning were Nan and Roger Williams, Phylis and Dave Alcorn, the Macrates . . . . Laddie and Art, Dorothy and Bill . . . Katie and Carter Boswell, Mary and Julian Knutson, Ruth and Harrison Moore, Polly and Mel Marsh and Margaret and Bob Sully, to name a few of the sizeable crowd.

SOON-TO-be-mates Lois Baker and "Nev" Hallinan were partymate honorees at a couples' dinner party last weekend, hosted by Gayle and Phil Clock. Continuing the week's good time dates, Lois' bridal attendants, Marlyn Wells, Paula Irwin and Judy Rowan were hostesses at an only for girls type shower at Marilyn's Tuesday.

Incidentally, Lois' maid of honor, Carolyn McCulloch (of Riverside) will wed "Nev's" best man, Dave Keen, in August—so for them this whole procedure of parties and ceremony is one grand dress rehearsal!

• • • •

THIS IS what I call the casual approach. Talked with Elva Lawson Wednesday and discovered she planned to leave with the children almost immediately or maybe not until this week for Virgina Beach, Va. Also, she would either fly, drive or take the train, all decisions blithely still up in the air. Dick, back East on business, will join Elva and the Lawson Srs., for a summer stay at a vacation home they have taken.

Kit Carey Recites Vows

On a honeymoon which will include Hawaii, Japan and Hong Kong are Lt. (jg.) and Mrs. Harris Sperling whose wedding was solemnized on June 16 in an evening ceremony at Temple Israel.

The bride is the former Christopher Ann Carey, daughter of Mrs. Palmer Wentworth, 63 59th Place and Len Carey of Honolulu, Hawaii.

Mrs. Harris Sperling

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sperling of Newport, R. I., parents of the bridegroom, came West for the rite.

Gowned in jade green brocade and carrying miniature white chrysanthemums were the bridal attendants, Mrs. King Graham of Coronado, matron of honor, and Lucy Fairbank of Portland, Ore., former Mills classmates of the bride, and Mrs. Charles F. Fischer II, bridesmaids.

• • • •

THE RADIANT blond bride wore a gown of taffeta and sheer organza designed with delicate Chantilly lace Empire bodice, long sleeves and bouffant skirt, en train, with lace panels and appliques.

A French silk rose held her full illusion veil. She carried a spray bouquet of gardenias, lilies of the valley and miniature ivy and wore pearls, gift of the bridegroom.

Groomsmen were Lt. (jg.) Dale Meyerkord, best man; Lts. (jg.) Douglas Wood, Richard L. Wilder, James S. Poor, Allan Miller and Ens. William Ingham, former shipmates aboard the USS Los Angeles.

• • • •

FOLLOWING THE formal military ceremony, the young couple left under the traditional arch of crossed swords. They received their friends at a champagne reception in Patio Room, Allen Center Officers' Club.

The new Mrs. Sperling, known as Kit to her friends, was graduated from Wilson High School and from Mills College earlier this month. Lt. Sperling received his education in Newport, R. I. and was graduated with the class of 1960 from the Naval Academy, Annapolis.

The bride will travel through the Orient with her bridegroom while he is on a West-Pac cruise. He is stationed aboard the USS Buckley.

Ray-Welch Nuptials Sealed

Susan Lynn Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rexford Lynn Welch, 5380 El Prado, became the bride of Alvin Wilton Ray Jr., Los Angeles and Fallbrook, in a mid-afternoon ceremony at All Saints Episcopal Church.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore an original gown of egg shell linen fashioned with bell shaped skirt inset with Irish lace panels. She carried a single white butterfly rose.

Preceding her to the altar where Rev. Michael J. Francis of St. Gregory's Church conducted the nuptial rite were her sister, Jane Welch, maid of honor, and Marguerite Matlock. Both wore yellow silk sheaths.

• • • •

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Winton Ray, was attended by Claremont Men's College classmates, Frederick Lowrey, best man, and Robert Lowe, William Chamberlain and Marshall Sale, ushers.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Following a Carmel honeymoon trip, the newlyweds will establish summer residence in Claremont. A recent graduate of Claremont Men's College, the bridegroom will do graduate study this fall in the USC School of Architecture.

The new Mrs. Ray was graduated from Wilson High School and will complete studies next June at Scripps College for Women.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

How About the Charleston?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy. My father is teaching me how to dance. He is supposed to be a real good dancer (at least that's what my mother says.) Well, maybe he was considered good in his day, but he dances like they used to way back in the early 40's and I can't get it. Anyway, even if I could I wouldn't care to dance that way because no one dances like that any more. How can I cut off his lessons without hurting his feelings? — LEARNING TO DANCE.

ABBY

DEAR LEARNING: Don't be foolish. Let him teach you. It might come in handy when you have to dance with your girl friend's mother. In the meantime, get someone in your generation to teach you how to dance 1962 style.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: My two-year-old son sucks his thumb. I have discussed it with his pediatrician who advised me to ignore it. My problem is this: Whenever I take the child marketing, strangers will say to him, "Does that thumb taste good?" Or, "BIG boys don't suck their thumbs!" All this teasing and shaming have aggravated the habit. I have even had clerks pull his thumb out of his mouth while I paid for my purchases. What should I do?—MRS. J.

DEAR MRS. J: You can't control the remarks of strangers. Ignore them, too.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I received an invitation to a shower by the mother of the bride. On the invitation was written: "PLEASE BRING SANDWICHES."

I am not a relative. I wasn't sure if she meant I should bring sandwiches for the crowd, or just for myself, so I called her up and she said to bring a sandwich just for myself as she'd serve coffee. I have never heard of a shower like this, have you? And I never knew the bride's mother could give the shower. Will you please straighten me out?—NEWS TO ME.

DEAR NEWS: It is news to me, too. YOU are all straightened out, my dear. It is the bride's mother who is confused. SHOWERS for brides should be given by friends—not relatives. And a guest should not be asked to bring her own lunch.

• • • •

Emblem Club to Honor Mrs. Beck, Tour Port

Honors for Mrs. Sam Beck, chairman of trustees for the California-Nevada Association of Emblem Clubs, and a harbor cruise are on the agenda this week for members of Long Beach Emblem Club 106.

The first event, a "Harmony in Pink" themed tea, will take place from 1 to 4 p.m. Thursday in the home of Mrs. Glenn Wainner, 2264 Daisy Ave., and pays tribute to Mrs. Beck, a past president of the group, who has been named chairman of the state convention to take place in Long Beach in April, 1963.

Past presidents of the group will pour and guests will be greeted by Mmes. Beck, Elvin O'Neill, current president, and Wainner, junior past president. Mrs. Alfred J. McCartney, president of the California-Nevada group, will be a special guest. Mmes. Lester Paine and Aileen Phillips are tea hostesses.

• • • •

THE SECOND event, arranged by Mrs. Elvin O'Neill, will find Emblem Club members and their guests boarding a chartered boat Friday evening at Magnolia Landing for a harbor cruise, buffet dinner and dancing. Reservations are limited and may be made with Mrs. Virgil Jacobs, 1495 Cherry Ave., or Mrs. Charles Seesholtz, 453 W. Seventh St. Mrs. Edwin Hyka is buffet chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Christensen

Mr., Mrs. E. P. Christensen to Mark 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Christensen, 5837 Harco St., will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday when members of the immediate family attend a dinner party in Welch's Restaurant.

• • • •

IN 1960 the couple traveled to Norway where they visited her brother and sister whom she had not seen since she left her native land 52 years before.

They have four children, Harold Christensen of South Gate, Maj. E.O. Christensen, stationed at Quinn, Mich., Mrs. Paul A. Flejter of Buena Park, and Mrs. Don M. Brown of San Pedro. There are 12 grandchildren.

PARENTS' CORNER

'Repeater' Needs Love, Understanding

By RICHMOND BARBOUR

Do you have a child who wasn't promoted this spring? A boy who will repeat his grade next year? Then be careful. He needs your love.

Put yourself in his place. He knows why he is repeating. He may even be convinced that it will be good for him. But his buddies don't see that side of it. As far as they're concerned he failed. In their minds, he's been disgraced. He knows very well what they think. So your son is touchy, nervous, defensive. I don't know of any experience we adults have which equals the shock some children get when they repeat a grade.

Don't scold him. Don't tell him that he "flunked" or make him feel any worse than he already feels. Unless you've special instructions to the contrary, let him forget school. For a month or more, let him be free. No reading, spelling or times tables. Let him run with his buddies and play with them. Let him get over his blues.

• • • •

LATE IN the summer you may want him to read. Try to make it fun, not work. One way will be to get comic books for him. Leave them around the house. Let him browse through them at his own speed. Try not to show any anxiety. Don't press him. Your goal is to have him discover that reading can be fun, and that he can succeed in his schoolwork. If you push, he'll push back and you'll get a stalemate.

He'll face another crisis when school begins. His buddies will be in another room. He'll be back with kids he previously called babies. Give him extra love and support at that time. He'll need it.

Bid Ups Hand Value

When does a minimum opening bid change into a powerful hand? Sometimes your partner's bidding does not promote one card in your hand, but when his bidding clearly shows that you hold exactly the right cards to fit with his, your hand becomes more valuable.

South's 12 high card points and six card spade suit constituted a minimum opening bid and his partner's two heart response led to an automatic two spade rebid. When North went to three clubs on his second bid, most players would either rebid to three spades or try three no-trump, but John McGervey of Cleveland saw no reason to bid anything but three diamonds.

• • • •

NORTH'S response to the three diamond bid was a jump to four spades and now John revalued his hand upward.

It was obvious that North held not more than one diamond. Otherwise, he would not have bothered to bid hearts and clubs before raising spades. Also, North ought to have a couple of aces. Again he had made those two other bids before giving the spade raise.

John felt that his hand justified a Blackwood call of four no-trump and when South showed two aces John went to six spades.

West opened a diamond and John made all the tricks. He took the ace, ruffed a diamond high, led a spade to his jack, ruffed his last diamond, got back to his hand with a club and claimed the balance.

Case of the Illegal Native

Atty. Don C. Wallace Jr.

Chef of the Week

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L. P-T Food Editor

He's fundamentally a native. He just happened to be born in Minneapolis, Minn. If that sounds a bit ambiguous, here's the story! His dad was studying at the University of Minnesota when today's Chef of the Week, Don C. Wallace Jr., arrived.

Actually, Don's grandfather, W. H. Wallace, one of our early bankers, came to Long Beach in 1909. The family home was in the "suburbs" at Tenth and Linden.

Don's parents returned to Long Beach in 1926, when he was two years old. He attended Los Cerritos Grammar, George Washington Junior, and Poly High Schools prior to entering Stanford as a pre-law student.

At the same time, the V-12 Naval Reserve plan held equal interest for him, and since that course was not available at Stanford, he switched to Cal Tech and engineering. He eventually took the regular competitive examination and received an appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

* * * *

IN 1948, a full-fledged ensign, and his Navy duty completed, Wallace decided there was greater future to be found in Law than in the general line Navy officers, so he returned to Stanford, earned his law degree, passed the bar, and in 1952, joined Attorney Bruce Mason. In 1955, the present partnership of Mason, Kinley and Wallace was formed.

Wallace's extra curricular interests have been an intermingling of public speaking, debating, football, tennis, golfing, boxing, mountain climbing, and cruising.

He played end at both Stanford and Navy. He coached the football team on the S.S. Columbus, which won the cruiser championship. He, himself, was a member of the National Collegiate La Crosse team at Navy the year it won the national championship. Don, also brought other honors to the Navy as light heavyweight boxing champion. In golf, he shoots to a 10 handicap at Virginia Country Club.

Wallace has written about sports, too, having been Poly High cub reporter for the old Long Beach Sun.

A MEMBER of the Long Beach Kiwanis Club, he is a director of Stanford Law Society of Southern California, is a past president of the Barristers, and serves on the Board of Governors, Long Beach Bar Association.

With a keen interest in Boy Scouts, he has been on the executive board since 1952, has his merit badge as a counselor and is presently chairman of Cub Pack 78. Scouting interest has been inspired by sons Alex 12, and Don III, who is 10. There are also two daughters, Anne, 9 and Nancy, 7.

Mrs. Wallace, the former Elizabeth Wailes, also inspires a number of his extra-curricular interests. A member of Junior League, she "engaged" his legal counsel for Children's Programs, a co-sponsored program by the Junior League and Children's Theatre. He's also on the board of the Dental Foundation.

Family-wise, they enjoy cruising, and also heading for their cabin at Idylwild. Up there, they're either mountain climbing or fishing.

His recipe today is for Louisiana Brunswick Stew.

LOUISIANA BRUNSWICK STEW

- 1 6-lb. stewing hen
- 1 quart canned tomatoes
- 1 quart whole kernel corn
- 2 cups fresh lima beans (if frozen are used, do not overcook)
- 1 cup okra, cut in rings
- 6 small potatoes, cubed
- 4 medium onions, sliced
- ½ cup sherry

Simmer chicken until almost tender. Add vegetables, and cook until all are done. Remove bones and skin from chicken, season with salt, pepper, cayenne and sugar. Just before serving add sherry.

Serve in soup bowls with crusty bread.

After a Fashion

There's No Biz Like Shoe Biz

By MARY ELLIS
I. P-T Fashion Editor

Footprints on the sands of time have a way of changing. Just ask any shoe man.

He'll tell you that once was the time a gal could be perfectly fashionable with only a couple-or-so pairs of shoes in her then-limited wardrobe.

Said shoes went everywhere — WITH everything.

But today's fashionable femme, regardless of status, has at least 20 pairs of suitable footables in her wardrobe, according to a poll of local shoe merchants.

They point out that for jetting around in 1962's high-stepping, fashion-conscious society, the modern woman not only requires her shoe to fit the foot—but the occasion, as well.

It's modern shoeology: fashion starts from the ground up.

• • • •

MISS 1962 Fashion Plate's stepped-up wardrobe may include opera pumps and street shoes, slings and sandals, thongs and tennies, clogs and wedges, boots, oxfords, one-strap and two-strap spectators, moccasins, walking shoes and dancing shoes.

The toes may be open or closed, needle or modified point, rounded or square, vented or snubbed, crescent or snipped.

Heels may be high, low or in-between . . . double-Louie, stacked or needle. They can be flat, square, pancake or arched like a cat's back.

And for even more glamour afoot, heels can be styled of metal or contrasted fabric . . . they can be embroidered, striped, jeweled, dipped in silver or gilded with gold.

Which all adds up to fashion by the foot for the ladies . . . but represents acres and acres of shoe problems for the buyer or salesman.

• • • •

BUT HE TAKES this all in good stride.

Like Wilbur Jordan, area manager for Buffums' shoe salon.

Says he: "It's most exciting to have such a variety for today's woman to select from."

He notes that not only is variety unlimited in shape and silhouette, but that there's much exciting news afoot in fabrics and materials.

These days shoes are made of peau de soie, brocade, satin, lustre leathers, new man-made patents in all colors, lustre lizards, snake, straw, calf, suede, plastics, metallics and denims.

They come in stripes, polka dots, florals, two-tones and three-tones, plains and fancies.

• • • •

AND AS IF THAT weren't enough to ponder over, there's the ever-present problem of size ranges.

Jordan estimates that it requires as many as 80 pairs of shoes to buy all sizes in ONE style of the same color. To buy it in depth, and in several colors—well, that's stepping into higher mathematics.

Irvin Harris, manager of Leed's downtown store, estimates that a shoe-shopping femme usually tries on seven pairs before she makes up her mind.

"At least we try to show her that many so she'll get an idea of the different styles available," he notes.

What's today's average shoe size?

Well, feet are getting bigger, says he. Most-sold size is 7 or 7½B, compared to the average 6 or 6½ when he first started in the business.

"Of course," says he, "what a woman most usually wants is a shoe that's big on the inside, small on the outside."

MR. AND MRS. C. H. Wood, sole mates and owners of the local Guild House Salon, note that independent shoe stores, because of versatility in styles, are going more and more into specialty types.

"Chains and discount houses are taking care of the masses," he points out. "The independent operator is becoming more and more specialized in what he stands for."

Like for fall, the Woods are going in for new looks and fabrics.

"We're buying dull-finished silks instead of suedes . . . jubilee patents in depth, many combined with genuine Calcutta lizard . . . also lots of matte lustres . . . many in the new nip toe," they point out.

And what about color?

"Black's always the top seller, but there are many colors—dozens and dozens of them," the salon owners point out.

And as to the general trend, there's more good style and more fashionable mischief afoot than there's ever been before in the history of shoe biz.

Dear Molly Mayfield

Blush Is Becoming--On Someone Else

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I get red. Bright, gruesomely red. I am a blonde and I blush at the drop of a look.

It wouldn't be half as bad if I only blushed half of the time. If I have to recite, I fairly burst with a blush.

When a certain boy winks at me, I blush from the top of my head to the sole of my flats.

When I talk to people I know slightly, I begin to feel warm and then stutter and then a hot flash envelops me all over.

Mrs. Mayfield, it's awfully square. —RED NECK

DEAR RED NECK:

So many of you write me with this same problem. I think in acute cases it is a nerve problem that a doctor should diagnose.

But if you are exaggerating at all, let me assure you a blush shows shyness that is rare and charming. Too many women can't.

I can't tell you how to curb it, but I wish you could tell the rest of us how to blush. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have a problem nephew! He is 17 years of age, and since his mother died his father and I have tried to cope with him.

He seems to be very popular in school and his grades are decent enough, but at home he won't have a thing to do with either of us. I am only 26, and he thinks there is an affair between his father and me.

He knows I often go out on dates, but he still insists on having nothing to do with me. I think a lot of him and it hurts me!

How can I convince him? —OUTSIDER

DEAR OUTSIDER:

That young man is old enough to be talked to like a man.

He needs to be told straight out how mixed up he is. He needs to know how unfair his attitude is.

I'd say he needs to hear this from both you and his dad—and in no uncertain terms.

Let me say, however, that he may not be the only one to judge unfairly. When an unmarried woman of 26 continues to live along with a widowed, brother - in - law, well, tongues, alas, have a way of wagging.—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Why is it I never can seem to get the kind of present from my boy friend that I want. I'm 16 and by that age I think I ought to know my own mind. But my 18-year-old dating machine says I'm weakminded and he'd better choose for me.

For example, for Christmas I told him I wanted a pair of earrings like Cleopatra wore, dangling down to my shoulders. He got me a wrist watch instead. Last week was my birthday. I asked for an anklet with our initials and a heart engraved on it. He gave me a blouse and a scarf to match.

Why can't he give me what I want? —MYRTLE

DEAR MYRTLE:

A present is something that should be given with affection and sentiment. It isn't something to be demanded. And I think you are acting like a shrew long before a woman's supposed to become one.

Furthermore, strikes me that your boy friend has a lot better taste in gifts than you do. If you keep up your complaining, you're going to lose both him and the presents. —M. M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

Nobody loves me and if you think that isn't enough trouble, let me describe some others. I've never known anything but hard times.

It's hard to bear trouble any time, but when you don't even have someone to talk to about it, you're in real trouble.

I'm 38 and I look 68. Really I do. At any rate, when I give my age, people laugh.

I've been married three times. None of the marriages took and I've had no children. I wanted a baby so badly.

I had a job that paid a dollar an hour and now it is gone, too. I guess I got too bitter.

I lost my insurance last week, couldn't make the payments on my unemployment check.

Why is it some people have everything and I have nothing?—CYNIC

DEAR CYNIC:

Nobody is without trouble. It comes in different sizes and shapes but it comes. So stop dwelling on yours.

If you would think less often of yourself and more often of others you'd find their troubles double yours. Really you would. — M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I don't have many dates and in some ways I'm very, very thankful. I am a junior in high school and most of the girls in my class have lots of dates and neck with every one of them. I really don't want to.

I want a boy to go with me because he enjoys my company, not necking. Parents sure would be surprised if they knew how their kids carry on in cars.

I wish I knew, though, whether boys think more of girls who neck than they do of the ones who don't.

—GINNY

DEAR GINNY:

I took a poll. That is, talked with several teen-age friends of mine. One boy, all of 16, said he frankly liked to neck and avoided the girls who didn't. He did look shifty-eyed.

The next one, 13, said he was afraid to ask a girl to neck but he was working up to it.

The best one, 15 plus, said if he had his choice — and there were so few who didn't —he'd go with the girl who would not neck.

So there you are. The poll didn't prove anything, but as I looked at the boys while they talked I would have wanted the 15-year-old myself. Take it from there, Ginny. —M. M.

English, Japanese Films Set

Alec Guinness meets his match in a 77-year-old landlady, and Japanese boys turn out just like their brothers around the world in two films to be shown at Long Beach State College Little Theater Saturday night.

Guinness stars in "The Ladykillers;" the Japanese youngsters are seen in "Big and Little Kids," on the third program of Long Beach Film Society's summer series. Showings begin at 7 and 9 p.m.

Starring with Guinness are Kate Johnson and Peter Sellers. The film is directed by Alexander Mackendrick who also directed "Tight Little Island" and "The Man in the White Suit."

"Big and Little Kids" takes its title from the fat boy new to the neighborhood and the tiny fellow who befriends him.

Tickets will be available at the box office.

HONOR ARTIST

Millard Sheets (left), internationally famous artist and designer, received the honorary degree of master of fine arts, and 19 students received master of fine arts degrees at Otis Art Institute's seventh commencement exercises. With Sheets are (from left) John J. Preis, chairman of the board of governors; Mrs. James Kresl and Mrs. George Johnson, both of Long Beach, and members of the board. The institute is owned and operated by Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

League Honors Pat Jones

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

After guiding the growth of Artists League of Seal Beach for five years, Pat Jones has retired from the office of president and is succeeded by Al Danfeldt.

The league, however, refuses to let Pat step out of a major position. Members created the post of general advisor and elected her to fill it.

Their appreciation for her work took a tangible form, too, at the league's installation dinner Tuesday at Knotts' Berry Farm. Pat was given a gold life membership card and a check to pay for a trip to Hawaii.

As general advisor she will visit and study techniques of other galleries and art schools, gleaning ideas for the league.

"But," she said, "it's a funny thing — they're all coming here to borrow our methods!"

Other newly-installed officers are Florence Mays, Jo Bartholomew, Don Bregman, Don Hadley, Rae Simmons, Audre Hutchins, Dorothy Facer, and Fontella McKelvey.

"HIDDEN MASTERpieces" will be offered for sale by Long Beach Art Association through August in the association gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd.

During spring cleaning, many members found almost-forgotten paintings that were too good to keep hidden away. Works in all media will be offered at realistic prices—from $5 to $35.

Members' Special Exhibits currently are on view at U.S. National Bank in Los Altos, Buffums', the Unitarian Church, Bach Branch Library, North Long Beach Branch Library, Bay Shore Branch Library and General Surgical Supply.

Dr. Charles Thompson will conclude his lecture series Monday evening in the gallery with "Surrealism and the Subconscious Source."

• • • •

MARIO DE LA CRUZ JR. is showing his newest paintings in his Gallery of the Arts, 1337 South St. There will be a reception today from 4 p.m. until midnight. The gallery is open every day except Sunday from noon to 6 p.m., and on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

YOUNG ARTISTS SING GEMS FROM OPERA

By RACHEL MORTON
I-P-T Music Critic

The other day I received an invitation from that live-wire innovator, conductor Johnny Green, to the gala opening of "Opera in the Rendezvous" at the Beverly Hilton Hotel. I accepted and found myself in the gay company of a select group of invited guests, musically-minded as myself, including two Los Angeles music critics.

After dinner we settled back comfortably and listened first to Johnny Green's inimitable quips as master of ceremonies. But he was in all seriousness as he described why we were invited.

Johnny Green really has a deep interest in music and musicians, especially young musicians. Together with his friend, Fred Hayman, the manager of the Beverly Hilton, they conceived the idea of presenting melodic, well-loved golden nuggets of operatic repertoire six nights weekly for a three-month season in the friendly atmosphere of the Rendezvous room. Twelve exceptionally fine singers, the cream of the Los Angeles operatic young artists, performed. Since singing opera every night is a bit arduous, there will be six singers alternating every other night.

• • • •

WE, WHO were privileged to hear the preview, heard all 12 of the engaged singers, who gave us an uninterrupted program of gems from opera. Young and handsome, their voices were no less lovely and they suggested the action of the scenes most appealing. At a grand piano sat that incomparable accompanist, Natalie Limonick, music director of Opera in the Rendezvous, who directed authoritatively, but unobtrusively. To her goes the praise for noteworthy performances.

• • • •

THESE ARE the gems of opera we heard: solos and scenes from "Carmen," "Madame Butterly," "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," "Tosca," "La Boheme" and "Porgy and Bess."

These were the young artists whose beautiful voices gave such pleasure: Nancy Bramlage, Enid Clement, Dolores Davis, Norma Lynn, sopranos; Kathleen de Spain, Lois Varga, mezzo-sopranos; John Guarnieri, Chris Lacona, Richard Riffel, tenors; Daniel McCaughna, Ned Romero, baritones; and George Ewing, bass.

For a perfect evening of relaxation, inspiration and good food try "Opera in the Rendezvous" some night soon.

AGO Schedules July Convention

American Guild of Organists will hold its national convention from July 2 through 6 in Los Angeles county with headquarters at the Ambassador Hotel.

The convention is being sponsored by the three chapters in the county: Long Beach, Los Angeles and Pasadena-Valley. Gene Driskill of Long Beach is general chairman.

Other Long Beach members charged with convention responsibilities include Mmes. Una Connor, Richard Mitchell, James Herley, Shelby Barnard, Fern Frantz and Maxine Maxwell; Marcia Hannah, Thelma Paynter, Elizabeth Vasa, Izora Brandt, Barbara Watson, Elizabeth Loomis, Agnes Spies and Helen Davenport; James Weeks, Earl Lamken, Donald Palmer, Joseph B. Riddick and Axel Anderson.

Clarence Mader, convention program chairman, has announced that international artists and lecturers from Argentina, Italy, Austria and Canada will be presented in addition to many American artists.

July 3 has been designated "Long Beach-San Pedro Day" with programs and activities scheduled in this area.

Libraries to Screen Prize Films

Film programs featuring prize-winning documentaries in color will be shown at two branch libraries this week. There is no admission charge.

"Where Mountains Float" shows how social change has come to the people of the Arctic Circle of Greenland. Through the eyes of a 12-year-old boy, his sister and their grandfather, the viewer experiences their move from primitive oceanside hunt habitations to the more modern houses in town. "Where Mountains Float" will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Dana Branch Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave.

• • • •

THURSDAY, "Flamenco" will be offered at 7:30 p.m. at Ruth Bach Branch Library, 4055 Bellflower Blvd. Antionio, Pilar Lopez, Maria Luz and the Ballet Espanol appear in this story of the gypsy dance. Photographed against authentic backgrounds, this 80-minute film is based on ancient tradition. It will interest those who love the dance, music and beauty of Spain.

James Watts and Miss Betty Reid will introduce the film programs which were arranged by Miss Nina Boyle, film librarian.

HEADS CAST

Chita Rivera, creator of the role of Anita in the Broadway production of "West Side Story," will star in the same role when the award-winning musical opens at Frank Sennes' Moulin Rouge in Hollywood Thursday. Carla Alberghetti co-stars as Maria.

'Pops' Programs to Open July 7

Hollywood Bowl's Saturday Pops programs will begin July 7 with a Romberg concert conducted by Johnny Green. Stars will be Jean Fenn of opera and musical comedy; Chris Lachona, tenor; and James Tippey, baritone. The Roger Wagner Chorale will be featured.

The Bowl's 41st season of Symphonies Under the Stars will open July 3.

Bowl Bills Folklorico

In Hollywood Bowl Aug. 15, 17 and 18, Mexico's colorful Ballet Folklorico will be presented on its first tour of the United States, although the company already is well known in this country. It is estimated that two million American tourists have seen the company's weekly Sunday morning performances at the Palace of Belles Artes in the Mexican capital.

Also in their first U. S. tour, the Royal Scots Greys and the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders will be in Hollywood Bowl Sept. 27, 28 and 29. They include the massed bands, pipes, drums and dancers of the Scottish Regiments of the Grays, Argylls and Sutherland Highlanders.

All of the productions except the Scots will be presented by S. Hurok in cooperation with the Bowl Association.

Five Artists Share Jewish Center Show

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The show at Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave., is so well hung that the composite effect is better than the sum if its parts. Oddly enough, the five artists all use greyed, neutral palettes, but the combined effect is one of rich color.

David Rosen's large black, white, and sepia oil drawings dominate the show. He is concerned with people congregated socially. "Playground" is an eloquent, enigmatic cluster of persons solidly drawn with masterful economy. A large area of white in the foreground reinforces the composition. Others of his works include "Prayer," "Oriental Synagogue," and "Rejection," which is rather anecdotal. Rosen's seeming ease and simplicity are based on real and sophisticated technique, composition and point of view.

• • • •

KENNETH BYLER of San Francisco is the only one of the group not from Laguna. He approaches both surrealism and abstract classicism. His large canvasses are rich and deep-toned. Each is built around a mysterious form which might be, as in "Portero," a radio control for science fiction aficionados.

Leonard Kaplan is represented by nearly a dozen "Bathers," round, soft nudes skillfully done in charcoal and conte. Gail Stenlund does nudes in delicate silverpoint; the most arresting is "Late August" with its fine perspective and subtle suggestion of beach by a few pebbles.

• • • •

JANE CALLENDAR'S "assemblages" are collages of gifts from the sea—rusted tin, driftwood, sand dollars, glass—attached to pieces of weathered wood. Her one oil painting, "View—White and Brown Houses," is average, but shares the one fault of her "assemblages": too tight an effort for orderliness. Of the collages the most successful is "Reflected Glory," the least successful is "Mikado" with an arrangement of shells made to look like a figure holding a fan.

SILK NEWS—One of the drawbacks of silk is its tendency to crease easily. This problem has largely been overcome by blending silk with a synthetic fiber without any appreciable loss of feel or appearance. Speaking of silk, you can help prevent yellowing of white silk by ironing on the wrong side, using dampened cheesecloth as a press-cloth.

The nifty sloop on our cover is the Dyad II, which has been raced consistently over the years and a frequent winner of such events off Long Beach. Jointly owned by Ashton Castle, a familiar figure in Southland yachting circles, and by Charles Errington of Pacific Palisades, the Dyad II is of the K-38 Class. Castle, a director of the Los Angeles Yacht Club and manager of the Jonathan Club of Los Angeles, says he takes great pleasure in skippering the boat. When not entered in racing events or out on pleasure runs, the sleek craft is moored at the Los Angeles Yacht Club, Terminal Island. For more about yachting in the Long Beach area, see Page 7.

A blue-eyed girl with blonde curls who lived at 11th and Cherry Avenue, and walked nine blocks to Lincoln kindergarten, grew up to be Barbara Britton, film star. Next week, Southland reveals how this tiny doll hurdled the obstacles to gain renown before the movie cameras. It's an absorbing story.

Quit Now, Pay Later

By Harry Karns

Education Research Associates

THE CEREMONY and excitement of high school graduation are over; a milepost has been passed. What do the graduates do now?

To 50 per cent of them, the summer is a vacation before college starts next fall.

To the other 50 per cent, it marks the end of formal education and the beginning of a workaday life.

The latter group of students may not know it, but each is forfeiting $178,000.

Here's how the loss is calculated: From age 18 to retirement, the average lifetime income of persons with a high school diploma is $257,557. The average income of college graduates increases sharply—to $435,242. The difference is $177,685.

So the new high school graduate faces a decision that will affect his entire future.

Some persons, it is true, are never ready to go to college. Some need a period of maturation before enrolling for college work. But it is a serious mistake for the average high school graduate to look automatically upon the high school diploma as his ultimate educational achievement. In today's world, the men with the college diplomas start in better jobs at better pay and move up faster to executive positions. Many jobs and fields are closed entirely to those who lack college diplomas.

THE PERSON least able to compete, of course, is the one who dropped out of high school and failed to get a diploma at that level. A person with a high school diploma will earn approximately $50,000 more in his lifetime than a person with one to three years of high school education.

The critical decision to quit high school or to abandon the idea of going to college is normally made in the summertime while the youngster is enjoying his freedom from the classroom routine.

If you notice signs of "drop out" fever in your child, quote some of the above facts and remind him that what he sees as "freedom" now can prove to be the chain that shackles him to a dull and unrewarding job for the rest of his life.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Room 403, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

You Ask, We Answer

By Haslin

Q. Do the pigeons that roll over in the air do this by nature or are they taught to do it?—L.D.

A. Roller pigeons ("Birmingham rollers") are born with the instinct to roll over and over, and seem to enjoy doing so. Some have performed in the air for hours at a time. The most famous strain of roller pigeons is the Pensom strain developed by William H. Pensom of Smethwick, near Birmingham, England.

Q. Where will I find the lines beginning "The woods are lovely, dark and deep"? B.E.

A. Stanza 4 of "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening" by Robert Frost: "The woods are lovely, dark and deep,/ But I have promises to keep,/ And miles to go before I sleep."

Q. What causes moles on the body? G. E.

A. Moles are caused by a defect in development of the skin; their growth is the result of cell activity. Moles begin before birth as unstable cells which wander to various tissues but usually lodge in the skin and there become more deeply colored (pigmented) than the rest of the skin.

Q. What is "informal English"?—P.W.

A. By this term is meant the level of speech and writing that educated people use in conversation, letters, magazine articles and books on general subjects, newspaper stories, and the like. Informal English does not include substandard of vulgate English or slang.

Demand for Marinas continues to mushroom in the Southland

Give a Man a Ship He Can Sail

By George Eres

Familiar scenes along the Southern California coast each weekend include the fleets of sailboats heading out in competition and pleasure cruising.

NO VACANCY signs hang out at marinas from San Luis Obispo to the Mexican line and the situation doesn't appear to be easing up despite big anchorage building programs in the Southland.

"Slip availability is practically zero in most areas," said Robert B. Hoffman, 245 Pomona Ave., Long Beach, commodore of the Southern California Yacht Racing Association.

And the long-range prospect for slip space isn't optimistic.

Between San Luis Obispo and San Diego, there is space for mooring approximately 17,600 yachts. And in many places there is a waiting list "a year long."

ANOTHER 10,000 to 12,000 ships will be available when construction is completed in the various marinas south of San Luis Obispo. Playa del Rey, where bulkheading is complete, plans slips for 6,000 boats. King Harbor at Redondo will have space for another 1,000 craft. The Ventura Marina will have space for 2,200 boats and facilities at Huntington Harbor and at Dana Point will add facilities for perhaps another 2,000.

At the Long Beach Marina, built at a cost of $9,700,000 — exclusive of connected demolition and construction work which brought the over-all cost to $14,300,000—the four basins can berth 1,800 boats. Most of the slips can handle yachts up to 100 feet long, but there are three berths here for vessels up to 196 feet.

"We have a waiting list for every space," said Larry MacDowell, marine department chief. "We hold slips for no one, although we do have 75 to 100 slips reserved for guest boats on a day-to-day basis."

LONG BEACH has plans for a fifth basin, a "shelter" to Alamitos Bay at the end of the peninsula. It will have slips for about 40 boats.

Overall, the Los Angeles-Long Beach Harbors, exclusive of Alamitos Bay, have berthing space for some 4,000 craft at the various anchorages.

For the most part the yachts in the Southland range from 30 to 80 feet with the biggest concentration of larger yachts at Newport where there are numerous craft in the 65 to 75-foot category. Overall, Newport Harbor can handle berthing of some 4,000 yachts.

More slip space is being created at Mission Bay which houses about 2,000 yachts and the big San Diego yacht center has slips for 6,000.

BUT AS FAST as the slips are built they are occupied. The situation is akin to freeway construction—as soon as they are built they are jammed.

The big boom in boating can be attributed to several things—more available money, more leisure—but most of all it has been attributed to the development of the relatively low cost plastic boat.

"The trend," according to Commodore Hoffman, "is toward the plastic and the smaller boat. Ocean-type sailboats today average 30 to 35 feet, and there is a steady movement to the more capable 24-28-footers that sleep four. Boats over 30 feet, however, are for the most part wood."

In Long Beach area waters—best sailing waters in the world, according to men who have sailed all over the world, Fred Miller, of Newport, national Finn Class champion, and Long Beach's Chuck Kober, Olympic Class Dragon skipper—yachtsmen compete strenuously as well as just cruise about.

More than 400 regattas will be held this year in Southern California waters—plus innumerable club regattas and national one-design class boat championships.

WITH MORE and more landlubbers learning the difference between port and starboard, there is not only eagerness for slip space but for membership in yachting organizations.

In Southern California there are two major yachting organizations, the Southern California Yachting Association and the Yacht Racing Union of Southern California.

The SCYA has 35 member clubs, and eight associates—newly formed clubs not yet "proven" ready for full membership, according to Commodore Hoffman.

West Coast yachting circles are less restrictive about membership than their eastern counterparts, but owning a boat doesn't make you eligible for club membership on the West Coast any more than in the East.

GENERALLY, yacht club fleets are made up of various classes of boats. Club membership is not a requirement for fleet membership. In most cases, boat owners are invited to join the fleet activities and later may be taken into the club. For club membership, a sponsor or sponsors is required.

While club membership carries with it certain social prestige, for the most part it has the same relationship to sailing as country club membership has to golfing. Boats don't care who sails them, and the waters are free.

For the most part the mass of weekend sailors care little about clubs, but a great deal about getting out in a boat weekends.

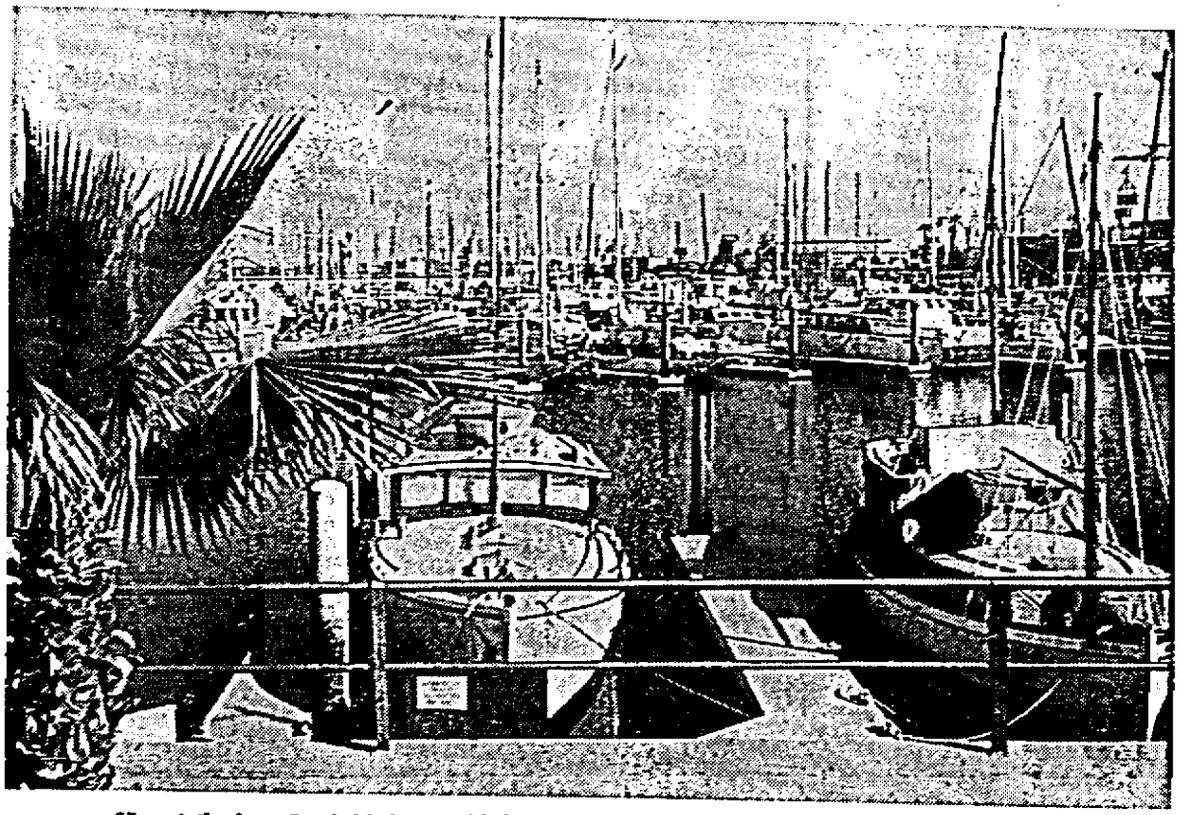

Yacht Races

FOLLOWING is a partial listing of vacation season regattas in Southland waters, as posted in the Southern waters, as posted in the Southern California Yachting Association's 1962 Master Calendar:

June 24, Long Beach Yacht Club, Invitational Regatta. 24—Los Angeles Yacht Club, Channel Island Race (third day). 24 — Lido Isle Yacht Club, June Regatta, L-14 Championship, Jr. Division. 30—Del Rey Yacht Club, Alamitos to the Isthmus. 30, July 1 — Newport Harbor Yacht Club, Independence Day Regatta.

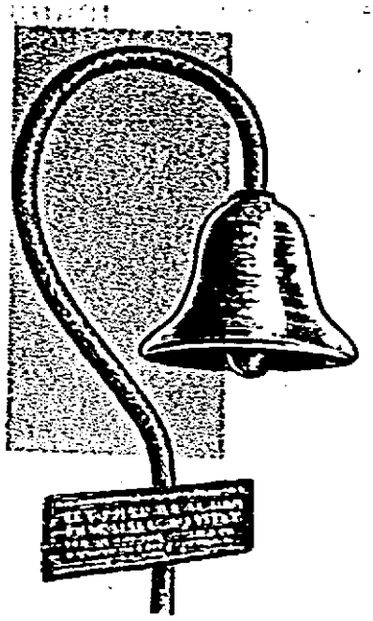

July 4, 7, 8—Alamitos Bay Yacht Club, Fourth of July Invitational. 5 — Newport Harbor YC, Twilight Series, July. 7—Cabrillo Beach YC, Around Catalina Island Race. 7, 8—Cabrillo Beach YC, Cabrillo Catamaran Championships. 8 — Newport Harbor YC, Snipe Eliminations. 14-15—Balboa YC, Summer Regatta, Invitational; Cabrillo Beach YC, Lightning District Championship. 21—California YC, Santa Barbara Island Race from Del Rey. 27, 28, 29—Southern California Yachting Association Summer Championships at San Diego. 29—Newport Harbor Flight of the Snowbirds.

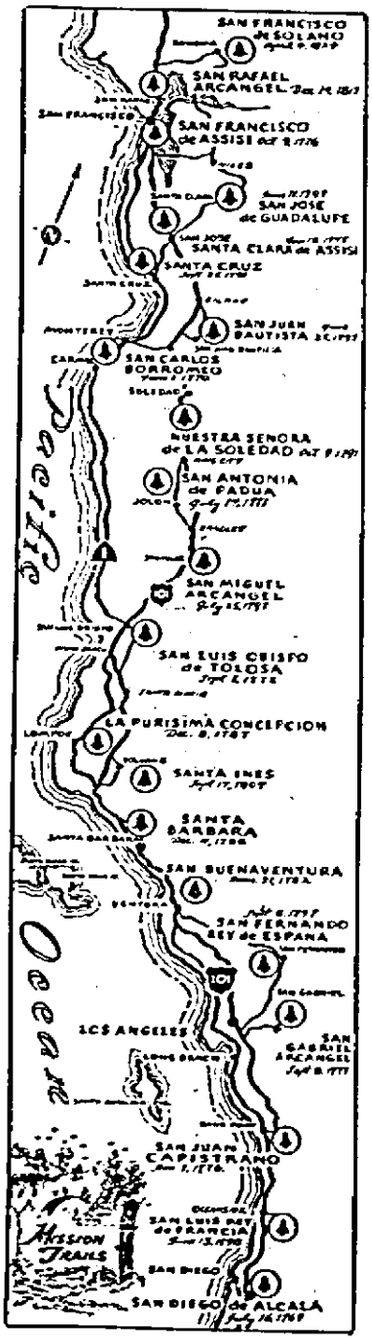

August 2, 3, 4, 5 — Yacht Racing Union of Southern California Invitational Cruise.

Slips at the Long Beach Marina are filled as fast as they are built, and there is a long waiting list for each vacancy. The same is true of other yacht facilities all up and down the coast as boating gains favor.

California's Mission Heritage

Civic aid is returning famed bells along the highway linking missions.

By Jan Heminway

NATIVES OF IOWA—a state which some Americans believe has its capital in Long Beach—had their little joke by declaring that there is no California. But, optical illusion or no, Iowans as well as residents of other states that do exist still come West to see what they can see.

Among California's phantasmagoric attractions are the adobe ruins of 21 old Spanish missions along El Camino Real, started by Father Junipero Serra. U. S. Highway 101 follows the approximate route.

Until the great Franciscan blazed his now famous trail, California was a mythical land described in a Spanish novel written in 1510, three years before Balboa discovered the Pacific. Called the Isla de California (Island of California), it portrayed a land of wealth and treasure. It was still on the best-seller list when Cortez, in Mexico, heard tales of a fortune across the "sea" that bore his name. There, he was told, lay an island with pearls the size of grapes and vast quantities of gold and silver. Promptly, it was dubbed "California." Before it could be explored, Cabrillo, contending with other leading aquanauts of his day, set off in search of the Northwest Passage. From Mexico, he crossed the gulf then known as the Sea of Cortez, rounded the tip of the peninsula they thought to be an island, and sailed north beyond San Francisco—which he missed because of fog. He didn't find the passage, but, since he'd seen no break in the coastline, his log refers to all of it as California.

WHEN Father Serra began his journey, the area was still popularly supposed to be an island. Maps of the day show it as such, lying weirdly misshapen and unreal, a little to the west of New Spain, now Mexico, and our own southern states.

As for the legendary pearls at the peninsula, several desperate attempts to find them met with failure. The country was bleak and barren, and the Crown shrugged it off. It abounded in Indians, if not material wealth, so the Jesuits established a charity fund through which they founded 12 missions below San Diego. The land was too poor to support them without help from other stations in Mexico. Yet, the rumor of riches persisted, and when the Jesuits were expelled by Carlos III, it was because he believed them to have found and buried the fabled pearls. They were rounded up and hustled aboard ship with nothing but the robes they wore and their breviaries. Then the Spanish went into a frenzied treasure hunt that gained them nothing but blisters.

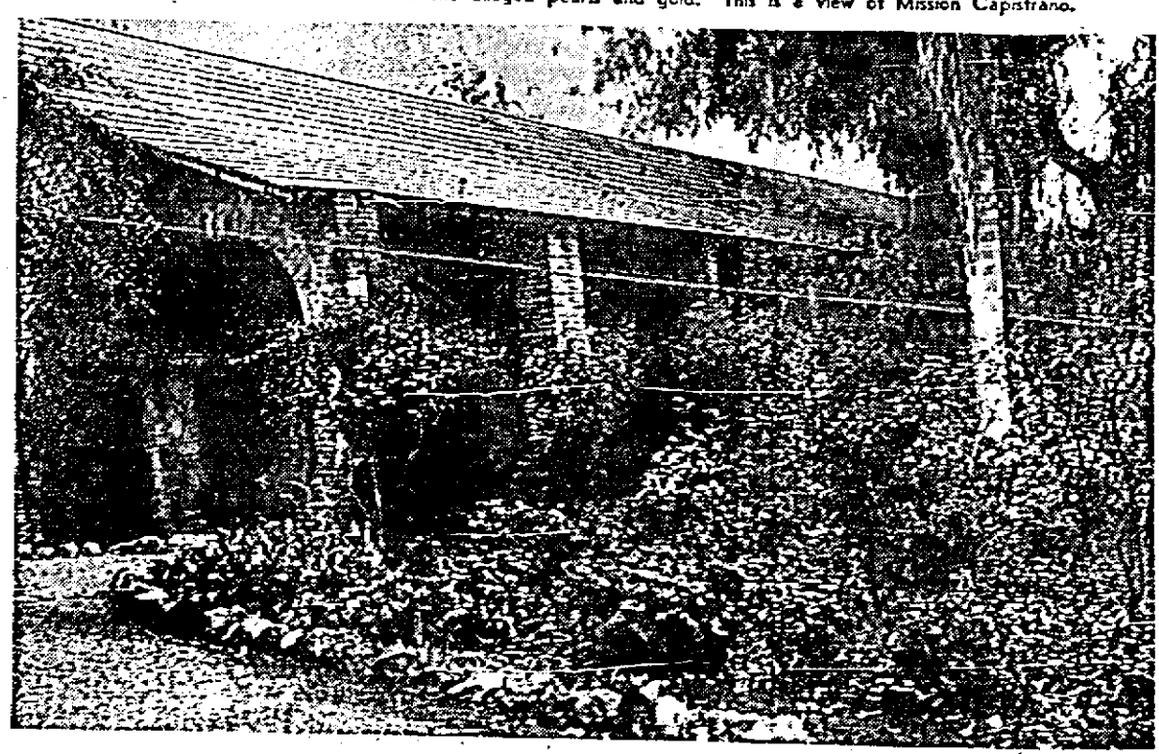

Two years later, in 1769, the king's inspector-general sent Father Serra

"California, sometimes supposed to be a part of y westerne continent but scince by a Spanish Charte taken by y Hollander it is found to be a large and goodly Island." (Quote from 1625 writings on California exploration.)

Franciscan padres, led by Fr. Junipero Serra, found a harvest of souls but those who came to California in search of riches failed to find the alleged pearls and gold. This is a view of Mission Capistrano.

Here Comes Your Beach Car

By Bob Sanders

IF YOU'RE one of those people who have always thought it would be nice to own one of those ancient vintage cars you see putting along the side of the road in the summer but felt you couldn't afford the price, hold on to your bonnets and goggles. There's a woman just arrived in town from up north who may have the solution for you.

She is Mrs. Mary Clare McShane, until recently a Northern California and Nevada businesswoman who came to the Southland to start a new venture. She plans to go into the business of manufacturing ancient, modern cars for popular consumption.

Don't let that "ancient, modern" label fool you. They're not really either or both, but Mrs. McShane says they combine the better qualities of both. They're modern, she says, because they're brand new and consequently parts will be readily available. And they're ancient because they're designed along the lines of the early American cars that roamed the dirt roads of the early century and thus have that rakish, devil-may-care appearance.

George Escobelles Photo

Primarily a "fun car," the Swift T, a new car on an old model style, will soon go into production in this area. Other models will be manufactured and will be geared to perform at a top speed of 35 m.p.h.

BEFORE THE END of July, Mrs. McShane says she will have an assembly line in production somewhere in Long Beach or Orange County—the exact location is secret pending final negotiations for one of several sites—that will turn out at least 1,200 of the little cars a year.

This newest of automobiles, and without doubt the most radical in design of the 1962 models, are destined to be called Swifts—not for that swiftest of birds, the Swift, although they do have some things in common. First the cars appear to perch upright like the bird although not because of weak underpinnings with which the bird is cursed. According to Mrs. McShane, the car, like the bird, will be able to spend many hours on the move—and with a minimum of gasoline expenditure. And on the road the car will probably catch as many flies as the bird, although that's not its main occupation.

Produced in three models, the Swift cars are expected to sell for from $695 to $895 to beat the price market in Detroit. The least expensive of the three will be the Swifter Roadster, a takeoff on the 1906 Cadillac roadster, which you don't see much these days. The most expensive will be the Swift Cat, a miniature imitation of the old Stutz Bearcat. The in-between model will be the Swift T, which resembles the early Model T pickup. The T will sell for $795.

WITH LINES SO OLD they appear to be new, or vice versa, these little cars measure only 80 inches in length and 60 inches in width. They weigh a scant 400 pounds, will hit a top speed—top speed, that is—of 35 miles an hour. And they're expected to get between 70 and 80—that's between 70 and 80—miles to the gallon.

Driving them is simple since they have only one speed forward. Press in the clutch and you're going. let it out and you're stopping. Reverse involves pulling a lever and then pressing the clutch. High seats and low front ends assure the greatest visibility. In fact driving one the first time may make you feel like you're riding a broomstick.

Other appurtenances that come as standard equipment include: an electric starter (with a "kill" button so you can stop the four-horsepower power plant); 12-volt battery and generator, sealed beam headlights; safety plate windshield to look over the top of while you drive (it's too low to look through); turn lights and electric windshield wipers (to keep the windshield clean while you're looking over it in the rain). The cars come in red, black and cream.

Optional equipment that can be ordered includes: convertible top, white sidewall tires, radio and spare tire and wheel (sometimes called a Continental kit).

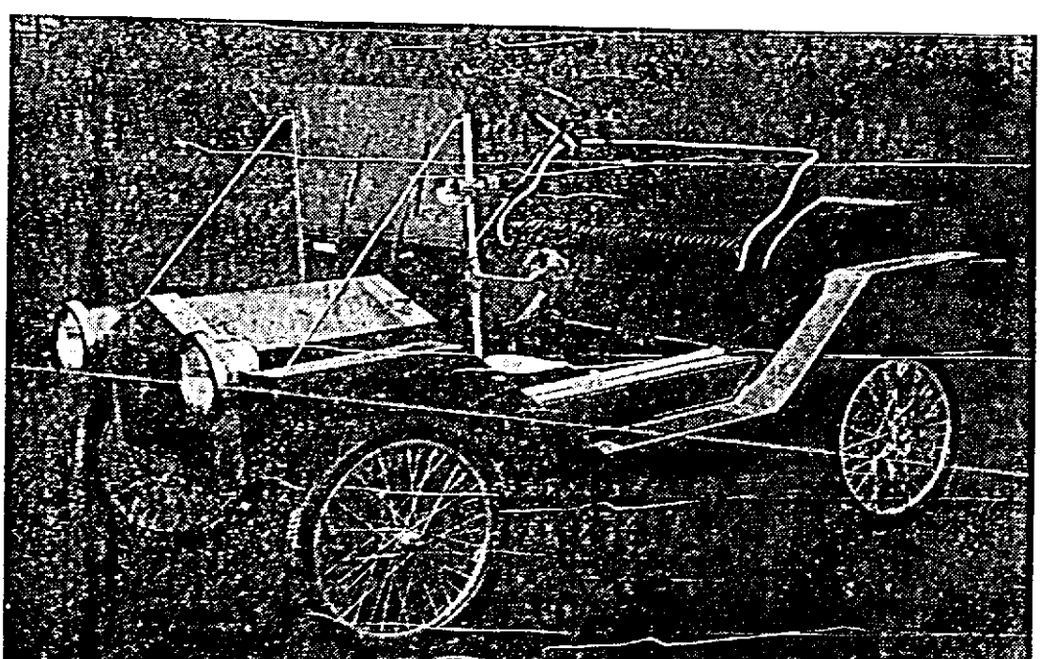

MRS. McSHANE, who says this is her first venture into the auto business, says she chose Southern California to start the enterprise in because of two things: one, the climate seems so right for an open-air car, and two, she has always wanted to live here.

She bought the business, including a complete inventory of parts, from a man who manufactured about 200 of the cars in a plant in San Diego before selling out to her. She says she already has orders for 170 cars.

Driving is simple. To go, just push in the clutch; to stop, release it.

Swift cars are scheduled to go into production next month. They will sell from $695 to $895 for various models. The cars measure 80 inches in length, 60 in width, and designed to get 70-80 miles per gallon.

Mrs. Beth Hams owns an aviary but there's no flutter and fuss about it. Her "birds" have pine cones as bases for their bodies. She's shown here with part of her collection.

Aviary With Nary a Chirp

By Walter Finch

BIRD COLLECTION without a chirp. That's the "aviary" of Mrs. Beth Hams, 647 Lime Ave., whose hobby has brought orioles, bluejays, canaries, wrens, eagles, hawks, cardinals, robins, whooping cranes, pigeons, parrots and thrushes into her home.

Her birds have pine cone bodies, wire legs, cardboard heads and most of them have dyed duck and goosefeathers.

Her hobby began 12 years ago when Mrs. Hams lived on the bank of the Sydenham River at Windsor, Ont. Pine trees flourished along the river and Mrs. Hams picked up many cones. She noticed that some of the cones were shaped like birds' bodies.

THE FIRST bird she made was an owl, covered with chicken feathers.

She spreads a paste similar to photographer's paste, over each pine cone, pads it with crepe paper or cotton batting molded to shape, makes neck and legs of wire, attaches a cardboard head. Then, beginning with the tail, she works forward to the beak, laying each feather carefully in place.

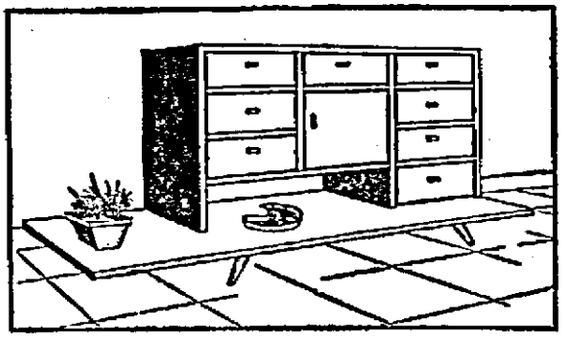

Her husband, Arthur, gathers many of the feathers for her. She finds duck and goose feathers the most pliable.

SHE STUDIES bird books for size, shape and coloring. She boils feathers in Rit to get the colors she wants, then dries them in the oven, fluffing them with her hands.

For variety, Mrs. Hams also makes bird pictures, using the feathers.

"There are only 37 whooping cranes in the world—and I have three," she says. The whooping cranes counted in the census are alive. Two of hers have pine cone bodies; the third is a feathered picture.

Sleek, modern and easy to build, this chest has eight drawers and center cabinet for bulky items like hats.

By Ursula M. S. Dadras

IF YOU THINK furniture is too complicated for your skill as a do-it-yourselfer, it's time for you to think again.

Anybody able to saw a straight line, hammer a nail, drill a few holes and turn a screwdriver can build for himself this strikingly modern eight-drawer dresser. In addition to the abundant drawer space, it has a hinged cabinet door and a wide, flaring base.

Construction is simple and planned especially for inexperienced woodworkers. If you have no power saw, you can have your lumber dealer do most or all of the cutting for you.

Chest top is 57 inches across, 15½ inches deep and 37¾ inches from the floor. The modern display base extends 6 inches out in front of the chest face and 18 inches at the side.

Legs are purchased ready-made, and screw into metal brackets attached to the dresser bottom.

Pattern for Sunny Days

TIME FOR being out of doors is at hand, and a spot in the sun is mighty fine—if you have a comfortable place to relax. A comfortable chair for lawn or patio is just the ticket, and one that fills the bill is pictured with this article, decorated with pretty Marilyn Manning of NBC-TV's "The Outlaws" show.

Any inexperienced amateur with a few simple tools can easily build this chair and the cost is slight when you do it yourself. You simply trace the full-sized pattern parts on wood, saw them out and put them together. After that, give the chair a coat of paint, or varnish, and it's ready for use.

To obtain the full-sized California lawn chair pattern Number 55, send 50 cents in coin, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Marilyn Manning of NBC-TV finds this easily made lawn and patio chair is ideal for relaxing in the outdoors.

La Reina Rule

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give genealogy on FLOWERS. — E.C., Long Beach; M.O., Torrance.

E.C., M.O.: FLOWERS has an interesting, medieval English occupational origin. This name began as Floers, meaning "Son of the Floer." A Floer was an ancient arrowmaker. Devonshire 13th century records include John Le Floer and William Floer, remote forefathers. One of the several shields for the Flower and Flowers lineage has an ermine centered silver, five-leafed rosette on an ermine coated background.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would appreciate history on MOFFATT. — Mrs. C.M., Long Beach.

C.M.: MOFFATT had a founder called Maufet, a characterization meaning "quarrelsome one." The Maufets were natives of Normandy in northwest France. One adventurous descendant followed William the Conqueror to England in 1066 and established the lineage in Britain, where the name was changed to Moffatt and Moffett. Later progeny migrated also to Ireland and Scotland. One Irish family with this name however had a different origin, which research shows to be the clan name Maghfada, translated as "from the long plain or field. The Moffatt shield is black, emblazoned with a silver St. Andrews cross in the center.

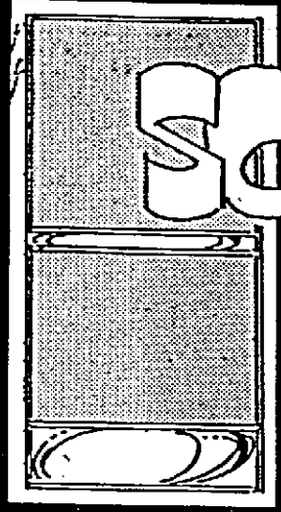

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give data on EDWARDS.— D.E., Mrs. G.Q., Lakewood.

D.E., G.Q.: EDWARDS, an English surname, is from an ancestor baptized Eadweard, deciphered as "Prosperous guardian." A long line of English kings named Edward gave impetus to the use of this name as both a given-name and a surname. The main coat-of-arms for the Edwards family has a golden rampant lion on an ermine covered shield. Matthew Edwards of England arrived in Massachusetts in 1657. Numerous modern Edwards families are descendants of his nine children.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain the source of the surname PRUDENCE. — L.P., Compton.

L.P.: PRUDENCE is French, used first by a progenitor baptized Prudentius meaning "Cautions and wise one." Prudentius or Prudence was adopted in honor of a 9th century bishop Prudentius of the French city of Troyes. No coat-of-arms is accessible for this family.

Furnishings in the Fey Looman living room are simple and of fine quality. Area surrounding fireplace is white brick, ornamented with wall plaques. Furnishings include a gold couch and twin print chairs.

A Design

By Stella George

HOMES designed for large families with growing children must meet qualifications established from divergent viewpoints. Richard Poper, architect for the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fey Looman and family, 5641 El Parque, filled the bill with a dwelling of unique quality that appeals to the needs and tastes of the adults and is pleasing to the children.

Heavy double doors mark the front entry. White brick faces the doors in the spacious entry hall, with twin English chairs flanking a low chest against the wall. A winding candelabra adorns the wall, and the appearance of the entry is almost Spanish rather than English.

To the right is the dining room. Beyond sliding glass doors in the room is a grilled wall, artistic and acting as a screen. Host and hostess chairs are upholstered in black and white checked wool; other chairs are black. A turquoise sideboard provides a color accent.

THE LIVING room is done in subdued, pleasing colors. The fireplace is of white brick. Furnishings include a dark turquoise couch, a gold couch, and twin print chairs. A walnut spinet piano is in one corner.

The family room has a paneled mahogany wall which camouflages TV and other items when not in use. The couch is of white naugahyde.

In the large kitchen-dinette area, white tile and mahogany cabinets give the room a clean streamlined feeling, and work areas are in abundance. The room was so designed that the refrigerator and oven, are enclosed in custom wooden frames that give the appliances a decorative appeal. A long, low, sit-down bar can be used for work space.

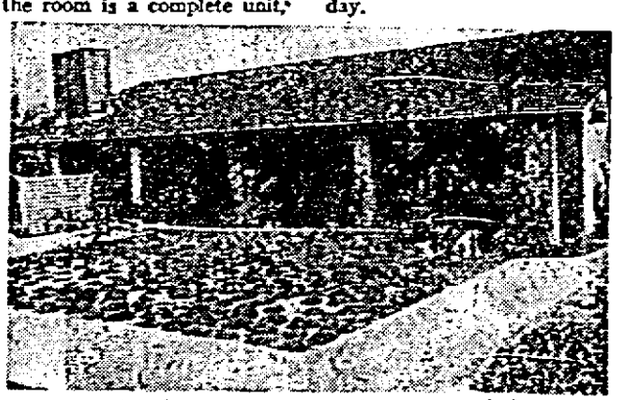

Special attention was given to the bedrooms. A girls' room, designed for two, is large, and can be divided with a floor-to-ceiling divided of pleated plastic, located between twin beds. Each half of the room is a complete unit, done in a color that blends with the other half: One is pink, the other lavender. Each half includes, besides the bed, a custom corner desk, dressing table and accessories. Shutter doors open to spacious closets, well-lined with shelves and storage space.

Another girl's room is pink with flowered wallpaper behind a pink headboard. A small balcony outside the glass door affords a touch of individual luxury.

A boy's room down the hall is tailored to masculine needs.

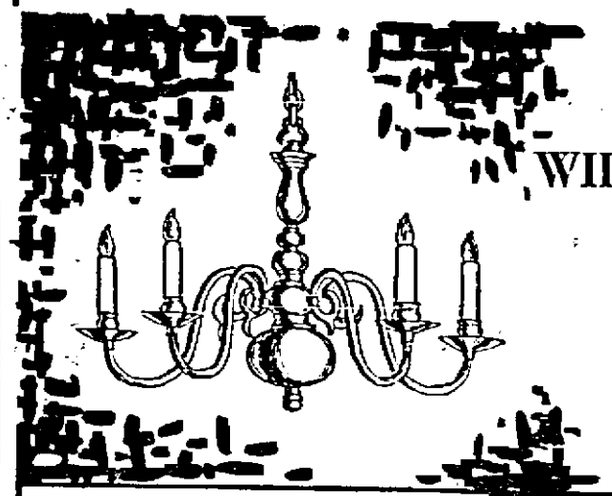

THE LARGE bathroom, shared by the youngsters, is carpeted in turquoise, and divided into sections, with the main room a type of powder room with twin wash basins facing a large mirror. From the powder room, doors lead to three separate units: the bath, the shower, and the toilet.

Down the hall, a door leads to a real surprise room reached by a small stairway. This is a large "fun" room where the family can play ping pong, draw, paint, or go for an attic retreat on a rainy day.

Grill (right) gives privacy to dining room which has a sliding door of glass. Lines are long, low.

Now from Scott Paper Company—Confidets
...the new shape in sanitary protection

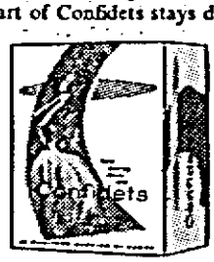

5 reasons why new Confidets make other leading sanitary napkins out-of-date, ill-fitting, inadequate...

1. Only true anatomical shape. Confidets® are the only sanitary napkin fully tapered and shaped to fit body contours. Wide in front for protection —narrow in back for comfort—don't bunch or bulge. Confidets can be worn with any standard belt.

2. Only one with proportioned depth for more protection. No other napkin has extra thickness in middle where greatest absorbency is needed. Protects like a super pad with less bulkiness than a junior size.

3. Only accident-proof inner shield that's full size and securely held in position. Moisture simply cannot penetrate this feather-light shield, so under part of Confidets stays dry, soft.

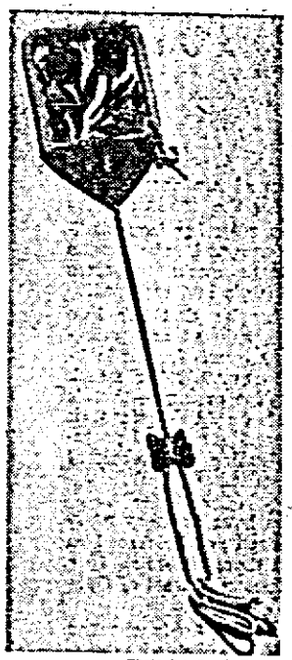

4. Only multi-layer filler with this unique arrangement. It holds 8 times its weight in moisture as proved by laboratory tests. The pure, fine quality materials absorb at maximum speed. You're blissfully secure with Confidets!

5. Exclusive ultra soft-strength cover. Only Confidets has a cover so comfortably soft against the skin yet has so much flexible strength in use. Try Confidets—developed and patented by Scott Paper Company.

Fly Swatter Goes Plush

Yarn, beads, sequins and bits of flannel make a fly swatter a bright article of interest.

By Dollie Lee

IF YOU have a room that you feel is dull and could be lifted with a bright spot of color and you don't want to put much money in that spot of color, here is a quick answer.

All you need is: a fly swatter—a good one will look better, but just any one will do.

Some yarn — left over strands are all right, but be sure they are the right color to fit your scheme.

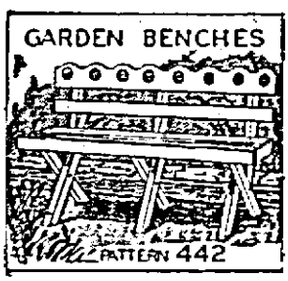

Flannel—you can get this in scraps at about 15 cents each. But here again be sure they are the right color to fit your scheme.

Some small pearl beads or sequins—or both.

Making the decoration is quite simple, if you know how to cut and sew. The patterns may be taken from previous embroidery patterns, or you may cut them yourself on paper. Any design may be used to applique on the fly swatter. The edges may be wound with the yarn or covered with the felt, whichever you like. The handle may also be treated this way. As you will note, a neat little bow can be tied at the bottom of the handle. Sparkles may or may not be used. This depends on where and how you want to use this simple decoration.

Upon completion they may be used as follows: Small gifts or light remembrances. May be laid across a couch to touch up a dark corner. May be hung on the wall to brighten the room. May be used as a fly swatter!

You Make It

An unusual design for a bench to be placed at some focal point will lend distinction to your yard. Pattern 442, which gives lists of materials, illustrated directions and actual-size cutting guides for three different sturdy types of stock sizes of lumber, is 35c. It also is one of four full-size patterns in Yard Furnishings Packet No. 73—all for $1. Address: Pattern Dept., Independent. Press-Telegram, Bedford Hills, N. Y.

'Old Dogs' Adage Disproved

By Ben Zinser
Independent Press-Telegram Medical-Science Writer

THE ADAGE that you can't teach an old dog new tricks is false, says famed neurologist Dr. Wilder Penfield.

It's untrue both for dogs and men, he says.

Dr. Penfield, until his retirement the director of the Montreal Neurological Institute, says that many men suffer from "false senility" when they should be beginning a second career.

"When a man reaches his 60s he should be released from heavy harness," Dr. Penfield admits. "But he should be given the opportunity of starting on a new or modified career."

In a report in the journal Midway, published by the University of Chicago, Dr. Penfield continues:

"The theory that the man or woman of 60 has nothing more to contribute to society during the 10 or 20 years of active life that remain to him or her is wrong. The belief that men in later years cannot learn new skills and educated men new professions is false."

Dr. Penfield said false senility—a retirement neurosis — sometimes occurs when a retired man suffers from a delusion of incompetence.

SWEDISH pediatricians report the case of the 14-year-old girl who ate increasing quantities of match heads for several months.

At times she consumed up to several boxes a day, they disclose in the American Journal of Diseases of Children.

A medical examination showed that she suffered from severe anemia. She was given iron for the condition.

But six months after her iron medication was discontinued, she began eating match heads again. Doctors found that the anemia had recurred.

The doctors theorize that her iron deficiency anemia induced an instinctive compulsion to search for the lacking element. Unfortunately her match binge didn't solve the problem—there's no iron in match heads. Instead, it created a new one. She suffered potassium chlorate poisoning as a result of her perverted appetite.

CHILDREN who have ordinary nearsightedness need not be forced to wear glasses full time, according to a report in the American Journal of Ophthalmology.

Dr. Paul W. Miles, St. Louis, checked the records of 28 nearsighted youngsters fitted for glasses when about 8 years old.

For various reasons some of these youngsters failed to wear their glasses full time for one to four years. Then the same youngsters began to wear their glasses full time—for one to six years.

Dr. Miles says that failure to wear glasses for prolonged periods had no effect on rate of eyesight change.

A TABLET containing bacteria has cured or brought about dramatic improvement for 95 per cent of a series of patients afflicted with fever blisters. The same drug helped 80 per cent of a series of patients suffering from canker sores.

The drug contains Lactobacillus acidophilus and bulgaricus, micro-organisms involved in fermentation of milk.

Dr. John J. Weekes of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, says the way the drug works in these cases is not understood.

Challenge of the Cossacks

ON THE ROUGH, pampa plains of Argentina, a towering 16th Century walled and turreted Polish city will change hands this summer as Cossacks and Poles clash in savage battle.

It will be the filming of "Taras Bulba," the story of a Cossack chieftain who waged the classic Russian war with the West.

Here, on the frameless unending pampas of Argentina, director J. Lee Thompson (who also directed "Guns of Navarone") found the required geography needed to stage the grand scenes of war the screen play depicts. Among the most lavish of motion pictures, this incredible sequence involves 7,000 actors and 5,000 horses.

For more than 4,000 years Aryans, Scythians, Bulgars, Tartars and the Golden Horde invaded, fought over and ultimately lost the Ukraine, a land of rolling steppes gouged deep by rivers. Finally in the 16th Century, when a Turkish army overwhelmed a Polish army, hundreds of Cossacks suddenly rode into the fray, driving the Turks over a sheer cliff and out of Ukranian history forever.

THIS DRAMATIC story of Asia and middle Europe some 40 years ago includes an all-star cast headed by Tony Curtis and Yul Brynner.

Filmed in Technicolor Widescreen Panavision, "Taras Bulba" also stars Christine Kaufmann, Brad Dexter, Perry Lopez, Ilka Windish and Sam Wanamaker. Produced by Harold Hecht for release through United Artists, the picture promises to be a 1962 smash hit.

With a budget of $7 million, Hecht started preparations two years before actual filming started. Hecht, Thompson and the executive production manager Gilbert Kurland literally searched the world for a location which would double for the Steppes and have available 10,000 skilled horseman and horses for the battle scenes.

They found what they wanted in Salta, Argentina, an old Spanish colonial city of 120,000 population in the foothills of the Andes, 800 miles northwest of Buenos Aires. The location could be reached only by road and plane.

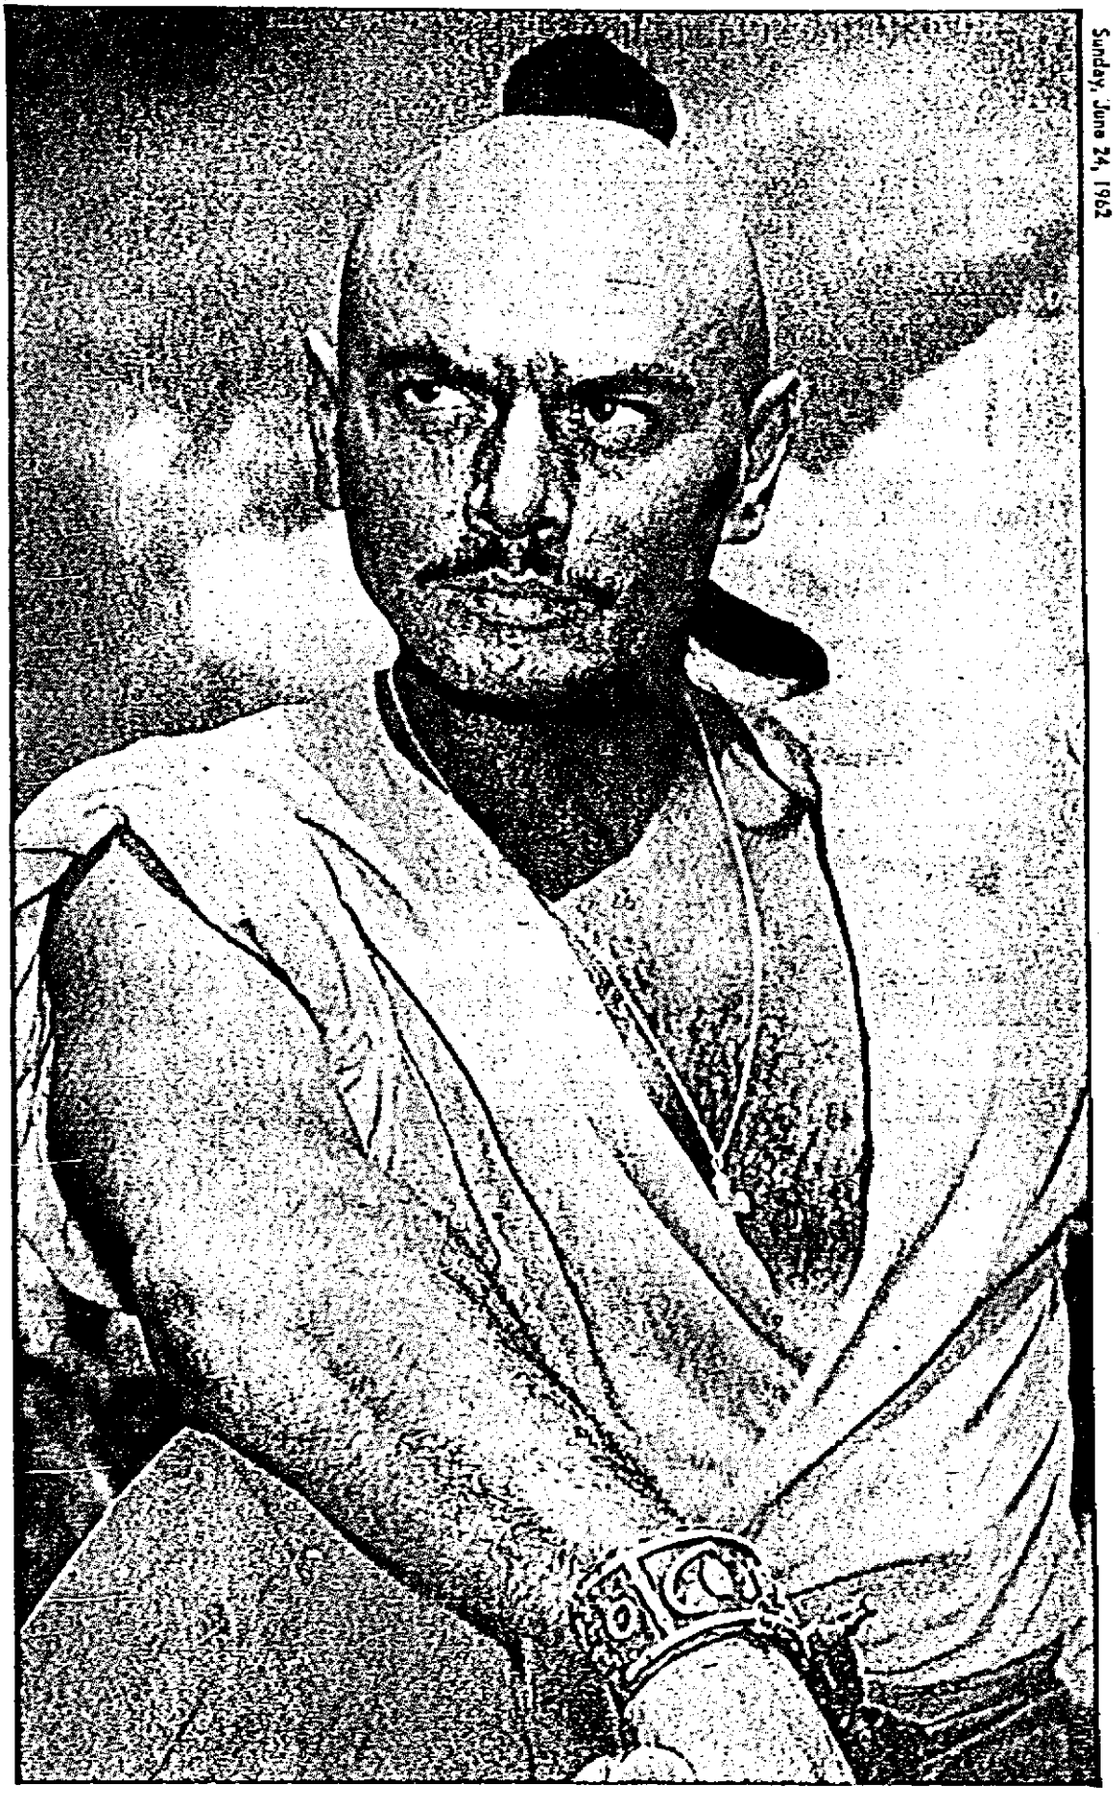

Norma Koch, costume designer, was signed to create the wardrobe for the stars and cast of 10,000 gauchos—portraying Cossacks, Poles and Turks.

EDDIE CARRERE, bilingual art director, was sent to Salta months ahead of the cast and crew to build the walled city of Dubno, which the Cossacks were to besiege and ultimately burn to the ground. He also had to build farm houses for the Cossacks, barracks and a 50-acre tent city to house the gauchos and corrals to stable the 10,000 horses.

Bill Jones, who had finished the "Alamo" for John Wayne, was sent to South America six months ahead of filming to round up necessary livestock, including a black stallion and two matching white stallions for Tony, his screen brother Perry Lopez, and Yul Brynner to ride. To insure against trouble, Bill had to get three mounts for each in case of accidents.

Jones also contracted for 120 teams of matched oxen for battle scenes.

"Taras Bulba" will be released the latter part of this year.

Taras Bulba, fierce and majestic Cossack chief who challenged the western world more than 100 years ago, is portrayed by Yul Brynner in a dramatic new motion picture spectacle now being filmed for 1962 release.

Fuchsia Control

Pinching and pruning are the two operations whereby the gardener can control the growth of fuchsias and encourage their utmost production of new blooms.

With hanging fuchsias, pinch to direct the pendulous growth, and once the shape is established, pinch to encourage side shoots and bushiness. With upright shrubs, pinch to get the shape you want. Pyramidal growth may be attained through pinching outside shoots at varying lengths. Broad horizontal growth will result from heading back the upright growth.

Something Eggs-tra

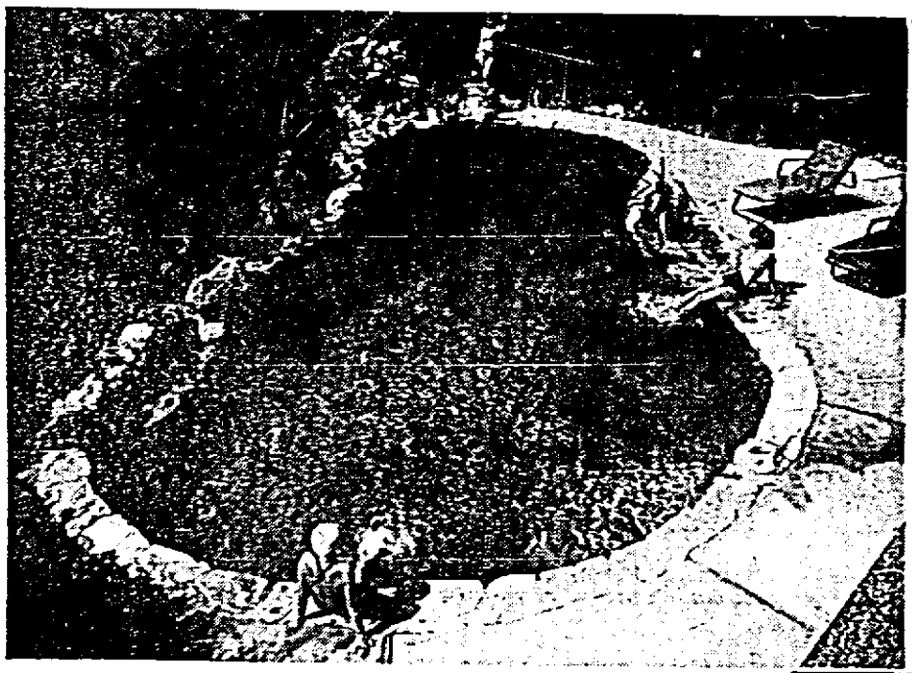

Egg cartons can be used to give jewelry sparkle room.

By Lois Donahue

WITH costume jewelry as lovely and inexpensive as it is today, it doesn't take long to out-jewel a jewel box. The surplus, no matter how carefully placed in any box-like container, soon becomes a mess of tangled necklaces and seemingly mismatched earrings. Egg cartons can solve the problem.

Cut the tops off these cartons and spray paint both sections in your favorite color or colors. The cupped bottoms are made to order for earrings, pins, pendants and similar items. The flat shallow tops are ideal for larger pins, bracelets and necklaces. Use as many as you need for they can be piled compactly in a drawer or attractively stacked on your dresser.

Party Fare With a Foreign Flair

Tostadas with refried beans is a South-of-the-Border dish that adds interest to a party occasion that can be augmented with dress and decorations of Latin nature.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

AS A CHANGE of pace, a party with a "foreign accent" can be great fun. A colorful South-of-the Border fiesta calls for little more than a bright tablecloth, gay paper napkins with a Mexican motif, a sombrero and a few cha cha records. To add to the spirit of the occasion, invite your guests to dress as caballeros and senoritas in bandanas and flouncy skirts. Refreshments can be as elaborate or as simple as you like but a Mexican main dish should be included.

Here are two, Tostadas and Frijoles Rio Grande—neither too spicy nor too hot for American tastes, either one sure to rate bravos for the hostess!

Tostadas

Soak overnight in cold water to cover, 2 cups dry navy beans.

Bring to boil in same water and add ¼ tsp. ginger.

Cook, covered, over low heat for 2 hours or until tender. Try to avoid adding water. When beans are tender you should have so little water in the pan that it appears to have been entirely absorbed. With a potato masher, gently mash the beans so that about half are completely crushed.

Meanwhile, heat in large heavy skillet, ½ cup olive oil or bacon drippings. Add and cook for 5 minutes; 1 onion, chopped fine (about ½ cup) 1 clove garlic, chopped fine.

Turn mashed beans into skillet and season with:

2 tsp. salt

¼ to ½ tsp. dried ground or crushed chili peppers.

¼ tsp. black pepper

Heat and stir for 5 to 10 minutes, until thoroughly hot. Mixture should be almost dry. Taste for seasoning. Add more chili peppers if desired.

In heavy skillet, heat enough oil to fill skillet about ½-inch deep. Fry, one at a time, turning to brown both sides very lightly; 1 pkg. (12¾-oz.) frozen tortillas thawed.

Drain on absorbent paper and keep warm in slow oven, 250 degrees, until all tortillas have been fried. To serve, place a hot tortilla on plate and spoon some of refried beans on half of tortilla.

Sprinkle with finely shredded lettuce and shredded sharp cheese.

Fold tortilla over filling and eat out of hand, just like a hamburger sandwich. If desired, serve with chilled chili sauce. Makes about 15 tostadas.

NOTE: Refried beans are excellent served cold, topped with chili sauce or catsup.

To Latin Americans, beans are a staple, often combined with rice and hominy. This recipe for Frijoles Rio Grande combines beans with split

Gourmet's Delight in Jamaica

TRAVEL POTPOURRI: You don't go to Jamaica without coming away with delightful memories — tropical days and nights kissed with Caribbean tradewinds, the delightful people, and food.

One dish I'll never forget while down there as a guest of Delta Air Lines was baked black crab. Fellow travelers agreed that it was a gourmet's delight, and we vowed that one day we'd come back for more.

We told the chef at Tower Isle Hotel, on the north coast, how we felt about his delicacy, and asked for his recipe. He graciously gave it to us, explaining that it just might be possible to prepare it in the States—if we had the ingredients.

We haven't checked to see if all the ingredients are available but here's how it's made:

Prepare and boil one dozen black crabs for an hour. Separate inside, pick out all bones. Put aside crab meat and stock. Prepare one cup bread crumbs, one cup finely chopped onions, four cloves of garlic. Put to braise with the crab meat in a little butter. Season with hot sauce or "country pepper" (fresh hot red pepper). Fill crab shells with stuffing, sprinkle lightly with bread crumbs and bake for 10 minutes in a low oven.

Serve it hot and you'll see why we raved about it.

YOU WON'T GO far these days without running into something new that motel people have cooked up for your comfort and convenience.

Newest of these, and a sign of today's tense times, is a motel with, of all things, a house psychiatrist!

This head-shrinker comes as a kind of ultimate in special services for the executive crowd at Chicago's newest downtown motel, the Imperial Inn.

He will be part of the facilities, just like room service, the outdoor swimming pool, TV and the traditional pitcher of ice.

The whole idea, according to general manager Edward J. Toole, is that the motel will cater to the new breed of traveling exec in this era of decentralized business. Away from home base, these men-under-pressure — beset by traumas and tensions—simply jingle for the house psychiatrist and unload their troubles on him.

Sounds like an easy way to clear the slate, but how's the barkeeper going to like it?

ON JULY 15, Northwest Orient Airlines will celebrate the 15th anniversary of its inauguration of transpacific scheduled flights to the Orient.

In the beginning, Northwest flew Douglas DC-4s from the United States, via the Great Circle route over the North Pacific to Tokyo, Seoul, Shanghai and Manila — miles and hours shorter than flights via the Central Pacific.

Today, Northwest operates daily DC-8 jet round trips over the North Pacific between the United States and Tokyo, with service beyond to Seoul, Okinawa, Manila and Taipei. Total elapsed time from Seattle-Tacoma, one stop to Tokyo, is 11 hours, 56 minutes.

COL. PEDRO A. CHAPA, a veteran of almost 50 years as a pilot and pioneer in the Mexican aviation industry, has been named president of Mexicana Airlines (CMA). Educated in the United States, Col. Chapa also has a distinguished record in such diverse fields as industry, labor, civil aviation and national transportation in Mexico.

WEEKEND GADABOUTS:

July 4 — Some 75,000 visitors are expected for a picnic on a two-mile-long table under the pepper trees on Ontario's Euclid Ave. The occasion: All States Picnic.

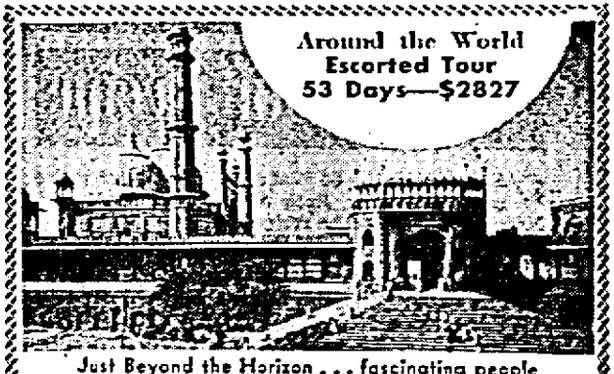

July 4 — Huntington Beach marks the Fourth with a parade of 3,500 bandsmen, marchers, riders and floats which ends at the beach for a stage show, followed by a bathing beauty contest and fireworks.

Sarasota, famous for a circus background, displays two more of its attractions, 1961 Miss Florida, Sherry Grimes (top) and Melody Ann Reeves, a contestant for 1962 title in the city's beauty pageant July 1-7.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"All our friends (except us) seem to be going to Europe. We're running out of bon voyage ideas. Not too expensive, please!"

YOU never miss it until you get up at night in a strange hotel room. But a very handy thing to carry is a little penlight flashlight. Awfully handy on a dark plane at night when you don't want to turn on the overhead and wake everybody.

Anybody driving in Europe will be grateful on the road for those two Thermos bottle kits with room for a picnic lunch.

Since no gas station in Europe checks tires or washes windshields, a tire gauge is good.

Write "Be My Guest, Inc.", 20 W. 43rd St., New York City, for their catalogue. You can buy people an arrival dinner in Rome, have a bottle of perfume delivered to their room in Paris or buy them a session at Elizabeth Arden.

(Haven't used this service myself. But I heard it's being run by friends of mine and I know they are knowledgeable on the overseas stuff.)

You can buy something substantial if you feel generous. They list among gifts a $5,000 Ethiopian safari and a cruise of the Greek islands.

A nice present that costs you nothing: Air France will give you "Round the World Postal Guide." Lists air mail letter and postcard rates for 80 countries served by Air France and T.A.I. Saves your friends plenty time looking up the postal rates. Pocket size. Write Air France, Public Relations, 683 Fifth Ave., New York City, 22, New York.

"... whether it would be a good idea to stay in Madrid—(you say it's cheap) — and drive out of there or take bus tours on short trips in Europe?"

IF YOU mean before late September, Madrid is a hot town. Spain is good on the south and east coasts. But these have been discovered by wealthy Europeans and prices are high in the season.

I think you'd do better around the Swiss - Italian lakes. Lugano and Locarno are wonderful towns. More central for traveling, too.

Portuguese beaches in the far south are great. Country's inexpensive. But you have to travel a long way to get up to central Europe.

"Do you have any 'key' words that a person should learn for traveling say in Japan or Hong Kong? We are going on an Orient tour . . ."

You won't need any language in Hong Kong, Singapore or Manila. Plenty of English.

Japan you can use taxi-resturant language: "Right, left and here" — "migi, hidari and koko." For bathroom you can ask for "benjo" — though I think there are politer shades of words, this works. Food you have to work off menus. Or trust the waitress.

Finding places: Give the driver the phone number of the restaurant, 10-yen coin and say "denwa" — telephone. He phones. Gets the directions and "soko," you're there.

"What do you think of going around Mexico by second-class bus?"

For the adventurous. Mexico has more than a share of bus accidents and bad ones. I ride the first-class ones, but not with much confidence. I wouldn't get on those locals with the chickens. I used to. But I've used up my nerve.

"A good book to read on old Mexico?"

I still think "Life in Mexico" by Mme. Calderon de la Barca (1840) is tops for description and lively reporting. Buy it paperback in Mexico City. And any translation of "The True History of the Conquest of New Spain" by Bernal Diaz, the eye-witness soldier of Cortez. Best of war reporting.

"I've been trying to get a newspaper I read in Rome—the Daily American or something like that?"

The Rome Daily American, 8 Via Danolo, Rome.

"What do you take as presents for people who entertain you in foreign countries?"

I SHOP the 10-cent stores for trick can openers and kitchen gadgets. LP records from late Broadway shows and 45-speed rock'n'roll for kids pack flat and go over big. The new American non-snag, seamless stockings haven't got overseas much yet and are a good item. Western gear like silver belt buckles are good.

Stan Delaplane finds it impossible to answer all of his travel mail. For his intimate tips on Japan, Italy, England, France, Russia, Hawaii, Mexico, Ireland and Spain (10 cents each), send coins and stamped, self-addressed, large envelope to Chronicle Features, 821 Market Street, San Francisco.

Here's Your Beach Car

She says her car is primarily a "fun car" by which she means you can have a lot of fun driving it around in your back yard. However, since it can be licensed for the road in California for $10, you can also use it for marketing (it has a 200-pound luggage capacity), visiting around the neighborhood or quick trips to the beach (if you live close). In fact Mrs. McShane thinks it may have such an appeal to the beach crowd that she may have to install surfboard racks on the sides. Also she can see a use for it by merchants to make light deliveries in.

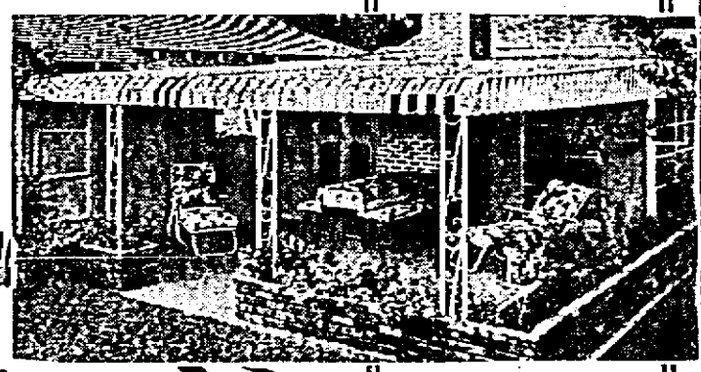

AT PRESENT only one car is available for inspection. It is on display at the first sales agency Mrs. McShane has set up at 2825 E. Spring St.

This one is the Swift T and her manager, Tom Brophy, will show you a trick with it that you can hardly do with any of the new cars this year. If you should happen to want to inspect the underside before you buy you don't have to get down and crawl under. Just ask Brophy and he will flip the whole car over on its side and let you take a close-up look. Makes repairs on the road pretty easy, he says.

A View of the Vatican

By Vera Williams
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

BARRETT McGURN, newspaperman whose beat for 12 years has been the Vatican, gives a behind-the-scenes view of the massive organization that controls the world's largest church and an account of the papacy in terms of the current Pope and his predecessor in "A REPORTER LOOKS AT THE VATICAN" (Coward-McCann, $5).

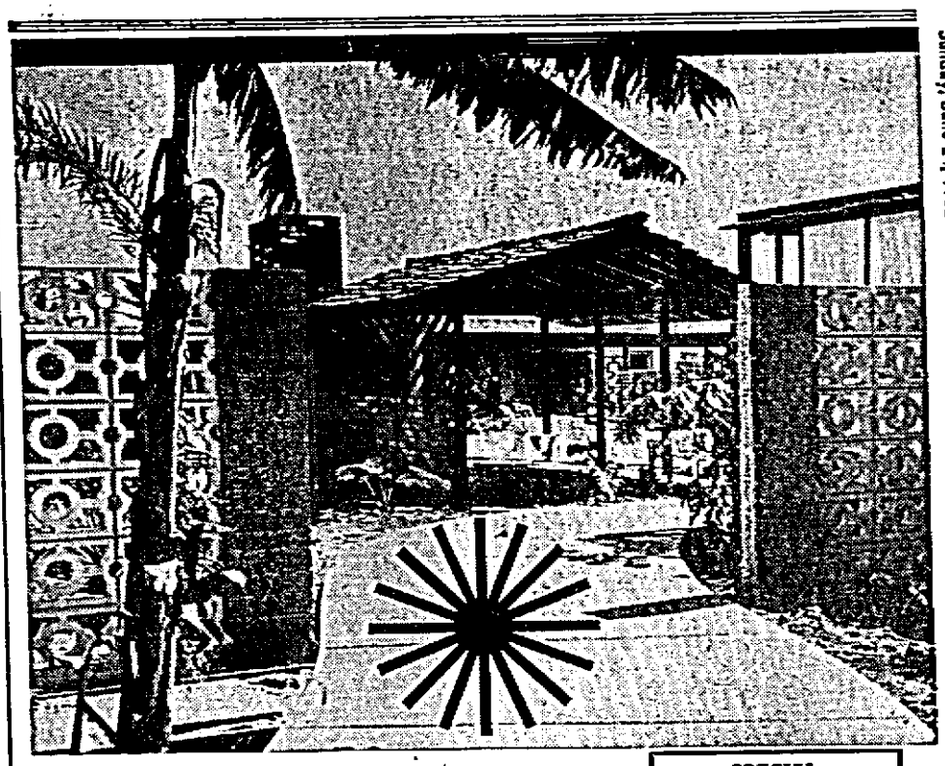

The volume, a Catholic Book Club selection, is certain to be of interest to Catholics and non-Catholics alike.

McGurn's account encompasses every aspect of modern life in the 108-acre area that is the headquarters of the Catholic Church. Included are an explanation of the Vatican's curious status as an independent state, a discussion of its press relations, a study of the papacy in terms of staff and operation, and an investigation into Vatican changes in the past 20 years and the outlook for the future.

The author outlines the role of Americans in Vatican affairs, the machinery of sainthood, and the church's efforts to reconcile dogma with the changing needs of today's 500 million Catholics, touching on such controversial issues as birth control and the 6,000-book Index.

PHILIP ROTH, fast-rising eastern writer whose "Goodbye Columbus" short stories won the National Book Award for distinguished fiction in 1960, has followed with his first full-length novel, a prolific and spectacular work.

"LETTING GO" (Random House, $5.95) is a keen probe into the soul of Gabe Wallach, a rational, poised but indecisive young university instructor, and his relationships with Libby and Paul Herz, cut off by their families and unhappy in their mixed marriage; and Martha Reganhart, a worldly, alluring divorcee, mother of two, who probably should marry Gabe but doesn't.

Roth etches his characters well—some comic, some pathetic, some brutish, some exasperating. The dialogue is often startling. Yet the story of how Gabe progresses to the realization of his spiritual destitution is tragic and comic; humanly warm and bitterly cynical — but never dull.

"THE AMERICAN ESTABLISHMENT" by Richard H. Rovere (Harcourt, Brace & World, $4.95) contends a super-power bloc influences American policy — regardless which party is in power.

Rovere speculates that Dean Rusk, the Republican who is secretary of state during the current Democratic administration, may well be chairman of the Establishment today.

The New York Times editorial policies follow the Establishment's party line faithfully, says Rovere.

The Establishment usually has one man on the presidential ticket of both parties in any election, declares Rovere. If the Establishment wants, he says, it can place one of its own men in any cabinet post.

PETRU DUMITRIU, himself once an "insider" and now an exile, gives a terrifying view of the inside of Communist power in his novel "MEETING AT THE LAST JUDGMENT" (Pantheon, $4.50). The Communist machine here examined is that of Rumania, where Dumitriu once served as director of the State Publishing House.

PENNEY'S DOWNTOWN LONG BEACH

with an expedition to a New Frontier. Catherine the Great was sending ships southward along the coast from the Russian base in Alaska and the rest of California must be occupied before the Russians found a port, and military conquest had gone out of date. A spiritual conquest was less expensive, especially since the Franciscans could own no worldly goods and the missions would be built and furnished through the Jesuits' fund. All they required was military protection.

UPON WINNING independence, the Mexican government confiscated the prosperous mission lands and livestock. As the incumbent Fathers died or were deported to Spain, the buildings were left to the elements. Sun, rain and earthquakes took their toll, and the gringos took California.

In 1862, Abraham Lincoln returned the buildings to the Roman Catholic Church, and restoration was begun.

It was Father Serra's plan that the mission trail be such that a horseman might travel from one to another within a day and have a safe place to spend the night. This was not accomplished within his lifetime, but the groundwork was laid and by the end of the century it was true. The California he knew was a largely pagan territory, where a bodyguard was required to go from one mission to the next. His real goal was the spiritual and cultural rebirth of the Indians. A secular purpose brought the necessary cooperation from the civil authorities, but additional missions would also reach additional Indians. Besides, the long gap between stations hobbled his efforts when soldiers could not be spared for escort. As prefect, he had charge of all the missions then in operation, and they stretched from the Mexican border to San Francisco. Five hundred and fifty miles is a day's travel by automobile. At that time, it took more than two weeks of hard riding, if the trails were passable.

"I am only sorry that I do not know how to fly," he once wrote wistfully.

FROM THE earliest days, the missions were an oasis for tourists. The first was 1774. With about 30 men, Juan Bautista de Anza blazed a trail across the desert from Sonora. When they dragged their dying horses to a mirage calling itself San Gabriel, they knocked on the wall to be sure. The friars rang the mission bells in an excess of joy, and, as the ghostly echoes reverberated through the valley, the exhausted men were willing to believe in the hallucination. So willing that, two years later, De Anza led the first group of colonists to California, and San Gabriel welcomed 240 refugees, conjuring up food enough to support them for more than a month.

With the population explosion by the turn of the century, travelers took their hospitality as a matter of course. The Fathers had no radio or newspapers. Mail was slow and irregular. A guest brought news from outside and an exchange of ideas. The adobe rooms prepared for them were dark and damp, often without heat. The floor was hard-packed earth and the windows merely openings in walls four feet thick. If needed to keep out the cold or rain, a cowhide, stretched thin and greased for translucency, was fastened across them. The best bed was usually another cowhide attached to a frame on four legs. It might not have been like sleeping on a cloud, but consider the rates: the only charge for board and shelter was conversation. And when the visitor left, the gray-robed Fathers sent him off with food for the trek ahead.

David H. Upright (with a Great Dane friend) has been president of Harbor Cities Kennel Club since 1935.

It's a Day for Dogs

By Eleanor Avery Price

TODAY hundreds of canine beauties will be trying to nose out other doggy competitors in the second day of the Harbor Cities Kennel Club show and obedience trial at Municipal Auditorium and grounds.

The Long Beach event is one of the finest of its kind in the nation. Beautiful trophies (displayed flanked by flowers), refreshing Pacific breezes, the integrity of David H. Upright, president of the club (whose motto has always been "good sportsmanship, showmanship, and entertainment"), the slate of fine judges, the hard-working team of Jack and Claire Bradshaw, superintendents, the unsung efforts of the stewards and clerks, and many other factors combine to attract a big entry and thousands of spectators.

Exhibited today are sporting dogs, hounds, and working dogs. Specialties include springer spaniels, weimaraners, bassets, bloodhound, borzoi, dachshunds, Irish wolfhounds, and Rhodesian ridgebacks.

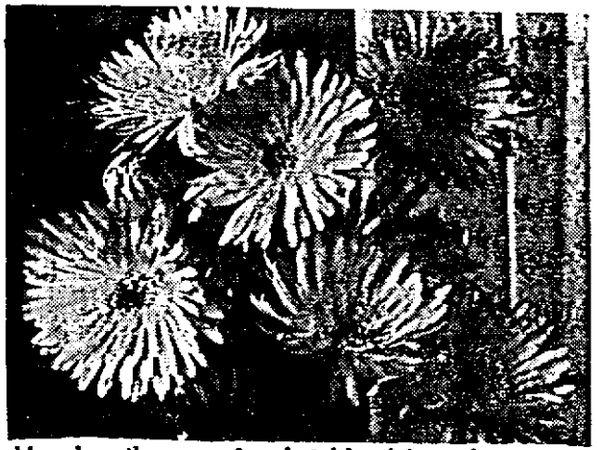

The six group winners from both days will be judged in the finale by Dr. E. S. Montgomery from Natrona Heights, Pa. Best-in-show winner will receive the Louis Upright Memorial Trophy.

SOUTH BAY Kennel Club all-breed, all-age fun match will be held July 1 at Normandale Playground, 224th Street and Normandy Avenue. This is an open club and information on membership may be obtained at the match.

Fuchsias Are the Easy Way

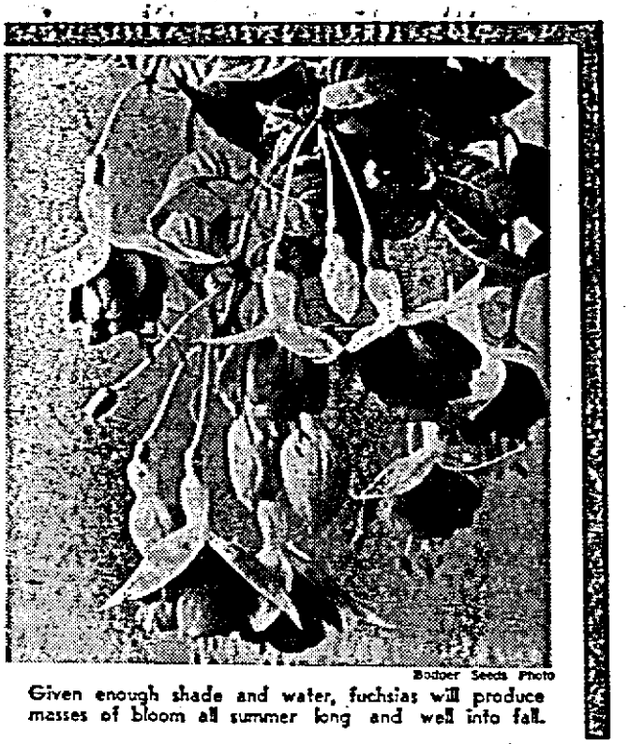

By John Ronson

TENDER beauties of fuchsias in bloom completely belies the ease with which these shrubs grow in California. Given enough shade and water — the two main requirements in our summer-dry state — these rampant shrubs will produce mass after mass of their pendulous blooms through summer and well into fall. And if they are at their best in coastal gardens, it does not mean they won't flourish elsewhere.

One of the most delightful things about fuchsias is their willingness to produce new faces with each new year. Like roses, they seem to have an infinite capacity for change and that change seems always for the better. The following are only a few of the new fuchsias which California Association of Nurserymen members offer this year.

THE VARIETY Uncle Jeff is one you'll like. It's a large red and purple fuchsia that will scramble all over a wall or trellis. And another sturdy new one that will catch your eye is the white and pink Chantilly. Then come Vanity Fair, a lovely pink, Flirtation Waltz, a double pink and white, and Not So Big, a dainty little newcomer with blue and pink coloring. These are all upright shrubs.

Upright or slightly trailing in habit are Fan Dancer, a mixture of blue, pink and red, Blush O Dawn, a blue and white beauty, May Queen, a combination of pink and blue, and Royal Velvet, a striking combination of deep purple and crimson.

Given enough shade and water, fuchsias will produce masses of bloom all summer long and well into fall.

Trailing varieties for pot and container culture include Satan's Folly, a single fuchsia with long blooms of purple and maroon, Squarehead, a miniature single with delicate pink shadings, and Pink Foremost, a large-flowered beauty with varied shades of pink to identify it.

from edge of the drop, then allowed to grow in one direction, which is downward. Runner branches which grow in opposite direction from the embankment should be cut back to force growth into branches hanging down.

There are only about two we could recommend for such adverse growing conditions. One is English or Algerian ivy, the other is the common honeysuckle.

THE VINES should be planted two feet in from edge of the slope, in holes prepared with some organic mulch material mixed with soil. As the vines grow down, a fine mist soil soaker should be placed at the top near the edge of the hillside. A slight moistness in the hillside soil may encourage vine runner branches that are in contact with the soil to root from joints, and to a degree help anchor them and relieve weight pressure from the top.

Berms (mounds of soil with plantings on them), too, should be watered with fine mist soaker on the top of berm. This is even more important if a gardener at planting time doesn't work in some organic material that has a sponge-like quality to add to a coarse sandy soil, or into a dust-like soil that sticks together like gum when wet and hardens like cement when dry, in order to prevent it from packing tight again.

Recently, when discussing slope plantings, a nursery salesman helped a customer get good blooming results from roses growing near a slope planted to ice plant. He diagnosed the roses poor showing due to ice plant roots invasion in the rose bed. After the customer ripped the ice plant four feet down from the top, the roses improved in growth and flowered well.

Fuchsia Meet Set

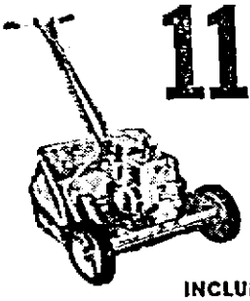

Microscopic illustrations of food action within plants will be shown by C. B. (Doc) Houghton in a lecture before North Long Beach Branch, California National Fuchsia Society, at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at Houghton Park Clubhouse, 6301 Myrtle Ave. Potluck dinner is planned. Visitors are welcome.

Fuchsias and gardenias will be part of a large plant table.

IVALOU JONES
Personable Sincerity

PERHAPS the word which best describes the atmosphere at Jones Dining Room and Cafeteria is sincerity.

During the 30 years that they have owned those two good-looking restaurants, Harold A. Jones and his wife, Ivalou, have been known throughout the community for their personable sincerity and integrity. In addition, these characteristics are reflected by all the personnel at the restaurants—from the waitresses, hostesses, servers and bus boys to the cooks and cashiers.

The pleasant thing about this sincerity is the fact that it is not pretended. The Jones' employes enjoy their work, their surroundings and the people they meet. When they say "Hello" or "how are you feeling?" to the guests, their voices and expressions show unaffected friendliness and sociability.

The food at the Dining Room, 120 E. 5th St., and at the Cafeteria, located next door, is consistently top quality. The Sunday dinners in the Dining Room are among the most generous in town and include all of the following: Chilled juices, soup du jour, salads selected from a lavish tray display; entree, potato, two more vegetables, a vast selection of muffins, rolls and breads, choice of beverage and choice of pie, pastry, parfait, pudding or ice cream for dessert. Among the entrees are chicken fried steak and breaded pork tenderloin, both $2.25; sea food platter (shrimp, scallops, and sea bass), $2.25; 12 ounce cut of prime rib au jus, $3.25; fried chicken, $2.25; Dover sole, $2.25; roast lamb with mint jelly, $2.40, and baked ham, $2.25. —TEDD THOMEY.

RALPH EDWARDS BACKS 'FAMILY-VIEWING' SERIES

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Ralph Edwards, with the enthusiasm of a college cheerleader but the vocal restraint of an announcer introducing the President of the United States, talked about his new show.

His organization is producing a summer series that replaces "The Jack Benny Show" for 14 weeks starting 9:30 p.m. today, channel 2.

"The title of the series, 'Speaking of People,' states the case so beautifully," he said.

"When we came up with the title, we researched it carefully to make sure it had never been used before."

The program, according to Edwards, will be "the feature page of life."

From all corners of the world, it will attempt to bring such individuals as the camel driver who talked with Vice President Lyndon Johnson or the Oscar Awards' gate-crasher.

"We won't try to compete with the news aspect," Edwards said. "What we want to do is go beyond the story and find out why did it happen. Why does a man set out to become a famous gate crasher?"

THE PROGRAMS will be for family viewing. They will deal with "life-and-blood people," not fictitious characters.

Their prime objective will be to entertain, but Edwards also hopes they will "throw off some good along the way."

The host of the program will be Warren Hull, formerly associated with "Strike It Rich."

"I hope," said Edwards, "that when people read about an interesting individual in the newspaper, they will say they'll bet that person will be on 'Speaking of People.'

"Because in our program we will be speaking of people by speaking to people."

Two days after the interview, a staff member of the Ralph Edwards organization called me. The "beautiful" title of the series had been changed.

It no longer was scheduled as "Speaking of People." It was now "Face to Face."

INTERVIEWING RALPH EDWARDS face-to-face, I asked him about "This Is Your Life," the TV program he hosted for 11 years. It was dropped this past season.

"We've had two offers to bring it back," he said. "One offer was for it to come back as a summer replacement show and the other was to return it as a regular season program.

"I am planning on bringing it back, but I no longer will be the master-of-ceremonies."

Edwards has a new program in mind for which he would like to be the host. He's tentatively titled it "This Is the Land."

The basic idea would be to geographically show viewers the different areas of our nation. To enliven the proceedings, Edwards would interview personalities from the different areas, former President Truman in Missouri, for example.

"I would like to make people more aware of our land," he said. "It seems to me that this thing has been neglected."

Edwards, from a financial point of view, doesn't need to host any television program.

His organization is associated with such productions as "Truth or Consequences," "It Could Be You," "About Faces," "Place the Face" and a number of others that have not yet hit the TV air.

But there is a reason why he wants to host the "This Is the Land" projected series and Edwards frankly admits it.

"I don't know if the ham in me would allow me to give up performing," he said.

It was "ham" that wasn't evident in the face-to-face interview.

Hey! Stop the presses!

New announcement just in from the Ralph Edwards organization.

"Title of the series originally scheduled as 'Speaking of People,' which was changed to 'Face to Face,' has now been re-named 'Who in the World.'"

Speaking of people, I'd like to come face to face with the title-changer for this series. What in the world's going on?

Sullivan TVer Enters 15th Year

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI)—The man with the rrreeeely big shoe is going to barge right into his 15th year tonight (Sunday, 8 p. m., channel 2) as the one and only proprietor, master of ceremonies, chief scout, moving spirit and stone-pussed Irishman on what he invariably calls "our show"—only when he pronounces it, it comes out "ahr shoe."

This, of course, is that hardiest of perennials, "The Ed Sullivan Show" (pronounced shoe). Lord Tennyson had a brook. Ed Sullivan has a television show. May they both run on forever. Matter of fact, Tennyson's brook is about the only performing artist that hasn't appeared on the Sullivan show. But it will. Give him time.

Ahr shoe began its run on CBS-TV on Sunday, June 20, 1948. In between that date and tonight have been thousands of star performers and a quest of more than a million miles by Sullivan in search of talent all over the world.

SULLIVAN CAN REMEMBER when snake-oil docs spieled in Liberty Square in Port Chester, N. Y., and when oxen pulled farm wagons on Pearl Street, two blocks from the Sullivan home. He came down from Port Chester, where he was a 12-letter athlete in high school, and went to work as a sports writer on the old "New York Evening Mail."

That was 1920 and he's been around here ever since. You may have known—and forgotten—that he put Jack Benny on radio. It was on March, 29, 1932, that Benny made his radio debut on the Sullivan program.

Sullivan, in gray-blue-checked lounging robe and blue-checked pajamas, was swinging a hammer helping his wife hang pictures his piercing blue eyes a-squint to line them up just right—when the reporter arrived at his Hotel Delmonico apartment.

Well, to what—as the classic question goes—did he attribute his longevity, or, that is, his TV shoe's long and healthy life?

"Well," he said, "sometimes I go to banquets where the master of ceremonies takes so long introducing speakers that the speakers have hardly any time to speak. One of the reasons of ahr shoe being so successful is that I've never abused that. The most difficult thing in the world is to shut up. Our performers get the spotlight right quick. We operate on the principle that if you've gone out and got singularly talented people, for heaven's sake turn 'em on.

"ANOTHER THING is that we've brought stars from all over the world and have taken the shoe all over—Russia, Portugal, Spain, and filmed shoes in 18 countries. Another thing, we all work like dogs.

"If you respect your audience, it respects you. People know darn well that we respect them. If we didn't, we wouldn't work so hard. Everybody helps. Sylvia, my wife, was under a hair-dryer and a lady, a stranger, told her about two kid performers in Jamaica. We flew a scout down there and they were just as good as the lady had said.

"People send us postcards about acts from all over Europe—from such obscure places that you've got to get a map to track 'em down. Elevator operators and cab drivers will give you tips. One cab driver told me about a magician he had seen when he was stationed in Munich, and we got him and he was fine.

"You know who's one of our talent scouts? Carl Sandburg. He used to cover vaudeville in Chicago. He got us the acts of the Australian woodchoppers and the fellow who apparently stitches his fingers. Everybody gets interested in TV—it comes into your home and you get a proprietary feeling about it."

The first Ed Sullivan TV show cost about $375 for talent. A pair of youngster comics, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, got $150. Ruby Goldstein, the boxing referee, got $50. Rodgers and Hammerstein got nothing—they were just friends of Sullivan. Today's Sullivan show is budgeted at $40,000 a week for talent alone.

Pan and Fan Mail

Why can't we have a few TV programs that are interesting and not repeats?

Why can't we have a ball game and a couple of good wrestling matches (live)?

Why can't the whole bunch of repeat programs be thrown in the blue Pacific and a few new ones put on?

No wonder so many people are so disgusted and fed up they don't turn on the TV after 7:30 in the evening.

Mrs. Iline Ores, Long Beach

I don't think the State Fish Commission would approve of your idea to pollute the ocean.

• • • •

Just a note to tell you how much I enjoy your "Tele-Vues" and also want you to know that my mother in Redlands takes your newspaper just because of the TV section.

It has been several years since I saw the movie "Moonlight Sonata" and would like to see it again.

How about your influence to have it shown again?

Lisa Guante, Long Beach

I'll try, but I have considerably less influence with most TV programming managers than I do with your mother.

• • • •

What happened to Lee Aaker of "Rin-Tin-Tin"?

R. Smith, Long Beach

He's just finished roles for Columbia in "Bye Bye Birdie" and Disney in "The Moon Cussers." In neither motion picture does he play second fiddle to a dog.

Judy Garland

CBS-TV will repeat its Judy Garland special on Sept. 19. The network also is negotiating with Judy for another special next spring.

Sullivan, who was barred from rehearsals, will sit in the audience, as his guests, each current or former host of his own TV shows, appear in musical and comedy routines prepared specially for the "big shew."

SIR FRANCIS DRAKE—Terence Morgan stars in an adventure series filmed in England, at 8:30 p.m. on channel 4, as summer replacement for "Car 54." The Spanish hatch ingenious plots to keep Drake on English soil in opener.

TV GUIDE AWARDS—A 45-minute revue and 15 minutes of awards in eight categories make up the color hour at 9 p.m. on channel 4. Dave Garroway is host, with Art Carney and Judy Holliday, and the sketches depicting opinions of, and reactions to, television.

WHO IN THE WORLD . . .—Warren Hull hosts a feature-interview program, at 9:30 p.m. on channel 2, as summer replacement for Jack Benny. Human interest stories about people involved in current events make up the Ralph Edwards-packaged production. A Polish jazz combo, a young mathematical genius and Jack Nicklaus' caddy are on opener.

SHOW OF THE WEEK—Fred (Muldoon) Gwynne steps out of his "Car 54" to star in George M. Cohan's melodramatic farce, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," at 10 p.m. on channel 4. Partner Joe E. Ross (Toody), joins Parker Fennelly, Bruce Gordon, Jayne Meadows and Howard St. John in supporting roles for series' final first run of the season. A $5,000 wager is at stake as mystery writer has 24 hours to write a whodunit play.

everybody loves a warm bath...

...and a professional massage

Now your whole family can enjoy both with a Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath. It's like having a trained masseur at your beck and call 24 hours a day!

JACUZZI WHIRLPOOL BATH

The most effective massage is water massage. Whirlpool water massage offers the advantage of providing penetrating heat combined with the simultaneous action of gentle massage.

Before development of the Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath, hydromassage was available only at clinics, health spas, and expensive private clubs. Never before could your family enjoy professional whirlpool massage in the home bathtub.

Whirlpool is not a new idea

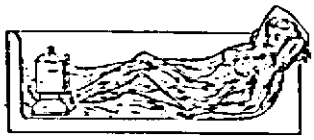

Water massage in various forms has been used for many centuries. Ancient civilizations—the Romans, the Greeks, the Japanese—used water and water baths for relaxation and many human ills. Today, throughout Europe and America, better hospitals provide whirlpool water massage for those who can afford it.

The Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath is used professionally by physicians and therapists—in their own offices and hydrotherapy departments, and many doctors prescribe the Jacuzzi for their out-patients' use at home.

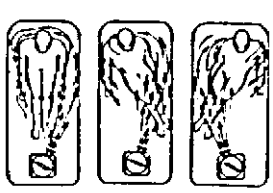

Hydromassage induces relaxation

The Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath causes moving water, charged with thousands of bursting air bubbles, to massage away minor aches and pains. It peps up local blood circulation where applied and induces relaxation—makes you feel good!

Every day, several times a day . . . you and your family can have beneficial water massage in your home bathtub. While you relax comfortably in the tub, the moving water caresses your entire body, like many tiny hands. You get the pleasure of professional massage without leaving the convenience and privacy of your own home.

You relax in the tub of water. Like tiny fingers, the moving water filled with millions of vibratory air bubbles massages every part of your body.

Change the massage pattern to suit yourself. Adjust the unit for vigorous hydromassage or gentle whirlpool bath. Unit maintains water temperature.

SUGGESTIONS FOR USE

Adjust the unit for vigorous hydromassage or gentle whirlpool bath, as you wish.

In the morning, use cooler water and full force of the Jacuzzi to produce a tingling, stimulating massage. It wakes up the blood stream, the brain and the ambition.

In the evening, use warm water and gentle flow of the Jacuzzi to calm jangled nerves, soothe minor aches and pain, and prepare you for deep restful sleep. It brings peaceful relaxation.

You can try it . . . FREE

Many everyday aches and pains may be unnecessary. Hydromassage relaxes and brings temporary relief of minor pains associated with

Chronic arthritis Sprains & bruises Aching back
Nervous tension Muscular soreness

But, you don't have to buy it in order to try the Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath. We want you to try it yourself, in your own home bathtub, FREE. There's no obligation. Call us today for your home trial.

STEVE ALLEN BACK ON TV

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Steve Allen is coming back on television Monday at 10:30 p.m. on channel 5 in a new show he describes as "90 minutes of everything" including an occasional filmland screwball, of which we have a variety.

Steve will do his 90-minute shows five nights a week. The show is being sponsored by Westinghouse and replaces that company's "PM" program which featured Mike Wallace.

A regular nighttime chatter show is nothing new for Steve. The humorist, who also writes books, music and plays the piano, cut his video teeth on the old "Tonight" show, later hosted by Jack Paar.

* * * *

"I'LL DO very much of what I did on the Tonight show," Steve said. "We got out a couple of kinescopes of that show just to see what it was I did do. They were funny so I guess we'll do the same thing.

"It'll be essentially a comedy show with attention paid to good music. We haven't decided yet who'll be with us but I have a couple of writers lined up."

Steve will have guests discuss various subjects, but he objects to a running stream of name talent which just sits around looking pretty.

"We won't use too many guests," he said. "Recently I saw a show which had guests and it was ridiculous. There were about seven important people, and the man didn't have a chance to talk with all of them."

* * * *

ALLEN'S PERSONAL interests include a wide variety of subjects and he often talks on philosophy, religion, literature and politics. He'll expound ideas over the air, something he's wanted to do for years.

"One of the reasons I decided to accept this offer from Westinghouse was because they said to me, 'Would you mind doing something with a little meat on the bones,'" he said. "Boy, was that wonderful to hear!

"Usually I would be saying that to sponsors and things didn't go too well. We see eye to eye that television has come of age. We hope to give people with various tastes something to grab on to."

Steve's show will not appear on a network. He'll be aired over the Westinghouse stations. The videotaped show will be offered to other telecasters, however.

"They're trying to cover the majority of the American people," Steve explained. "You can do that with about 15 stations."

* * * *

STEVE'S PROGRAM originates from the Fine Arts Theater on Vine Street in Hollywood.

"We're going to be working across the street from the Hollywood Ranch Market," Steve said. "It's a good theater for comedy. Groucho Marx and Art Linkletter did their shows from there in the old days.

"And we'll get some of our eccentrics from the market. Either that or we'll do the show from the market and let people shop in the theater."

Don't be surprised if you turn on your television set some night and see Steve interviewing a housewife at the cucumber stand.

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

• See how Pall Mall's famous length of fine tobacco travels and gentles the smoke naturally—makes it mild—but does not filter out that satisfying flavor. Never too strong. Never too weak. Always just right! Enjoy satisfying flavor . . . so friendly to your taste.

Outstanding...and they are Mild!

Compare all three! Smoke "traveled" through fine tobacco tastes best. See the difference! With Pall Mall, you get that famous length of the finest tobaccos money can buy. Pall Mall's famous length travels and gentles the smoke naturally . . . over, under, around and through Pall Mall's fine, mellow tobaccos. Makes it mild . . . but does not filter out that satisfying flavor!

My favorite jokes

by DAVE MADDEN

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dave Madden, born in Canada and reared in Terre Haute, Ind., is rapidly making a name for himself as a big-time comic. Not yet 30, Madden has played the Chi Chi in Palm Springs, Murray Franklin's in Miami Beach, the Tree Club in Dallas, has been signed to open Frank Sinatra's Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe on June 29. Madden, who features satirical one-liners in his comedy routines, majored in radio and show business at the University of Miami where he entertained at fraternity houses, worked his way up to odd jobs in the beach hotels. In 1961 Dave played Ye Little Club in Beverly Hills, Calif., where members of the movie colony caught his act and recommended him for the big-time. Here are some of Madden's funnies:

It's the awful fear of not belonging that's so depressing to the American male—his car doesn't belong to him, his clothes don't belong to him, his house doesn't belong to him.

No man is perfect, except of course the guy your wife could have married.

The most important thing in a relationship between a man and woman is sincerity—whether you mean it or not.

By importing millions of cars we have really solved the traffic problem—in Germany, France, Italy and England.

I understand that Joe Kennedy's favorite saying is: "Another day, another $42,625."

The only advantage I can find to being poor is that it is so inexpensive.

There's a rumor that fallout causes sterility. It got started because a sign on a bomb shelter stated: "Last One In Is An Old Maid."

I'm writing a book that's going to have the market all to itself. It's for people who want to be unpopular, unadjusted, unsuccessful and fat!

The easiest way to find the American Embassy in any South American country is just to follow the mob.

Those East Germans aren't taking any chances—they just tore down a statue of Horace Greeley.

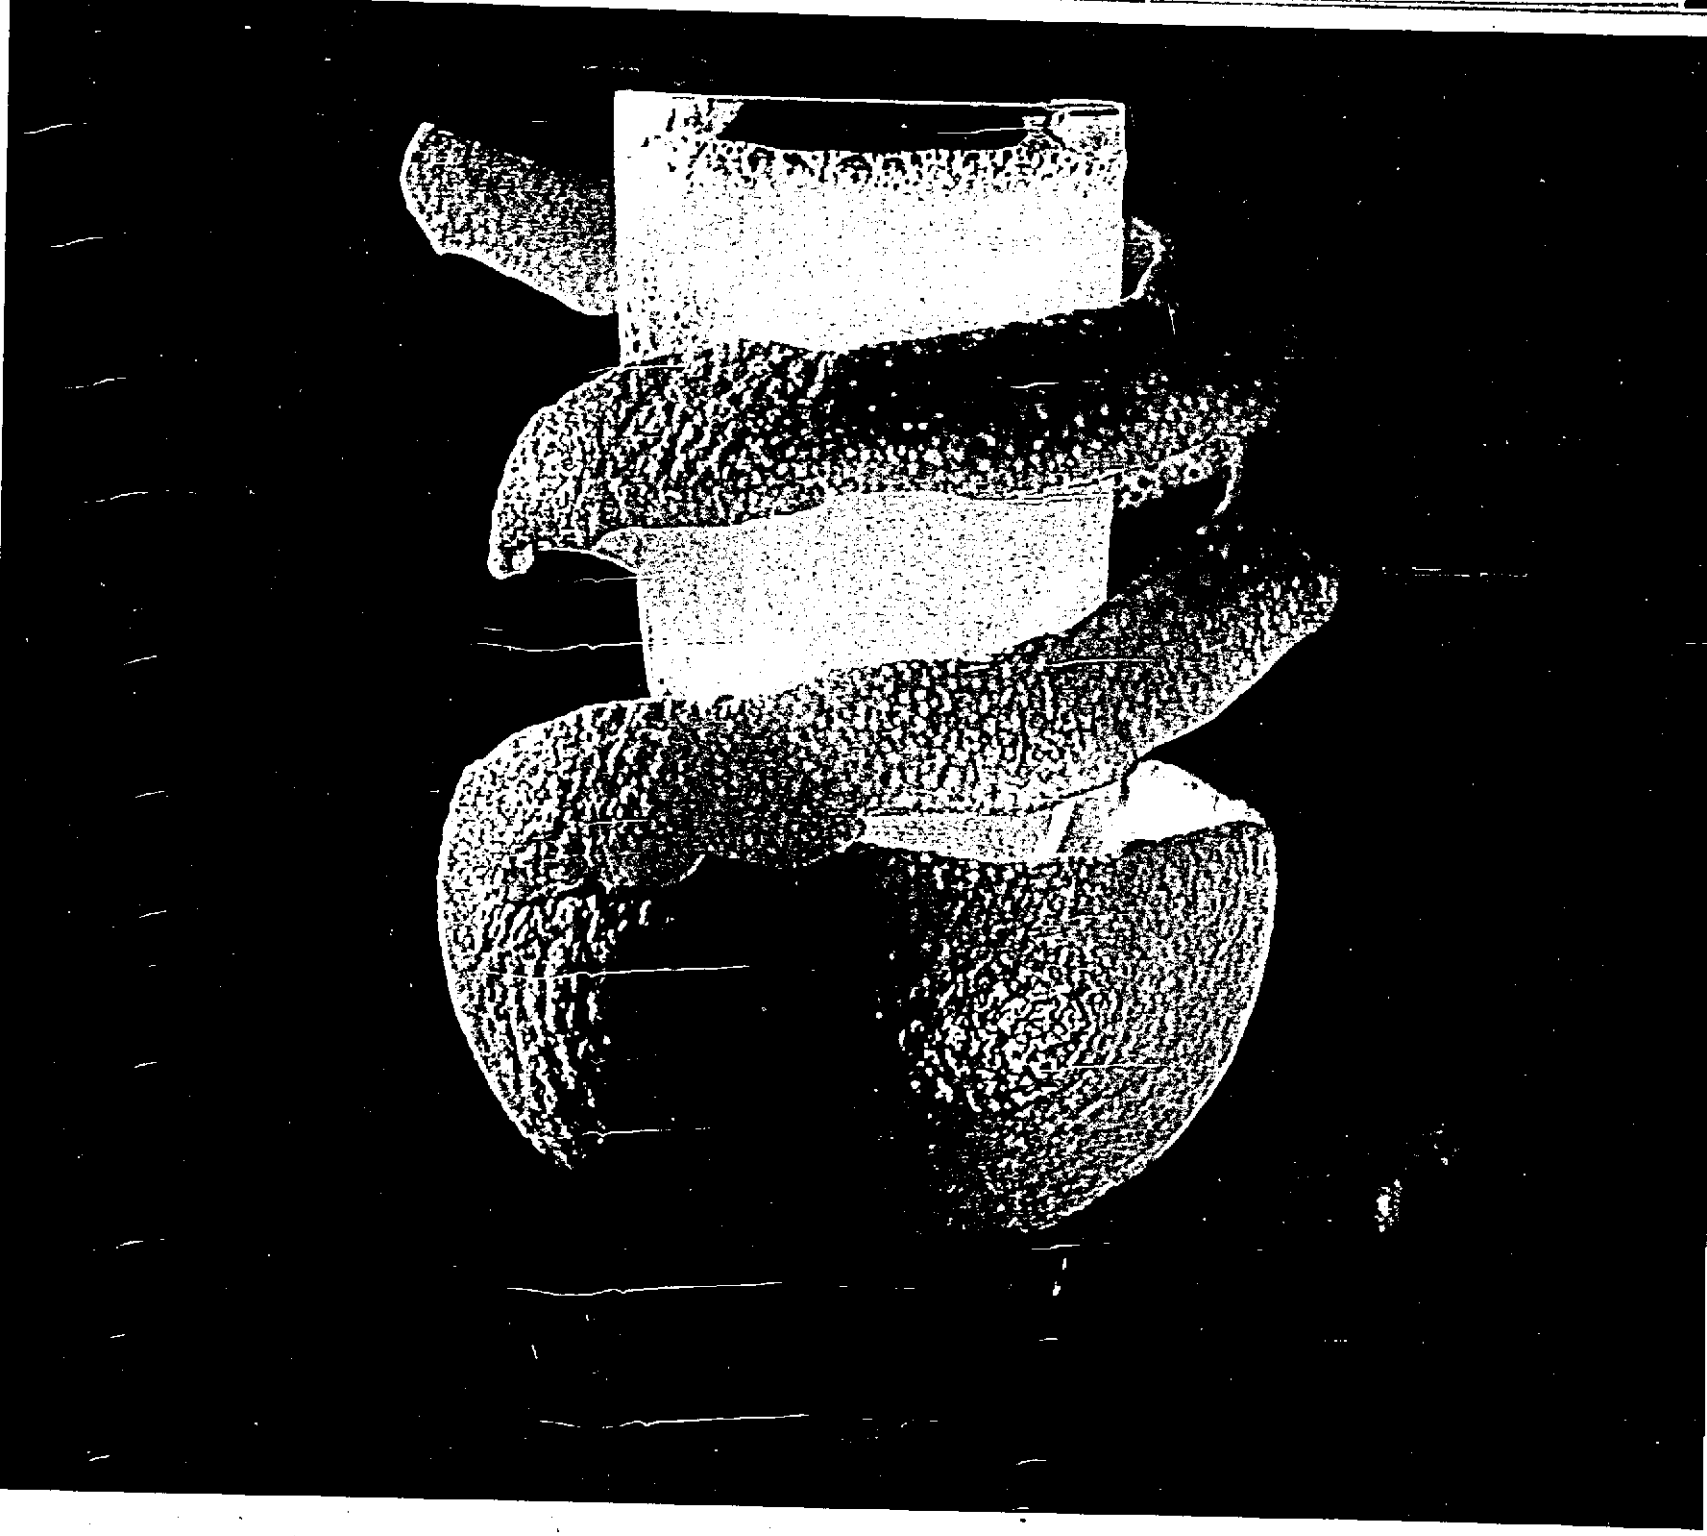

I have an idea which will save the United States government millions of dollars. All we have to do is stop making H-bombs and missiles and give one of each to Japan. Then, three months later we'll be able to buy all we want at one-third the cost!

Space scientists at Cape Canaveral are still trying to whip the most vexing, troublesome problem facing our Astronauts in their journey to outer space—what to do about itchy noses.

I'm impressed by the large number of reservists recently activated. Now it's possible for the Army, at a moment's notice, to throw 150,000 reservists into picking up cigarette butts.

I know a fellow who invented a device which allows you to share your neighbors' bomb shelter—it's called a bullet-proof vest.

And I have an uncle who is also an inventor of sorts. He tried to make a new kind of car and took wheels from a Cadillac, radiator from a Chevy, hub caps from a Ford, tail lights from a Buick. You know what he got? Two years!

THE RICHEST ORANGE FLAVOR IS SKIN DEEP . . . AND THAT'S WHERE TANG GETS ITS NEW NATURAL FLAVOR

Amazing but true: The richest orange flavor is not in the juice, not in the pulp, but locked in the rind of tree-ripened oranges. And that's where TANG gets its new natural flavor.

So,no matter how much you might have liked TANG before, you'll like new Natural Orange Flavor TANG even more.

Not a juice—not a soft drink, TANG is the instant breakfast drink that gives you more vitamin C than fresh or frozen orange juice...plus important vitamin A, too.

For breakfast tomorrow, mix a decanterful of New Natural Orange Flavor TANG tonight. Serve ice cold in the morning.

GET THE ORIGINAL INSTANT BREAKFAST DRINK! TANG is not a juice or a soft-drink mix but a nutritious food drink from General Foods.

WHY HE'S UNDER FIRE:

YOUR

TODAY'S DOCTORS are in trouble. They are under fire by the general public, politicians, and patients.

A large segment of the American people neither trusts nor respects them.

A mounting minority looks upon the contemporary physician as a mercenary more concerned with his pocketbook than his patients. In many areas he is regarded as an ultra-conservative dedicated to perpetuating his financial and social status quo rather than the health of the nation.

A recent PARADE poll reveals that the public image of the average doctor is changing for the worse.

No longer is he considered the devoted father-substitute — wise, understanding, self-sacrificial, blessed with nobility of purpose and loving kindness. He has traded in his horse and buggy for a shining, new high-priced car.

This is cruel, harsh, unfair, but it is a fact reflective of the current climate of opinion. In the PARADE poll, for example, 1200 adults throughout the country were asked: "WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE MEDICAL PROFESSION TODAY?"

Approximately 65 per cent thought doctors were doing a fine job. Another 3 per cent didn't know or wouldn't answer. But 32 per cent—one out of three—said they were disappointed or disillusioned in today's doctor, although not necessarily in their own.

Here is a cross-section of the negative replies which contain most of the public's complaints and charges:

"The good doctors are great. But let's face it—so many of the others should be cutting hair."

"Today the doctor-patient relationship has gone to hell."

"Physicians charge too much."

"Half the surgery they perform nowadays is needless."

"Medical costs are getting so high, only the rich can afford to get sick."

"In my community, physicians drive the biggest cars and live in the biggest houses. Who's paying for it? The public."

"I have a great doctor. He specializes in headaches. For every other pain he sends me to a different doctor."

"Instead of feeling your pulse, so many doctors feel your purse."

"As soon as a doctor finds out you're covered by insurance, he automatically raises the bill 25 per cent."

"Too many doctors are in the referral business. You pay them to refer you to another doctor who operates whether you need it or not."

"Doctors make more money than any other group of professional men in America."

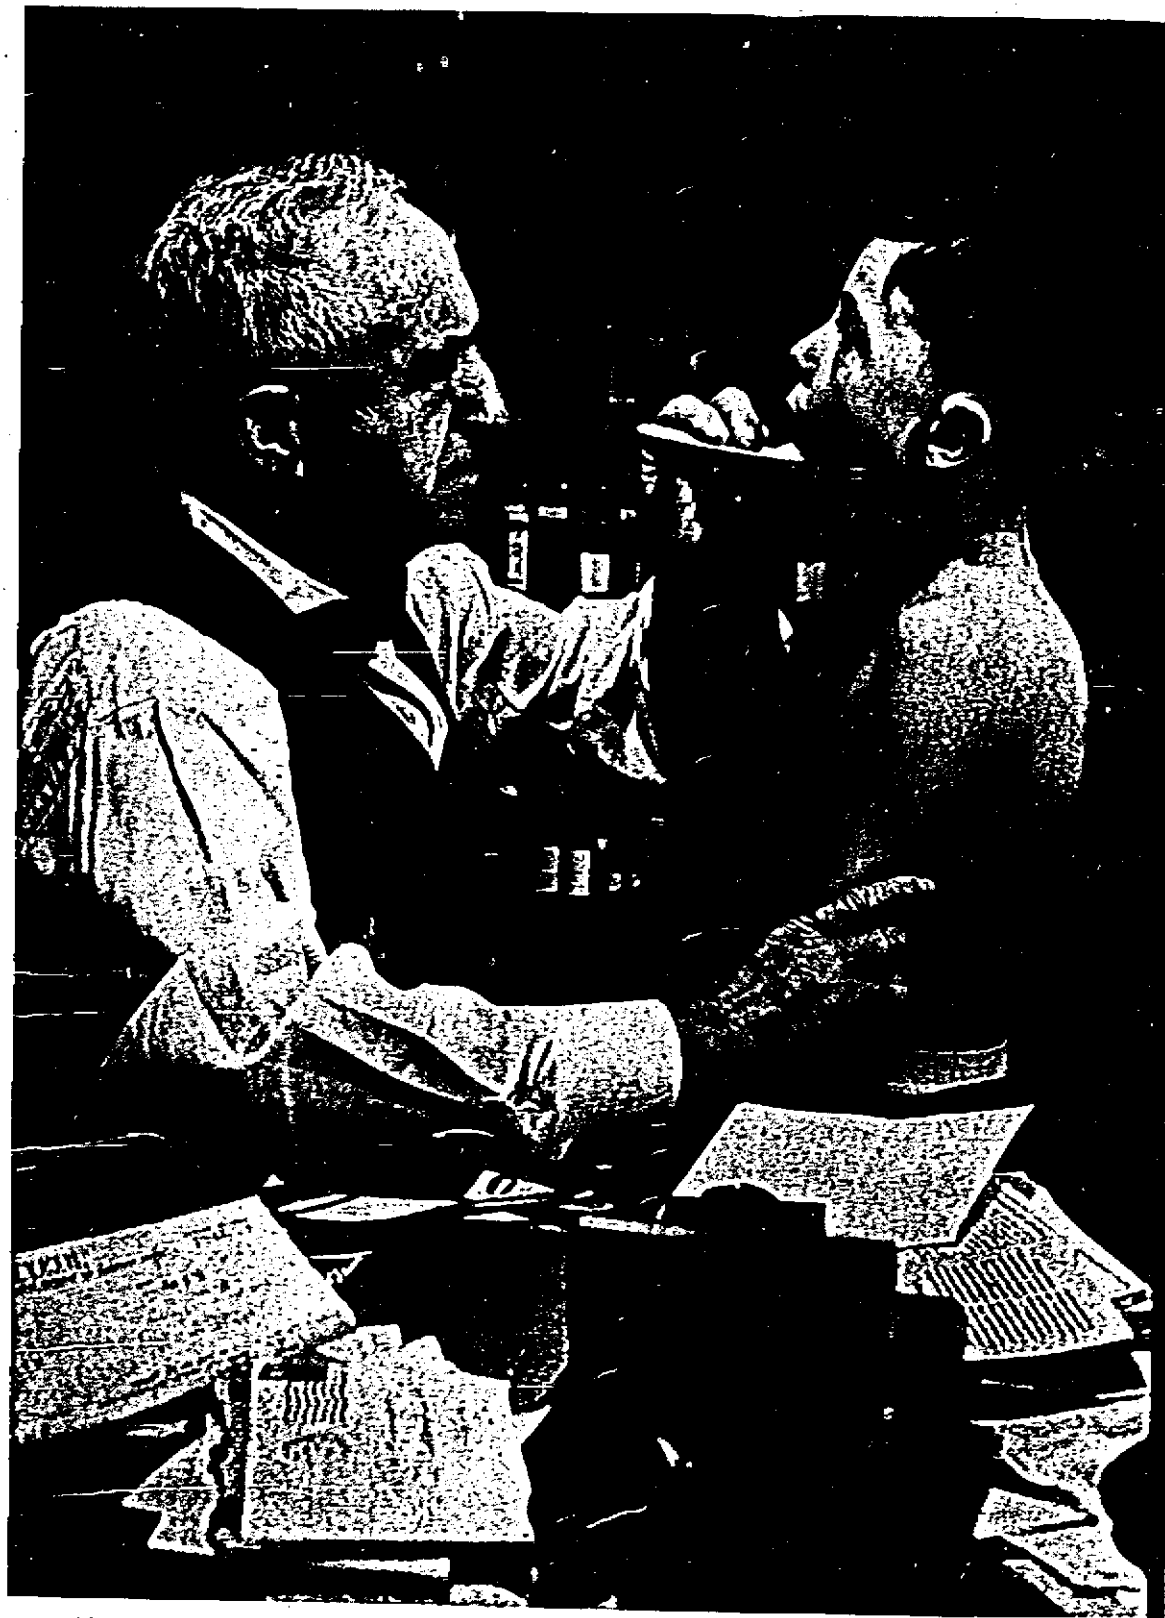

"I can't understand why I should pay $10 for a penicillin shot which costs my doctor 90 cents."

"Most people like myself simply can't afford a yearly physical."

"Doctors don't mind keeping you waiting, but just call them at night or on weekends and watch the way they brush you off."

"Doctors don't identify themselves with the sick any more. They identify themselves with the American Medical Association."

"Some doctors are so exclusive—no house calls, no night calls, no office calls on Wednesday afternoons. They limit their practice to the telephone."

Old-time family doctor (above) was a revered figure in American life. Doctors' image slipped after World War II.

DOCTOR

How true are these charges? Is it true, for instance, that doctors currently earn more money than any other professional group in our society?—a contention which seems to bother so many people.

Physician's Management, the doctor's business journal, says in its May 1962 issue: "A recent survey showed that the average individual net income for general practitioners was approximately $25,000 per year."

Medical Economics, another journal devoted to the physician's financial affairs, reports the typical doctor grossed $40,000 from his practice in 1961, paid $15,000 in professional expenses, $5,000 in taxes, had a net after taxes of $20,000.

Although the Department of Commerce has not yet made a final tabulation from the 1960 census of income by occupation, Edwin Goldfield, chief of statistical reports, claims that from the available figures, physicians and surgeons in the U.S. earn more money than any other professional group.

While this fact may underlie the layman's financial jealousy of the doctor—an important factor in the declining image—the vital question is: Do doctors deserve what they earn?

With the possible exception of the clergy, no group works longer or harder than the medical. No profession requires a more arduous or expensive education. In no profession are the requirements for practice and promotion more stringent. In no other profession—teaching, dentistry, engineering, architecture—are students made to serve internships and then to render services without fees. In what other profession does it take a man at least ten years to establish himself?

Today's honest, capable doctor truly deserves what he earns.

Take next the frequent charge that doctors perform needless surgery out of incompetence or fee-splitting venality. There is a good deal of evidence that in many communities this is true.

In New York City a group of expert doctors and medical professors, headed by Dr. Ray Trussell of Columbia University, studied recent medical records of 250 Teamster Union members and their families.

The Columbia University report released in May, this year, shows that one-fifth of all the hospital admissions were unnecessary, that of 60 hysterectomies (removal of the uterus) performed, at least 20 were needless; of 13 Caesarean sections, only six were necessary. One woman, bothered by a small cyst, was persuaded by a doctor to submit to major surgery during which her completely normal appendix was removed. Worse yet, the doctor would not sign her out of the hospital until she paid $450.

In New York City, too, approximately 1500 doctors—or one in every 12—have been implicated in an insurance claims racket "of conspiring with lawyers to submit false claims, exaggerating medical reports, submitting bills for treatment not administered and listing X-rays that were never taken."

Are the doctors of New York an isolated, exception-group, more greedy and mendacious than the doctors of other states, or do they reflect the moral malaise of our times?

There is a mounting belief by the public that the so-called "few" rotten apples in the doctor barrel are increasing in number, that somewhere along the line the physician's altruistic call to serve the sick has been corrupted by his monetary desire to serve himself. There is a nagging suspicion that perhaps the doctor after all isn't such a great guy, that he's an ordinary man with ordinary character weaknesses, beset by and submitting to the temptations of selfishness and self-aggrandizement like the rest of us. There's a great difference between a father image and a "one-of-us" image. The difference lies in trust and respect. Nowadays physicians are getting less of each.

Probably the major cause in the downgrading of the doctors' public image is the change which has taken place since World War II in the doctor-patient relationship. People resent what they consider the impersonal yet expensive business-like treatment rendered by overworked physicians.

Listen, for example, to a Chicago auditor who volunteered to explain his antagonism towards doctors.

"Two weeks ago," he said, "I went to my doctor, who's always busy. Told him I was feeling lousy. The usual complaints—tired, tense, jittery, couldn't sleep, pains in the chest. I wanted to tell him more, but he said that was enough. He sent me down the hall to have the chest X-rayed. Then I had a blood count and a cholesterol count and a heart tracing and an electrocardiogram and a urine analysis, the whole works.

"When I returned a few days later for the results, I was feeling just as bad as I had if not worse. I still had pains everywhere. But the doctor told me I was in good physical shape, and the nurse told me that my bill was $95.

"I wrote out a check for $95. Then I took the elevator down to the garage. Next to my car, I noticed a brand new 1962 Mercedes. I looked inside, and sure enough, who was the owner? My doctor!"

The average doctor in America works at least 60 hours a week, sees at least 20 patients a day. He is over-worked and understaffed. There is a shortage of doctors in this country. The doctor has little time for the chit-chat or pleasant conversation wanted and needed by the auditor from Chicago. He's got to get down to business if he's going to care for his daily patient load.

The result is that at a time when the stress and strain of living has increased, when people need father-confessors more than ever, when at least 20 per cent of all disease is psychosomatic in origin, the average doctor is compelled by circumstances to give his patients less rather than more personal attention.

What is the solution to the problem? What can doctors do to upgrade their public image? First, they must patrol their own ranks more carefully and ruthlessly remove rather than protect the incompetent and dishonest practitioners. Second, they must educate the public into realizing that diagnostic procedures have now reached the point where the patient's subjective recitation of his symptoms can be shortened. Patients must be told that medicine is changing, that there are too few doctors, that general practice is being avoided by new doctors, that the gap between physician and patient is widening, that group medical practice is replacing solo medical practice, and that the patient must accustom himself to these changes.

In short, doctors have to start telling the public that they "ain't what they used to be"—and couldn't be even if they wanted to. ■

Participants were the center's executive director, Dr. Wolf; Dr. Callow, Associate Chief of General Surgery, New England Center Hospital; Miss Katz, Administrator of the Boston Floating Hospital for Infants and Children; Miss Wheeler, Director of Social Service, New England Center Hospital; Dr. Gibson, Chief of Home Medical Service, Boston Dispensary; and Mr. Galvin, Managing Director of the World Trade Center in New England.

Here are some of the points they made:

People move around more. They don't stay in the same neighborhood as long as they used to, don't develop a stable relationship with one doctor. And increasing specialization means they see less of their regular general practitioner.

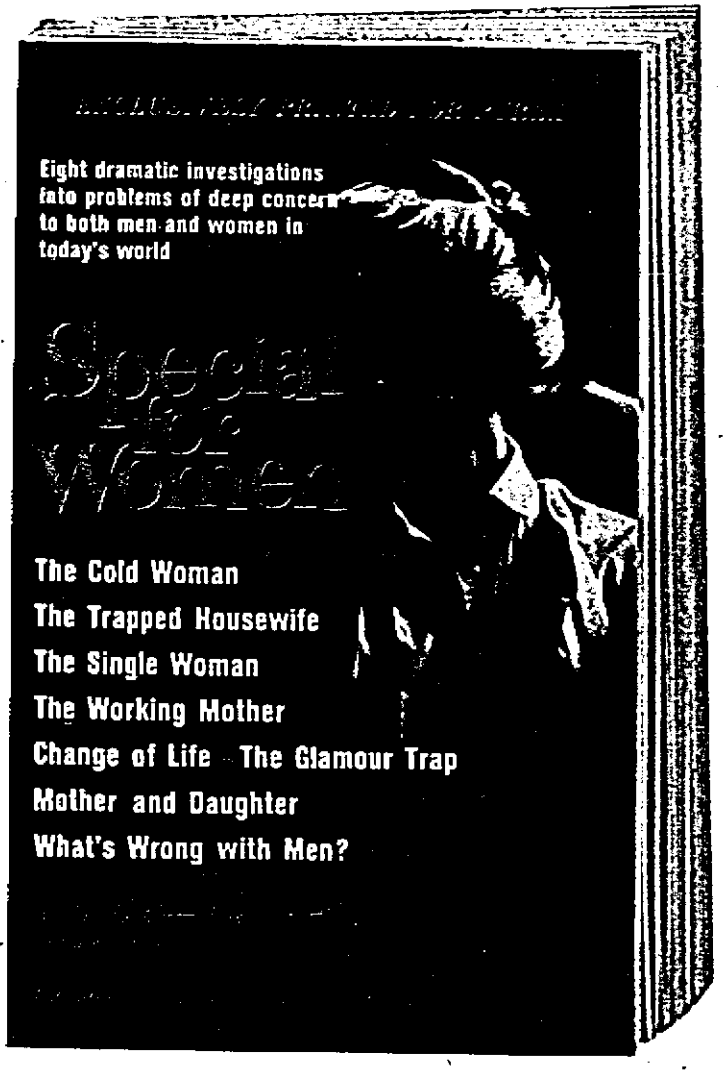

Costs are up. Hospital bills rise seven per cent a year; doctor and drug costs aren't far behind. But the panel pointed out the average patient is perfectly willing to pay for expensive cars, appliances, etc., yet skimp on medical bills.

TV makes doctors too glamorous. "It never rains in surgery on TV," one doctor commented. "Ben Casey has only sunny hours." Result: viewers are baffled and disappointed when their own doctor doesn't match Casey or Dr. Kildare.

Medicine is getting less human. Hospitals are bigger, more crowded, more mechanized. Inevitably, there's less consideration for individual patients. "It's like the difference between the old corner grocery and the modern supermarket," said Galvin. "You lose the warmth, but you gain a range and variety of services you never dreamed of."

Dr. Margaret Mead, noted authority on human relations, says, "Every woman who lives with the loneliness of her own emotional problems will want to read this understanding book."

Horst and wife, former French actress Miriam Bru, look admiringly at their new son Chris. He was born in February.

The screen's fastest rising star

HORST BUCHHOLZ

by LLOYD SHEARER Parade Hollywood correspondent

HOLLYWOOD.

CAN ANY ACTOR born and reared in Hitler's Germany become an international movie star?

The feeling here is that if any leading man can pull it off, that actor will be Horst Buchholz, 23, a lean, brown-eyed, handsome Berliner who has starred in four major Hollywood movies none of which was filmed in Hollywood.

Buchholz made The Magnificent Seven in Mexico. He worked in Fanny in France. He made One, Two, Three in Germany and recently finished Nine Hours to Rama in England and India.

Prejudice dies hard, especially in war-wracked Europe where the Germans are still the most widely and intensely hated people on the continent. This is why Buchholz, popularly termed "The German Jimmy Dean," has been constantly urged to change his name to something more Hollywood—like Hart Brown, Vick Virile, Brick McCarthy or Hugo Maria, a combination of his parents' Christian names. On occasion he has also been advised to deny his German origin or to become a Swiss citizen like Maximilian Schell or at the very least, to use his middle name of Werner instead of Horst.

Early in his film career Buchholz permitted himself to be billed as Hans Buchholz, but he says now, "My name is Horst Buchholz. I was born in Germany. My father was a poor shoemaker in Berlin. He was not a Nazi. I will not change any of the facts in my life to help my career. People say I am just like Jimmy Dean. I am not just like Jimmy Dean. I am just like Horst Buchholz. I am what I am, and I hope people will accept me as an individual and as an actor. I don't represent any group or generation or nationality. I represent myself."

Unlike Jimmy Dean, who was a rude, ill-mannered, selfish, physically dirty young man, sullen and resentful, Buchholz is an extremely likeable actor, well-mannered, smiling and, according to Billy Wilder, who directed him in One, Two, Three, "One of today's two young actors who are not money-mad. The other is Jack Lemmon, and they both have a shining integrity.

"Buchholz, for example," says Wilder, "can now command maybe $200,000 a picture. Yet he is going to do a show on Broadway this fall, something called Andorra—the play is a kind of La Dolce Vita in a small European country—for peanuts. In this day and age that's very admirable. The other thing I like about Horst is his consideration. He's a very good son, he's bought his parents a house in Bad Godesberg, he's given his sister Heidi a job answering his fan mail, he's a wonderful husband and father—he insisted upon flying back to Hollywood when he was making Nine Hours to Rama to see his first-born child—and he helps everybody he can.

"Consideration is a very unusual and revealing trait in an actor," Wilder maintains. "Most actors consider only themselves. Not Buchholz. I remember when we were shooting One, Two, Three in Munich, Horst had a day off and went to lunch with Nelson Gidding, who wrote the Rama screenplay. Gidding told Horst how he wanted him for the part of the man who assassinated Gandhi. Horst got so excited he drank two or three extra vodkas. Then he got into his new Cadillac and smashed it up. He was almost killed and he had to pay a fine of $6,250, but the only thing that worried him on the operating table was that he was delaying the production of One, Two Three. Any other actor would have said, 'For God's sake, Billy, look at my face and tell me the truth. Am I scarred?' Not Horst. He just said, 'Forgive me for the delay, Billy.'"

Miriam Bru, the French actress to whom Buchholz is now married, says, "Horst is very easy to live with. He does not behave like an actor. He behaves like an American."

Mark Robson, who last month finished directing Buchholz in Nine Hours to Rama, believes that the high-cheekboned young actor "is essentially a nice human being who will become one of the world's leading movie stars within the next five years because his intelligence appeals to men, his virile sex to women." Robson says, "There is nothing Germanic or Prussian about Buchholz, nothing in his bearing or his speech that is Teutonic. He has great compassion for others, and I think this compassion was born out of his own suffering and hardships."

War-Torn Childhood

Horst Buchholz was born in Berlin on December 4, 1933, the son of parents who found it so difficult to make ends meet that for the first four years of Horst's life they boarded him with foster parents. After World War II broke out in 1939, Horst began to experience life in a war-torn city. In 1941, after his sister Heidi was born and his father was drafted into the German army, the youngster was evacuated first to East Prussia, then to Saxony, and finally to Czechoslovakia.

"What I learned from the war," says Buchholz, "was to judge people. I remember in Czechoslovakia I had no idea of how the Czechs felt about us. After all we were just children. But when the Russians began approaching in 1945, the Hitler Youth officials decided to ship us back to Germany. The Czechs mined some of the railroad beds. They used what we call 'telemina,' those flat mines that blow up anything. Well, there were about a thousand German kids on the train, and when the mine exploded it got the last two cars.

He became her 'awful wedded husband'

Scavenging for Survival

"After that we had to walk into Germany. To survive I stole potatoes from the fields and cooked them over fires. I begged from peasants. No one had anything. One farmer would share what he had. Another would run you off his land. One woman would feed you. Another would throw rocks and put the dogs on you. To survive, I developed self-reliance. When I finally made it back to Berlin I found my mother. She told me my father was in a prisoner of war camp in France. At 11, I became the man of the house."

It sounds incredible but Horst Buchholz was the sole support of his mother and sister from 1945 to 1948 when his father was finally released. The boy worked in the East German rhubarb fields. He exchanged his mother's curtains for food. The schools weren't open, but he picked up English from the American soldiers.

When he was 13 a friend of his told him that someone was staging a musical at the Metropole Theatre in Berlin and was hiring children as extras for 75 cents a day. Horst applied for a job. "That's how I got started in show business," he confesses. By the time young Buchholz was 15 he was going to school, working in films dubbing children's voices, acting in radio, and dancing in the theatre. At 17 he left home to earn more money in West Germany. Each weekend he crossed back into East Berlin, gave his parents the lion's share of his earnings. His first big acting break came when he was cast in Jean-Paul Sartre's The Dead Without Coffins. He was then signed for a role in Die Halbstarken, re-titled in the U.S. Teenage Wolf Pack.

Immediately the bobby soxers cottoned to him, insisted he was Germany's version of Jimmy Dean, began inundating him with fan mail. Because he was popular at the box office and cheap to hire ($5,000 to $10,000 per film) Buchholz worked steadily all over Europe.

In Italy four years ago he filmed Tolstoy's Resurrection with a French actress, Miriam Bru, and fell in love with her while they locationed on the Island of Ischia. He had to report to London for Tiger Bay with Hayley Mills immediately after Resurrection, "so I never had time to tell Miriam how I really felt about her. One day in London I got lonely and phoned her in Rome. I asked her to come to England."

Says Miriam, "When I arrived in London, Horst said to me, 'I'm going to marry you on Sunday.' I thought he was fooling but he was not."

Wacky Wedding

The wedding, which took place at Caxton Hall, was comedic. Halfway in the ceremony the justice said, "Repeat after me: 'I, Miriam, take Horst Werner to be my lawful wedded husband.'"

The bride repeated, "I, Miriam, take Horst Werner to be my awful wedded husband."

The slip in pronunciation broke Buchholz up, and it was minutes before the ceremony could continue. Buchholz still kids Miriam about the error.

Ever since her marriage to Buchholz, Miriam has abandoned her acting career. "Who needs it," she asks, "when one has a husband like Horst?"

Because of his outstanding performance as Marius opposite Leslie Caron in Fanny, young Buchholz is now in demand by virtually every independent producer and major film studio in Hollywood. Billy Wilder has a multiple-picture deal with Horst. Josh Logan has him signed for two more pictures. Twentieth Century-Fox has offered him a seven-year contract on his own terms. At 28 Buchholz is in the enviable position of calling his own shots.

"You know," he said to me in London recently, "I am beginning to get rich, and it frightens me. I know I can handle poverty. But money, that's much more difficult."

In addition to boundless talent, Horst Buchholz possesses genuine humility. In a motion picture star, that's almost impossible to find. ■

Success in One, Two, Three proved Buchholz could do comedy as well as drama.

THE BIG EAR

It will pick up sounds and pictures from space satellites

Huge 177-foot "ear" waits at Andover, Maine, ready to pick up signals from first communications satellite.

ANDOVER, MAINE.

IN A MATTER OF DAYS, the world's first communications satellite—Telstar—will soar into orbit. Shortly thereafter, if all goes well, it will emit its first infant peeps—tiny electronic signals, undetectable by ordinary scientific equipment.

Waiting to pluck those signals from space and transform them into sounds and television pictures, beamed into every home, will be the huge horn-shaped object pictured above, hidden deep in the wooded hills near this Maine town. "Earth Station, for Communicating by Satellites," says the sign at the entrance. Scientists working on the project call it "The World's Biggest Ear."

The Ear will make it possible for the first time to transmit live television across the ocean. Broadcasts will be aimed at the Telstar in the sky, which will receive them and aim them back down to the Ear. Scheduled to star in the first transatlantic telecast are President Kennedy and Britain's Queen Elizabeth, who'll exchange greetings. By the end of the year daily transmission should be under way between here and Goonhilly Downs, Cornwall, where the British are building their own earth station.

ESSENTIALLY EARTH STATION, MAINE, is a gigantic electronic ear trumpet, made of aluminum and steel, built to the precision of the finest watches and weighing 340 tons. It can pick up an incredibly minute signal from the 2-watt satellite transmitter 3000 miles out in space, multiply it one billion times, and send it out across the nation—as a telephone call, TV program, or news picture.

The need for such a device is becoming urgent. By 1980 we'll make 100 million international phone calls a year, 20 times as many as now. There'll be new demands for world-wide television, world-wide news coverage for people who want to see events and places "live."

Says Irwin Welber, 38-year-old director of operations at Earth Station, "I can easily foresee international television on a round-the-clock basis within eight years—and a vast increase in country-to-country phone calls. To do that, though, we'll need some 60 Telstars continually orbiting the earth at the equator and the poles."

WELBER AND HIS ASSOCIATES here are all members of American Telephone and Telegraph's Bell Laboratories. They're wizards at communications in space. On earth, though, they have the same problems as everyone else. "We can hear a star squeak 200 million light years away," one scientist told me, "but until recently, to call our wives, we had to ring up Mr. Aliston Meisner's general store in Andover. That's where the town switchboard is."

The work here is only a start. Already Germany, Italy and France plan earth stations. Newer, more sophisticated Telstars will someday pepper the sky. They'll bring the world into your home. They might even save your life.

That could happen if a missile ever ran out of control. A runaway missile headed, say, for the U.S. or the Soviet Union could start an accidental war. To prevent such a catastrophe, PARADE editor Jess Gorkin was the first to propose a 24-hour direct telephone line between the White House and the Kremlin (PARADE, March 20, 1960). A foolproof means of such direct communication would be to bounce the signal off a satellite. If that emergency ever arises, we'll all be grateful for the Telstar.

OPEN TO DISCUSSION

should you KISS IN

Duchess of Windsor seems pleased with peck on cheek as Duke returns from trip to Europe. Britain's Lady Astor, also American born, takes opposite view on public kissing. She abhors it.

by ROSALIND MASSOW

When Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy came home from Greece last year and was greeted by her husband at the airport, the pair kissed a warm hello. Prodded by cameramen covering her arrival, Mrs. Kennedy kissed him again. Flashbulbs popped, spectators cheered and the embarrassed President, like a little boy who didn't want to be seen being kissed, mumbled to his driver, "Come on, come on, let's go."

While there are undoubtedly many Americans who would take a dim view of the President greeting his lovely wife with a handshake, kissing in public has long been a source of world-wide controversy. Laws have been written about it, people have been arrested for doing it, cars have been wrecked over it and suburban traffic has been jammed by it.

In many countries, kissing in public is against the law. Italian police, who look the other way when ladies squeal from a flirtatious pinch, don't hesitate to incarcerate public kissers. In Rovigo, Italy, last year a couple kissing on a dance floor were arrested and fined $16 each.

Special police squads to halt kissing are responsible for a Supreme Court ruling in Italy: that it's a crime to kiss in an auto, even if the windows are frosted and no one can see inside. Three months to three years in jail are the penalties that could be imposed for public kissing, a long time to think back on fleeting pleasures, and yet Italian girls certainly don't look neglected.

In Cairo, Colombo, Bangkok, most parts of Asia and in South America kissing al fresco, where people can see, is considered immoral. Paris, known all over the world as an open city for lovers, made a mild show of primness in 1953. The famed Café de la Paix handed out cards to customers saying it would be appreciated if they would please repress their emotions and not display any signs of affection over their cognacs.

It's Contagious

Paradoxically enough, Communist countries, which are not noted for their high political principles, are very prudish when it comes to public kissing. In the Soviet Union, for instance, where public displays of emotion are considered "Nyet Kulturni," the younger element has become park-bench bold. Kissing has become so prevalent that anti-kiss propaganda has been attached to benches in most Komsomol (Communist Youth) parks. One placard reads: "Citizens, take care! Influenza is an infectious disease. It is transmitted by kissing and hand holding." Another warns: "Heart attacks, tuberculosis, cancer and other illnesses are transmitted by kissing." But the young people, with the extreme self-confidence of their age, find that they have been able to resist all diseases except love, which is also communicable—and so now kissing in public is at least tolerated.

In the U.S. political campaigners have made ample use of the kiss in getting out the vote. While kissing babies is the accepted formula for attracting mother's vote, it has less publicity value than kissing local beauty queens on the tip of the nose. At least these pictures get into the paper.

A veteran political reporter in Washington, who has seen much of this type of campaign, reports that kissing for votes belongs to the old-style flamboyant politician. The new breed of office-seeker shies away from such corny displays. Sen. Kenneth Keating, of

PUBLIC?

Hello kiss at airport between JFK and Jackie on her arrival home from Greece embarrassed him.

N.Y., an up-dated type among office-holders, has his own thoughts on kissing.

"Historically there is some question as to when the practice of political kissing actually began," says Keating, "but there is no doubt that this form of lip service to one's party is on its way out. Like the whistle stop harangue or the torchlight parade, it appears to be succumbing to television, which more and more obliges the candidate to demonstrate the coldness of his logic rather than the warmth of his heart."

To find out how some other people feel about kissing in public, PARADE conducted an informal canvass of some of our more prominent Americans in the fields of arts and science.

Olivia de Havilland, actress and writer, married to a Frenchman, Pierre Gallant, thinks kissing's grand, anywhere, anyplace and anytime.

"I believe in kissing my husband anytime I am moved to do so, but of course my husband isn't President of the U.S.," declares Olivia. "I suppose my husband is a little embarrassed if I give him an affectionate kiss in the street or at a party, but it's a certain kind of embarrassment—a pleasurable kind.

The Surprising English

"I don't know why," Olivia adds, "but everybody thinks the French are the great kissers. I have found they are not. The English may not be aware of it, but a visitor to England is more shocked at the kind of thing that goes on in Hyde Park than what he may see under a street light in Paris."

Writer Abe Burrows, whose Broadway play, How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, won him a coveted Pulitzer Prize this year, is for kissing in public—in a limited way.

"I can't understand people who are annoyed by it —and yet I don't think people who really want to kiss would do it in public. I think it's all right if a guy kisses his wife at the airport, but if a kiss is full of real emotion you don't want everybody to know about it. Teenagers kiss in public because they want to show everybody how grown up they are."

Under the microscope of the sociologist, kissing becomes unbelievably complex. Dr. Robert O. Blood, a professor of sociology at the University of Michigan and author of the current book Marriage, says kissing attitudes are a matter of upbringing.

"It's perfectly acceptable in American society for a wife to kiss her husband after a long absence," states Dr. Blood, "even though it may cause the husband some embarrassment.

"In general if it is kept within the bounds of propriety, it's all right, but the decision whether to kiss or not to kiss in public is related to how people are brought up. While we may be very modern in other respects, our society has not changed enough to allow intimate behavior in public without offending social attitudes."

Some people who might otherwise be disposed to show affectionate regard in public have learned not to do so, through bitter experience. In San Antonio there's one fellow and his wife who won't go around kissing each other in their moving car anymore. They both landed in the hospital with bruises and lacerations when she kissed him while he was making a turn. He missed the curve, but made it to the hospital.

If Joseph R. Callahan's wife of six months thinks he's not demonstrative enough on meeting her at airports, bus terminals or even fresh out of the subway, there's a reason. Callahan, who is in charge of the U.S. Passport Office in New York, attributes his anti-kiss attitude to a childhood experience.

"The reason I don't kiss in public," he reports, "is that when I was a little boy of 10, I went to kiss my aunt Maggie McKenna goodbye. She was off for a vacation, and something happened. Either she moved too quickly or I moved too quickly, but I broke her glasses, and she never forgave me. She kept referring to me as her idiot nephew for years after because I ruined her vacation. I guess I've had a block on kissing in public ever since."

It Began at the Well

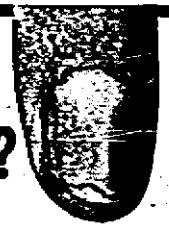

The public kiss is no invention of modern times. The first recorded Biblical kiss took place between Jacob and Rachel at the well. Public kissing in ancient Greece was a capital crime. Outdoor osculation was a favorite pastime of the British until Oliver Cromwell's Puritan regime forced it indoors and kissing went underground.

An 18th century kisser had a field day, for it was good manners to kiss every lady present when he entered a room. Historians report that only a century ago furniture was often equipped with a "kissing bell." Ladies who were kissed simply placed their heads in the bell to protect their coiffures.

Today in many suburban communities, the kiss has been called most detrimental to the free flow of traffic. Suburban railroad terminals and bus depots are one big bussing station. One New York commuter can't stand watching the daily ritual of puckering up before train time. "It's all so phony," he reports. "I live in Westchester, and I see these guys giving their wives a kiss before the long journey to New York, all of 30 minutes. It's ridiculous, it doesn't mean a thing, because many of them later in the day call their wives and tell them they have to work—yeah—on their blonde secretaries."

The kiss has also come under the close scrutiny of Dr. John Ellis Large, vicar of St. Boniface Church in Sarasota, Fla., a long time observer of human behavior (he's just published a book, The Small Needle of Doctor Large). "It is not good taste to kiss in public," says Dr. Large, "if such bussing is an aspect of courting—for the art of wooing should be conducted as privately as the art of love itself. Sex is cheapened when its techniques are displayed in public. It is permissible to kiss your spouse in public, unless this kissing bespeaks a show of affection which is not present in the heart—but rather meant to affect bystanders."

What's the future of kissing in public? Will Americans become freer in their show of emotions or will the space age with its unlimited possibilities limit romance on the street level? A recent Space Strategy Conference of European and American experts in England came up with this unhappy ending: when people are ready to be orbited off to other planets, the goodbye kiss will be discouraged. Space experts declare it's too dangerous to raise emotional temperatures before flight time. ■

What will happen to your job?

by JACK ANDERSON Parade Washington correspondent

Dwight S. Sargent: The problem for elder persons is that companies have rules that prevent them from hiring anyone over 50.

Mrs. Betty Sexton: I'm a college grad out of the labor market 14 years. I want to work again but I have to be retrained.

Gary E. Martin: Don't you feel a lot of relocating, of good citizens leaving homes, is having a bad effect on the community?

WASHINGTON, D.C.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN to your job in the 1960s?

Suppose you are a machinist displaced by a shutdown, a college graduate trained for an overcrowded field, a mother trying to get back in the labor market after rearing her children, an unskilled teenager who has dropped out of school. Can you find a job?

Or you may be a construction worker whose job depends upon the building boom, a clerk unaccustomed to electronic office machinery, a family doctor trying to keep up with the latest medical discoveries, a New England factory worker wondering whether to go West. What future does your job hold?

Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg met recently with a group of men and women (see photos, left) facing such questions. During the present decade, he said, challenging new fields will open up while some other jobs will be less in demand.

"Earlier in this century," explains Goldberg, "change occurred at a slower rate. Take the blacksmith, once a vital occupation in our society. The need for blacksmiths dropped steadily as automobiles replaced horses. This change was stretched over a period of a working lifetime. But change today is entirely different; it occurs within a few years."

How will your job be affected as the nation moves into the space age? Here are the Secretary's views and predictions:

Overall job outlook: "During the 1960s we expect the number of workers in the U. S. to increase by 20 per cent. Job opportunities will grow at varying rates. Real estate and construction work will grow the fastest, with employment gains of 30 per cent.

"White-collar jobs and service jobs will also increase somewhat faster than average. A slower growth will occur in skilled and semi-skilled jobs. Unskilled openings will remain the same, and farm employment will decline."

Real estate and construction: "Millions of new families in the '60s will push up the demand for more homes, schools, highways, stores, and facilities of all kinds. Construction will boom; real estate activities will flourish; finance insurance will benefit."

Wholesale and retail trade: "Here is another fast-growing industry, which should bring employment increases of 25 to 29 per cent during the decade. Most of the job prospects are in retail stores but opportunities are also growing for clerical workers, truck drivers, delivery men, porters, packagers, and repairmen of various kinds."

Government: "A similar increase is predicted in government jobs. Most of them will be in state and local government as our people demand more services such as public education, health, welfare, recreation."

Labor Secretary Goldberg, right, assures Robert Corbough he can get job. Janet Morrissey looks on.

Manufacturing: "Our largest employer, the manufacturing industry, will provide a 20 per cent employment increase during the 1960s—a job growth equal to the national average. But this industry will produce goods for American consumers at a faster rate than the expected job increase. The fact is, our manufacturing plants are producing more with fewer workers."

Services: "The fact that we no longer need as many people to produce goods has brought about a phenomenal growth of the service industry. This trend will continue in the next decade and will offer many opportunities for such workers as waiters, cooks, barbers, beauticians, policemen, firemen, practical nurses, FBI agents."

Professional and technical: "For all our professional and technical occupations, we can expect over 10 years a growth rate about twice that of the labor force as a whole."

Clerical: "Clerical occupations have been increasing at a phenomenal rate of over 30 per cent during the 1950s. A further increase of 26 per cent is expected in the 1960s. So hundreds of thousands of these jobs will open in the next 10 years."

Self-employed: "The number of self-employed proprietors will rise only moderately. In the retail field, for instance, supermarkets are replacing the corner grocery store and the meat market."

Transportation and communications: "Employment opportunities in these fields will move up at a much slower pace than in most others. In transportation, most of the decline has been in the railroad industry. But bus, airline, and ship transportation will also offer fewer jobs. Openings in communications will level off because of automation. A good example is the telephone industry. The use of the dial system has increased productivity. As a result, fewer workers are needed for each individual operation although the total number of workers has increased because of greatly expanded phone facilities."

Agriculture: "While agriculture will continue to offer opportunities, the decrease in the number of farms and the increase of young people in farm communities make it obvious that many farm young people will by necessity have to turn to other fields of work."

How will your job change during the '60s? It probably will become more specialized and demand higher education.

"Today's job applicant makes the least headway," warns Secretary Goldberg, "when he tells the company personnel manager, 'I can do anything.' This is true not only for white-collar workers but for the majority of jobs in our complex industrial economy.

"Even in highly specialized work, further specialization is required. The young person seeking a professional job should remember, too, that often applicants are not accepted unless their school grades are high."

You can also expect your job to become more automated. In offices, electronic computers are taking over more of the paperwork. Those who handle routine volume work can expect to find their jobs changed or abolished. To put it another way, the fastest-growing clerical occupation is office machine operator.

Automation will also bring changes in blue-collar work. A recent technological breakthrough, for instance, may affect the jobs of more than 1 million machine workers in this country. Engineers can now translate part dimensions, tolerances, and other data into numbers, then feed them into electronic devices which translate the numbers into actions, such as cutting or drilling.

"Employers today are looking for workers who have the potential to learn more and to learn quickly the new skills and techniques opening every day in their businesses and industries," says Goldberg. "The substitution of mechanical equipment for manual labor will continue during the '60s. We are the greatest automated technological country in the world. If we hadn't improved our technology, we would still have the same low labor standards as people in other countries."

What will happen to your job may depend, too, upon where you work. For the job opportunities won't be spread evenly. Employment growth in California, Florida, the Rocky Mountains, and the Southwest has been twice the national average. In the Southeast, growth has been slightly slower. Most sluggish areas: New England, the Middle Atlantic and East North Central states. Yet these three areas still provide 60 per cent of all manufacturing jobs, half the service, trade and transportation jobs, 40 per cent of those in construction and government.

But Goldberg warns: "Workers may not only have to acquire occupational mobility, but geographic mobility as well, depending on their interests and abilities and what they look for in a job."

How can you find a job if you need one? "The problem of unemployment," says Secretary Goldberg, "is an area problem, of course, but it is also a national problem. There is no single solution. The federal government has a responsibility, as do the state and local governments, private employers and labor unions. We all have to work together to realize our goal of full employment. Anybody who wants to work in our country ought to be able to work."

Concludes the Secretary: "American working men and women have proven themselves the most versatile, best equipped, and most productive in the world. Changes in industry, forecast for the '60s, are not revolutionary. Occupation changes have been taking place throughout our industrial history, and our workers have dealt with them all along." ■

"No...Belief in God Is NOT Enough!"

Many people are risking their eternal salvation on a "religion" of their own...which is actually no religion at all.

"Oh, I believe in God," they say, "but I don't go to church. I'm just not the religious type."

Almost everybody, of course, believes that there is a God. Common sense tells us that this is so. But if we actually believe there is a God, should not this same common sense tell us we must do something about it? And how can we give expression to our belief in God if not through religion?

Religion is simply the consequence of our realization of Who God is. It is our striving to be honest and consistent with this knowledge—to learn and fulfill our duties to our Creator.

Catholics believe that God created us for a definite purpose... that He gave us the intelligence to recognize what that purpose is—and the means to fulfill it. It is through our religion that we give evidence of our desire to honor and serve God. It is through religion that we approach God in faith, repentance, love and gratitude.

If you are living in the belief that you don't need religion...that all you have to do is to believe in God and live a moral life...we urge you to ask yourself these questions—NOW: "Why am I living? Why did God create Me?" The most elementary common sense answer is that you are living because God created you...and that God has a purpose in doing so. Catholics believe it is our duty to find out what God's plan is for our lives—and do our best to live it.

If you have been living without any deep religious convictions... it will pay you to read a specially-prepared pamphlet which we will send you in a plain wrapper, without cost or obligation...and nobody will call on you. It discusses such questions as: Can the truth of Christianity be proved? Is it honest to ignore religion? Is science, ethics or education a substitute for the Church? Also other topics that should concern you deeply. For free copy write today...ask for Pamphlet No. PR-18.

PRETZELS in a PIE

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

One day we remembered a childhood treat—sweet chocolate and salted crackers, munched together, were an unusual but satisfying snack. Nostalgia resulted in this luscious pie —rich mellow chocolate filling in a slightly salty shell made of pretzel crumbs.

CHOCOLATE PRETZEL PIE

1¼ cups fine pretzel crumbs
1 teaspoon sugar
½ cup melted butter or margarine
⅔ cup sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch
2½ cups milk
3 squares (3 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, cut in small pieces
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon crushed toasted almonds
Pretzel thin sticks and bowknots

Combine first 3 ingredients; press evenly into 9-inch pie pan, covering bottom and sides completely; press down firmly. Bake about 8 minutes in moderate oven, 325°. Cool thoroughly. Combine next 4 ingredients in top of double boiler. Cook over boiling water until thickened, stirring constantly. Cover; cook 15 minutes longer. Stir a little of the hot mixture into egg yolks; add to remaining mixture in double boiler. Cook and stir 2 minutes over hot, not boiling, water. Cool. Add vanilla. Pour into pretzel crust. Decorate with pretzels. Sprinkle with almonds. Chill.

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

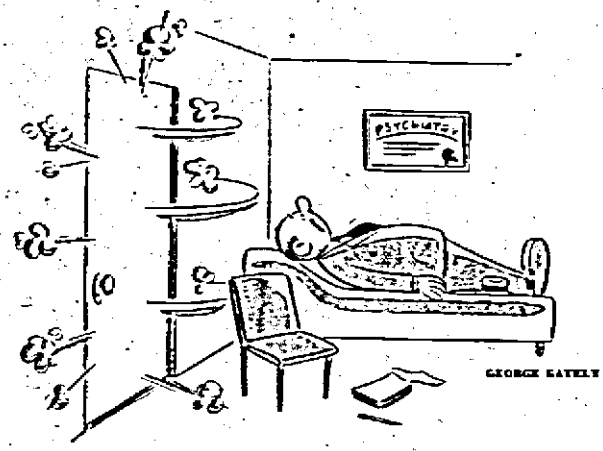

DIVORCEES. The Census Bureau recently released a surprising statistic—in 1961 one in every 14 American women was divorced or separated.

TV GYPS. Repair cheats are back in the TV racket. Better Business Bureaus report that complaints are mounting on dishonest practices of TV repairmen. Some of these phonies were driven out in the 1950s, but others, just as dishonest, have apparently replaced them. To protect yourself, advises the BBB, beware of the TV repairman who advertises an extremely low flat rate per call. Use a repairman recommended by neighbors or the local Chamber of Commerce. Demand a detailed service bill. Ask to see the tubes or parts which have been replaced.

A DOZEN WORDS. Do you know the 12 basic words in the English language which comprise almost one-fourth of all the reading, writing and talking of the average American? Here they are: a, of, the, and, I, in, that, he, it, is, was, to.

MEXICAN OPIUM. A large share of the narcotics currently smuggled into this country originates in Mexico. For the past 25 years, clever and ruthless Mexicans have cultivated large poppy fields in the states of Durango, Chihuahua and Sonora. The poppy fields are cared for by ignorant Indian farmers who are directed and financed by a secret group of shrewd, wealthy Mexican smugglers. U.S. authorities have known about them for years, have been able to do relatively little since the Mexican government seems unable to crack down on them.

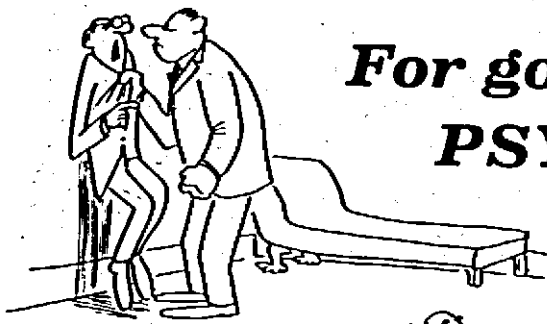

POLIO DISAPPEARING. Polio is no longer a serious public health problem in the U.S. despite the fact that 38 per cent of the people in this country have never been inoculated with the Salk vaccine. In 1961 we had less than 5 cases of polio per million population. Before Jonas Salk developed his vaccine, we had 162 cases per million. Thanks to Salk, there has been a 97 per cent reduction in the annual polio toll.

TO MAINTAIN THEIR PROPER LEVEL IN THE WATER, SALT WATER FISH MUST EITHER SWIM CONSTANTLY, LIKE MACKEREL, OR POSSESS SOME MEANS OF FLOTATION

ALL FISHES POSSESS SOME ABILITY TO WITHSTAND CHANGE IN PRESSURE IF IT IS NOT TOO GREAT, BUT ONLY FOR LIMITED PERIODS

FISH LIVING AT DEPTHS OF 15,000 FEET, MUST PRODUCE WITHIN THEIR SWIM BLADDERS A GAS PRESSURE OF OVER 2000 POUNDS PER SQUARE INCH
